A MEASURE OF MERIT

Tecumseh Citizen should weigh well this evidence.

Proof of merit lies in the evidence.

Convincing evidence in Tecumseh.

Is not the testimony of strangers.

But the endorsement of Tecumseh people.

The statement of a Tecumseh citizen.

Mrs. J. H. Welch, who resides in the southwestern section of Tecumseh says: "I wish to express my gratitude for the benefit derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. My back troubled me for a long time with a constant dull aching pain across my loins and when stooping or exerting myself it became very sharp. If I took cold it always settled in my kidneys and in the morning I was so lame and stiff that I could hardly attend to my work. I used several simple household remedies but they did not bring relief. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills recommended and spoken of so highly I concluded to test their merits and got a box at C. A. Wright's drug store. They took right hold of the cause and in a short time the pain in my back was a thing of the past. I can now straighten after bending or stooping without inconvenience. Doan's Kidney Pills are a wonderful remedy."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cent per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

REFUSED TO SEE HIM.

Shear, the Muskegon Forger, Deserted by His Family.

Muskegon, Mich., Sept. 25.—The examination of the office of Luther W. Shear, the self-confessed forger, begun Saturday, has been concluded. Among other things discovered was a stock of forged papers. It is said the examination revealed nothing of moment. A number of small notes owing to Shear were found, but these altogether will not amount to $200.

It is understood that very few of Shear's creditors who have been to see him are satisfied with what he said in explanation. One said: "Things are worse mixed up now than before Shear returned home. It would have been much better for all if he had not come back."

Mrs. Shear and the prisoner's daughter have not been to see him since his incarceration. On the day of his arraignment in circut court Mrs. Shear brought to the jail her husband's overcoat, but refused to see him.

Special Orders to G. A. R.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 25.—Commander Anthony of the Michigan G. A. R. has issued special orders regarding the national encampment at Washington next week. The resignation of William S. Green as chief of staff is announced, and the appointment of E. S. Jamieson of Post 384 to the position made public. William A. Jellison of Post 300 is detailed to have charge of the registration at headquarters in Washington, and members of the order are requested to register promptly on their arrival in Washington. The commander quotes Adjutant-General Towler of the national organization to the effect that veterans need not worry over the assignment of free quarters at Washington, as all details will be arranged on their arrival.

A GOOD THING

Something You Can Readily Believe As Its Tecumseh Evidence

Mrs. B. E. Gray of Tecumseh, Mich. says;—"Last summer I had an attack of fever which left me in a weak, dizzy and nervous state. I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at Chas. A. Wright's Drug Store and after using the pills I can say my nerves were strengthened and I felt better every way. I think the pills all right."

STORYETTES.

Never judge a person by their clothing. The man with fringe around the bottom of his trousers, slouch hat and worn out shoes may be the editor of your local newspaper while the man with the new clothes and new shoes may be one of his delinquent subscribers.

The tramp peddler salesman is here today and gone to-morrow, with no prospect of seeing him again soon, if at all. Let the lesson of his presence be to buy of home dealers whose advertisements can be found in their local papers, and who are ready to make right anything that may have gone wrong.

Merchants who want newspaper men to roast grocery peddlers, cheap John stores and the like, would make newspaper men feel more like doing so if these same merchants would quit using the free letter heads of fruit firms and gargling oil envelopes, baking powder statements, sidewalk advertisements and rubber stamps and patronize home printing offices.

A duck having laid a dozen eggs this season complained that while her working record was better then the hen's the latter had books and poems written to her honor while no one ever heard a single word of praise for the duck. A wise old rooster near by said: "You lay an egg then waddle off without saying a word about it, while that sister of mine never lays one without everybody knows it. If you want to cut any ice around here you must advertise."

They sat on the steps at midnight, two fools that were better in bed; murmuring honeyed nothings, while the silver moon hung her head. Two fools with joyous elation swooped the microbes on their lips, and thrilled with a queer sensation from toes to their finger tips. Telling the same stuff over and over that was nothing when it was new; giggling, gushing and burning, but frozen through and through: this the fond affection the young folks have to bear; they think it love undying and angels in envy stare. The bachelor thinks it is nothing, the old maid says it is vice, and mamma says it is naughty, but the youngsters know it is nice.

General Booth Coming.

London, Sept. 25.—General Booth of the Salvation Army, who sails for New York Sept. 27, made a farewell address last night in Exeter hall. The building was crowded. General Booth said he would visit twenty-five cities in the United States and eleven in Canada and conduct 150 meetings, besides public receptions. He said the chairman of the proposed meetings would include Governor Nash of Ohio, Governor Yates of Illinois, and Senator Hanna. In his address, General Booth characterized the United States as a nation of mighty ambitions. He said he trusted he would be able to do something to help forward sentiments which would stimulate the people of the United States along the paths of righteousness and truth, so that they as a nation would become truly great, glorious and free.

FRED CLARK.

The community was shocked Saturday to learn of the death of Fred Clark, which occurred Friday evening. He was 42 years of age, having been born at Raisinville, Monroe county, Sept. 1st 1860. With his parents and sisters he came to Ridgeway when he was four years old. His father died when he was twelve years old, leaving him with the care of the home, which he has kept up ever since.

He was quiet and reserved being highly esteemed by all who knew him and will be greatly missed especially in the home by his mother to whom he has been like a companion for years. He had been ill for three weeks with typhoid-malerial fever, but the direct cause of death was heart failure. The funeral services were conducted by Rev Kooiker of Britton, assisted by Rev. J. A. Lowry of Dundee.

Among those from away who were in attendance were: Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Clark of Clinton, Mrs. John Barneby and son of Raisinville, Henry Barneby and wife of Toledo, Alfred Richards and son of Trenton, Mrs. Robert Clark of North Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gunn, Mrs. Delia Rappleye and Miss Mattie Rappleye of Ypsilanti.

MRS. DAVID GIBSON.

Jennie Underwood Gibson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Underwood, was born at Ridgeway, Nov. 19, 1870 and died at Pasadena, Cal., Sept. 10, 1902, where she had gone in search of health. Her early life was spent where she was born with the exception of two years at Raisin Valley seminary and one year at Adrian college. Then later she spent some time in Detroit studying music in which she was very proficient June 14, 1899, she was married to David Gibson of Sparta, formerly of Britton. To this union was born one daughter, Glendora, a child of two years, who with the husband, father, mother, sister and brother mourn the loss of one whom to know was to love. Hers was a sweet life and as has been said she was never known to speak unkind of any one.

Ill with the grip, she came to her father's home from Sparta in July 1901, and advised by an Ann Arbor specialist, she left Dec. 31 for California in hopes that the change of climate would be of benefit but that dreaded disease consumption had did its work and all that human skill could do was of no avail. Her only wish to live was for her baby, but was reconciled to go and would not murmur if only God's will be done. Her trust was firm in Jesus and the esteem in which she was held was manifest by the many friends who accompanied her to her last resting place and by many floral offerings. She had been a member of the M. E. church from a child and a teacher in the Sunday school for several years.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. T. M. Mott from her father's home, Sept. 17, and the remains laid in evergreen cemetery near the earthly home she loved so well, and all turned away with saddened hearts, but to know if we lived aright, there at last would be a meeting where parting will be no more.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to return our heartfelt thanks to the kind friends and neighbors who assisted us at the funeral of our dear one, and to the many friends who met us at Britton. Also for the flowers and music. DAVID GIBSON.

White Smoke from Soft Coal

Round Oak Furnaces have large feed doors, burn wood or coal; but whatever they burn, give greater heat than any other furnaces, because all the gases and nearly all the smoke is consumed. The smoke is white from a Round Oak Furnace burning soft coal; that means no waste fuel. The principle is not new, but the application to the Round Oak is new—in that no holes are cut through the fire pot.

Round Oak Furnaces

are different from all others in many other things—in solid construction, in reasonableness of price. If you are going to buy a furnace, send for our free furnace book—contains useful information about heating, dimensions, furnace regulation, ventilation, etc.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT THE ORIGINAL LIVER MEDICINE

A sallow complexion, dizziness, biliousness and a coated tongue are common indications of liver and kidney diseases. Stomach and bowel troubles, severe as they are, give immediate warning by pain, but liver and kidney troubles, though less painful at the start, are much harder to cure. Thedford's Black-Draught never fails to benefit diseased liver and weakened kidneys. It stirs up the torpid liver to throw off the germs of fever and ague. It is a certain preventive of cholera and Bright's disease of the kidneys. With kidneys reinforced by Thedford's Black-Draught thousands of persons have dwelt immune in the midst of yellow fever. Many families live in perfect health and have no other doctor than Thedford's Black-Draught. It is always on hand for use in an emergency and saves many expensive calls of a doctor.

Mullins, S. C., March 10, 1901.
I have used Thedford's Black-Draught for three years, and I have not had to go to a doctor since I have been taking it. It is the best medicine for me that is on the market for liver and kidney troubles and dyspepsia and other complaints. Rev. A. G. LEWIS.

HER THROAT CUT

SURROUNDED BY MYSTERY

East Tawas, Mich., Sept. 29.—With the life-blood gushing from a wound in her throat, Mrs. Ernest Scholtz was found about noon Sunday lying on the floor of her home. There was a razor beside her, but nothing to indicate whether her ghastly condition was the result of attempted murder or suicide. At 8 o'clock last night the woman was still alive.

A strange matrimonial tangle is back of the affair, and the woman's husband is now in jail. Her former husband, Allard, is alleged to have deserted her some twelve years ago, leaving her to support a young child. She obtained a divorce from Allard, it being reported he had again married and was residing at Houghton. She went to Sault Ste. Marie and married Scholtz, returning here last spring.

Afterward, it is said, Allard attempted to estrange their son from Mrs. Scholtz, telling him she was not lawfully married and that Scholtz had a wife in an insane asylum. It is true the latter had previously married his cousin, but this marriage was nullified on the ground that this cousin had a husband living in Germany at the time of her marriage to Scholtz. Scholtz has lived here twenty years and has always borne a good reputation.

Allard arrived here last week and drove Scholtz from the house. Last night he was still in possession and refused a reporter access to the stricken woman. There is a difference of opinion as to her plight. She had threatened to take her own life, but Sheriff Johnson stated that when Scholtz was taken into the presence of his wife the latter indicated him to be the one who committed the deed. Scholtz denies this and claims he can prove that at the time it is supposed to have occurred he was at East Tawas consulting as to what steps he could take to keep Allard away from his wife. It is believed the latter will die.

Scandal at Flint.

Flint, Mich., Sept. 29.—Miss Ida Gillett has until recently been a clerk in a leading store here and was respected by all who knew her. Recently her health has been poor and she went to Eaton Rapids. A few days ago the community was startled to hear that she had given birth to a child there, and she confirmed the story by bringing suit by capias for $3,000 damages against Max Pierson, brother of ex-Senator Pierson of this district, setting up that he betrayed her under promise of marriage and now has deserted her and her babe and refuses to save them from disgrace.

Drank Horse Linament.

Holly, Mich., Sept. 29.—William J. Innes, aged forty-two years, residing at 402 Fremont street, Bay City, died in a box car here Sunday from the effects of drinking a veterinary's leg wash. It was composed of alcohol, witch hazel, sugar of lead, etc., and was prepared for use on a race horse of which Innes had charge enroute from the state fair at Pontiac to Bay City. He was intoxicated and drank several quarts of the dope and died in terribly agony.

ON BURNING FAGOTS

A Corinth, Miss., Negro Was Roasted to Death.

SURROUNDED BY A MOB

His Reward For Assaulting and Murdering a Woman—Confessed Several Crimes and Adjudged Himself Deserving of Fate Awarded Him.

Corinth, Miss., Sept. 29.—Writhing in the flames of burning fagots, piled high by hundreds of citizens, Tom Clark, alias Will Gibson, a young negro, was burned at the stake here at a late hour Sunday, after having confessed to one of the most atrocious crimes in the history of north Mississippi, the assault and murder of Mrs. Carey Whitefield on Aug. 19 last. Before the torch was applied Clark stated that he deserved his fearful fate.

Last August Mrs. Whitfield, the wife of a well-known citizen, was found dead in her homo. Investigation showed that the woman had been assaulted and her head was practically severed from her body. Corinth and the surrounding coutnry were scoured in an effort to apprehend the murderer, but diligent search failed to disclose his identity.

It became known last Monday that Tom Clark, a negro living near here, had had trouble with his wife, and the latter threatened to disclose the secret of a crime. Officers apprehended the woman and she told enough to warrant the belief that Clark had killed Mrs. Whitfield. Clark was arrested and was brought before the committee in Corinth. The negro finally confessed to the murder and also told of other crimes he had committed. He said that several years ago he killed two men on an excursion train in Mississippi. He told of an outrage perpetrated by himself upon a negro woman, and also of the theft of $1,500 from a physician at French Camp, Miss. Clark said he had never been suspected of committing any of these crimes and had covered up the tracks in a way to deceive the officers. After making the confession Clark said he deserved death.

Meanwhile, the news of the negro's arrest and confession spread rapidly over the surrounding country, and yesterday's incoming trains brought hundreds of people into the city to witness the execution.

The announcement was made that it had been decided to burn Clark at 3:30 in the afternoon. This caused much excitement, and surging crowds of people began to gather at the place selected for the enactment of the awful tragedy.

At 3 o'clock the prisoner, heavily manacled, was taken from the jail by a posse of armed men and securely fastened to an iron stake. The husband and brother of Clark's victim stepped forward and applied torches, and in a moment the flames leaped upward, enveloping the trembling negro in smoke and fire. Finally his head fell forward upon his breast and in a few minutes all was over.

The Turks also suffered severe losses. The pursuit of the Bulgarians continues.

CONTRADICTS BAER

Mitchell Issues Statement in Reply to the Operator.

MEETS ALL ARGUMENTS

Bituminous and Anthracite Miners Wages Compared—Hours of Labor and Amount of Coal Mined Disputed—No Malice Toward Operators.

Philadelphia, Sept. 29.—President Mitchell of the United Mineworkers last night gave out a statement in which he said:

"The recent utterances of Mr. Baer, spokesman of the anthracite coal trust; Mr. Hewitt, and other interested persons disclose a well-defined purpose to confuse and cloud the real causes which resulted in the coal strike and an attempt to divert attention from actual issues involved; however, misleading as are their utterances, it is a relief to know that they now admit that the public has interests which cannot be ignored with impunity; and inasmuch as the public must be the final arbiter of the coal strike, it is imperative that it shall not be deceived by statements which are at variance with the facts. With the purpose of correcting some of the false impressions and misrepresentations contained in the statements of the gentleman referred to, I issue this letter.

"Mr. Baer states 'that the wages paid in the anthracite coal regions are, compared with the wages paid in like employment, fair and just.' By 'like employment' Mr. Baer must refer to bituminous coal mining. I am willing and prepared to demonstrate that wages in the bituminous coal fields are from 20 to 40 per cent higher than those paid for similar classes of work in the anthracite fields.

"There are other statements of Mr. Baer which are equally incorrect; among these is his assertion that the miners only worked from four to six hours per day,' and his further assertion 'that the lowest scale of wages was 85 cents for boy slatepickers.' If Mr. Baer desires, I shall gladly furnish him with names and addresses of thousands of slatepickers, each of whom received much less than 85 cents per day, and I shall be willing to have the returns verified by the companies' pay rolls.

"The next misstatement of Mr. Baer to which I shall give notice is that which claims 'for some mysterious reason' the miners restricted the output of the mines. Mr. Baer claims 'that in this manner the product of the collieries has been reduced about 12½ per cent and that in the case of the Reading company it amounted to more than one million tons.' This is vitally important, if true; but it is not true. The fact is, that instead of a loss of one million tons there has been an increase in 1902 from the mines operated by the Reading company of 838,243 tons; and a total increase from all the anthracite mines of nine million tons. (See report of Pennsylvania state bureau of mines.)

"Since the very inception of this strike the aims, objects and ideals of the United Mineworkers of America have been wilfully distorted by a small army of critics. We have been unjustly maligned and our motives and purposes maliciously impugned. We therefore take this opportunity to repeat specifically that we do not seek to interfere with the management of the coal properties or with the proper discipline of the working force, but we do demand 'first, an increase in wages for men employed on piece work; second, a reduction in the hours of labor for men employed by the day; third, payment for a legal ton of coal; fourth, that the coal we mine shall be honestly weighed and correctly recorded; and fifth, we favor incorporating in the form of an agreement, the wages that shall be paid and the conditions of employment that shall obtain for a specific period.

"As to the reasonableness of these demands, we have proposed to submit to and abide by the award of an impartial board of arbitration.

"There could be no grosser perversion of truth than the assertion of the operators that the mineworkers' union is a lawless organization. During the past twenty weeks the whole power of the union has been exerted to preserve the peace among a voluntarily idle population of three quarters of a million.

"In closing this statement, I desire to say that we have entered and are conducting this struggle without malice and without bitterness; we believe that our antagonists are acting upon misrepresentation rather than in bad faith; we regard them not as enemies but as opponents, and we strike in patience until they shall accede to our demands or submit to impartial arbitration the differences between us.

"Involved in this fight are questions weightier than any question of dollars and cents. The present miner has had his day; he has been oppressed and ground down, but there is another generation coming up, a generation of little children prematurely doomed to the whirr of the mill and the noise and blackness of the breaker. It is for these little children we are fighting.

"JOHN MITCHELL,
"President United Mineworkers of America."

NOW IT'S SENATOR ALGER.

Ferry Withdraws and Bliss Appoints the General.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 29.—General R. A. Alger succeeds the late James McMillan as United States senator from Michigan, the appointment having been tendered by Governor Bliss late Saturday night. The honor came as a complete surprise to General Alger at midnight in the form of a telephone message from the governor, who told him that he had telegraphed the tender of the appointment.

The news was confirmed by General Alger and he made the announcement that he would probably accept. The appointment came as a great surprise, being entirely unsought, but with General Alger's election assured when the legislature meets in January, the governor evidently concluded that the state should have its full representation in Washington when congress opens in December.

In addition, there is a possibility that the senate may be convened immediately after election to act on a reciprocity treaty with Cuba, in the event of which it is essential that the state should have two senators there.

The honor came so unexpectedly to General Alger that he had little comment to make other than to express his deep appreciation, and say that he would probably accept. He will formally acknowledge the tender of the high office this week.

A dispatch from Saginaw states that the friends of Hon. Benton Hanchett have decided to make no further active efforts in his behalf regarding the United States senatorship. As a matter of fact, he has never been anything but a receptive candidate.

"Saginaw, Mich., Sept. 27, 1902.
"Gen. Russell A. Alger, Detroit, Mich.
"I hereby tender you the appointment of United States senator from Michigan to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late senior senator, Hon. James McMillan.
(Signed) "A. T. BLISS, Governor."

Dexter M. Ferry's withdrawal from the race, which was formally announced Saturday afternoon, and the announcement of his most powerful friends that they will support General Alger, left no opposition to the ex-secretary of war that could amount to anything in the legislature of next winter, and it was reported that Governor Bliss would see Benton Hanchett, Bliss' Saginaw fellow-townsman, and if Mr. Hanchett was willing the governor would at once make the appointment.

The sudden and decisive change in political affairs came as a direct result of the unanimous adoption of the resolution in the Republican state convention of last Thursday.

THIS IS AWFUL.

Three Lurid Tales, All From Little Prescott.

Prescott, Mich., Sept. 29.—Edwin Eddy of this place recently killed three wild cats and a good-sized lynx in Alcona county, north of the Au Sable river.

Mrs. Maud Hamilton, thrice a widow and aged sixty-nine years, the mother of twelve grown up children, wa suhited in marriage Saturday to Seth Warner, aged twenty-one years, a clerk in a general store at Osceola. The bride is said to be worth $10,000.

Mrs. John C. Swinton, a white woman aged forty years, the mother of four children, has disappeared. Anthony M. Simpson, a colored barber, aged twenty-five, has also disappeared. The whereabouts of either party is at present unknown.

Whisky and Morphine.

Durand, Mich., Sept. 29.—A dead man lies in the morgue here awaiting identification. He was found on the outskirts of the town Sunday afternoon lying beside the railroad tracks. A bottle of whisky and some morphine told the death route he took. He had been seen around town the past few days, but nobody knows his name. He comes from either Flint or St. Johns. He is a well-built man, has a heavy sandy mustache and a bald spot on his head. He wore good clothes, but only 2 cents in money was found on his person. A coroner's jury viewed the remains.

More of High's Crookedness.

St. Johns, Mich., Sept. 29.—A number of additional cases of mortgages forged or altered by Senator Hiram H. High have been brought to light within the last few days, which will make the total amount of his peculations somewhat higher than they were estimated last week. Several of them are mortgages dating from 1894 and 1895, indicating that he had been pursuing his alleged crooked operations for a longer time than had been supposed.

Never Ask Advice

When you have a cough or cold don't ask what is good for it and get some medicine with little or no merit and perhaps dangerous. Ask for Foley's Honey and Tar, the greatest throat and lung remedy, it cures coughs and colds quickly. J. J. Orr.

Water Cure for Chronic Constipation

Take two cups of hot water half an hour before each meal and just before going to bed, also a drink of water, hot or cold, about two hours after each meal. Take lots of out door exercise—walk, ride, drive. Make a regular habit of this and in many cases chronic constipation may be cured without the use of any medicine. When a purgative is required take something mild and gentle like Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver tablets. For sale by J. J. Orr.

It has also cured numerous cases of partial paralysis. It is for sale by J. J. Orr.

A Communication

MR. EDITOR—Allow me to speak a few words in favor of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I suffered for three years with bronchitis and could not sleep at night. I tried several doctors and various patent medicines but could get nothing to give me any relief until my wife got a bottle of this valuable medicine, which has completely relieved me.—W. S. CHAPTER VI.

I NOW perceived the Lady Ippolita coming in my direction. For the last ten minutes the orchestra had been sawing and scraping away in a vain attempt to tune their untunable instruments. They now struck up the music of the dance—that is to say, according to their own peculiar ideas—and I led the highborn and matchless damizella to her place upon the floor. The quick movement of the courante was a complete transition from the languishing measure of our former dance, but it is safe to say that in the leaping and the caracoling and the sudden rush and swoop of it Ippolita and I outdid all other couples, even as we danced all around them in the saraband. When the strains of the rebec and fidel ceased, I led her, still rosy and panting from her graceful exertion, to a secluded and shadowed nook within an arched transept behind some palm trees and aloes.

"And now, sweet lady," said I, "demand of me the thing which thou hadst in mind to ask of me, and may perdition seize me if I say thee nay."

"By my halidom, fair lord, thou misapprehendest me in supposing the thing to be of such weight or difficulty. It is simply that thou shouldst straightway unmask thyself and disclose thy identity."

I immediately removed the black domino with which I had concealed the upper part of my countenance.

"There," said I. "Thou seest what manner of man I am. I will give thee warrant, however, that thou art as far as before from a knowledge of my name and lineage."

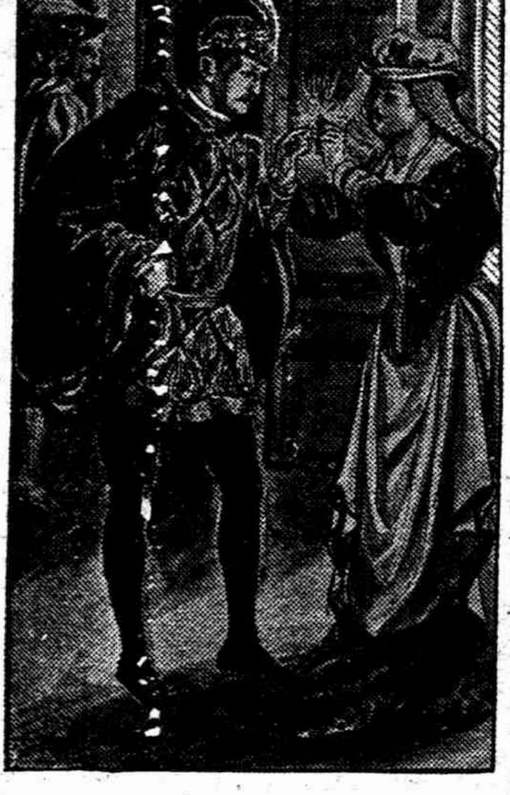
She looked at me with some surprise and a great deal of attention. She colored slightly and cast down her soft, dark eyes, and I could not help but see that she was quite well pleased with my appearance.

"I must confess," said she, "that I know thee not, though scarcely could there be a gentleman of the realm whose face I have not seen. Tell me, prithee, who art thou?"

"Alas, sweet countess, thou askest of me now a thing which is harder for me than would be all the labors of Hercules. If I should tell thee my name, thou wouldst hate me. Whenas, I declare to thee, that even at this moment, I hoped for something vastly different."

"Tell me thy name now, and I swear to thee, by our Lady, that I will not hate thee."

She spoke with considerable warmth and with a certain degree of tenderness, so that I felt sure that I had made no small headway in enlisting her virgin affections. I was almost minded to tell her at once that I was Prince Timoteo, the enemy of her house, and thus to put myself entirely in the power of this enchantress, who already had my heart so completely in her keeping. I thought of the story of Romeo and Juliet, and their case seemed so to resemble our own that I concluded to tell Ippolita the story and at the end of it to reveal my identity and to show her how it was altogether reasonable that, she being a daughter of the Albizzi and I being the son of their enemies, the Pazzi, we should think every whit as much of each other as did the son of the Montagues and the daughter of the Capulets.



"Knowest thou this?" she asked.

"Didst ever hear," said I, "the story of Romeo and Giulietta Capuletti?"

The effect upon her of this question was most surprising to me. She colored to the temples, turned away her head, pulled at the ribbons of her neck gear and seemed to be in a veritable confusion. Finally she turned to me, with a tear of despite in the corner of each big lustrous eye.

"But, sweet my lord," said she, "think not that thou canst in this wise escape the question which I put to thee. Tell me, then, I prithee, thy name without further dallying."

I might as well out with the truth first as last and trust myself to her gracious clemency.

"Know, then, Lady Ippolita degli Albizzi," said I, "that I am the greatest enemy of thine house."

"Upon my honor," said I, with my hand upon my heart, "I am none other than Prince Timoteo, the last of the Pazzi, and until this night the fiercest, most vindictive and dangerous enemy of thy noble sire."

"Santiddio!" ejaculated the countess after regarding me for a moment with looks of wonder, admiration and interest. "This is too delightful, exciting and romantic for anything. I had heard that our enemy the prince was an invalid. Thou hast, then, but just recovered from thy long malady. How interesting! And did I understand thee to say, good Timoteo, that thou bearest no longer resentment against my house?"

"It is what I said, sweet lady, and I now repeat it. After once gazing on thy fatal beauty I could work no harm to thee or thine. Never shall this my good right arm again be raised against thine august pere. Thy bright eyes have conquered, and henceforth he is safe from the vengeance of the injured Pazzi."

"Thou art, in sooth, too good and kind and generous," exclaimed Ippolita, with undisguised looks of affection and admiration.

"The fact is, dearest Ippolita," said I, again taking possession of her hand, "that I love thee, love thee deeply, desperately and eternally, and that is all there is of it."

Again she blushed, and again she cast down her glorious eyes, turning half away from me as she did so. She had a habit of blushing, which mightily became her, and whenever she blushed, not forgetting at the same time to turn half away, the which set off more picturesquely the classic lissomeness of her shape.

"Without this," continued I, "a team of horses could not in this house have drawn from me the confession of my personality. I have put myself completely at thy discretion. Breathe but my name to thy people, and my obsequies will be appointed for the morrow."

"Peradventure, fair prince," said she, "and I were to acquaint the duke my father with thy presence and with the gracious substance of thy present disposition toward him he would forget the past and give thee warm and most glad welcome."

"Aye, fair countess, so it may seem to thee, but I like not the idea of that glad and most warm welcome which I would receive from the noble duke. Therefore thou shalt acquaint no one, and we will let matters remain as they be at the present time. And now I must leave thee, for the night grows late; but tell me, prithee, before I depart, the hour and place where I may again see thee, for the whole world away from thy side is a dreary waste, and I live only in thy presence."

Upon hearing this pretty and well turned sentiment she gave me a tender smile and a languishing look, and I could have sworn that she was mine own.

"It is grievously hard for me to say, good Timoteo," she answered, "by reason of the strictness of the old duke, who ever insists upon an exact account of all my goings and comings, and also by reason of the tedious ceremony of the court, which eternally surrounds me with a tiresome company of attendants. Nathless, assure thyself that I shall seize the first befitting moment to escape them and to inform thee of the time and spot where we may meet again, for I am frank to tell thee that thy company is pleasant and thy discourse more instructive than aught that I have heard before from any knight. And now, if thou must really and truly go, andate con Dio."

Resuming my disguise, I now took a tender farewell of the ingenuous and fascinating Ippolita and wended my way through the still hilarious and numerous company toward the entrance of the palace.

In the arched and stately entrance I was joined, to my great annoyance, by the ubiquitous Brother Ambrose. Was I then, thought I, never to get rid of this pestiferous fellow? We were preparing to go forth upon the street when I felt my cloak lightly pulled from behind. I turned back and, behold, who should stand before me but the comely maid who had summoned Castruccio's daughter from me after the saraband.

"Who art thou," said I in some astonishment, "and what dost thou wish with me?"

"I am Fiorella, attendant to her ladyship the countess, and it please your worship," she answered, with a courtesy.

She then drew closer to me and spoke in a lower tone:

"My lady bids thee attend her, hard upon the midnight hour, at the postern gate of the palace garden. An untoward thing has happened of the which, it having much to do with thy safety, she is much minded to acquaint thee."

"And how shall I know, my comely maiden," said I, at the same time chucking her under the chin, "that thou speakest sooth? The thing which thou sayest has much the appearance of rigmarole. Tell me further that I may judge whether to believe thee."

"Knowest thou this?" she asked, producing and handing me a costly ring set with emeralds and diamonds which I had that night admired upon the taper finger of Ippolita. "This is the token which she bade me give thee. It lacks but a half hour of the time appointed. Fail not to be upon the spot where she commands thee, as the gentle lady will be exceeding wroth an she finds thee not."

A diabolical chuckle from the escaped monk at this moment interrupted my cogitations, and I now realized for the first time the very disagreeable and vexatious fact that he had overheard every word of my interview with Fiorella and that now the rogue was in full possession of the secret of my relations with Ippolita.

"Ha, ha!" he exclaimed. "Thou art a shrewd youth and hast played thy part well. If thou shouldst ask my present advice, I should say to thee, 'Marry the noble lady at once.' After having done which and after having put the old man out of the way in some quick and convenient manner thou wilt of necessity be heir to the dukedom without any further trouble about the business."

"But I have not asked thy advice," I answered hotly, "and it will be time to give it when I do so."

"Or, haply, thou couldst seize the damizella and convey her to some strong and secret place, there to detain her until thou couldst make profitable terms with Castruccio."

"I tell thee, base churl," said I in great anger, "that thy advice is offensive to me and that I will have none of it. And now get thee hence, as I have business toward which brooks not delay."

"Nay, good prince; thou shouldst not take so unkindly the prudent counsel which I have offered. And as to this business of thine, I myself will attend thee to the postern gate whereof the maid spoke, as the night is somewhat dark, and I trow that thou art not familiar with the way."

I was aggravated beyond endurance by his impudent persecution. He was as hard to get rid of as Sindbad's old man of the sea.

"Look here, knave," said I, placing my hand upon my sword hilt, "I will speak plainly to thee. I have seen enough of thee, and if thou dost not presently leave me I will make thee repent of it."

He looked at me for a moment in surprise, gave me a Mephistophelian leer and went off whistling and with a swaggering stride into the darkness.

I now sent Gian Jacopo to my castle with directions to expect me within an hour or two and then set out to find my way to the rear of the duke's grounds. It was rather murky, but the moon was at that moment rising, and I had just enough light to get my bearings with. I passed on beyond the palace, to the left, until I came to a small street, which I afterward found was called the Via de' Ginori, running at right angles with the one which I was on. Here I bore to the right along the side of the brilliantly illuminated edifice until I came to a high stone wall with spikes at the top. Following this for a furlong or more, I arrived at a great open field or meadow which lay behind the walled garden of the Albizzi. I followed the masonry along the whole width of the field and found but one door or gate in the entire extent of it. It was a heavy, solid, oaken portal, and I came to the conclusion presently that it was the place I sought.

Fifty feet from the doorway and just outside of the wall there was a round cistern about fifteen feet in diameter and with a stone coping two feet or so in height. It was probably a public well, where the inhabitants of the quarter obtained their water. It lacked by my watch ten minutes of midnight, and I commenced to while away the time until Ippolita should come by casting pebbles down and listening for them to strike the water, which was all of twenty feet below the rim. Suddenly I heard footsteps close behind me, and even before I could turn my head I got a terrible thrust or poke in the very middle of my back which sent me headlong over the stone coping into the cistern.

Fortunately I struck the water at about the middle, which was much better than having my brains dashed out against the stonework around it. I went down about ten feet and, quickly rising again to the surface, found myself close to the wall, into a crevice of which I succeeded in getting my fingers so that I could have a breathing spell and look about me.

"Domeniddio, sirrah, pardy, and by my halidom!" thought I, these being all the mediæval expletives which came to me at the moment.

I could see three or four heads thrust out over the coping and peering down toward me. I had great presence of mind and kept quiet, I assure you, for I knew that the assassins if they thought me still alive would cast down upon me a number of good sized cobblestones which I had noticed by having stumbled over them as I came to the well.

"Beshrew me, but I think it is the end of him," in a low tone said one of these well disposed persons.

"Let him rest in peace," said another.

"What beastly ignorance!" thought I.

Having now, without doubt, come to the conclusion that they had dispatched me, they withdrew from the top of the well. However, I doubted that they could have gone very far and kept as still as a mouse for upward of ten minutes.

MEMORIAL

Rev. L. Barnes read at the DETROIT CONFERENCE,

Rev, Leman Barnes was born in London, Canada, Sept. 3, 1830 and died at his home in Tecumseh. Mich., Nov. 26, 1901.

When Brother Barnes was six months old his parents brought him to Michigan and settled at Orion. He was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal church when fourteen years of age. At eighteen he was licensed to exhort. He was educated at Grand Rapids, Albion and Ann Arbor. In 1856 he graduated with honor from Michigan University and later took the degree of M. D. from Cincinnati Electric College.

After practicing medicine for three years, he entered the army as a surgeon enlisting in 1863, in the sixth Regiment of U. S. C. troops. One who was intimately acquainted with his army life says: "He was never known to shrink from duty." He was in active service with his colored charge at Fort Fisher when the explosion of that Fort caused such terrible death and carnage. His duties as a surgeon brought him in contact with horrible suffering, yet with fortitude and loyalty to his comrades and flag he braved these deadly scenes and stood where duty called ever bearing above the flag of his country, Christ's teachings, "What ye know not today, ye shall know hereafter."

As Chaplain for twelve years of Beer's Post No. 140, department of Michigan at Tecumseh the 135 members of all classes loved him on account of his quiet loving disposition toward every comrade.

Dr. Barnes was married at Manchester in 1857 to Harriet S. Doty, who survives him. Four children were born to them, all of whom had long preceded their father to the Spirit land. After leaving the army, yielding to his early convictions of duty, he entered the ministry, joining the Detroit conference in 1868 and for nineteen years worked faithfully for the cause he loved so well.

His appointments were as follows: Addison, South Bay City, Flushing, Ishpeming, Vassar, Lexington, Orion, Washington and Pewabic. Brother Barnes was a faithful preacher of the word and many seals of his ministry were given him in these different fields. His health was never robust and in 1885 he was compelled by poor health to superannuate. He located in Tecumseh where he lived and practiced medicine for sixteen years.

At his death the physicians of the city met and passed the following: "Resolved that in the death of Dr. Barnes we lose a professional brother who was a sincere and true lover of his profession. To his patients he was gentle and honest. And to his professional life, he added the Christian faith, which greatly sustained him when he lay down to rise no more."

In the years of his retirement from the active ministry he was not idle, but working up to the very last, bearing his testimony in the prayer-meeting, in the Sunday school and often in the pulpit. The writer had the great satisfaction of being his pastor for five years. He always found Dr. Barnes to be a man of unusual modesty, whose piety was unaffected and natural, never boastful but sweet and attractive. He was a model Superannuate. He did not criticise nor refer to the former days as better than these, nor seek to control the administration of his pastor.

He was a true friend to his pastor. He loved all the ministers, but to him his pastor was the best minister in the demonination. The writer was made a better preacher of the Gospel by his association with Dr. Barnes in the Master's work. No one could know him without being made better. He had such a high sense of honor, such a deep faith in the truths of the Gospel and presented so beautifully the well rounded character of a Christian gentleman.

He was the treasurer of the church for twelve years and one of the most efficient we have ever known. At his death the church, the Sunday school, the Epworth League and the Mission-socities all felt that they had suffered an almost irreparable loss, but all felt thankful to the Heavenly Father for the life His servant had lived in their midst, which life had been and long would be a source of inspiration to all who knew the man.

He left a widow; who as a loving and faithful wife had been a true helper. She will continue to make her home among the people who so much appreciated her husband.

Shore Acres.

If all the plays that find their way into the theater were in any appreciable degree possessed of the qualities of "Shore Acres," the stage would be a sacred place.

James T. Galloway, an actor of fine accomplishments and right spirit plays the good angel of the story, unselfish and unspoiled Uncle Nathaniel Berry. Atkins Lawrence, whose professional career has been long and honorable, is again the puritanical and obstinate Martin Berry. Chas. E. Fisher still presents his life-like portrait of the forlorn Joel Gates. Master Allen Crolius represents boy life and the boy nature with humorous fidelity as young Nat Berry.

Miss Belle Theodore as Ma Berry is a fixture in a part that she has made her own by right of meritorious work. Miss Mabel Wright is a sweet and natural Helen Berry, with some touch of her father's unconquerable spirit in her composition. Little Vivian Bryen is the star of the child group as the motherless and pathetic Mandy Gates.—Bradley opera house Monday, Oct. 6.

Manager C. D. Harday of Adrain, Opera House will send over his sutive stage crew for the performance of "Shore Acres" at the New Bardley Theater on Monday evening, October 6 The company carries a special car of scenery and everything used for the play will be brought here by them and the producion will be identical to that given in Detroit, Chicago or New York.

A force of 15 stage hands is necessary to handle the scenic effects.

Mr. J. D. Blocker of the Lilley House will furnish the turkey dinner used in the second act of "Shore Acres" It is to be the real thing.

THE COUNTY FAIR

HOWEVER A FINE LINE OF EXHIBITS.

The Adrian fair managers labored under misfortunes this year that marred the pleasure of the visitors and lessened the profits of the promoters. The weather was the greatest damper on the enthusiasm of the crowds which usually visit the grounds. It did not so much effect the entries for most of the articles were placed in their proper niche before the drizzling rain of Tuesday began. Every department was well filled and the entry books showed as fine a prospect for a good exhibit as has ever been promised.

But Wednesday's and Thursday's rain determined the fate of the receipts and the accidental burning of the grandstand Saturday morning was an added disaster which depleted the treasury to the amount of several hundred dollars. In view of all these disheartning circumstances it will be no more than exhibitors should expect of only a percentage of the premium money is paid this year. The attendance as reported from the secretary's office was about one third the usual number.

Two new buildings have been added to the many already on the grounds. One a circular area for stock surrounded by tiers of seats with ample capacity for judges and spectators. The other is a roomy building for school exhibits. The display here was a credit to the schools of the country. Everything was so neatly and systematically arranged and some of the map drawing and water color sketching from objects by eighth grade pupils excellent.

An enigma which no one seemed able to solve was that when Supt. Hensel and the fair association take so much pains to solicit attendance from the public schools of the county and offer prizes for their attendance and for their exhibits they did not appoint their "childrens day" upon the day when the Tecumseh schools are closed for the fair. We are sure the work of our schools would compare favorably with that of any in the country and yet search for a collection of work from Tecumseh was unsuccessful.

What prestege our town lost in the educational department was fully compensated for by Miles Baldwin in the vegetable exhibit. He is our veteran exhibitor, this being his twenty-seventh year as a competitor for honors at the county fair and he has never failed to capture plenty of prizes. This year he had both coat pockets full of blue cards, twenty-five in all, seven for apples, early corn, potatoes, onions, beets, cabbage, squash, carrots, radishes, celery and tomatoes. Mr. Baldwin is eighty years old but no one went ahead of him on any of the vegetables named.

The Grange hall was a wonder of ingenuity and patience. The booths were mostly ornamented with rope portieres of strings of corn and beans. At the Britton Grange where the color scheme was red and green, the ropes forming the portier were of wild cucumber pods, alternating with thorn apples. It gave a very pretty effect and Britton took first prize, with Fruit Ridge second and Hudson third.

This has been an unusually favorable year for fruit and flowers and there was a magnificent display in these departments. The cut flowers particularly the asters and pansies were very lovely and abundant.

The stalls for stock were well filled and here again Tecumseh was well represented, Charles and Fred Ives showing a fine herd of Red Polled cattle filling ten stalls all registered animals and decorated mostly with blue premium cards. Mr. Ives also took a premium on a cream separator.

In the fine arts department Miss Mae DeWolfe captured many of the premiams on burnt wood and burnt leather work in spite of a lively competition in this class. She also secured first and second premiums on water color and oil landscapes.

Miss Bertha Smeltzer exhibited a cabinet of china which the judges saw fit to decorate with five blue cards. There were four other contestants in this class also, but Miss Smeltzer carried off her share of the honors

Vernor Finch showed some fine specimens of pencil and pen and ink drawing that would not have disgraced the professional class. They were sufficiently appreciated by the committee to be also decorated with first preminms.

Mrs. B. F. Reynolds showed some work in this department. Two landscapes in oil and a bird picture that for minuteness of detail and coloring were very fine. Mrs. Reynolds was also an exhibitor of fancy work, showing some Battenburg and point lace that also secured premiums. An elegant lunch cloth finished with elaborate lace pattern was the admiration of every one and just missed a first premium by being not entirely finished, no incomplete piece of work taking a prize. There were some fine lace handkerchiefs, also the work of Mrs. Reynolds, which were awarded blue cards.

Among the especially noticeable features beyond Tecumseh interests was the new turnstile at the gate, which registered the attendance.

The beautiful white iron crib which Beck & Egan offered to the prettiest baby, and the judges awarded it to baby Stevenson. The quilt in the old ladies department made of inch square pieces of which there was said to be 480. A dolls apron in boys and girls department made by little Lola Mobus of Weston, aged four years.

A quilt made on island of Malta by the exhibitors' brother of queer foreign looking pieces stitched by hand and a man in the agricultural department with a corn stalk some ten or twelve feet long to which he was patiently and sorrowfully tying his blue premium cards. The cards nearly covered the stalk and when asked in regard to their number he said: "Only twenty-five, last year I got thirty, and I started in to beat my own record this year and got left. This here fair has got so it aint much of a thing any more. It's run by a trust I guess."

A word and a blow—"Brag."

Aching Joints

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, are joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

Sufferers dread to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and their condition is commonly worse in wet weather.

"It has been a long time since we have been without Hood's Sarsaparilla. My father thinks he could not do without it. He has been troubled with rheumatism since he was a boy, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine he can take that will enable him to take his place in the field." MISS ADA DOTY, Sidney, Iowa.

SILVER WEDDING

After a Union of Twenty-five Years, this Anniversary is Celebrated

MR. AND MRS. JOS. MARSH

After twenty-five years of happy cooperation Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Marsh celebrate their anniversary with a silver wedding. And to them, as well as to those present, the occasion will long be remembered

A happy union has marked their lives and they are surrounded by a large circle of friends, all of whom attested their good will by the many useful and beautiful presents donated. Years may glide by, but to Mr. and Mrs. Marsh, the year 1902, the year that marks their silver anniversary, will ever be the most pleasant.

At an early hour Thursday guests began to arrive, and continued their coming until a late hour. The dining room of the Marsh residence was befittingly decorated, flowers afforded the chi ef decoration, the white blossoms with a back-ground of green foliage made the rooms seem like an enchantment, and time, with the guests passed all too soon

A two course dinner was served about 2 p. m. each guest being presented with a dainty souvenir which was in shape much like a quarter, the material was of aluminum having upon one side these dates, "Sept. 25th 1877—Sept. 25th 1902," while upon the other in raised letters could be read the following: "¼ Century," these dainty little souviners were tied with green and white ribbon and made indeed a very presentable present. Luncheon was served at 8:00 p. m. and was a two course affair. In all about seventy guests were present, who showered upon the host and hostess many beautiful and useful presents in token of their esteem, following is the lists of out of town guests: Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Symonds, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Marsh and children, Mrs. Ava Harden, Mrs. Kate Decker, Mr. Mat McConnel, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Beers, Mr. Wm. H. Hervey and daughters Misses Lelia and Bertha, Mr. E. IN TECUMSEH.

Every Claim is Backed by Local Testimony.

If the reader wants stronger proof than the following statement and experience of a citizen here at home, what can it be?

Mr. F. A. Ferguson, tinsmith, residing in the northwestern section of Tecumseh, says: "I had symptons of kidney trouble. The kidney secretions were very irregular and at times too frequent and highly colored. Having seen so many cases of severe kidney trouble I thought it wise to do something at once, so I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright's drug store and took them. I began to improve from the very start and continued to do so. I emphatically declare Doan's Kidney Pills to be up to the representations made for them."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cent per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

How to defeat the coal trust.

If your hair is not so already have it dyed a coal black. Hang up a picture of the Chicago fire and another of Mont Pelee. Cultivate three or four boils. Eat things that cause heartburn. Borrow a hot box from some engineer; he doesn't need it. Hunt up an old Viking skaid and sing it. Always hold the radiator in high esteem. Read Burns and Kheats. —Coicago Tribune.

Not all the heroes go to war or to matrimony. The editor of the Greentown (Ind.) Gem went out into the amorous country visiting. Threshing was in progress and the editor desired a snap shot of the busy scene. He mounted a hog shed and was about to snap the shadow-catcher when the roof gave way and precipitated him into the sty, camera and all. On the way down he inadvertently touched the button and upon developing the negative got a very lifelike picture of an old sow's tail as she rushed to a place of safety when the cyclone struck. The thresher boys "jollied" the editor considerably, and one bet him a quarter he would say nothing about the joke in his paper. The editor was brave, however, and the cigars he bought with the money more than quieted his startled nerves from the fall in to the pig-pen. Some editors can take a joke even on themselves.

No rest at night Nervous, Worried tired all the time | the medicine that never Fails

Mr. S. Lockwood of Tecumseh, Mich., says:—"For a number of years past I have been troubled with nervousness in a severe form and as a result I was sleepless and bothered with dizzy spells. I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at Chas. A. Wright's drug store and after using the pills I am pleased to say my nerves are steadied, I sleep better and the dizzy spells are gone. I consider the pills a splendid nerve medicine."

ANNUAL PENSION REPORT.

Washington, Sept. 29.—The annual report of the commissioner of pensions, Eugene F. Ware, made public Sunday, shows that the number of names on the pension rolls still is under the million mark, despite a net gain of 5,732 pensioners since 1898. The total enrollment July 1 last was 999,446, against 997,735 last year. The total comprises 738,809 soldiers and 260,637 widows and dependents. The aggregate includes 4,695 pensioners outside the United States.

The number of death notices of old soldiers, not now in the service, by the bureau during the year was 50,128; but only 27,943 of them were pensioners.

The report says that the death rate among the pensioners for the coming year will be about 40,000, and the losses to the rolls from other cause will be about 6,000. The total amount paid for pensions during the fiscal year was $137,504,268, and the yearly cost of operating and maintaining the bureau and the agencies, beside the payment of pensions proper, aggregates $3,590,529. The pension system, says the report, since the beginning of government, has cost $2,992,509,019.

It is estimated that $16,000,000 were paid in pensions for disabilities and deaths due to military and naval service in the wars of 1812, and with Mexico, and during the time of peace prior to the war of the rebellion, making the payments of pensions to soldiers and sailors of the war of the rebellion and of the regular military and naval, and war since the close of said war of rebellion, and their widows, children and dependent relatives, amount to $2,728,678,276. This is outside of the cost of maintaining the bureau, agencies and soldiers' homes.

The average value of each pension is now a little over $132. The number of applications for pension filed was 188,626, rejected 118,464 and granted 117,268.

Soon Telegraph to Philippines.

New York, Sept. 29.—Vice-President George G. Ward of the Commercial Cable company, who arrived Sunday on the steamship Celtic, made the assertion on landing that the United States will be able to open cable communication with Manila, P. I., by July 4, 1903. Mr. Ward says the cable is being made in London at the rate of fifty miles a day, or 300 miles a week, and will be finished in March. "Three ships will lay the cable," said Mr. Ward, "the Silverton, Colonia and Anglia. Two of them will begin from Manila and one from San Francisco. When they meet in mid-ocean the ends will be spliced. Already one of the ships has started for the Philippine islands by way of the Suez canal. The ship to lay the San Francisco end of the cable will go from London through the straits of Magellan and then up the Pacific coast."

Tried to Burn Bridges.

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Violent demonstrations against the Hudson Valley Railroad company caused shots to be exchanged, and there are two men locked up in the county jail Sunday charged with being implicated in the attack on the company's property. The trouble developed late Saturday night, when attempts were made to burn the bridges between this place and Ballston Spa. Obstacles were also placed on the tracks and the depredators, who seemed to number about a dozen, sought to ground the trolley wires at an isolated point south of this place.

McKeesport, Pa., Sept. 29.—Eight men, each with charred faces, burned bodies and terribly scorched heads, were taken to the McKeesport hospital as the result of an explosion at furnace B of the Carnegie blast furnace plant, Duquesne, Saturday evening. All those injured were caught in the fiery blast of flames and ashes which followed the blowing out of a "bell" while the men were at work. They were sent up to the dangerous place about an hour before. Something had gone wrong with the working of the furnace and these men were ordered to make the necessary repairs.

Seven Jail Birds Escaped.

Akron, O., Sept. 29.—All of the seven prisoners in the county jail escaped at 10:30 Saturday night. They dug out through the basement, secreting the earth in an empty cell. The prisoners are Walter Wolf, charged with grand larceny; Daniel Myers, assault and battery; James Turner, horse stealing; Henry Williams, embezzlement; Henry Squires, robbery; Robert Rickman, stealing hair from a little girl; Charles Warner, attempted burglary and murder.

Statue to Hungarian Hero.

Cleveland, Sept. 29.—A lifesize statue to the Hungarian patriot, Louis Kossuth, was unveiled in this city Sunday in the presence of 5,000 people. The statue stands on a pedestal and is about twenty feet high. The figure of Kossuth was the work of a Hungarian sculptor, Andrew Toth, of Debreazin, Hungary. The occasion was made the opportunity for a display of the affection in which the Hungarian patriot is held.

Need For the Whipping Post.

Port Huron, Mich., Sept. 27.—Charles Ferguson was convicted yesterday of unmercifully whipping his twelve-year-old son, whose back and arms were literally converted into masses of black and blue flesh. Judge George thinks the whipping post would be appropriate sentence for Ferguson, as any other punishment will affect the family as much as the prisoner.

MURDERED HIS NEIGHBOR.

Man Near Jackson Fought While Being Arrested.

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 27.—Fred Schloff of Withington, nine miles north, last evening murdered George Smith, a neighbor. The murderer had brutally treated his wife and neighbors sent for officers. While resisting arrest, Schloff fired his gun, inflicting a fatal wound on Smith, who was only ten feet away. Schloff was finally overpowered and brought to jail.

Wyandotte Ran Behind.

Washington, Sept. 27.—The gross receipts of the 215 presidential postoffices in Michigan were $3,155,577 in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, against $2,857,327 in 1901. The cost of running these offices in 1902 was $1,441,754, leaving a net revenue of $1,713,823. The net revenue for 1901 was $1,533,767. During the year ten offices were advanced to the presidential class. They are: Armada, Brown City, Coleman, Coopersville, Davison, Gladwin, Lawrence, Litchfield, Rockford and Watervliet. One office, Au Sable, was relegated to the fourth class. For some reason unexplained here the receipts of the office at Wyandotte did not amount to enough to pay expenses, and a deficiency of $2,809 is charged up against that office.

Flint Lad Electrocuted.

Flint, Mich., Sept. 27.—Charles Roscoe, the six-year-old son of ex-Senator and Mrs. R. C. Johnson, while playing around the new Hazelton street school house Friday afternoon with another boy, ran down an embankment formed by a pile of dirt to a fence, against which they placed their hands to break the shock. As he touched this fence the boy fell. When picked up he was helpless and a doctor who was summoned pronounced the cause of his death a broken neck. Some time later, on investigation, it was found that he had been electrocuted, having touched a telephone wire against the fence, which had been charged with electricity from a cross with an electric light wire.

Victim of Faith Cure.

Traverse City, Mich., Sept. 27.—The seven-year-old daughter of Mrs. Luella Frees died Friday morning of diphtheria after a week's illness. The mother belonged to the Latter Day Saints, who believe in curing by prayer. She did not quarantine the house or summon medical aid. The matter was reported last night to the health officer, who called, but even then she refused to give the child antitoxine, although told that was the last resort. There have been large numbers exposed among the school children, who were allowed to look at their playmate's throat.

The young bicycle riders of Manchester are tickled almost to death because one of the councilmen was arrested by the city marshal for riding on the sidewalk. It seems that the old men did not observe the ordinance and the young ones kicked. The alderman took it as a good joke and paid his fine.

The latest invention is a bricklaying machine. It does the work of six or seven skilled bricklayers; and costs $500. The inventer is a Canadian. The new machine is adapted only to plain work, and can lay from 9,000 to 12,000 bricks per day. Two men and a lad are required to operate it.—Blissfield Advance.

An exchange says the following is said to be a cure for hay fever: Live on cool water and liquid food for a week. Take no meat, no vegetables, no fruit; nothing but broths, chocolate and soups. You can eat beaten eggs, raw and all the liquid foods you desire. But do not, for a short time, partake of solids. This is a curious little remedy which is working wonders in certain parts of the world where there are sanitariums for the treatment of hay fever.

A gentleman in this vicinity, who had married a second time indulged in recurring too often in conversation to the beauties and virtues of his first consort. He had, however, barely discernment enough to discover that the subject was not an agreeable one to his present lady. "Excuse me, madam," said he, "I cannot help expressing my regrets for the dear deceased." "Upon my honor," said the lady, "I can most heartily affirm that I am as sincere a mourner for her as you can be."

A stranger was in Adrian last Saturday. His stock in trade was worthless checks, of which he passed one for $11.60 on W. E. Cook of the Kells Foundry Co. He tried to pass another on the Roe clothing store, but it was refused. Then he worked three meat markets and a shoe store, in each case purchasing goods and tendering checks, receiving the balance in cash. The fellow was in Adrian long enough to allow people to become familiar with his appearance and it is therefore to be supposed that he will not visit that city again.—Ex.

A renowned clergyman, who resided in Tecumseh some years ago, preached rather a long sermon from the text, "Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting." After the congregation had listened about an hour, some began to get weary and went out; others soon followed, greatly to the annoyance of the minister. Another person started, whereupon the parson stopped in his sermon, and said, "That's right gentlemen, as fast as you are weighed, pass out!" He continued his sermon at some length after that, but no one disturbed him by leaving.

In all policies of life insurance these, among a host of other questions, occur: "Age of father, if living?" Age of mother, if living?" A man in the country who filled up an application made his father's age, if living" one hundred and twelve years, and his mother's one hundred and two. The agent was amazed at this showing, and fancied he had got an excellent subject; but feeling somewhat dubious, remarked that the man came of a very long-lived family. "Oh, you see, sir" replied the applicant, "my parents died many years ago, but 'if living' would be aged as there put down." "Oh, I see," said the agent.

James Foley came to town Saturday, to do some trading, and like all good citizens started home at an early hour, but thought the time was at hand to look the elavator over, or rather, see what was going on, so called in and was going on, so called in and was standing as he supposed, in a safe corner, when a piece of galvanized iron spouting fell in its rush towards the center of gravity, struck Mr. Foley on the forehead, cutting through a felt hat and slashed a gash about three inches long to the bone, which was promptly attended to by Dr. Manly, Blood flowed freely for awhile but Mr. Foley stood the ordeal well. He thinks now that it is not safe for an old man to be examining modern improvements without a guardian to pilot him around.—Deerfield Times Journal.

A Certain cure for Dysentery and Diarrhoea

"Some years ago I was one of a party that intended making a long bicycle trip," says F. L. Taylor of New Albany, Bradford county, Pa. "I was taken suddenly with diarrhoea and was about to give up the trip, when editor Ward of the Laceyville Messenger, suggested that I take a dose of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy. I purchased a bottle and took two doses, one before starting and one on the route I made the trip successfully and never felt any ill effect. Again last summer I was almost completely run down with an attack of dysentery. I bought a bottle of this same remedy and this time one dose cured me. For sale by J. J. Orr.

A Jack the Hugger.

Port Huron, Mich., Sept. 27.—A "Jack the Hugger" has appeared on the streets, and a well-known young society lady returning home at 11 o'clock was last night made a victim. Kidnaped His Daughter.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—A ten-year-old girl was kidnaped from the Illinois Industrial Training School for Girls at Evanston by her father Friday. A search of six months for the girl, a dash from the institution, and a long chase by the Evanston police were features of the affair. The girl was Edythe Deahl, and her parents are said to be wealthy people living in Ohio. Her mother obtained a divorce from her father, Herman Deahl, in March, and was given possession of the child.

Headache

kills, not necessarily suddenly, but SURELY. It preys upon the intellectual powers more than we realize. It consumes the vitality faster than nature can replenish it, and we cannot tell just what moment a temporary or complete aberration of the mind will result. LITERARY NOTES

The poems of the October Lippincott's magazine are well chosen and of a high standard. They are "The Land Sailor" by Frank Farrington; "The Dandelion," by Lillian Howard Cort; "The Sound of the Axe." by Francis Sterne Palmer; "The Tavern," by Ethel Watts Mumford; "Enchantment," by Madison Cawein; and a quatrain by Sam S. Stinson.

Frank Foxcroft opens the October Atlantic with A Study of Local Option, a discussion of the management of liquor selling, which is based upon the results of the Massachusetts law but which appeals to a universal audience, especially since the recent Vermont election, which was fought on this issue, and the result of which has aroused the attention of the whole country.

Under the title "With the Attacking Fleet: A Story of the Great War Game," Mr. James Barnes describes, in the October Magazine Number of the Outlook, what happened on board ship during the recent manoeuvres near the entrance to Long Island sound. Mr. Barns, who has written more than one book relating to early American naval history, had the advantage of witnessing the great marine sight from the deck of the splendid new war ship, "Alabama." He was authorized by the war department to sail on this ship as a special representative of the Outlook. His article is full of brilliant and picturesque narrative passages, and is the first real attempt to treat this subject in what may be called a literary way.

Two Grand Rapids boys are in law trouble for beating a cat till nearly dead, and afterward burying it with what life remained in it. In this case, though pussy was consigned to the tomb ere the vital spark was mauled out, she did not "come back," although cats have been known to raise from the tomb for that purpose. A flagrant instance occurred in Tecumseh some years ago. Agent Satterthwaite, of the Lake Shore road, owned a cat which made her home in the depot and cultivate the acquaintance of all who would recognize her self introduction. The animal was a fine "mouser," but certain rules of etiquette having been violated, Satterthwaite found an executioner, who conveyed her half a mile away to a lonely spot, where, after beating her to death with a club, he dug a grave and placed the body therein, after piling on the dirt and stamping it down. The cat was back at the depot the next morning. Her countenance was a little askew and one eye had expanded considerbly and there were bumps on the head not according to any phrenological chart, but her general health seemed unimpaired and she greeted Satterthwaite "in the same old way" with a sanctimonious smile and a rub against his leg. Her final death has not been reported and it probably has not occurred.

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. S. J. Ten-Brook, of Jasper, attempted to go into the corn house when the wind blew the door, hitting her on the hip and knocking her down. She called for assistance and Miss Olive J. Porter tried to help her to the house, but was unable to do so, she called for Miss Tunison who lives just across the road and they carried her to the house. Dr. Cunningham was summoned and after examination decided that there was no bones broken. She was in considerable pain during the night and on Monday morning Dr. Young, who has been called her physician for a long time, was called. He found the neck of the femur bone broken and could give no encouragement that she would ever have any use of the limb her age 87 years, being against its healing. She is now resting as comfortbly as could be expected.

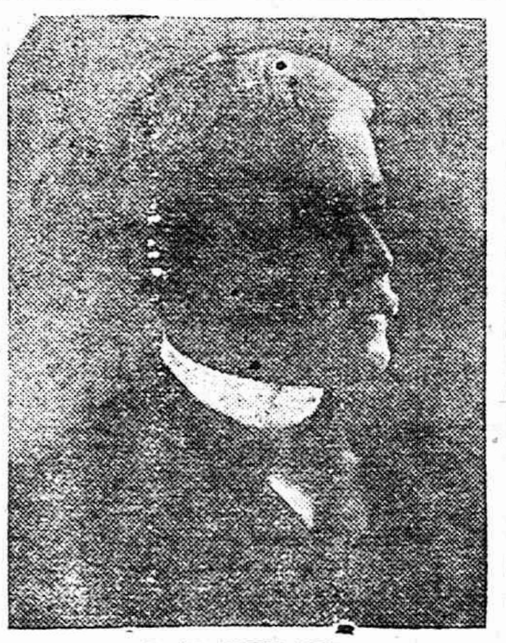
DURAND WILL LEAD

Saginaw Lawyer Nominated for Democratic Governor.

TO SUCCEED HIS BROTHER

State Central Committee Failed to Reach Agreement Until Late Hour—His Choice Made Unanimous—Vote Taken Was a Test of Strength.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 1.—The meeting of the Democratic state central committee in this city Tuesday to place a name at the head of the ticket to succeed Judge Durand brought many prominent Democrats from various parts of the state. They were divided as to the wisdom of having the name supplied by the committee instead of by recalling the convention, and several hot arguments preceeded the meeting, which went into secret session at 2:30 o'clock and did not agree upon a candidate till nearly 6.



L. T. DURAND,
Nominated for Governor by Democratic State Central Committee to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of his brother, Judge Durand

The committee disposed of the convention idea first by voting it down and then began the task of selecting a candidate. It was known that Hon. L. T. Durand of Saginaw, brother of the judge, was the choice of a majority of the committee, but Charles R. Sleigh of Grand Rapids also had a following, and the vote stood 14 to 10 in Durand's favor. It was, however, on motion made unanimous. It was charged by some present that the real controversy was not over the man to head the ticket, but a test of strength to see who should dominate the party organization.

HARGRAVES MURDER TRIAL.

Jury Secured—Dr. Chase Gives Damaging Testimony.

Traverse City, Mich., Oct. 1.—A jury was secured in the Hargraves murder trial Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, and the taking of testimony was at once begun by the prosecution.

Mrs. Tracy Elstner testified that Hargraves always treated his wife with consideration, but that she was of a sour, excitable disposition. She had told her that Hargraves misused her and that she would kill herself. She threatened to take her own life, believing that she was going crazy and would rather die than go to an asylum.

Damaging evidence was given by Dr. O. E. Chase, the coroner, who described the room where the body of Mrs. Hargraves was found on the morning of April 21, badly mutilated. The room presented a fearful scene. A great patch of blood on the carpet was nearly three feet square. Blood was splashed on the walls, dresser, commode and bed clothing.

The purpose of the prosecution is to prove that a desperate struggle took place, and as Hargraves was admittedly the only other person in the house, that he was responsible.

Dr. Chase said it would be impossible for Mrs. Hargraves to inflict the fatal wounds herself, her left arm being paralyzed and she an invalid.

Dr. Chase was on the stand when court adjourned for the day.

Student Shot Himself.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 1.—Joseph Wesley Ady, a freshman law from Colorado Springs, Col., met with an almost fatal accident while handling his revolver. The gun went off accidentally and the ball passed clear through Ady's thigh, grazing the bone and barely missing the big artery.

Bean Crop Ruined.—The heavy rains have completely ruined the bean crop in the vicinity of Flint. It is estimated that it will run up to at least $300,000 in Genesee county alone.

Wants $25,000 For a Life.—Hartson G. Barnum, administrator of the estate of George F. Nixon of Flint, who was killed by a Grand Trunk engine May 12, has brought suit in the circuit court against the company for $25,000.

Victim of Perpetual Motion Idea.—Peter Kartinen, a Hancock molder, is in a bad way mentally. He is locked up at the county jail, whence he will soon be removed to the asylum at Newberry. His insanity is attributed to anendeavor to solve the problem of perpetual motion.

ROOSEVELT ACTS

Mine Owners and Strike Leaders to Meet Him.

FRIDAY AT WHITE HOUSE

Law Won't Permit Him to Interfere, but He Will Appeal to Their Honor as Men to Settle the Strike—Results of Two Days' Conference.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—President Roosevelt will make an effort to bring the anthracite coal mine operators and their striking employes together in the interest of the public good. This conclusion was reached after a series of conferences with his cabinet advisers, covering Tuesday and yesterday.

The decision was arrived at when the lawyers of the cabinet informed the president that there was no way under the constitution and the form of government of the United States for federal intervention to end the strike. Every phase of the situation was canvassed and the determination to have the mine operators and President Mitchell meet the president was reached when it was found that no other method was open. At the conclusion of the conference yesterday, which was attended by Secretaries Root, Shaw and Moody, Attorney-General Knox and Postmaster-General Payne, at the temporary White House, the following statement was issued:

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

At the meeting Friday the line of approach toward the settlement of the strike will be an appeal by President Roosevelt to both sides to come together as men and not to allow false pride or a feeling of obstinacy to stand in the way of the termination of the greatest strike which is fraught with such threat of misery to thousands of people. It is stated by one of the president's advisers that beyond this the president cannot go; he has no powers of compulsion to bring into play against either side, and he must rely upon his persuasive ability and his appeals to their sense of humanity if anything tangible is to be accomplished.

The president intends to lay before his hearers the situation as it appears to him, with all the prospective horrors that will follow a fuel famine and will urge them, in the interests of humanity, to open the mines and supply the demand for coal. The president has taken this action because he feels it to be his duty to do so, as the executive head of a nation threatened with great peril. The president, in a sense, has taken upon himself the burdens of an arbitrator in this great dispute between capital and labor, and though the arbitration is not compulsory and is not even known under the name of arbitration in any of the invitations issued, it is the hope of the president and his advisers that it will be effective.

It is stated by a member of the cabinet that there is no political purpose in this effort, but that the president is moved to exert his influence solely in the interests of the people.

There will be no one present at Friday's meeting at the temporary White House but the principals. It is true that Friday is cabinet day and that 11 o'clock, the hour appointed in the invitation for the meeting of the coal magnates, is the usual hour of the assembling of the cabinet, but according to the present understanding, that cabinet meeting will be postponed. The purpose of the postponement is plainly to relieve the invited guests from the feeling of reserve that might naturally be created if they appeared before the entire cabinet, including some exceedingly clever lawyers whom the coal people might not care to meet in a business way in the absence of their own legal advisors. So the absence of the cabinet will give the president an opportunity to do just what he wants, namely, to have a good, heart to heart talk with the operators and Mr. Mitchell, to induce them to talk to each other freely and to reason quietly and soberly and finally to agree, if possible, to make concessions on each side which will terminate the strike. And, at least, if this last object cannot be directly attained, it is hoped that the foundations may be laid for an agreement in the near future, perhaps an agreement between the principals to have further meetings and perhaps to refer open issues between them to third parties.

It is stated positively that the president has no assurances from either side which formed the basis of his call for this meeting.

President Roosevelt's proposition for a gathering here Friday morning of representatives of the coal companies and coal operators and the miners met a prompt response from a number of the gentlemen to whom invitations were sent. During yesterday afternoon and evening the president received replies to his invitation from President John Mitchell, President G. F. Baer and one or two others. Mr

The Government Balance.

Washington, Oct. 2.—The monthly comparative statement of government receipts and expenditures shows that for the month of September, 1902, the total receipts were $48,580,381, an increase of over $4,000,000 as compared with September, 1901. The expenditures for September were $37,554,798, leaving a surplus for the month of $11,000,000. The receipts from the several sources of revenue are given as follows: Customs, $26,225,777, increase $7,000,000; internal revenue $19,789,708, decrease $2,700,000; miscellaneous $2,564,895, decrease $250,000. The expenditures on account of the war department were about $250,000 in excess of those for September, 1901, and on account of navy there was an increase of about $1,500,000.

CHILD MURDERED

A Dastardly Crime Comes to Light at Menominee.

A GIRL OF TEN OUTRAGED

Had Been Missing Since Sunday—Her Body Found Buried in Rear of a Blacksmith Shop—Joseph Beck, the Proprietor, Arrested.

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 2.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Julia, the ten-year-old adopted daughter of Inas Kachiney, who had not been seen since Sunday morning, has at last been cleared up and the most dastardly crime in the history of Menominee brought to light.

The dead body of the child was found buried under the steps directly back of the blacksmith shop of Joseph Beck Wednesday afternoon. The body showed unmistakable evidence of strangulation and of assault in the subsequent examination by physicians When found the body was doubled up, head downward, about ten inches beneath the surface of the ground.

The girl was last seen at the blacksmith shop Sunday morning, on her way to church. She stopped in the shop to see if a cabbage cutter, which her father had left there, had been repaired. Beck said he saw her start down the railroad track with a boy for church. Search was made by the po lic eand men were sent through the woods.

Tuesday night the police forcibly entered Beck's shop for investigation and were surprised at finding Beck there, who asked in a hoarse whisper if they were burglars. His being there at that hour looked strange, and yesterday morning, after investigation, Beck was taken to jail on suspicion, going quietly.

During the forenoon Chief of Police English made an investigation about the shop, finally discovering fresh white sand near the steps at the rear of the building. Taking this as a clue, he had the steps removed in the afternoon and the ground dug up, the body being discovered.

The remains were taken to an undertaker's establishment, where an examination showed red spots on the neck and blood clots on the skull, indicating strangulation. A coroner's judy was impaneled and adjourned until this afternoon.

Beck has a bad record. He has been arrested before for wife-beating, and is not now living with his wife. Feeling runs high against him, and if he were not safe under lock and key he would probably be lynched.

Hargraves Trial Continues.

Traverse City, Mich., Oct. 2.—Dr. Chase occupied the stand in the trial of John A. Hargraves for the murder of his wife all Wednesday morning, his testimony being of a technical character. The weight of the evidence was that it was impossible for the woman to have inflicted the injuries upon herself. In the afternoon very important and damaging evidence was introduced. Deputy Sheriff Leonard Grayson testified to finding a club under the back woodshed and that it was stained with blood, which was fresh at that time.

In the Supreme Court.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 2.—The supreme court Wednesday disposed of the following matters: Affirmed—Thornton vs. Supervisor sof Gratiot county. Orders to show cause were granted in Joslyn vs. Calhoun circuit judge and in Anderson vs. Osceola circuit judge, and denied in Copley vs. Van Buren circuit judge; Shadford vs. Washtenaw circuit judge; and in Thornapple Electric Co. vs. Kent circuit judge.

Farmers Are Discouraged.

Nashville, Mich., Oct. 2.—The farmers around here are pretty well discouraged. The recent rains have destroyed the entire bean crop, while corn that was not cut lays flat on the ground, and the ears are beginning to mold. Frank Griffin, who expected to have over 400 bushels of beans, will not attempt to gather them.

Fire at a Wedding.

South Haven, Mich., Oct. 2.—Shortly after the wedding of Alice Easton to Herbert Parker was solemnized at her home and while the guests were enjoying themselves, some boys outside slammed the door, knocking down a bracket containing a lighted lamp. One of the bridesmaids was seriously burned and much damage done to the house.

Unknown Woman Killed.

Beech, Mich., Oct. 2.—An unknown aged woman was killed here yesterday by the Pere Marquette train that leaves Detroit at 8:30 a. m. She was crossing the Rouge river bridge, two miles east of here, when struck by the train. Her right arm was cut off and her face badly disfigured. The body was thrown into the river, but recovered.

SAGINAW PLEASED.

Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 1.—The naming of Hon. L. T. Durand to succeed his brother, Judge Durand, as the Democratic nominee for governor gives general satisfaction in this city, where he has always lived, achieving marked success in professional and business life. Though Mr. Durand lacks the experience of his distinguished brother in state and national politics, it may be said that his legal ability, integrity and firmness are unquestioned, and his views on political situations are always valued in local politics. Being younger than Judge Durand, he has plenty of physical energy to carry him through any strain. Both national and local political honors have been offered him before, but declined on the ground that his private affairs at the time demanded his attention. He is at present long term member of the state board of law examiners, appointed by Governor Bliss upon the recommendation of the supreme court. He is the president of the Saginaw (W.S.) board of education.

Mr. Durand was, for four years, prosecuting attorney of Saginaw county, and for six years a member of the board of public works. He is now vice-president of the Saginaw County Savings bank. He is a member of the board of trustees of the Saginaw Masonic Temple association, and past eminent commander of St. Bernard Commandery, K. T.

As a candidate he will stand upon his own merits and conduct a vigorous campaign. If elected his will be a personally conducted administration of state affairs.

Hon. L. T. Durand received notice last night of his appointment, and in conversation with a representative for the Associated Press he said:

"I am receiving congratulations from all over the state. I think I will accept, as I understand it to be the will of the committee and the party it represents. I expect the loyal encouragement of all members of the party and the people of Michigan who are interested in the welfare of the cause as presented by the platform of the convention."

ALGER'S COMMISSION ISSUUD.

Governor Bliss Airs His Opinion Regarding the Great Coal Strike.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 1.—General Alger's commission as United States senator to succeed the late James McMillan was mailed from the executive office last night.

Governor Bliss has appointed twenty delegates to represent Michigan at the interstate conference called to meet in Detroit Thursday, Oct. 9, to devise ways and means for obtaining a supply of anthracite coal. The delegation is made up of representative business men from various parts of the state.

The governor says that the people face a serious crisis and that, without stopping to consider the merits of the controversy between operators and miners, it is advisable that means be devised whereby the country can have the needed supply of hard coal. This should be accomplished through arbitration, if possible. He hopes to see the contending forces brought together on mutual grounds, but says the situation is of such grave concern to all people that it is time it should be taken up as a national matter if it cannot be otherwise adjusted.

Accidentally Shot His Sister.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 1.—Miss Dot Thomas, aged twenty, a beautiful and accomplished young lady, may die, and if not will be disfigured for life as the result of an unfortunate accident which occurred at the family home on West Main street last evening. She was seated at the table, when her brother Charles, who had a revolver in his hand, reached for a lamp and slipped, discharging the weapon full in her face. The ball struck her in the cheek, shattering both jaws and taking a downward course.

Mr. Scholtz Charged With Murder.

East Tawas, Mich., Oct. 1.—Public opinion is very much in favor of the release of F. Scholtz, the man held on suspicion of having cut his wife's throat. The insane woman is said to have indicated by nods that it was her husband who did the deed, but everything points to an attempt at suicide on the part of the woman. She died at 11:30 Monday night.

Big Fire in Alpena.

Alpena, Mich., Oct. 1.—Alpena suffered the second mill fire of the present season last night, when the Huron Lumber company mill, owned by Rolland Hughes, John M. Eales and C. W. Trask, was burned to the ground, together with considerable lumber, lath and shingles. The loss on the mill is estimated at $25,000, with $14,000 insurance.

Vassar, Mich., Oct. 1.—A masked man, armed with a revolver and a dark lantern, entered Rev. John Wright's house about 4 o'clock Tuesday morning, ordered Wright to stay in bed and took a pair of pants, which he carried about a block and dropped in the road. A small amount of money and a bunch of keys were taken.

Holdup Was a Joke.

Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 2.—The holdup of the stage coach "Pioneer," near Florida Tuesday evening, is now acknowledged to have been a joke perpetrated on the passengers. The masked men were three young residents of Warwick. It is understood that the property taken has been returned.

Eight Miners Killed.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by J. J. Orr.

CHAPTER VII.

THEN all at once sounded several times the screams of women. It seems as though there were more than one of them, and I immediately imagined, of course, that Ippolita and her attendant, opening the door to pass out, had been confronted by the malefactors who had done my business. Then I heard the gate slammed to with a great noise as if the damosels had succeeded in putting it between them and their enemies and after that the tramp of swiftly departing footsteps, and all was still again. I hoped and believed that no harm had come to my beautiful mistress or her attendant.

Had I had with me the ingenious contrivance with which I had scaled the enchanted mesa of New Mexico, I could quickly have got out of the well. As, however, I had it not and as the great round cylinder in which I found myself was built of very smoothly dressed stone on which no foothold was obtainable, I was forced to the conclusion that I would have to remain in my present position until daylight should bring some one to the well for water.

It was only a question of hanging on where I was or of swimming around the wall for four or five hours like a cat in a barrel. This last undertaking appeared to me as the merest trifle, for the reason that I am a most expert and powerful swimmer and am never so much at home as when I am battling with the crystal element. I was getting rather chilly, too, and needed exercise to warm me up. I therefore started out, keeping close to the walls, and when I had gone around ten times in one direction I turned and went ten times around in the other. In making the circle I swam about thirty feet. It was a quarter past 12 when I commenced and 5 o'clock in the morning when I ended.

The reason I stopped was that it was already daylight and that an old curmudgeon had just looked over the coping and hailed me.

"Say there," he shouted, "thou profane and unwashed knave, knowest thou not that 'tis forbid to bathe within the public wells? Sirrah, come out of there at once and go with me straightaway before the magistrate."

"Would that I could," said I.

He looked at me for some moments before it dawned upon him that he had commanded an impossibility. He then spoke to some persons who were with him, and they let down a bucket by means of a great beam or lever hung pivotwise upon a post which stood not far from the coping. I stepped into the bucket and was at once and without much exertion on their part lifted to the surface of the earth. I shook the water from my beforetime gorgeous raiment, and as I took in its sodden and bedraggled state it seemed to me that I looked like nothing so much as a drowned rat.

When I landed upon terra firma, I found myself surrounded by half a dozen stout fellows corsleted and bearing bills and pikes, so that escape was out of the question. It was a company of the watch, and the old duffer who had accosted me was the captain of it. Two of them presently took me by the arms as though I were a most dangerous criminal, and at the command of their officer we immediately set out for the bargello, which, as I afterward found, was the prison of the city and also the palace of the podesta or chief magistrate. I went along with them willingly enough, for the reason that I took the offense with which I was charged to be a light one and imagined that I would be let off by the magistrate upon the payment of a trifling fine. When we were come to the bargello, it was 6 o'clock in the morning, and I was immediately conducted into the donjon.

It was not until 10 o'clock that I was summoned before the magistrate in the hall of justice of the bargello.

"What is the charge against this knave?" bellowed the magistrate, regarding me with a tremendous scowl.

"Most worshipful podesta," answered the captain, "he is charged with having feloniously robbed the palace of the noble Duke Castruccio during the banquet of yesterday of five golden ewers, six silver platters and eight golden goblets. When the rogue was comprehended, he had them not with him, but, by our Lady, I think that he knoweth right well where to come by them."

"Have ye searched him?" demanded the magistrate.

The idea of this old wiseacre having a suspicion that I might carry concealed about my person such a quantity of tableware was so ridiculous that I burst into a roar of laughter.

"Gadzooks!" shouted he. "Shall we be bearded thus within our very court? Away with the scoffing reprobate to the donjon! I will myself acquaint the duke of the affair, and what with the rack and the thumbscrews it will go hard, but we will get his confession and have him burned by eventide."

When I was once more in my dark and narrow cell I began to think that the matter was much more serious than I had at first supposed. In about half an hour my reveries were interrupted by the turning of the key in the lock. I expected to see at least a turnkey with a cup of cold poison, but instead, the door revolving upon its hinges, I beheld a friar standing upon the threshold. He handed me a voluminous black robe and a square, pyramidal hood, such as he himself wore. He then spoke in a sepulchral voice:

I clothed myself quickly in the monk's garb, at the same time wondering how it was that he knew me for the prince. I then followed my ghostly guide along a narrow and crooked passage and up a stairway, which I knew was not the one I had taken before. We now traversed two or three chambers and went along a gallery or corridor until we arrived at a door, opening which we found ourselves upon a narrow street which separated the bargello from the badia, or ancient abbey. We crossed the street and entered the monastery church, and as there were several worshipers present we ourselves dropped upon our knees for a few moments in order to avoid suspicion.

"How didst thou know that I was Prince Timoteo of the Pazzi?" I asked him in an undertone. "And what brought thee to seek me?"

"Marry, did I not hear thy name yestreen at the banquet of the duke, and did I not see thee as thou satest with the fair Ippolita in the arched transept behind the palms? Go to! Thou art a gay and forward youth, and wouldst make an excellent friar."

I beheld a friar standing upon the threshold.

"But, good father," said I, "where we sat none but the musicians from their high balcony could behold us."

"By my faith, thou speakest sooth. Nathless, I saw thee, for I was even one of those same musicians. Therefore, my fair son," continued he, "when I did see thee in the hall of justice of the bargello this morning I laid the matter before my superiors, and steps were taken to convey thee here."

I naturally felt much beholden to these people and asked the monk to introduce me to his superiors that I might thank them for this present service. He rose and whispered me to follow him, and I did so. We went out of the church on the opposite side to that which we had entered and now found ourselves in a large, open place, which, my guide said, was the monastery court. We entered the cloisters at one end of the inclosure and, passing along beneath an arcade, came to a descending stairway. At the bottom of this we followed a dark and vaulted gallery, which ended abruptly with a stout oaken door. Here my conductor rapped smartly three times, and straightway a small round hole opened in the panel and a solitary eye looked out at us. The friar muttered some unintelligible password, and the orifice closed.

The door at that moment opened, the monk pushed me before him, and I found myself in a low but exceedingly spacious hall, which was indifferently lighted by a number of wax candles. It was a regular barracks into which I had been brought, for there were at least 200 soldiers in the apartment, some of them stretched out upon the pavement, others conversing together in small groups and still others leaning against the walls or within the corners.

A few of them were in full armor of mail or plate, and scarcely one there was who had not a corselet or gorget or cuirass or bassinet or solleret or morion or some such matter riveted or bolted to his person. Many of them had on over their armor a sort of smock frock, or shirt, called a tabard, upon which were worked in brilliant colors the heraldic devices of the owners. It was indeed a most weird and picturesque and stately pageant. I turned to the monk for an explanation, and I was astonished to find that he had thrown from him his vestments and that he, too, was clad in knightly garb.

"Perdio, most fair prince," said he, "have I not arranged for thee a goodly spectacle, and am I not in thy esteem a magician without parallel? Yonder sanctimonious canonicals were but the disguise with which I undertook thy deliverance, and without doubt I am not the first friar or priest of thy acquaintance who in the sequel proved to be a son of Belial. Thou must know that this underground chapel of the abbey is the present headquarters of the grand old party of the Elevationists and that these gallant warriors before thee be the head men of the body. We are the natural adherents of thy cause and were waiting but for thy leadership. In sooth, it must seem to thee that there be a goodly number of them here present; but, by my faith, thou shouldst see them on meeting night, when as by reason of a feast which is then prepared there are twice the number. Pardy, most noble Timoteo, cast off thy priestly disguise, and I will soon present to thee thy doughty and faithful vassals."

I did as he bid me. My costly raiment had partially dried by this time, so that I doubtless presented quite a highborn and imposing appearance. My guide stood himself at my side and shouted out to the multitude:

"Ho, comrades at arms and worthy officers of the Elevationist party! Gather round me and hear my words, for I have something of import to acquaint ye with."

With that they began to come forward from the remote parts of the chamber and to crowd around him.

"What says our trusty lieutenant?" exclaimed a long, lank knight among them. "Let the valiant Castracani speak. Let there be no let to his communication."

With this feeble attempt at humor on the part of the long, lank knight there seemed to be no sympathy. He himself was the only one to laugh at the remark, and many of the bystanders looked at him askance and handled their sword hilts ominously.

"Now, by our Lady," spoke the lieutenant, "I have here a gentle whom ye will be right glad to greet. Most potent and brave signors, the gallant cavalier who standeth before ye is none other than the noble Prince Timoteo, the last of the house of Pazzi and heir to the princely throne of Firenzalino."

A general buzz and murmur of approbation passed around the chapel.

"All hail to the prince!" cried Lieutenant Castracani.

"Hail! Prince Timoteo, hail!" came from 200 throats.

I was now called upon to make a speech, and I at once signified my willingness to oblige them, and, mounting into a pulpit or rostrum at one end of the chamber, I gave them an address which, if it was not the best I ever made, was certainly better than any which they had previously listened to. I shall not give the discourse verbatim. Suffice it to mention that I had much to say of the corruption of the court, of the high tax rate and of the filling of all the offices of the state with the creatures of Castruccio.

"These offices," said I, "belong to us. Otherwise, go to, what are we here for?"

At this there was great applause.

"When we shall have got the upper hand of this tyrannical and selfish despot, sirrah," I continued, "there shall be a new deal, and all of these places and emoluments shall be apportioned among the honorable, single minded and patriotic members of our order; for it would be a grievous sin to leave these fat posts and situations in the hands of their present incompetent and corrupt possessors. And has it not with truth been said that to the victors belong the spoils?"

At this point the applause was deafening.

CONVENTION

Of the First Legislative Distict Nominated

D. H. C. BOWEN

The first district legislative Democratic convention met at the armory in this village last Wednesday at 10:30 o'clock a. m. with every township in the district represented excepting the township of Woodstock. The delegates began arriving in the early morning and before the convention was over it was a truly democratic day in Tecumseh. At 10:30 Garland R. Gillespie called the convention to order and explained that the district had been changed since the last convention and as the regular chairman now resided outside of the district asked the convention to nominate a temporary chairman.

Garland R. Gillespie was made the temporary chairman and Theo. Glaser of Riga township was made the temporary secetary of the convention. Then followed the appointment of the following committees; On permanent organization and order of business, Chas. Keeber of Palmyra, Chas Kaner of Raisin, and Wm. Colling of Macon; committee on credentials, Alfred James, Otto Wagner of Riga, and Frank Pitcher of Franklin; committee on resolutions, Herbert Hathaway of Blissfield, Geo. W. Smith of Ridgeway and Wm. Atkin of Deerfield, when the convention adjourned for the noon recess.

At two o'clock the convention was again called to order by Chairman Gillespie and after listening to the reports of the various committees the temporary organizatien was made the permanent organization and the committee on resolutions made the following report:

"Resolved that the members of the Democratic party of the first representative district of the county of Lenawee, in convention assembled do hereby reaffirm the principals of Democracy as set forth in the platform adopted by the party in its recent state convention, and pledge our earnest support thereto and to all the nominees of the party in the present campaign."

Then followed the nominations Ridgeway presented the name of Coonrod Lowe; Raisin presented the name of Horace Holdridge; and Tecumseh presented the name of Don H. C. Bowen. Upon the fourth ballot Mr. Bowen received a majority of the votes cast and was declared the unaminous choice of the convention. He was called upon for a speech and in an able manner accepted the nomination to the pleasure of all. He is a strong candidate, being very popular through the district, a young man whose character and reputation cannot be assailed.

He is a thorough young business man and the first district may feel proud in the selection of so good a man and who if elected, their interests and the interests of the state will be well taken care of. Following the speech of Mr. Bowen was a speech from Gen. Fred. B. Wood, the democratic nominee for congress from this district, and from Supervisor Hathaway of Blissfield, the democratic nominee for State Senator also Rev. L. C. Chase and W. D. VanTuyle gave good addresses, after which the convention adjourned.

The following is a list of the democratic nominees in Tecumseh yesterday from out of town: Chas. F. Field, David Hammond, B. D. Chandler, M. L. Gillen, John Gahahan, Harry Stearns, and Herbert Hathaway; the most of whom arrived just after the convencion had adjourned.

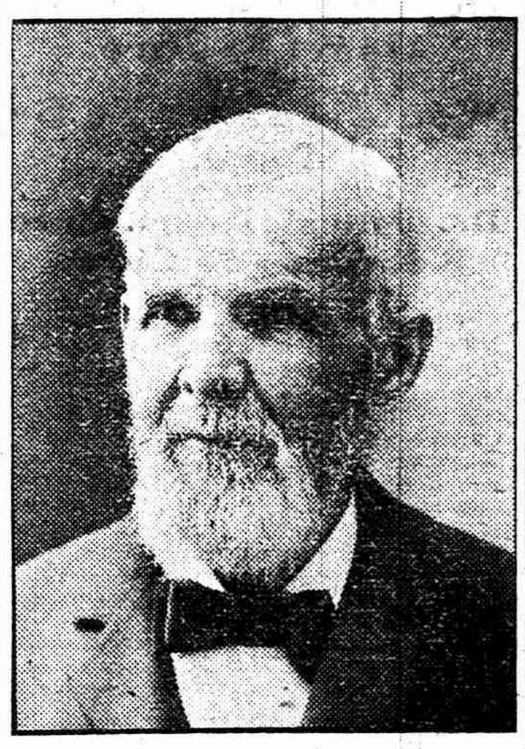
JAMES HECK

Passed Away at his Home Wednesday

OCTOBER FIRST

After a Severe Illness of About Four Weeks Dnration

James H. Heck died at his home in Tecumseh, Mich., Oct. 1, 1902. The subject of this notice was born in Newville, Pa., Feb. 17, 1833. On Feb. 10, 1859, he was married to Miss Jane M. Tritt, a more real and blessed union is seldom seen. Of this union four children were born. Three children, Mrs. E. P. Munn of Toledo, Clyde T. Heck and Mrs. R. S. Moore of Tecumseh, with the wife survive to mourn the departure of a devoted husband and father.



THE LATE JAMES HECK

Mr. Heck came to Michigan in 1872 and settled in Flowerfield near Kalamazoo, where he operated a flour mill. In 1880 he moved to Tecumseh and bought the George Hamilton milling property in Brownville, which he remodled and improved, taking out the old burrs and putting in what is known as the roller process.

In 1891 the mill was burned, Mr. Heck did not rebuild, but in a measure retired from active business life. He began his career as a miller when he was but fourteen years old, serving as an apprentice for six years, he was considered one of the best millers in his time. He has held the office of justice of the peace, and at the time of his death was the oldest justice in the township. It is hardly necessary in this connection to say that while Mr. Heck was in the milling business he made many friends, and won the respect and confidence of his customers.

As justice of the peace he endeavored to settle all difficulties in the most amicable manner possible, always advising the contending parties to settle the controversy without going to law.

Religiously Mr. Heck was a Baptist through and through. He with his wife united with the first Baptist church in South Bend, Ind., in 1867. When he came to Tecumseh he at once became identified with the Baptist church, of which he was a worthy and esteemed member at the time of his death. He was elected deacon in 1886, and although he felt he was not qualified for the position, yet he always performed the duties of his office with credit to himself and satisfactory to the church, He served on the sick and needy committee for nearly twenty years, and a great many will rise up and call him blessed. He has also served as treasurer of the church.

He was a kind and affectionate father, he loved his family, his church and his God. Few men will be missed more in the church, and in the community than Deacon Heck. He could look back over a well spent life with a feeling of satisfaction. He fought life's battles manfully and leaves a priceless legacy to his family, his church and his friends in the wealth of precious and undying memories.

Itching Skin

Distress by day and night—

That's the complaint of those who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with Eczema or Salt Rheum—and outward applications do not cure. They can't.

The source of the trouble is in the blood—make that pure and this scaling, burning, itching skin disease will disappear.

"I was taken with an itching on my arms which proved very disagreeable. I concluded it was salt rheum and bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. In two days after I began taking it I felt better and it was not long before I was cured. Have never had any skin disease since." MRS. IDA E. WARD, Cove Point, Md.

AT HIGH NOON

On Wednesday, Oct. 1, 1902, occurred the marriage of

CORA EDITH AUSTIN AND GEO. S. FIELD

At the residence of Mrs. S. E. Austin.

A happy, cheerful little company was that which came to the home of Mrs. S. E. Austin Wednesday noon to celebrate the marriage of her daughter, Cora Edith to Geo. S. Field.

For many days the rain has poured down and the sky been overcast with clouds, but at this time the sun shone brightly and everyone seemed pleased to assist the happy couple to start out in earnest with their life.

Little Wilma Camburn carried the ring, Miss Julia Lowry played the wedding march and Rev. C. C. Kemp spoke the words that made them man and wife. The rooms were beautifully decorated with yards of trailing smilax and nothing is more beautiful and tasteful. Many remembrances were brought with which to remember the bride and groom and the beautiful little lady was gowned in white. Everyone was pleased and cheerful and a happier home wedding was never held in Tecumseh.

Geo. Field is one of Tecumseh's business men, he is prosperous and well-to-do in every way, has been here for many years coming with his brother, Fred Field, when the Tecumseh News was started. He is a good printer, conducts a lucrative job printing business and is thought well of by everyone.

Miss Austin has spent most of her life in Tecumseh as school girl, young lady and compositor in the News printing office. She is one of Tecumseh's prettiest girls, cheerful, bright and lovable and will make a delightful companion.

To this couple congratulations go forth from all sources, with honest wishes that their lives may be happy in every way. The couple left Wednesday afternoon tor Detroit. They will then visit Buffalo, Washington and New York, then receive their friends in a completely furnished home on Pearl street

The following were persons from out of town who attended the wedding: Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Field, son and daughter, Will and Lizzie of Hastings; Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Spafard of Manchester; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Blanchard, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Keornig, Mrs. Geo. Kies of Clinton; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Slight, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Burdette, Mr. and Mrs. J. IN TECUMSEH.

Every Claim is Backed by Local Testimony.

If the reader wants stronger proof than the following statement and experience of a citizen here at home, what can it be?

Mr. F. A. Ferguson, tinsmith, residing in the northwestern section of Tecumseh, says: "I had symptons of kidney trouble. The kidney secretions were very irregular and at times too frequent and highly colored. Having seen so many cases of severe kidney trouble I thought it wise to do something at once, so I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright's drug store and took them. I began to improve from the very start and continued to do so. I emphatically declare Doan's Kidney Pills to be up to the representations made for them."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cent per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Blind

During Attacks Of Heart Failure.

Would Appear To Be Dead.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Relieved and Cured.

"I have no hesitation in saying that Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is all that one can wish it to be. I was troubled with heart disease for fifteen years. I have tried many different remedies but until I tried Dr. Miles' Heart Cure I could find no relief. I was subject to headaches and had tried your Pain Pills and they were so effective I thought your Heart Cure might help me. I would have attacks at times so severe that I would be stone blind for the time being. During these spells I would be to all appearances dead. I took the medicine strictly as directed and I can truthfully say that I am completely cured. I advise all that are troubled with heart disease to take Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure at once. I write this and give my name to my fellow sufferers."—S. E. Purdy, Atkinson, Nebraska.

"I first felt the effects of a weak heart in the fall of 1896. I saw an advertisement in the Sioux City paper in which a man stated his symptoms which seemed to me to indicate a trouble similar to mine. I had a soreness in the chest at times, and in my shoulder, an oppressive choking sensation in my throat and suffered from weak and hungry spells. I was truly frightened at my condition and procured six bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. Since taking my first bottle I have never been bothered by any of the old disagreeable symptoms and now am well and consider my cure permanent."—Lewis Anderson, Kuhn, S. D.

LITERARY NOTES

Chatelaine bags of Indian bead work represent the newest varieties of these ever-useful and popular articles. Such bags are used for wall receptacles and "den" ornaments as well, and always show good bright tones and designs. Anything of an Indian character will be popular the coming Christmas.—Conkey's Home Journal for October.

* * *

Mr. Rossiter Johnson writes appreciatively in the October Review of Reviews about Dr. Edward Eggleston, historian and novelist, who died at his Lake George home early in September. Perhaps more people remember Dr. Eggleston as the author of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster" than as the historian of American colonial life.

* * *

"What a Father can do for His Son" is the title of one of the most instructive articles which has ever appeared in a magazine. Prof. Harry Thurston Peck discusses this subject in the October Cosmopolitan in a way to be entertaining to fathers, mothers, and sons. The essay will have a wibe range of readers.

* * *

Judging by its October issue, there is every reason to assume that The Critic fully reflects the renewed activities of the literary and publishing worlds. Among the most important of these is the paper entitled "Leaves from Whitman's Later Life," written by his literary executors, the late Dr. Richard Maurice Bucke, Mr. Thomas B. Harned, and Mr. Horace Traubel. The illustrations to this paper number several portraits showing the poet at various ages, besides photographs of his birthplace at West Hills, Loug Island, and the tomb at Harleigh Cemetery, Camden, N. J.

THE THING

Every person should see to it that their blood is in order each Spring. Nature must purify the blood. That is the only way it can be purified. In order that nature may do its part in cleansing the blood from the Winter's accumulation of impurities the

KIDNEYS AND LIVER MUST BE ACTIVE

so that they may carry off the impurities; there is no remedy that will do this quicker and better than

and the reason this remedy is so much more successful than all others is because it strengthens the kidneys and liver and puts these organs in shape to berform their natural functions.

IT STRENGTHENS THE STOMACH

so that the food may be properly digested and the body is consequently nourished and all the organs strengthened, this then means a strong body and health.

PROOF

ZOLA'S FUNERAL

Noted French Author Was Buried Sunday.

DREYFUS WAS PRESENT

House Surrounded by Police—Antole France Broke Forth in a Wildly Dramatic Speech at Grave of His Friend—Trouble Averted.

Paris, Oct. 6.—The remains of Emile Zola were laid at rest Sunday with simple but impressive ceremonies. It was such a funeral as Zola himself would have wished, without pomp but with the serried ranks of thousands of workingmen, many accompanied by their wives, sorrowfully marching behind his coffin. Municipal guards, mounted and on foot, lined the route, but except for a company of infantry, which rendered military honors to the body as it was carried from the house to the hearse, they were there as guardians of order and not as participants in the ceremony.

Former Captain Dreyfus marched in the funeral cortege according to the authority of prefect of police, but he passed completely unnoticed by the crowd. A little distance behind him came Madame Dreyfus, accompanied by her father. Dreyfus sent a handsome wreath, which was placed beside the coffin.

The Temps says Dreyfus went to the house Saturday evening and watched beside the corps with the family. He induced Madame Zola to give him back his promise not to attend the funeral, and he walked in the procession.

The immediate vicinity of the house was surrounded by a cordon of police, through which none but relatives and intimate friends of Zola were allowed to pass. A handsome hearse, with sable plumes on the roof and on the heads of the two horses attached to it, stood at the door. Preceding the hearse were three cars almost hidden beneath masses of magnificent floral offerings from Zola's admirers in all parts of the world, including an immense wreath of giant chrysanthemums, intertwined with maidenhair ferns, to which was attached a ribbon bearing the words, "From the Frenchmen of San Francisco."

Mme. Zola wished to follow her husband's body to the grave, but her doctors forbade her doing so. She therefore bade farewell to the remains in the mortuary chamber.

The final oration at the cemetery was delivered by Anatole France, one of the most ardent champions of the revision of the Dreyfus case. M. France said that Zola's work could be compared only to that of Tolstoi, but that Tolstoi had built up a city of resignation, whereas the ideal of Zola had been work. The speaker dwelt upon the democratic aim of the dead novelist's works, and then burst into a powerful tribute to Zola's part in the Dreyfus affair and a denunciation of his enemies. He said he would not remain a cowardly silence before the coffin of his friend, and spoke of the sinister situation in the country when the populace, misled by monstrous lies and excited by odious declamations, believed it had been betrayed and felt exasperated. Then Zola wrote to the president of France that terrible letter, in which he denounced forgery and felony. M. France then recalled the yells of rage and shouts of "death" which had pursued Zola to the law court during the long trial which he said had been judged in voluntary ignorance of the case, on false testimony and amid the rattling of swords. In those days, continued M. France, many good citizens despaired of the salvation of the fatherland and of the moral fortune of the country. But all was saved; Zola's courageous words had awakened France. The consequences of his action were incalculable. A new order of things had been founded; better justice and a deeper knowledge of the rights of all men had come from his act.

The proceedings were perfectly orderly until the delegations left the cemetery. Then several of the leadin gactors in the Dreyfus affair, such as Colonel Picquart, Maitre Labori and M. Jaures were recognized and loudly cheered. Maitre Labori, who was greatly excited, addressed a few words to the crowd, but fearing that his words would lead to trouble, the police induced him and Col. Piquart to enter the lodge at the gate of the cemetery and remain there until the crowd had dispersed.

'TWAS FATAL BLOW

Husband Killed the Man Who Insulted His Wife.

HIT HIM ON THE JAW

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 6.—The death of William D. Barrington quickly followed a blow on the jaw delivered by Thomas A. Steward early Sunday morning in front of the Steward home on Market street.

Barrington and several friends had spent the night in a drunken carousal and aroused the Steward household by kicking the door. Mrs. Steward went to the door and Barrington addressed her by an insulting remark. Just then Steward appeared and dealt Barrington a severe blow on the jaw. Barrington fell to the ground and a minute later was picked up by Steward dead.

The colored man carried Barrington into his home, and after summoning medical aid went to police headquarters and gave himself up. A postmortem examination showed that Barrington's death was caused by cerebral compression, the cavity of the skull being filled with blood.

Steward bears a good character and public sympathy is with him. Barrington has borne a shady reputation.

Coroner Maurits said that, should it be established that death was the result of the blow, he believed the verdict of the coroner's jury would be justifiable homicide.

Barrington was a cooper by trade. He was a widower, thirty-eight years old, and has a thirteen-year-old daughter living with his widowed mother at Pierson, Mich.

Three Fatal Accidents.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Oct. 6.—Jack Hicks, aged thirty, walked into a subshaft at the Chapin mine Saturday afternoon and fell 100 feet. He was instantly killed. He was known by everyone on the Menominee range, having sold papers here for twelve years. Felix Persens, aged thirteen, was shot by a young companion at Norway while hunting. The shot took effect in the back. The boy cannot recover. It was purely accidental. John Sandgren, while climbing a rope from one slope to another in the Cundy mine, was struck on the head by falling rock. He fell thirty feet and died one hour later. He leaves a widow and three children.

After Parental Forgiveness.

Owosso, Mich., Oct. 6.—The sensation of the day in this city is the runaway marriage of John A. Axford and Miss Dolly Murray, who arrived on a Grand Trunk excursion train from Detroit Sunday morning and asked parental blessing on their union. The young lady went to St. Johns recently for a visit and her parents were worried when she did not return on the date promised, especially when it was learned she had left St. Johns. The couple had arranged the details and the girl simply rode through this city to Detroit, where her lover was awaiting her, and the ceremony was performed.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 6.—The West Michigan State fair closed Saturday after a successful week. Ill Health Led to Suicide.

Manistee, Mich., Oct. 6.—L. B. Long, an old and respected citizen, ended his life by shooting himself in the forehead early Saturday. He lingered some hours after the shooting. For some years he had been failing physically and mentally and was aware that his case was hopeless.

Goulds to Invade Michigan.

Toledo, Oct. 6.—It was learned here that the Goulds are to further invade the north Michigan territory. The Times says: A Toledo man has just returned from the Clergue country and brings news that Wabash engineers have toured the upper Michigan peninsula and are preparing blue prints of several proposed extensions of the Ann Arbor railway, a Gould line. One of the new projected routes planned an extension of the Ann Arbor railway to Cheboygan, it is said. This extension was to be brought about either by building a new road or buying the Detroit & Mackinac, and extending that line to Cheboygan. At that city a line of car ferries would connect with Detour. From Detour the track would extend to the Soo.

WHAT WILL HE DO?

All Eyes Now Turned Toward the President.

SECRET MEETING SUNDAY

Believed He Will Now Appeal to the Miners, Promising an Investigation by Congress and Pennsylvania Legislature in Near Future.

Washington, Oct. 6.—In an earnest effort to expedite the adjustment of the coal strike problem, another conference over the situation was held at the White House Sunday and adjourned after three hours of deliberation. No statement was given out as to the conclusions reached, and every participant absolutely refused to discuss what had taken place during the meeting. The conference was called for yesterday, although it was Sunday, in view of the extraordinary importance to the American people of a speedy solution of the question.

Besides the president there were present at the conference Secretary of War Root, Secretary of the Navy Moody, Attorney-General Knox, Postmaster-General Payne and Colonel C. D. Wright, United States commissioner of labor. The last named was summoned to attend the conference on account of his expert knowledge of the situation in the anthracite coal fields, and because of his personal investigation of the conditions there which he made some months ago, at the instance of the president.

The conference began shortly after 10 o'clock in the morning, the time set by the president.

The president, at the outset of the conference, talked earnestly and showed a deep feeling. His voice at times could be heard down stairs.

When the conference adjourned, a few minutes before 1 o'clock, those who had joined in it declined to talk. Every member of the cabinet and Colonel Wright, the only outsider who was present, was pledged to the president to absolute secrecy as to what had occurred within the conference room.

In this state of absolute reticense of every one of the parties to the conference, it is almost impossible to do more than draw the most general of conclusions as to the nature of the proceedings, based upon what preceded the meeting. The known facts are that the president has reached the conclusion that he has nothing to expect save refusal from a further appeal to the coal operators, and therefore has decided to look for relief from a situation which, in his view, is fast growing intolerable, to the miners' side. He feels that he hardly can expect them to make the sacrifice of all of their contentions without holding out at least a promise of some return, and the question before him is as to his ability to do this.

He can pledge himself to appeal to congress to examine into the justice of the miners' complaints and remedy them; far as lies in the power of the legislative branch, backed by the earnest good will of the executive. Also he can suggest to Governor Stone of Pennsylvania that the Pennsylvania legislature likewise make an investigation, perhaps hastening the usual methods by calling an extra session. But these pledges would be given only on condition that the men go at once into the mines and get out, with all speed, the coal for which the people are suffering. To adopt this plan means to continue the policy of exerting moral suasion to end the strike. It is certain that thus far the president has not found a single one of his advisers who could suggest any departure from this policy; no one could find a method sanctioned by law or constitution which promised relief or involved the use of duress against either the operators or miners.

So it is believed that yesterday's conference was called by the president with the purpose of putting in exact shape the details of a plan conceived in its rough outlines even before the departure of President Mitchell last Friday afternoon from the mixed conference. The three hours spent in consultation Sunday were none too long to put into form the twin propositions; one to the miners' organization and the other to Governor Stone, and the fact that Secretary Cortelyou was called on to prepare one or more statements, at the direction of the president, is taken as an indication that messages were sent out at the end of the conference yesterday and that the reticence of all the parties is explainable perhaps by their desire to avoid the discourtesy of publishing the nature of these before they are received by the persons to whom they are addressed, as well as by a wish to escape the complication of the negotiations by heated public discussion at this stage. That the parties to the conference feel that they have accomplished something was made evident by the expression of one of a belief that the miners soon will be again at work.

Duke Nicholas and Sultan.

Constantinople, Oct. 6.—Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia had a long audience with the sultan last Friday and discussed the Macedonian situation. The grand duke assured the sultan of Russia's friendly desire to maintain order there. The sultan granted a farewell audience to his visitor Sunday and the grand duke, who has been the recipient of many courtesies since his arrival here last week, sailed in the afternoon for Livadia on the Black sea.

Two Killed, Seven Hurt.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 6.—A Burlington westbound train and the Northern Pacific eastbound express met in a head-on collision between Columbus and Park City, Mont., on a curve on the Northern Pacific track Saturday. Two men were killed and seven injured, one fatally. The engine and mail cars were wrecked.

CRUSH THE BOXERS

Viceroy of Chihli Is Sincere in His Efforts.

A CHARACTERISTIC EDICT

Calls Attention of His Subjects to Fate of Those Who Rebelled Two Years Ago—A Reward Offered For Apprehension of Leaders.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Minister Conger's dispatches to the state department show that Yuan Shi-Kai, the viceroy of Chihli, is really in earnest in the expressed determination to crush the boxers in his section of China. A proclamation issued by him, dated the 16th of the seventh month (Aug. 19, 1902) is just published in the official organ, and Mr. Conger encloses a copy:

"The heresy of boxerdom has done great harm to the land. Some time ago I, the viceroy, issued a proclamation on the subject, with instructions for the suppression throughout the province. But now, it is rumored that boxers from other parts have come and hide themselves about the country, practicing boxing in secret, together with incantations. They inflame the ignorant masses, raise doubt in other minds and in duce not a few of them to learn boxing in out of the way places. It is most abominable.

"From ancient times to the present this heresy always meant ruin. The boxing and incantations they practice amount after all to not much more than a kind of jugglery; the swallowing of knives and fire without any skill.

"Consider what became of those outlaws who the year before last joined the boxers in the neighborhood of Pekin and Tientsin; who, under pretence of opposing the churches, plunder whatever they had a mind to; but perished as soon as they were fought with, leaving their bones in heaps.

"Again, thinking of Li Kang Chung and others, who quite recently had the audacity to collect and drill a crowd at Tsyang and to oppose the government troops, and how they were caught and executed, their heads being exposed on poles. If the charms which they carry on their persons are of any avail, how is it when they come in collision with good troops they are so easily taken and these charms have no efficacy at all?

"Whoever can apprehend a boxer chief and give him up to the authorities, he will be liberally rewarded.

"But those who persist in disobeying and practice boxing in secret, go in gof their own will and accord with the boxers, they will be brought to account and punished according to the utmost rigor of the law. No leniency will be shown."

Circus Seat Collapsed.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 4.—A report from Maryville, Mo., says: Fifteen hundred people were thrown several feet to the ground by the collapse of the seats in a tent where a show was in progress. Two hundred were injured, some seriously. J. C. Donnelly, ex-mayor of Maryville, was badly injured, having a number of bones broken and sustaining serious injuries about the back. Miss Rose Montgomery of Bolckow, Mo., received injuries in the back which will probably prove fatal. An unknown child was so badly hurt that it cannot recover. Dozens of others were removed to their homes immediately, a few of whom may die.

Stores May Be Closed.

New Orleans, Oct. 4.—The street car strike situation took a new turn yesterday afternoon, when the retail merchants of the city made a movement to renew arbitration. Retail trade has suffered greatly and the merchants met and decided that, unless the strike shall be called off by Saturday night, they will close their establishments indefinitely, throwing out of employment about 5,000 clerks.

CHAPTER VIII.

I WAS now taken to one side by several of the more important members of the Elevationist conspiracy, the lieutenant of the band, the noble Count Baldaccio Castracani being one of the number, and was at once let into the inner secrets of the order. My surprise and consternation were great when I found that it was their plan to rise against the power of Castruccio that very night, to sack the palace and to put the duke and his nearest relatives to the sword.

"By my faith, fair gentlemen," said I, "but ye seem to be in a great haste about the matter. As ye are ware, my noble father, the Prince Arnolfo, did but yesterday at midday depart this life, and it were a sin and a most grievous shame if I were to go about other business while yet he lieth unburied."

They looked at each other as if they were loath to postpone the enterprise upon such grounds.

"Besides the which," I continued, "I have it upon trustworthy hearsay that ten bags of ducats will be taken by the banker Montefiori to Castruccio's palace upon the morrow's morrow at 15 of the clock. Marry, then, ye will do well to retard the uprising for eight and forty hours at least or until these same ducats are arrived."

Upon hearing these words they at once agreed to a postponement of the insurrection. I now thought to ask about Brother Ambrose. To my surprise, I learned that the ci-devant monk did not belong to their company and that they knew of no such personage.

I therefore took leave of my fellow conspirators after pledging myself to meet them at an early hour upon the morrow, and, passing through the cloisters, the court of the monastery and the old church, I found myself upon the street.

When I was come into the Piazza Publica of the city, it was already two hours after midday, and there were much people in the square. I was threading my way among them when I felt my sleeve plucked from behind, and, turning, I found myself face to face with Gian Jacopo. His visage was pale, and his appearance and dress were much disordered.

"Fair prince," said he, "prithee come this way, out of the hearing of the populace, for I have that to tell thee which may cause thee to blaspheme mightily, the which it were not well to do in public."

I followed him to a convenient corner where we could speak unheard.

"And now," said I, "tell me thy tale quickly."

"Good master Timoteo," said he, with eyes bulging from fear or excitement, "go not to thine abode without taking with thee a numerous body of the watch, else wilst thou be foully murdered, for thy house is presently in possession of a great band of thieves and cutthroats."

"Go to! A likely tale!" said I. "And, pray, inform me when and how came these gentry into my palace?"

"It was in the darkness of the night, fair lord, and hard upon the hour of 1 when they did come. I was waiting up for thee as thou badest me, and the gates were unbarred against thy return when suddenly comes me this pack of villains to the door, which, I opening, they incontinently swarmed into thy habitation. Perdio, there were a score at least. By my faith, I knew none of them, and as to the manner of them, though they were one and all tricked out in gay clothing and much finery, yet did they seem by their faces the worst pickpockets and highwaymen in the realm. I had short time to take note of their appearance, but I did observe that he who seemed their leader bore within his arms the person of a young and richly dressed and most beauteous lady of snow white complexion and hair as black as night."

His description fitted Ippolita marvelously.

"What then? What then?" I cried, seizing Jacopo by the shoulder and shaking him roughly in my impatience.

"Santiddio, fair prince, I know not; for at that moment one of those unchristian knaves fetched me a great blow upon the top of the skull with a pike, so that I fell prone and without sense or feeling. After a time, by the grace of God, I came to myself, and, seeing that they regarded me not by reason of their having broached a cask of thy best wine and of their being gathered around it with a great noise in the banquet room, I stole away and hid myself in a convenient place behind the arras. And now I noted that they had brought with them much plunder of gold and silver ware, goblets and ewers and platters, from which they did drink and eat with much roistering and profanity."

I now saw what had become of the duke's plate, though I could not occupy myself with such trifles.

"But the lady, Jacopo?" said I eagerly. "What became of her? Was she alive or dead?"

"She was alive, eccelenza, when I last was within hearing of the poor lamb. They had shut her within the upper room of the square tower, and her sighing and moaning did reach me where I lay, so that I fain would have gone to her succor had I dared. Mayhap, though, it was but the ghost of the damizella which I heard."

"Jacopo," I exclaimed, seizing him by the arm and hurrying him along in the direction of my palace, "we must go at once to the lady's assistance. I will have reason of these cowardly rogues or my name is not Timoteo."

"But wilst thou not first summon a strong body of the watch to thine aid?" asked Gian Jacopo anxiously.

"Nay, thou palsied and fearsome graybeard," I replied. "I need them not, and I will e'en play the game alone and by myself. Thou shalt assist me, however, in the matter of getting into the house. What is thy present advice upon this subject?"

"Come with me," he answered, "straightway, and thou shalt enter the castle easily and unseen by its present occupants."

I followed him to the house from which we had witnessed the escape of Brother Ambrose. It was in very good condition considering the assault which had been made upon it the night before. The door had been beaten in and the windows broken; otherwise it was in much the same state as when I had seen it last. We entered the tunnel in the usual manner and had no difficulty in finding our way to the cellar of the Pazzi palace. Here we paused to consult upon our next step, for we could hear above our heads the voices of the robbers, some of them shouting and cursing, others singing, so that it sounded like pandemonium broken loose.

I now asked my old retainer to describe the situation of the upper room of the tower where they had imprisoned the lady whom they had brought with them, and I learned that the chamber was four flights up from the main floor of the castle and that the only entrance to the tower stairway was through the banquet hall, the very place where the whole cutthroat gang was assembled. I felt that my first duty was to reach the side of the lovely and unfortunate countess, and as I could not very well cut my way through a whole score of bravos some other way must be found to come to her. I asked Gian Jacopo if there was such another way.

"Alas, no, fair son. I bethink me of none indeed."

"Pestilenza, could we not ascend to the roof of the palace and thence enter the tower through its windows?"

"Nay, that couldst thou not, for the casements be uncommon high from the leads, and, besides, they be that narrow that thou couldst not squeeze the half of thy body through them."

"Thou dotard without ideas," exclaimed I in my excitement, "canst thou, then, think of nothing?"

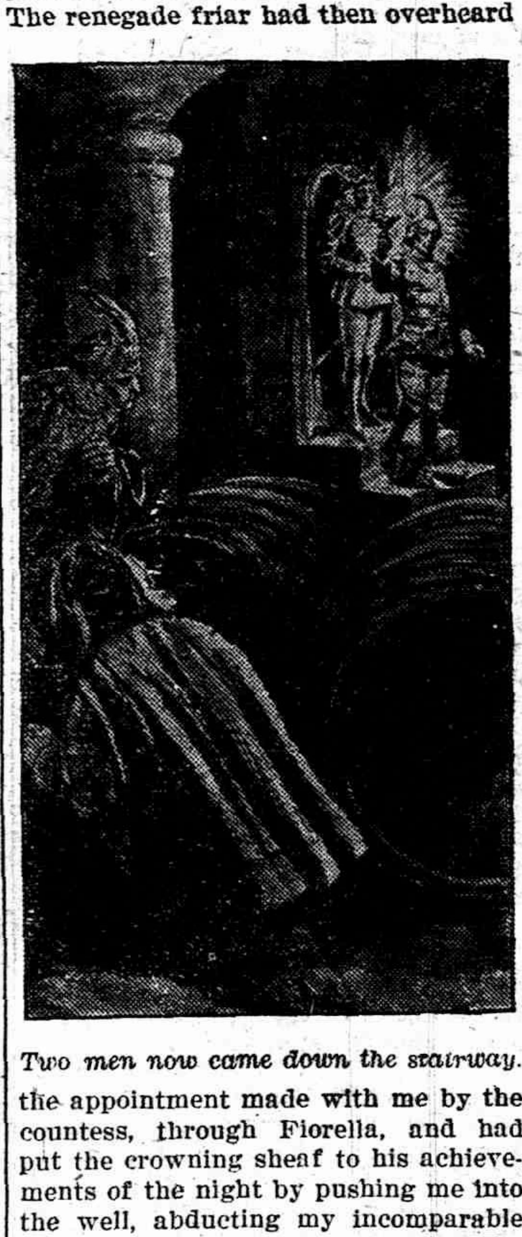
"That can I not, fair prince. From my youth upward I have been somewhat slow in thinking, and my thoughts crowd not one upon the other through the brain as do thine own. I will take thee presently by a devious way to the top of another tower, which is yclept the round keep of the castle, from the which, it being several yards removed and of a greater height, thou mayst look down upon the square tower and the apartment where they have immured the lady."

At that moment I heard steps immediately above our heads, and the door which led down into the cellar was opened. I dragged my old servitor just in the nick of time behind a row of great wine casks, myself taking a position where I could witness whatever was about to happen.

Two men now came down the stairway. The first of these was a common, debauched looking rogue. He bore a lighted lamp and seemed to act in a menial capacity to the man who followed him. The second individual was more splendidly dressed and had more of the mien and aspect of a cavalier. My eyes followed this last personage with a staring and devouring intensity. It appeared to me that I dreamed or that my eyesight was defective, for I saw before me the arch rascal and hypocritical Brother Ambrose.

My first thought was to rush forth and throttle him, but I at once saw the folly of it. The two were talking together as they descended, and when they reached the floor of the cellar they passed along in the direction of the trapdoor of the secret passage.

The two villains now disappeared within the stairway of the subterranean gallery. The whole thing was now as plain as a pikestaff. Brother Ambrose was the fitting leader of a company of as arrant thieves and rogues as existed in the duchy of Firenzalino. They had come to Castruccio's banquet solely for plunder and had succeeded in secreting and carrying away beneath their cloaks the greater part of the duke's housekeeping outfit. The renegade friar had then overheard the appointment made with me by the countess, through Fiorella, and had put the crowning sheaf to his achievements of the night by pushing me into the well, abducting my incomparable mistress and making my own house the place of her duress and the headquarters of his diabolical crew. Truly, it was the most daring, complete, cold blooded, able and impudent piece of wickedness ever perpetrated, and Brother Ambrose was without a rival in his art and the very prince of evildoers. I could have pardoned him his ingratitude and his attempt to murder me, but the outrage which he had inflicted upon Ippolita—never! I took an oath upon the spot that he should die for it by my own hand.



Two men now came down the stairway.

I now bade my ancient adherent conduct me to the top of the round keep, or donjon, whence, according to his assurance, I could look down upon the square tower and windows of the fair captive's prison. We soon found ourselves in the round chamber of the keep. Here there was a spiral staircase, taking which we went up and up and up and up till we got to the fifth and top story, where there was a round window of about two feet in diameter.

Upon the roof of the tower there was some kind of a hatch or scuttle.

I tore off the hatch or scuttle and found that there was a loft of a few feet in height immediately under the leads. Down into this loft I lowered myself, and at one side of it I saw an open stairway leading to the room beneath. I crept softly down, and my eyes becoming accustomed to the semi-obscurity of the apartment, I made out the graceful and perfect figure of Ippolita as she knelt, grief stricken and all absorbed, at a prie-dieu in one corner. In ecstasy I contemplated the divine creature for a moment; then I went toward her, and she, hearing my footsteps, turned and saw me and sprang to her feet and with one great sob of woe and relief and delight flung herself into my arms.

"And have I found thee, sweetest Ippolita?" said I.

"I knew that thou wouldst come," said she. "But where am I? What is this place whither they have brought me?"

I then told her in as few words as possible the whole story from the time when I had so foolishly rescued Brother Ambrose from the flames.

"And now, fairest lady," said I, "prithee, tell me the particulars of thy capture by these dastard ruffians and acquaint me with all that has happened to thee since."

"Marry, it is a short story, fair sir, and I will tell it thee quickly, for I love not to dwell upon it."

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

A. L. GROW

A Cousin of Mrs. Henry Keyser, who Lived in Tecumseh

FORTY YEARS AGO

Was Interviewed in Detroit the Other day by a Detroit Journal Reporter.

Nearly 20 years ago, A. L. Grow, then a youth of 20 years, came to Detroit from Tecumseh where he was born and raised. He secured employment as a painter from Joseph Godfrey, long since dead, who was an uncle of Marsh H. Godfrey and one of the founders of the firm of Godfrey & Dean.

Since that time A. L. Grow has led a most strenuous life. The youth of that early day is a very old man now. His hair and beard are silver; his once powerful fram is bent with the weight of years. As he sat conversing in the lobby of the Russell house last night, he would peer through his gold rimmed glasses now and then as if to discover some face of the long ago among the hifting crowd.

"I feel quite strange," he said in a voice so low as to be almost inaudible, "and yet 50 years ago, or nigh to that I knew nearly every man in Detroit. They are all gone now so far as I can learn, all laid away in the grave. Today I took a stroll looking for some of the land marks I knew as a boy, but all have gone except a little old house on Larned street. I tried to find St. Ann's church and when I discovered that it, too, had passed away, my heart gave a great throb.

"For 40 years I have been saying to myself, 'I will return to my old home in Detroit some day and I will visit St. Anne's as I did when a youth,' but St. Anne's is gone too. Yes, my life has certainly been filled with adventure. I left Detroit in 1857, joining the navy and seeing service in Japanese and Chinese waters. I returned to this country at the breaking out of the war of the rebellion and re-entered the navy, joining the old Montgomery, on which ship I had for a chum, Mr. Baxter, the present fire marshall of Detroit.

"When the war was over I shipped for California around Cape Horn and after remaining in the gold country a while I took an overland trip east and landed in Arizona, where I have lived eversince In those days Arizona was a wild and lawless country. I first took up my residence in Yuma and later moved to Tombstone which city I now call my home. I have a great deal of mining property in Tombstone and the citizens of that place say that I can well afford to travel about the country and enjoy myself the rest of my days.

"I knew personally all the desperadoes of the border country and I must say that I never was molested or insulted by a single one of them. During the strenuous day of Tombstone, Virgil Earp was the marshel of the town and also a deputy of United States marshel.

There were five of the Earp brothers Wyatt, Virgil, Jim, Morgan and another whose name I forget. I presume the Earp brothers were as desperate and handy with a gun as any of the men of those early days. "Wyatt Earp is still living, I believe. At least I heard that he is keeping a saloon and gambling place in a small town of Nevada. Wyatt was brought to public notice at the time of the Fitzsimmons-Sharkey prize fight in San Francisco, which fight he refered with a revolver and gave to Sharky.

"At the time that Virgil Earp was marshell of Tombstone, his brother Jim was a bartender and furnished him with all the news of the desperate gangs that infested that town. In those days murders were of daily occurrence and at least two men were sent before their maker on Friday. Why there should have been more murders on Friday than any other day in the week I never could explain.

"Every other place in the town was a gambling saloon or variety hall and cowboys raided the town time and again and there were men shot dead on the streets in the day time and night time. It was seldom that the Earp boys were caught off their guard, but one night Virgil Earp was caught napping by one of the desperate gang who shattered his arm with a bullet. It was a bad wound, as it made the arm permanently useless. Earp never flinched, but pulling his gun with his left hand he killed the fellow in his tracks and then went to a doctor and had his arm dressed. During all that wild carnival of crime I never had one of the desperate men of the border insult me. When they would meet me they would invariably say: 'Good day, Mr. Grow,' and I would answer them in kind. For a time I was collector of customs of Tombstone but my mining interests prevented me giving my time to such duties."

A. L. Grow never married and to-day is practically alone in the world. He will leave Detroit Tuesday for New York and may take a trip to Europe. There is nothing in Detroit that reminds him of his youth, so he said. He thought when he came here that he could sort of revel in the past — could wander up the aisles of old St. Anne's church and live again in the old days when he knelt at its alter.

"But," he said in conclusion, "there was a world of truth in what that poet wrote:

" 'Back to the earth again; ancient and holy things fade like a dream.' "

KANGAROO HUNT

Described by our Former Townsman.

DR. P. B. HARDY

In a letter to B. J. Pulver.

Australia, Aug. 1, 1902.

MY DEAR FRIEND:—

I will tell you about the Kangaroo hunt. We went north by train about 100 miles to the "up country" to a place called Tallerook a small settlement at the foot of a very rocky precipitous low mountain range called the Tallerook ranges. The ranges are densely covered with scrub and on top is a tableland heavily timbered in places. On the tableland are the kangaroo and walloby.

From the village looking to the right up the valley about six miles is a large spur of rock which juts out from the range and forms a very good landmark. We left early in the morning intending to cross the valley to the left, ascend the first range to the tableland cross it and work around to the spur at the right, leave the ranges at that point, recross the valley to the road and thence homeward.

I had secured the services of a young man, who was used to kangaroo hunting and who was supposed to be able to go about the mountains with his eyes shut. Well, we reached the top, shot parrots, rabbits and cockatoos on the way, had a lunch about noon, crossed the level entered the heavy scrub and began to climb to reach the supposed spur. The traveling was the most tedious and difficult I have ever experienced.

After reaching the objective point we found it was not the spur of rock in question and in descending on the other side the monotony was broken by the appearance of a walloby a few hundred yards ahead, at which we shot and of course missed. Up to this time I had thought but little about our bearings, trusting entirely to the guide. At this point thinking we had traveled a long way, I asked about how much further we must go before coming out where we could see the Tallerook valley? "Oh not far," he replied "when we get on top of this hill, we will see familiar country.

Well we reached the top and as he said what we beheld was familiar being similar to what we had just gone over, range after range of wattle and bracken scrub and eucalyptus timber. We caught a few breaths and the guide after carefully studying the surroundings became a number of shades whiter and said he was lost, and asked if I had any idea where we were.

We now had but an hour's daylight left and as it was impossible to travel after dark it was clearly evident that any efforts to get out of the bush must be made at once, otherwise we must camp. We remembered crossing a small stream late in the afternoon and as we were suffering from thirst we decided to go back to it if possible and follow it out to wherever it went. I took the lead now for the guide had lost his nerve as well as his head and declined any more responsibility.

We just reached the stream at dark, about 8:30 and saw at once that there was nothing to do but camp under a gum tree for the night We were very glad to get to the water for as we had eaten but a lunch since an early breakfast we required something to keep our ribs from coming together.

Ben, if you wish a pleasant experience go out into the woods, find a comfortable spot under a tree select a soft stick of wood for a pillow and pass the night there. It's exhilarating. It is not lonesome in this country for the laughing Jack asses, magpies, parrots, ants, tarantulas and snakes keep one company and serve to pass away the time. We had a good fire and managed to keep warm.

At four a. m. we were off again and after a few miles tramp down the creek came upon the camp of some illuvial gold miners who directed us the way out. We reach Tallerook a little before nine a. m. and found that my wife had kept things lively most of the night and at daylight had sent a search party onto the mountains for us so on our arrival a rescue party had to be sent out for the searchers. Thus ended my first kangaroo hunt, lost and spent a night in the Australian bush, and walked 30 miles and saw but one walloby.

We are now making arrangement to go up into the Gippsland country for kangaroo and native bears, but shall try to avoid any more star light experiences. Hoping you are well, I am

THE COAL STRIKE

The Efforts of

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

To Bring About Some Agreement between the Mine Operators and Strikers was a Failure

To bring about some agreement between the mine operators and strikers was a failure.

President Roosevelt called a meeting of President Mitchell and the mine operators at the White House last Friday to see if some arrangement could not be made by which the hard coal mines could be opened and by this means furnish a supply of coal to people who wish to buy it and keep warm during the winter.

Two sets of men are banded together for their own mutual protection in this controversy. The mine owners are all together and fix prices and wages and rates on coal and railroads. The miners are all together and fix rates for mining coal and everything connected with coal mining.

By the call of the President it seems the coal miners are willing to deal with the operators, but the coal operators are unwilling to deal with the miners except as employees separately.

By looking the situation over carefully, it will be seen by fair minded people that both sides are in the wrong. One side has as much moral right to organize as the other, but some supreme power should have the right to make both deal and at present there is no such power in the United States.

A number of years ago, some 12 or 15, there was a strike at the Krupp gun works in Germany, for a month men and capital could not agree and thousands of men were idle. The attention of Emperor William was called to the matter and on looking it up he found that as in this case both sides were wrong. He called representatives from both sides together and said to them: "Have no feelings against each other but settle this strike among yourselves, each side be willing to give up something to the other. Talk it over carefully, but if you cannot settle the matter in 24 hours I will settle it for you." The contending parties settled the strike in 24 hours.

This supreme power to settle things is lacking in this free country at the present time and until some like law is passed there will be coal and other famines caused by the bull headedness of both sides and the people must suffer.

MRS. T. C. HARRIS

Entertained the Monday Club at her home

OCTOBER 6

Regular Meeting Oct. 13

There was a good attendance at the reception given by Mrs. T. C. Harris, president of the Monday club to the club members yesterday afternoon. This is an "American Year" with the club and the parlors and staircase were tastefully decorated with American flags.

In the dining room also where a dainty lunch was served flags were conspicuously displayed. The table was garnished in festoons of smilax and the center with a pyramid of pansies topped off with little silk flags.

Mrs. S. W. Temple presided at the coffee urn and Misses Louise Phelps, Gertrude Hialey, May Garlinghouse, Loana Stacy, Mrs. Eugene Harris, and Mrs. Will Ingersoll assisted in the serving. Appropriate little souvenir cards ornamented with silk flags completed a very pretty entertainment.

No guests were invited to this afternoon. It was simply a first meeting of club members to renew the associations of former years and build up the fences for a prosperous year to come. It was altogether a delightful afternoon and the good attendance made the ladies feel the club year begins for them very auspiciously.

The first regular meeting of the Monday club will be held October 13th at the Universalist church. The program will be:

Henry Cunningham claims to have discovered a vein of good coal on his 172 acre farm on the town line between Dover and Madison. He found a surface vein 55 feet down while boring for water one year ago. Below this the drill struck rock and was broken, at a depth of 107 feet. Mr. Cunningham, who has had experience in coal mines, says it has never been known to fail where a rock bottom is struck, after passing through the first vein, that another bed of coal is to be found. He has tried some of this coal in his stove, and claims it is a first class quality of soft coal. Mr. Cunningham can sell all he can dig right now in Adrian.—Adrian Telegram.

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is a healthy action of these organs.

They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency.

"I had pains in my back, could not sleep and when I got up in the morning felt worse than the night before. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and now I can sleep and get up feeling rested and able to do my work. I attribute my cure entirely to Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. J. N. PERRY, care H. S. WELL PLEASED

Was the large audience that

GREETED SHORE ACRES

At the New Bradley last evening.

Last night it was an audience of people who all wanted to see the show. At the opening many persons attended who wanted to see the opening, but all went this time to see the play and every seat was taken, besides this 200 more could easily have been sold had there been seats. Not a complaint could be heard about anything. The theatre was in good shape, scenery well handled and company fine.

Two good companies of this kind can be well supported in Tecumseh each month but not more, but the dates of the advance sale must be noted in the papers as many people come to get tickets last Friday and Saturday and were much annoyed to find the seats all sold. The New Bradley is a success and a pride to all Tecumseh.

LITERARY NOTES

There is not a weak spot in the contents of the October number of McClure's Magazine. First in interest is the editorial announcement of Miss Ida M. Tarbell's long promised "History of the Standard Oil Company," now definitely scheduled to begin in the November number. The brief outline of Miss Tarbell's papers here printed is facinating in its promise of an absolutely unique history of industrial development. Hand-in-hand with our interest in organized capital goes our interest in organized labor. No one is better qualified to write of American trades-unionism than Mr. Ralph N. Easly, the man who conceived and organized, and is now the secretary of the National Civic Federation.

* * *

The Designer for November sets forth a tempting array of fashions and millinery for early winter and late autumn wear. Coats of all kinds for ladies, misses and juveniles are prominent in the display. "Stylish Shirt Waists for Winter Wear" and ladies' outing costumes are also given marked attention. "Old-fashioned Quilt Piecing," by Jessie de Forest, is a quaint and interesting contribution to the literary part of the magazine. "American Cooking Schools" by Waldon Fawcett, is of equal interest but in different vein. "The Babes in the Woods," by Imogen A. Storey, is a charming little play and drill for small children, while "Selections for the Recitationist" offers several excellent Thanks giving poems called from various sources.

Chicago Excursion—Lake Shore Ry

Popular low rate excursion to Chicago will be run over the Lake Shore Ry. October 25. Tickets $2.75 for round trip; good on train leaving Tecumseh at 7:11 a. m. to Adrian, thence on special train leaving at 8:10 a. m. and until October.

What piece of carpentry becomes a gem as soom as it is finished?—A-gate.

A celebrated physician received the following ambiguous message: "Doctor, my wife's mother is at death's door. Come immediately and pull her through.

"Mister, I say, I don't suppose you don't know of nobody what don't want to hire nobody to do nothing, don't you?" The answer was, "Yes, I don't."

"My dear doctor," said a lady, "I suffer a great deal with my eyes." "Be patient madam," he reqlied; "you would probably suffer a great deal more without them."

The very last curiosity spoken of in the papers is a wheel that came off a dog's tail when it was a waggin.' The man who discovered it has retired from public life.

It is singular how rapidly some young gentlemen from the country lose their color when visiting large cities. They go there very green, and invariably come away done very brown.

A WOMAN'S BACK

The Aches and Pains will Disappear if the Advice of This Tecumseh Citizen is Followed

A woman's back has many aches and pains.

Most time it is the kidneys' fault.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Read what one has to say about it:

Mrs. E. D. Fryer, who lives in the northwestern section of Tecumseh, says: "I suffered from my kidneys off and on for about two years. During an attack the pain was worse along in the afternoon and I often felt like giving up, but I kept on working in misery, for stooping or straightening made my back feel as if it were breaking in two. If I took a slight cold it always settled in my back and in spite of all the remedies I used I could not get relief. Procuring Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright's drug store I took a course of the treatment. It did more good than all the other medicine I ever used. The pain in my back was quickly relieved I take pleasure in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cent per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

A hopeful minister says that he has no doubt that the time will come when the members of a church choir will behave just as well as other folks.

"It was almost a miracle. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me of a terrible breaking out all over the body. I am very grateful." Miss Julia Filbridge, West Cornwell, Conn.

"Hark! I hear an angel sing," sang a young man in an outside township exhibition. "No, 'taint" shouted an old farmer, in one of the back seats; "it's only my old mule that's hitched outside." The young man broke down and quit.

They went fishing. She looked languidly at him and said, "I wish the fish would bite at your hook. If I was a fish I would."

Watch The Kidneys.

The Springville mill property which sometime ago was sold for $785 to Mr. Keeney, of Adrian, has greatly depreciated in value for some reason it seems. This property was once sold for $12,000; when it was the only mill in this section of the country, and yet it had not the roller process then, nor the extra steam power which was put in in recent years. We are informed the combined cost of steam fixtures and roller process which was installed some few years ago was in the neighborhood of $2100. Keeney was offered $1,400 for the property some few days after purchasing it. He has had an expert miller examine the property and figure on the cost of putting it in shape again, and it is thought he will have it repaired and placed in operation again.—Onsted News.

STARTLING REPORT

One that speaks volumes, tells of a great good done, of a certain cure. for the nerves, weak and sleepless

Mrs. E. Anderson of Tecumseh, Mich, says: "I was so nervous that I could not sleep at night and was quite dizzy. I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at Chas. A. Wright's drug store and now since using the pills I can say my nerves are steadied, I rest better and the dizziness is relieved. I think the pills a splendid nerve medicine."

STORYETTES.

When a boy is ordered, against his will, to take the coal-scuttle down stairs and fill it, it is astonishing the number of articles he will accidentally strike that scuttle against before getting back.

A man, having been seized by the smallpox, hung out a red flag in front of his house, whereupon the neighbors kept away from him and permitted him to die in the firm conviction that honesty was the best policy.

A man in Buffalo pulled off his coat and jumped in the canal to save a woman from drowning, when a pickpocket stole his pocket-book from the coat, and the woman swore at him for pulling her hair in his efforts to save her life.

A Chicago lady once applied to a learned judge for a divorce. "What is the name of your husband?" inquired the learned judge. "I have no husband yet, but inasmuch as I contempulate matrimony, I feel that I should be prepared for the worst."

A Connecticut editor, in winding up a most touching obituary article, said to the mourning friends: "Be comforted, ye sorrowing ones; there is still a balm in Gilead." The next morning he read: "Be comforted, ye snoring ones: there is still a barn in Guildford."

A clerk having put some candies in a cellar one day, the proprietor told him that he thought it was too damp a place for them, and that they would be likely to mould. "Likly to mould!" replied the clerk; "if that is the case, we had better put our tallow there also, and perhaps it will mould into candles."

A windy orator once got up and said: "Sir, after much reflection, consideration and examination, I have calmly and deliberately and carefully come to the determined conclusion that in those cities where the population is very large there are a greater number of men, women and children than in cities where the population is less."

A physician who lived in London visited a lady who resided in Chelsea. After continuing his visits for some time the lady expressed an appehension that it might be inconvenient for him to come so far on her account. "Oh, by no means," replied the doctor; "I have another patient in the neighborhood and I always set out hoping to kill two birds with one stone."

Once upon a time, and not very long ago, a reverend gentleman entered the cars at a station in New England with three pieces of baggage, which he deposited in three different seats, and then seated himself in a fourth. Many passengers entered and looked inquiringly at these seats, but in vain. By-and-by the reverend gentleman took out a bible and began to read. A youth sitting near asked to borrow the bible and after making some commonplace remark upon the excellent type and good binding, suddenly said in a tone which could be heard all around. "I will read a few passages from Paul's Epistle to James: 'Be ye kind and obliging one to another. Thou shouldst not occupy more than three or four seats when thou ridest in the cars, for if thou doest this thing thou greatly discommodest thy beloved brethren and sisters in the Lord Jesus Christ.' Good-by, Sir. You have a fine volume of Scripture, and I commend it fully to your study. Good-by Sir. I get out at this station." And the young man of joking sarcasm disappeared. But there was a long-continued tumult in that car.

How's This?

A lady who left her husband because she said he ill treated her, gave as evidence in court a list of twelve requirements she desired him to sign before she would live with him. She drew them up and left a space at the end of each. Sign here, "yes or no," she had written. They were these:

First—Get up at 5 o'clock without calling you.

Second—Provide material for one cake a week.

Third—Provide material for pies each week.

Fifth—Clothes for you that will make you look attractive and clean.

Six—You will not use vulgar or profane language at all.

Seventh—You will go to church and Sunday school at Wyoming and not make my life a burden to get you there in time.

Eight—Remove all mother's things and her cow; I cannot tend her.

Tenth—Will you take a bath all over once a week?

Eleventh—Ruth must not peddle, buy or carry things.

Twelfth—Wipe your feet clean when you come into the house.

The man however, would not agree to any of these things and in court pleaded that he should not be made to support a wife who left him. The judge agreed with him and the man was discharged.

ROUND ABOUT US.

"'Tis false," as the girl said when her lover told her she had beautiful hair.

A fat French lady desparingly says, "I am so fat that I pray for a disappointment to make me thin. No sooner does the disappointment come than the mere expectation of growing thinner gives me such joy that I become fatter than ever"

A farm paper says: "You can mend more grain sacks in half an hour with paste made of flour and cold water, applied to patches and dried on with a hot smoothing iron than in half a day with needle and thread. The patches will not come off until wet and should be put on the inside."

Hudson kids are never very slow, but this question from a primary student to the teacher who had been explaining about the rotundity of the earth was a stunner. "If the world is round how can it come to an end?" The teacher gave it up and the little pupil is still wondering how this is thus.

The reports that a "Jack-the-hugger" is operating in the city seem to be a little exaggerated. The devilish individual who has been bothering women after dark has if anything more of a desire to frighten than hug them. A good thrashing would undoubtedly instill in him a desire to be good in the future.

Palmyra has now a canning industry. The International Canning Company, it is styled, and its manager is George Bancroft. The factory is a two-story frame affair, located near the depot, and made its initiatory run Wednesday when 9,000 cans of tomatoes were put up. Mr. Bancroft expects to employ forty hands and will handle apples and tomatoes. The capacity, Mr. Bancroft estimates at 7,000 cans a day. — Adrian Times.

Three years ago LaFayette Post found a single head of oats growing in the midst of his swamp land. It being different from anything he had ever seen in the way of oats he gathered it when ripe and from this one head gathered three years ago he harvested this year 260 bushels. It is a very large white oat. Last year he sent a sample to the State Agricultural college asking for its name. The reply was that it was a stranger to them, having never seen anything like it before but if they were to name it, they would call it the "Wonderful."—North Adams Advocate.

There are in Michigan to-day 20,000 farmers raising beets for conversion into sugar. This means that there are about 100,000 persons in agricultural regions that are benefited by the beet sugar business. The average amount per acre received by the farmer for sugar beets in 1901 was $44.55, and the total amount paid to Michigan farmers last year was $3,107,520, and the money paid for labor alone by the three companies in operation last year was $902,376. It is estimated this year that the amount will exceed $1,200,000—Adrian Telegram.

A gentleman in this vicinity one evening, was seated near a lovely woman, when the company around him were proposing conundrums to each other. Turning to his companion, he said, "Why is a lady unlike a mirror?" She "gave it up." "Because," said the rude fellow, "a mirror reflects without speaking, but a lady speaks without reflecting." "And why are you unlike a mirror?" asked the lady. He could not tell. "Because a mirror is smooth and polished, and you are rough and unpolished." The gentleman owned there was one lady who did not speak without both reflecting and casting reflections.

Agent Clark, the new night operator and ticket seller at the Wabash depot in Adrian, deserted his post at 8 o'clock Friday night, and with him went the keys to the baggage room, where the telephone is located. As a result many trains were blocked in all directions. The first intimation of the young man's departure was calls from the tower-house at the crossing of the Lake Shore road, for the day operator to help lift the blockade. All the money in the till was missing and a visit of the auditor will be necessary to determine the amount of the alleged defalcation. Clark had only been acting as ticket agent and operator in Adrian for about three weeks.—Ex.

Monday morning Loretta, the 16-years old daughter of Mrs. Majory Navarre, who lives just north of the Old Folks Home, by rare presence of mind saved herself from being burned to death. She was working over a three burner gasoline stove just before noon and in lifting off a kettle of catsup tipped the stove over on herself. The tank dropped down on the burners and in an instant the whole stove was ablaze with burning gasoline. Although her clothing was afire Loretta stopped to kick the tank out of doors. After doing this she rushed into another room and with a pillow smothered the fire in her clothing She was severely, but not seriously burned about the right side of the face and arm. Neighbors rushed to Miss Navarre's rescue and put out the fire in the kitchen before any serious damage was done.

TOURISTS THEY WOULD BE.

Port Huron People Would Like to Buy Goods in Sarnia.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 6.—There is a misunderstanding among Port Huron people as to the construction of the law of the treasury department, which provides that a tourist may bring $100 worth of goods into the United States without paying the duty. The understanding arises over the interpretation of the word tourist. Port Huron people who visit Canada are not classed as tourists, and a number of local people have visited Sarnia with the idea that they could purchase goods in various amounts up to $100 and bring them to this side without paying duty, but the customs officials claim that the law cannot be construed that way, and that Port Huron people cannot be tourists while in Sarnia.

Pain

From Inflammatory Rheumatism

Would Have Killed Our Son.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills Saved Him.

"We began to use Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills six years ago. My wife had liver trouble and a neighbor gave her some of your liver pills to try, after which we bought a bottle of them and my wife used them until cured. Since then I have used them and I must say that I have never used any pills that gave me the satisfaction these have. We also use Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills with greatest satisfaction. Three years ago our son Harry had inflammatory rheumatism. He had suffered so much that I believe if we had not given him Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills which relieved him almost instantly he would have died. I am always glad of the opportunity for praising Dr. Miles' Remedies."—James Evertt, Alton, Ills.

We use them in the family and find them excellent for the women folks. This high altitude makes them very nervous. MEET IN DETROIT

Protest Conference Against Strike a Sure Thing.

DELEGATES FROM 50 CITIES

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 4.—As soon as it was learned that the president had failed yesterday to bring the coal miners and the operators together, it was decided that now the great conference of leading citizens of the eastern, northwestern and southwestern states will take place in this city next Thursday, Oct. 9. Mayor Maybury sent the following dispatch to Secretary Cortelyou last evening:

President Notified.

"Many thanks for courtesies extended. We all deeply regret that the kindly intervention of the president was unsuccessful. The conference called to meet in Detroit Thursday, Oct. 9, will surely assemble and we earnestly hope that out of these deliberations may come such results that will stay the calamity that now threatens the comfort, health and even lives of our people."

This telegram was in response to one from the president's secretary announcing that the conference with the railroad presidents, mine owners and John Mitchell had adjourned and that full reports of it would appear in the morning papers.

At the session of the committee which has been called to meet this noon a committee of 100 will be named, whose duty it shall be to entertain the visitors.

A large attendance is expected, for already fifty cities have replied that they would send delegates, and many more, which have been waiting the result of the president's move, will probably follow suit. The governors of the states, about twenty of whom were invited, have not responded as readily or as enthusiastically as the mayors of the cities, but those who have agreed to send representatives showed great enthusiasm over the plan and expressed optimistic opinions regarding the result.

Five Governors Replied.

Ten governors have been heard from, five of whom—the governors of Maine, New Hampshire, Michigan, Indiana and Minnesota—will surely send delegates to the conference. Of the other five, Missouri will doubtless send representatives as soon as the governor, Dockery, who is stumping the state for himself, can be located.

There is no hope of getting any people from the state of Pennsylvania to attend, for the mayors and the governor of the Keystone state have fought shy of the proposition.

KALAMAZOO IN WANT.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 4.—The coal famine has assumed such alarming proportions in Kalamazoo that should the strike continue it is absolutely certain many poor families will be in direst want. So strongly has this impressed Superintendent of the Poor Sidney Cathefman that he is looking about for large houses which can be secured to house destitute families and keep them warm, at a much less cost than if supplies of coal or any fuel were given out to be used at individual homes. The proposition has also been made that the churches be kept heated and open and supplied with cots and sleeping arrangements to accommodate the poor. Many church people express the belief that this would be necessary, and that the churches could be put to no better use.

A careful survey of the coal situation showed that less than 200 tons of hard coal are available in this city, with practically every private bin empty. Soft coal is more plentiful, but also scarce.

The Michigan Asylum for the Insane, located here, has been very fortunate, and besides its usual capacious bins, all full of coal, has great piles of it stacked up outside.

Man of Many Wives.

Petoskey, Mich., Oct. 4.—Elijah Clark of Horton Bay is a much married man. One wife lives in Antrim, one in Charlevoix, and the third accompanies him to Petoskey, where he was brought on the charge of obtaining groceries under false pretenses. While in the county bastile Colonel G. W. Dickinson recognized him as the man to whom he had refused a license and who had married later at Mancelona. Prompt conviction on the minor charge has saved him temporarily from complaint for bigamy.

Hosewhipped Her Father.

Flint, Mich., Oct. 4.—Mrs. Anna L. Stewart laid dead in her home on McFarlan street when her former husband, Harvey Burchard, appeared and asked to see her body. Mrs. Potter, the daughter, refused and declared her mother's dying wish was that Burchard be refused admittance. Mrs. Potter grabbed a horsewhip and applied it vigorously upon the old man's person.

Despondent, Attempted Suicide.

Waldron, Mich., Oct. 4.—Despondent because his corn crop was a failure, Conrad Barneth, a prosperous German farmer living near this place, attempted suicide by taking paris green and lies in a critical condition. He was suffering for five hours before medical aid could be secured. Barneth is said to be worth $[illegible],000.

Another Victim of Gas.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 6.—Gas escaping from a room occupied by Otto Beier at Frank Kremer's hotel, 1314 River street, attracted the notice of Mr. Kremer's son yesterday morning. When the door had been forced open Beier's dead body was found lying on the bed. The room was filled with gas, which had escaped from a partially open gas jet in the room. The stopcock in the jet was loose and it is believed was accidentally turned on.

Two Killed by a Train.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 6.—While walking along the Copper Range tracks near the Baltic mine, six miles southwest of Houghton, two men were struck by a passenger train last night. Both were killed. Papers found on them identified them as John H. Miller and John Haischer. They were apparently laborers.

Don't despise your poor relations. They might get rich sometime, and then it would be so hard to explain things.

IT LASTED FOR SIX HOURS

Old Soldiers Marched to the Tune of "Tramp, Tramp"—Enormous Crowds Greeted Them—President Out in His Carriage.

Washington, Oct. 9.—For more than six hours yesterday the people in Washington hummed the chorus of the old civil war song, "Tramp, Tramp the Boys Are Marching," and for an equal time the veterans constituting the Grand Army of the Republic made good the claim. The parade was the climax of the thirty-sixth encampment of their order. The occasion was in every way worthy of the Grand Army, and the parade did not fail appropriately to delineate the spirit of the war and the memory of the glorious achievements the army seeks to keep green in the minds of the American people.

Tiresome For Many.

Beginning at a few minutes past 10 o'clock, when the head of the column moved from its station at the capitol it was almost 5 o'clock when the last squad in the line had passed the place of disbandment, west of the White House. None of the soldiers was marching any great part of the time for the entire line of march did not exceed two and a half miles in length, but those who composed the rear detachments were on their feet practically all day, much of the time being consumed in waiting to take their places in line.

The route of the parade was down historic Pennsylvania avenue, along which many of them marched as raw recruits in going to the war in 1861 and 1862, and many others on the occasion of the great review after the close of the war in 1865. The participants in the imposing pageant entered with life and vigor into the spirit of the occasion. Each countenance bore evidence of the joy and experience brought to the individual, and it was plainly evident that there was in the occasion much of the restoration of youth for most of them. The "old boys" for the time being evidently were re-living the days of their youth Not many of them exhibited traces of age in their marching. Almost without exception they walked along with alacrity and kept step with precision

If the veterans had needed any spur to their enjoyment they would have found it easily in the crowds who thronged their pathway and the smile which providence bestowed on them, for the weather was perfect. The spectators were limited in number only by the capacity of the broad sidewalks, the stands, the parks, the windows and the housetops along the line of march to hold them. The government departments and the schools were closed for the day, and practically the entire population of Washington turned out to do honor to the veterans along with the hundred thousand visitors to the city.

The crowd was enthusiastic and outspoken in admiration, greeting every division of the procession with cheers and dismissing it with a godspeed that had in it both praise and feeling.

President Drove Out.

The president of the United States also lent his energies to the entertainment of the capital's guests. Unable to endure the strain of reviewing the column from a stand, he rose from his reclining chair and had himself driven up and down the line. The unusual interest thus manifested was appreciated by the old soldiers, and the president was everywhere received by them with loud applause.

More than five hours' time was consumed by the procession in passing the reviewing stand in front of the White House.

There were at least 25,000 men in line, and the estimate of Commander-in-Chief Torrance ran as high at 30,000 men.

Last night the veterans held camp fires in the big tents in the White Lot.

The three active candidates for the honor of entertaining the G. A. R. at the next annual encampment of the G. A. R. are Saratoga, Atlantic City and San Francisco. There seems to be quite a sentiment in favor of choosing some city between the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, and it is said that the encampment may go to none of the three cities named if a city in the middle west actively pushes its claims.

The leading candidates for commander-in-chief are General Stewart of Pennsylvania, General John C. Black of Illinois, Colonel John McElroy of Washington, and General Daniel Sickles of New York. General Stewart is thought to have the lead at present. For senior vice-commander the race apparently lies between J. M. Smith of Ohio and H. M. Orahood of Colorado, with Mr. Shaw of West Virginia and Mr. Calkins of Oregon contesting for the honor of being junior vice commander-in-chief.

Collision at Sea.

London, Oct. 9.—The North German Lloyd steamer Kron Prinz Wilhelm, which sailed from Southampton yesterday for New York, ran into and sank the British steamer Robert Ingham during a dense fog off Beachy Head. The Robert Ingham went down about four minutes after the collision, but the Kron Prinz saved all her crew of thirteen men, with the exception of the mate and the only passenger she had on board.

School Teacher Went Crazy.

London, Oct. 9.—A special dispatch from Vienna announces that a fearful tragedy was enacted at Dreyssig, Bohemia, on Monday. A village schoolmaster, forty years of age, while talking to his class suddenly became insane, rushed to his desk, drew a revolver from it and ran amuck, shooting right and left among the terrified children. Three scholars were killed and three were dangerously wounded

TURNED IT DOWN

Miners Refused to Accept Presidents Proposition.

ALL UNIONS VOTE AGAINST IT

Resolve Not to Return to Work Until Concessions Are Granted—Pennsylvania's Full Quota of Soldiers Now on Duty in Mining District.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 9.—Unless President Mitchell's hurried visit to New York bears fruit, the end of the mineworkers' strike seems a long way off, and the prospect of sufficient coal being mined to satisfy the public demand is extremely poor. Every local union of the miners' organization throughout the hard coal belt held special meetings, either Tuesday night or yesterday, and resolved to remain on strike until the mine owners grant them some concession. And while the reports of these meetings came pouring in to Wilkesbarre President Mitchell dictated a letter to the president of the United States, in which he gave his answer to the proposition that the strikers return to work and trust to have their condition improved through an investigating committee.

What the answer of the miners' chief is he refused to divulge, but it is difficult to conceive that with the replies of the local unions piled around him, he could do otherwise than respectfully decline the president's proposition.

Mitchell to New York.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon, accompanied by the three district presidents, Mr. Mitchell left for New York. His mission there is also a secret. As New York is the headquarters of the coal operators, a rumor immediately spread that a settlement was in prospect, but Mr. Mitchell and his colleagues would not say whom they expected to meet.

Briefly stated, the resolutions in these reports from the locals affirm the confidence of the men in the integrity and judgment of their president, praise President Roosevelt for his efforts to end the strike, denounce the presidents of the coal-carrying railroads for their alleged abuse of the chief executive at the conference in Washington, denounce the employment of the coal and iron police, thank all organizations and citizens throughout the country for the financial assistance given and denounce Governor Stone for sending troops here.

Nearly all the resolutions directed a sentence that the miners will remain out though all the troops in the United States were sent here, until they are granted some concessions.

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—The entire national guard of Pennsylvania is now camped in the anthracite coal regions, the last regiment from the western part of the state having arrived late Wednesday afternoon.

Troops Well Received.

Contrary to expectations, the troops were well received and there was no disposition on the part of the strikers to annoy the soldiers.

The fact that all of the locals throughout the anthracite region have voted unanimously to continue the strike would indicate that the presence of troops will have but little effect upon forcing the men to return to work, and from present indications it would seem that the settlement of the strike is no nearer a solution than it has been for many weeks.

Rumored Baer Had Resigned.

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—A rumor was current here last night that George F. Baer, president of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, had submitted his resignation to the board of directors. Inquiry at Mr. Baer's residence here elicited the information that he had retired for the night, leaving strict injunctions that he was not to be disturbed. The members of the board of directors, however, emphatically deny the report.

Love of Wife Caused Suicide.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 9.—Byron M. Allen, formerly of this city, committed suicide at San Bernardino, Cal., Tuesday by shooting himself through his brain. He had been deserted by his wife three weeks ago. He had sent his fifteen-year-old son on an errand, and when the boy returned he found his father dead in the parlor, one hand clasping a revolver and the other a photograph of his wife. On a table was a hastily scrawled note saying: "I take my life with my own hand. May God forgive me." The Allens went to California two years ago and are possesed of considerable means.

BLISS' HORSE RAN

Michigan's Executive Severely Injured in Washington.

WAS PICKED UP FOR DEAD

Steed Became Frightened While He Was in the Big Parade—Animal Fell, Throwing Governor to Hard Pavement—His Ankle Sprained.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—Governor Bliss' horse ran away with him yesterday with results that might have been more serious than they were. As it is, he is confined to his bed at the Arlington hotel, with his right ankle badly sprained, his right knee bruised, his left cheek and nose badly scratched and covered with court plaster, and a cut on his forehead which required two stitches to close.

How It Happened.

The accident happened within a few blocks of the end of the line of march. When the head column of Michigan veterans reached the reviewing stand in front of the White House Governor Bliss and Department Commander Anthony reined in their horses and drew up at the curb in front of the stand to review the column as it passed. As the last Michigan man went by they started to resume their positions at the head of the column, when the governor's horse bolted westward along Pennsylvania avenue. There was a crowd at the intersection of Seventeenth street and the avenue, which parted hurriedly when the runaway horse, with his rider sawing at the bit, was seen coming that way. Having passed the crowd, the beast kept on running up Pennsylvania avenue, and skirted Washington Circle at the intersection of Twenty-second street and went four or five blocks further, where there is a reverse curve in the street line. In attempting to make this double curve, the horse slipped on the asphalt pavement and fell on his right side, throwing the governor fifteen or twenty feet on the brick pavement.

Picked Up For Dead.

He was picked up unconscious and taken to the G. A. R. hospital in the White lot, south of the state, war and navy building.

At first it was thought that the governor was dead, but he revived on the administration of stimulants, and further examination by the surgeons in charge of the hospital disclosed the injuries as stated above. As soon as the wound in his forehead was stitched up and his other injuries dressed the governor was removed to his room at the Arlington hotel and several Michigan physicians, who are here attending the encampment, quickly offered their services. Dr. Bailey of Mackinaw was placed in charge of the patient, and he was assisted by Dr. Griswold of Grand Rapids and Dr. Mary Strong of Jackson.

The Governor's Story.

His statement of the accident was substantially as stated above and in addition the governor said: "The horse was new to me; one that was selected by a member of the local committee, and I could not therefore know enough about him to be able to tell just how to manage him. At first I tried to pull him in, but found that his head was so drawn down that he was likely to slip on the hard, smooth pavement. I then eased up on him, and when we approached Washington Circle I tried to guide him onto the grass, but I did not succeed in that and then tried to guide him around the circle. Then he did just what I feared he would do—slipped on the asphalt and fell with my leg under him. The horse slid along the pavement on his side for a considerable distance, relieving the pressure on my leg and ankle, with the result that instead of a break it is only sprained a trifle.

"I will be around all right in a few days and able to go home almost at once. I do not know what frightened the horse. He acted beautifully up to the time he bolted."

Train Ran Their Auto Down.

Youngstown, O., Oct. 9.—An automobile containing Harry Tod, John Tod, Frank Silver and Charles Stitt, was run down by an Erie train yesterday. Harry Tod was instantly killed and Charles Stitt received slight injuries. The others escaped injury. Harry Tod was a son of John Tod, a prominent capitalist, and a grandson of the late Governor Tod of Ohio.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

After F. R. D. Route.—A petition will be filed this week with the postmaster-general for a free rural delivery route in Menominee county. It is signad by several hundred farmers, and Postmaster Kern of Menominee will make every possible effort to have it instituted.

No More Reviews This Year.—The state tax commission can hold no further reviews after this week. Next week the county boards of supervisors will meet to equalize valuations. The result of the reviews held this year has been a marked increase in the aggregate assessments.

Scandal in Byron.—The village of Byron is all torn up over a scandal which has developed there. Mrs. Sarah Lind has brought suit for divorce against her husband, John B. Lind, alleging cruelty and jealousy. Lind claims he caught his wife and Abraham Westlake in a compromising position recently and files a redhot cross bill.

Pontiac Will Gets Its Gun.—Mayor Guillot of Pontiac passed a contribution paper and the necessary amount was secured to pay the freight on the Spanish cannon which has been donated by the government to that city. The cannon, which will be located in the yard of the county jail, is now at Fort Mifflin, Philadelphia.

CRIME IN STATE

Alleged Murderer of Fireman Bokcha Found.

KILLED BY TWO CAMP COOKS

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 8.—Philip Arnold is the name of the alleged murderer of Joseph Bokcha, fireman on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road, who was killed in his cab last week. Arnold shot down Otto Wendell at May's logging camp near Wausaukee Saturday morning. His body was identified at Wausaukee Monday by his father, a citizen of Kekaunee, Wis., who took the remains home.

It was developed at the inquest that Arnold was shot five times, once by Wendell, the cook in the camp, and four times by Charles Olson, another cook. It seems that Olson rushed out of the camp on hearing the first shot, and finding Wendell fired at assumed that some violence had been done him and fired four shots at the fleeing man, all of which took effect in his back.

The examination of Wendell, who was arrested, was held yesterday at Wausaukee. He was held in $500 bonds for trial in circuit court on a charge of murder. The officers have not yet apprehended Olson.

Ithaca, Mich., Oct. 8.—The body of an unknown man was found on the tracks of the D., M. & N. railway, just this side of Carson City, one arm, a leg and his head being cut off. Everything points to a murder, the ground around showing signs that a scuffle had taken place. The officers suspect that the assassin, after murdering the man, placed him on the track to allay suspicion. The body was taken to Carson City, where an inquest was held, the jury finding that the unknown came to his death by being run over by the cars.

Sheriff Parrish and Prosecutor Kirby are confident that murder was done and say arrests will follow soon.

Traverse City, Mich., Oct. 8.—In his charge to the jury in the Hargraves murder trial Tuesday, Judge Mayne instructed them that the theory of murder in the first degree must not be considered. If their verdict is guilty, it could only be of murder in the second degree, manslaughter or a lesser crime. The closing argument for the prosecution and the judge's charge were finished by 10:50, when the jury retired.

At 6 o'clock last evening the jury asked Judge Mayne for an explanation of his instructions on certain points. The court submitted replies in writing.

The elimination of the first degree element in the case brightened Hargraves greatly.

PRINCE TIMOTEO

....By DAVID SKAATS FOSTER

CHAPTER IX.

"IT was upon the stroke of midnight," began Ippolita, "when I opened the gate, and Fiorella, my tirewoman, was with me. Now, Fiorella was always a good damosel, saving in two or three little matters, one of which is"—

"Fiorella be ——; that is to say, never mind Fiorella," said I. "Tell me what happened to thee when thou wert outside of the wall."

"Aye, that is the thing, fair prince; but, by our Lady, there is not much to tell thee, for we did find ourselves straightway in the midst of a band of ill favored rogues, who laid violent hands upon us, which made us cry out with the fright thereof, and Fiorella, being a stout wench, did lay about her so lustily that they were fain to loose her. Whereat she got within the gate, I swooned and remember nothing more."

"Incomparable Ippolita!" I exclaimed. "When thou hadst come out of the trance into which these base fiends had thrown thee, where wert thou and what didst thou note?"

"Marry, fair sir, I did not come well out of it until I found myself in the chamber where we now are. Nathless, as we came into the house and as I was borne through the lower parts of it I had one eye open, so that I secretly took note of the mansion, of the band of robbers and of a graybeard serving man who admitted us to the castle. And I did see that his teeth chattered in his head and that one of the band eftsoons fetched him such a grievous whack upon the pate that he fell senseless upon the pavement. And of the robbers there were fourteen men all told, and with thirteen of them I did have acquaintance, whenas, the fourteenth, who was their leader, I did not know."

"Ah, Ippolita," said I, "thou dost in sooth know these thirteen thieves right well, and I do fear me that they set such store by thy acquaintance that they will be loath to let thee go out of their company. As to the leader of these robbers, he also is no stranger to thee, though thou didst not recognize him, appareled as he was in my castoff finery. Know, then, that he is none other than Brother Ambrose, the black friar who escaped from the flames yestreen."

"Frediddio, Timoteo, thou art pleased to jest with me!"

"Nay, fairest one, I jest not, and if it is not the truth may the foul fiend fly away with me. Moreover, it is but a half hour since I watched the traitor from my hiding place in the cellar of the castle, and I did hear him say to one Pippo, his companion, that he reserved thee for the fulfillment of some weighty enterprise."

"Now, by St. Reparata, didst ever hear of such an impudent, black and scurvy knave? I could weep for vexation at the thought of it, and I could tear out his base tongue by the roots with redhot pinchers."

The wrath of Ippolita as she thus expressed herself was something appalling. Her gaze was fixed and staring, as though she saw before her the object of her resentment, and her fingers moved convulsively as though she were performing the surgical operation of which she had spoken.

"Rather than that the poltroon should touch me," she continued, "beshrew me, but I would murder him, e'en though I had to kill myself the moment after."

She thrust her hand into her bosom, drew therefrom a slim bladed and bejeweled stiletto and made a theatrical pass with it into the air before her.

"Gadzooks, Ippolita," said I, "thou art not used to such playthings, and, I prithee, put it away from thee, for I do much fear me that thou wilt cut thyself."

For answer she laughed the prettiest laugh imaginable. The fire of her anger had subsided, and she was now her own sweet self once more.

I now noticed for the first time that Ippolita was without the coronet of diamonds which I had seen her wear at our first meeting. I was naturally interested in the matter, and I asked her if she had left it home when she came to the postern gate with Fiorella.

"Nay, Timoteo, it is a matter of no moment, as I will straightway show thee. I will tell thee the secret lest thou hear it from others and think slightingly of me for it. A year ago come Michaelmas the duke, my father, being hard pressed by his tradespeople, did take the diamonds from this same coronet and did pawn them with the old money lender Montefiori, putting in place of them in the diadem a lot of pebbles, which shone with great luster and seemed in every way as good as the original. It will be a rare jest upon these rogues when they do discover it."

I thought as she did. At the same time I wondered why the old duke had not pawned some of that great quantity of gold and silver plate of which he was possessed instead of taking the jewels of his beautiful and only child. As though she had divined my thought, she now continued:

"Having told thee the one secret, I will e'en make a clean breast of it and reveal to thee another. Thou didst doubtless take note yestreen at the duke's banquet of an exceeding great display of tableware of gold and silver. Alas, that I must say it to thee, but the whole outfit is bogus, and the goblets, plates and basins which thou didst see are but brass and pewter copies of the originals, now also, like the diamonds, in the possession of the old Sir Isaac, the usurer."

A teardrop came into her dark, lustrous eyes as she spoke, and in my mind was pictured at that moment the whole story of the old duke's riotous and extravagant career and of his angelic daughter's consequent privation and maidenly shame. The pity of it touched my heart, and that, together with the sad and surpassing loveliness of her present appearance, so wrought upon me that I caught her to me, swore that I loved her as never mortal damizella was loved before and besought her to name upon the instant the happy day. To my astonishment, she drew away from me, and upon her face there was a look of fear and of indecision.

"Oh, Timoteo," said she in accents of tenderness, "I do love thee right well, believe me, but how can I, oh, how can I link my young life with one who is descended from the devil?"

"Nay, Signorina Albizzi," said I, with some hauteur, while at the same time I wondered much at her remark. "I am indeed of old and noble lineage, but beshrew me if I claim to trace it back to the gentleman whom thou didst mention."

"It cannot be," said she, gazing at me with her magnificent eyes wide open in surprise, "that thou hast not heard the tale which is told in every corner of the land anent the family of the Pazzi? Surely thou dost but jest."

"By a whole wagon load of saints," said I.

"This, then, was the tale, fair prince, as it was told me by my grandam whiles that I was but a small child: It was many years ago that the thing first happened, being at the time when my great-grandsire, Galeazzo Albizzi, had the misunderstanding with thy great-grandfather, Lodovico de' Pazzi."

At this moment the countess gave a startled and terrified glance over my shoulder and at the same time uttered a quick cry of alarm. I turned swiftly and beheld standing within the doorway of the stair which led below a burly and hirsute ruffian. We had been so taken up with each other and the sweet moments of our interview had sped so pleasantly that we had made no account of where we were and had forgotten the presence of the robbers in the castle until all in a twinkling we found them upon us.

The rogue was unarmed, and as I drew my sword and made a spring for him he turned to run down the stair, placing his right hand upon the door casing as he went out. At this second I slammed the door to, catching his wrist between it and the jamb. It was a heavy door and did not fit very closely to the casing, so that his hand stuck straight out into the room like a pointing hand upon a signboard. He naturally raised a great ado about the matter.

It was a happy suggestion which the darling girl had made, and I went to work and gave it two or three hacks and sawed at it awhile and haggled at it and finally got it off. I was ashamed of the operation, for I had done much better when I was a student. All this while the knave was bellowing out as though I were murdering him. Now, however, he became quiet; so I opened the door, and he must have gone into a swoon, for the moment his wrist was let loose he fell to the bottom of the stairway.

There was now a great fracas below stairs, and it seemed to me likely that the whole gang of miscreants, hearing the outcries of their companion, had come up into the chamber immediately beneath us.

"What is toward?" asked one, with a round, mediæval oath.

"By the skin of Bartholomeo," answered another, "I know not, save that Brother Benedetto there hath been most excellently trussed and carved. She is a most valiant wench to have done this."

"Santiddio," said the first speaker. "It was ever thus with Benedetto. A petticoat hath ever had more charms for him than good red wine, and he hath deserted the bottle and stolen away from our festive company that he might dally with this she wolf of a countess. Were not the fifty stripes which she procured to be given him upon last Lammas day sufficient for him? Take ye warning, therefore, all of ye, and when ye have abundant and good liquor abide by it, and all will be well with ye. In the absence of Brother Ambrose, our captain, I, as lieutenant of the band, will take it upon me to go up presently to the chamber of this bloody witch that I may have reason of her for this matter. Which of ye will go with me?"

"By St. Peter, most valiant Lippo," spoke up another of the robbers, "that will I—there being beforehand a covenant betwixt us that thou dost go first."

"Thou speakest well, Bacio. Follow closely, however, upon my footsteps that thou mayest see in what manner I deal with the sorceress."

There now sounded a heavy tread upon the stair, which made it seem that the lieutenant was a man of weight. I understood that two men were now ascending, and I got ready to receive them with proper and adequate welcome. From my point of view the door was hinged at the left. Outside of it there was a landing of about three feet in breadth, and the stairway, which was so narrow that it admitted of but one man at a time, went downward to the right. All I had to do was to stand by the partly open door and to pass my sword through whatever appeared in the aperture. Now, the lieutenant was an exceedingly fat rogue, and the first object which presented itself past the jamb of the door was his stomach. In this I made two or three swift, strong jabs, and he fell upon his face and lay on the floor of the landing as dead as a mackerel.

The second rascal at this moment perceived me and, turning round, made such a hasty attempt to get down the stairway that he turned a complete somersault and landed at the bottom.

"By St. Dominie," he cried, "but there be a dozen men at arms in the room!"

At this moment, urged on by my overconfident and somewhat too valiant nature, I did a very foolish thing. Thrusting my head around the corner of the doorway, I called down to them:

"Thou liest, thou dastard and chicken hearted caitiff! Pardy, I am but one man, and I scorn and defy ye all! Marry, come up here, any that are a-weary of this life, and eftsoons will I give ye passage to the unquenchable fires which ye so well deserve."

Beck & Egan's Furniture Opening

Beck & Egan, the well knwon furniture gentlemen of Adrian and formerly of Tecumseh, celebrated their fifth year of work by an elegant opening Wednesday evening, between four and five thousand people were present to see the beautiful display of crockery and furniture. Jackson's orchestra rendered a musical program.

In the second floor annex in the new Reynolds building the hall trees, chairs library and center tables, divans, davenports, etc. On the first floor were pictures, side boards, buffets, lamps, cut glass, dainty china and the more substantials in crockery, etc. The electric lights were all that was needed to make it the most enticing place of the evening. The basement was not opened. The crush was so great that the elevator was put into commission to assist in relieving the second floor, but one trip was sufficient. The brakes not being closed the affair descended from the second floor to the basement, scaring the eight passengers and shaking them up. No panic resulted. Though only the ladies and young ladies were eligible for souvenirs, the stock gave out early in the evening and many were given redeemable checks. Potted plants added to the attractiveness of the scene, though decorations were not at all necessary to make the scene attractive. Mrs. Egan, Miss Emma Beck and Miss Hazel Nicholson assisted.—Adrian Telegram.

The Chicago & North-Western Ry. announces that all lines have agreed to a rate of $50.00 for the round trip from Chicago for the next assembly of the Presbyterian church which will meet at Los Angeles in May.

The Knights of Pythias, Federation of Women's Clubs and quite a number of other national conventions found the Coast a very desirable meeting place during the season just closed, and there is no doubt but that the assembly will be likewise well pleased with its selection of Los Angeles for 1903.

The rapid growth of western travel has been largely due to the splendid facilities offered by Chicago & North-Western and other transcontinental railway and the low rates that have been made by them for meetings of this kind. The result is a volume of migration to the west that makes Horace Greeley's famous piece of advice to young men seem quite needless in this present day.

Sudden changes of weather are especially trying and probalby to none more so than to the scrofulous and consumptive. The progress of scrofula during a normal October is commonly great. We never think of scrofula, its bunches, cutaneous eruptions, and wasting of the bodily substance—without thinking of the great good many sufferers from it have derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla, whose radical and permanent cures of this one disease are enough to make it the most famous medicine in the world. There is probably not a city or town where Hood's Sarsaparilla has not proved its merit in more homes than one, in arresting and completely eradicating scrofula, which is almost as serious and as much to be feared as its near relative—consumption.

New Manila Military Post.

Washington, Oct. 9.—Secretary Root has issued an order setting aside a large tract of land containing 1,800 acres within five miles of Manila as a military reservation. The place is intended to be the site of the first of a system of modern brigade posts which are to be erected throughout the islands. Accommodations will be afforded at this post for one regiment of infantry, two squadrons of cavalry and two batteries of artillery. It is the purpose to get the soldiers out of Manila proper as far as possible. Probably the garrison at Manila proper will be ultimately reduced to a regiment of heavy artillery kept within the walled city for the purpose of manning the sea coast fortifications there.

Alleged Fraud Against U. S.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 9.—Aaron Marx, Louis Wasserman and J. A. Codd, prominent butchers of this city, were arrested Wednesday on complaints filed in the United States court before Commissioner Bowden by Assistant District Attorney Miller, charging them with conspiracy to defraud the government, by jointly operating fictitious bids for supplying the Norfolk navy yard with 100,000 pounds of fresh meat and 100,000 pounds of fresh vegetables. Richard Eastwood of the firm of Eastwood & Jordan also is charged with the same offense, but is in Washington and has not been apprehended.

Myron J. Tremaine

Myron J. Tremaine was born in Vienna. Oneida county, New York, July 24, 1828. He continued a resident of the state of New York until the year 1880, when he removed to Michigan, locating in the village of Tecumseh. He was engaged in business in this village until 1894, when he removed to Chicago which has been his home for the last eight years.

Mr. Tremaine married Miss Caroline Randall in 1854. To them were born four children, three of whom survive, Mrs. Fred Rosacrans of Tecumseh; Dr. J. Eugene Tremaine and Myron D. Tremaine of Chicago.

Mr. Tremaine was converted and united with the Methodist Episcopal church in early life, and was to the last a devoted member of this communion. For many years he was an active worker in the M. E. church of Tecumseh, serving it for three years as choir leader and in several other official positions. He was a loyal member of the Masonic Fraternity, and, at his request, the Masons of Tecumseh took part in the burial service.

The funeral service was held on Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. W. F. Jones. The widow and children were present from Chicago, as also the only brother of the deceased, David Tremaine of New York.

Mr. Tremaine will be greatly missed in the inner circle of his intimates, and all who knew him will feel a sense of personal loss, for he was a man of genial spirit, of open hearted frankness, and of abounding good nature.

HIS LAST SLEEP

Yhursday Morning at 3 O'clock

CAPT. WILL H. HAYDEN

Passed Away as Quietly and Peacefully as he had Lived his Life.

The first news heard on the street yesterday morning was that Capt. Will Hayden was gone and although for months his prayer has been for death and his friends knew he could not live everyone said "too bad a good man gone."

For years Will Hayden has suffered from that dread disease consumption. For several years his friends knew that cure was impossible and it was only a question of time when the end would come. Three times he has been West and once to Milwaukee in search of health but all was of no use, slowly but surely the disease wasted him away, until this morning he simply dropped to sleep and waked no more. This was his prayer and it was granted.

Capt. Will Hayden was born in 1865 and practically has spent his life in Tecumseh. He was a member of the council at the time of his death, was twice elected supervisor of the township and was captian of Co. C for a number of years. He was a member of the Episcopal church and interested in his quiet way with religious affairs, but above all, he was everybody's friend and everyone was his friend.

No man in Tecumseh was more thought of than he. To speak truly he had not an enemy in the world. He never had a thought for himself and many are the persons who will miss Will Hayden in more ways than one.

For the last few months his whole idea has been to arrange affairs so that he would owe no one a dollar and during his leisure made arrangements for the funeral and any little thing connected with his taking away.

Will Hayden's life has been short, but he was of that cheerful, sunny disposition that everyone loved and will sincerely miss him. The end is come and no one can just take his place. To his particular friends it is a final ending.

The remains will lie in state in his own room at the residence from one to five o'clock Saturday afternoon. The funeral, Masonic, will be held from the residnce Sunday afternoon at two o'clock.

CAPT. WM. S. McNAIR

A Former Resident of Tecumseh now in active service in the PHILIPPINES

Manila, October 1.—The Manic Moros in Mindanao have offered but slight resistance to the column under Capt. Pershing. of the Fifteenth cavalry. After a series of skirmishes on Monday and Tuesday of this week the Moros retreated into six forts on the shores of the lake. When a courier left Maciu yesterday for Camp Vickers, Capt Pershing desired to attack the last Moro stronghold.

The American column reached the former camp at Macsu Sunday night. On Monday morning the Moros opened fire on them with a brass cannon and rifles from a series of new forts which had been erecteb since Capt. Pershing's first visit to the place. The battery under Capt. Wm. S. McNair scaled a ridge commanding the position of the Moros and shelled them out. The engineers under Capt Jay J. Morrow had constructed a trail over the swamp flanking the Moro position. The men of Capt. Pershing's column crossed the swamp by the trail and captured and destroyed three of the Moro forts. The Moros stood but a short while and ran as soon as the arteillry opened on them.

Capt. Pershing has been ordered to destroy the forts unless the Moros make peace Twenty Moros were killed and many were wounded. There were no casualties among the Americans.

An Ancient Foe

To health and happiness is Scrofula—as ugly as ever since time immemorial.

It causes bunches in the neck, disfigures the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into consumption.

"A bunch appeared on the left side of my neck. It caused great pain, was lanced, and became a running sore. I went into a general decline. I was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and when I had taken six bottles my neck was healed, and I have never had any trouble of the kind since." MRS. K. T. SNYDER, Troy, Ohio.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

will rid you of it, radically and permanently, as they have rid thousands.

VALUABLE BOOK

History of Lenawee County by John I. Knapp and R. I. Bonner

THE VOLUME WILL BE FINELY ILLUSTRATED.

And will contain many valuable historical sketches

Some months ago it was announced in The Times that Messrs. John I. Knapp and R. I. Bonner were about to undertake the work of publishing an illustrated history of Lenawee county. Since that announcement a large amouut of work has been done by them, and the success of the undertaking is now assured. The most desirable feature of the coming book will be the illustrations, as nearly every portion of the work is illustrated either with family portraits or views of their homes, or pioneer landmarks that are still standing to the memory of the first settlers in the wilderness.

The Times has been shown a part of the result of the work already done by Messrs. Knapp and Bonner in the way of illustrations, and can say that what we have seen far exceeds our expectations when they first announced their purpose. They have shown us several engravings already secured, and we pronounce them very fine as works of art, and beautiful illustrations of the faces, homes and scenes in this country.

They are securing views of all the important places and points in the country, and many of them are surpassingly beautiful as illustrations of the growth and prosperity of old Lenawee. Many of the oldest residents will hardly believe that so many fine homes, such fine architecture, landscapes and views are to be fond in our beloved country, but the camera tells the truth, and every scene will be appreciated and engaged.

The historical and biographial work is being very carefully done by Mr. Bonner, who has passed over fifty years of his life here. and who, something over twenty years ago, spent two years in company with the late W. A. Whitney in publishing the first and only reliable history of Lenawee county, which stands as the only historical and biographial authority ever published in this county.

We therefore have no hesitation in recommending and commending the work that is now going on. We believe it will be reliable and know it will be valuable and satisfactory.

As a work of constant references of valuable data and family reminiscence of the men and women who first came in the wilderness here and "builded better than they knew," it will be invaluable. We hope to see the portraits and the homes and public buildings of the entire county embodied in this work and believe the majority of our readers will endorse this hope.—Adrian Times.

TAX COMMISSION

Raises Lenawee Assessments

$300,000

But of this Amount Tecumseh Only got $2,000

The Michigan State Tax Committee held a special review at Adrian yesterday and the assessments of the supervisors summond there were raised about $300,000, of which Tecumseh had $2,000. This was added to the assessment of the Wm. Hayden Milling Co. Then assessment on real estate made by Supervisor Garlinghouse was $6,500 and the tax commissioner made the figures $8,500.

Complaint was also made against H. Brewer & Co. This remained according to their statement and as was assessed by the supervisor. Only one other complaint escaping without a raise, of from $400 to $95,000.

Mr. A. F. Freeman and Ira T. Sayer were the members of the commission present. B. J. Garlinghouse and J. D. Shull attended from Tecumseh and report a lively rumpus with Lenawee assessments.

A WOMAN'S BACK

The Aches and Pains will Disappear if the Advice of This Tecumseh Citizen is Followed

A woman's back has many aches and pains.

Most time it is the kidneys' fault.

Read what one has to say about it: Mrs. E. D. Fryer, who lives in the northwestern section of Tecumseh, says: "I suffered from my kidneys off and on for about two years. During an attack the pain was worse along in the afternoon and I often felt like giving up, but I kept on working in misery, for stooping or straightening made my back feel as if it were breaking in two. If I took a slight cold it always settled in my back and in spite of all the remedies I used I could not get relief. Procuring Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright's drug store I took a course of the treatment. It did more good than all the other medicine I ever used. The pain in my back was quickly relieved I take pleasure in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cent per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

In the olden time it was customary for lovers only to imprint kisses upon the eyes of their mistresses. As the ladies eyes, under those circumstances, had but little to do except remain quiet and be kissed, is it any wonder their lovely owners were said to be idle-eyesed?

Oriental travelers say that a Chinese gentleman thinks it beneath his dignity to manufacture his own witticisms. He appreciates wit, and he is fond of tea, but he would as soon grow his own tea as make his own jokes. When he goes into society he carries in his pocket a package of prepared witticisms and repartress, which he has purchased at the nearest joke shop. When conversation flags and he preceives an opportunity for saying something brilliant, he draws a humorous remark from the top of his package and gravely hands it to his neighbor. The latter as gravely reads it, and selecting from his bundle of repartees the one which is appropriate, returns it with a bow to the orignal joker The two then solemnly smile in a courteous and undemonstrative way, and reresume their conversation, feeling that they have acquitted themselves with conspicous brilliancy.

A TERRIBLE DEATH.

Mrs. E. G. Price of Britton, was run over by the east bound D. T. & M. train Wednesday. It is said that Mrs. Price has of late been very despondent, which prompted her to commit this terrible act, which was clearly a case of premeditated suicide. She deliberately stepped in front of the eastbound train and was instantly killed.

She came to Britton Tuesday and purchased a box of chloroform but was discovered and it was taken from her by the family. Wednesday she prepared dinner for the family and walked out back of the house about a half of a mile to the railroad track and set in the tall grass until she saw the train approaching. She walked upon the track facing the engine awaiting death. She was thrown from the track and killed instantly. The section gang were eating dinner but a short distance from that place. They hastened there and identified the mangled remains.

Mrs. Price's maiden name was Iva Liddle, she having been twice married. She was married to David Sloan of Macon, 13 years ago. Two daughters were born to them, Nina and Margretta who are living with their mother at the time of her death. Mr. Sloan died about nine years ago. She was married to E. G. Price in November 1895. She was a member of the Reformed church of Britton, the Eastern Star of Tecumseh, the Ridgeway Grange also the L. O. T. M. of Britton.

The funeral was held at the house Friday at 10 a. m. Interment at Tecumseh. She was born June 6, 1883. She leaves a husband, two sisters, Mrs. Wilkerson of Macon, and Mrs. Fulkerson of Clinton; a stepson, Geo Price, and a stepdaughter, Lydia Price, to mourn her loss. The whole community feel the result of this horrible affair and have deep sorrow for her husband and all the friends.

WASHINGTON NOTES

Meeting of the Miners and Mine Operators.

WAS UNSUCCESSFUL

Washington, Oct. 6, 1902.

Intense interest, followed by bitter disappointment, has attended the conference of railway presidents interested in the anthracite coal mines and President Mithcell of the Mine Workers' Union, called by President Roosevelt. When the president's eloquent appeal to the interested parties was first made public there was a general impression that the conference would prove successful. The concluding words of that appeal were, "I do not invite a discussion of your respdctive claims and positions. I appeal to your patriotism, to the spirit that sinks personal considerations and makes individual sacrifice for the general good."

In response to this appeal Pres. Mitchell offered to order the strikers to return to work immediately and leave all differences to be subsequently adjudicated by a tribunal which should be entirely appointed by the president. The railway presidents refused to consider the offer. They painted in glowing colors the failure of the state authorities to preserve law and order and appealed to the president to protect their property and those workmen who were willing to enter the mines on the old terms, from the lawlessness and violence of the strikers.

The president doubtless fully appreciated that in their representations lay the weak spot in his contention. Nevertheless he again urged upon them full consideration of the suffering which must inevitably come to the general public as a result of their persistent maintenance of their rights. Further than that, he did not argue the case and the meeting dispersed.

The only apparent result of the conference was to demonstrate that the operators were unqualifiedly unwilling to, in the remotest degree recognize the union and the miners were unwilling to abandon their union, in the interest of a suffering public. It is freely predicted that the president is detrmined that the strike shall end and that he has further measures in contemplation.

By some it is alleged that he will convene congress in special session, by others that he will appeal to Gov. Stone to restore order or, in the event of his inability to do so, to call for regular troops. What the president really intends to do, probably no man knows but there is a general feeling that he will find some way of protecting the interest of the American people in this serious crisis.

Washington to-day is gay with bunting in honor of the Grand Army encampment and every preparation has been made for the entertainment of the veteran visitors. Stands for guests line Pennsylvania Avenue and opposite the White House is a specially ornamental stand for the accommodation of the president and the distinguished party which will review the grand parade. Camp Roosevelt, on the Mall, immediately back of the White House, has been laid out and thousands of tents dot the beautiful park Convention Hall, where the meetings of the encampment will be held, is a mass of color, flags and bunting have been used in the decorations in greatest profusion. The railroad officials are estimating that by Wednesday nearly half a million guests will be in Washington and the reception committee is still actively engaged in securing accommodations for this vast number.

Not withstanding the exciting events of the past week, the President continues to regain his health and will review the parade on Wednesday with General Terrance, commander in cheif of the G. A. R. and a large party of distinguished men. Miss Roosevelt left Washington Saturday for New York where she will spend some time visiting friends and after Wednesday's parade the President hopes to be able to return with Mrs Roosevelt to Oyster Bay for at least two weeks rest and recuperation.

The great struggle between the anthracite mine operators and their employes, together with the increased interest in the relations between capital and labor have resulted in bringing to the Carnegie Institution, in this city, an immense number of requests that the trustees of the institution take up the question and make a thorough investigation of the whole subject.

It is argued that such an investigation and the findings resulting therefrom would prove of the utmost benefit to the science of political economy and to the general public and the deductions of the scientists who would be employed by the institution would be received with greater credence by the people than those of any department of the government whose investigations are too often suspected of being biased by the political views of the administration. Mr. O. P. Austin, chief of the bureau of statistics of the treasury department, told your correspondent recently that he believed the scheme a most excellent one and he hoped the institution would see its way clear to respond to the popular demand.

It is estimated at the War Department, that at least three years will be required for the completion of the negotiations between the Department and the Vatican looking to the transfer of the friars' lands to this government. This long delay, it is said, will arise from the complicated titles and the peculiar processes of the Spanish law. Anticipating the difficulties in the way of a minute examination of the titles, Governor Taft offered to the Vatican a lump sum for the holdings of the friars, agreeing to assure all risk of defective titles, but this proposition was rejected by the Pope and now every title will have to be examined and thereafter negotiations looking to the sale entered into with the papal delegate, Mgr. Guidi. It is stated, however, that the only sufferers from the delay will be the friars as much of their land is already held by the Philippine Commission and most of the remainder is held by those municipalities which have virtually expelled the friars.

Mr. William Nelson Cromwell, general counsel for the Panama Canal Co., is authority for the statement that the French courts have taken the necessary steps to render satisfactory the title offered to Attorney General Knox by his company and he predicts that Mr. Knox will report to the President that there is no flaw. Mr. Knox refuses to make public any statement in regard to his findings until his report shall have been submitted to the President and, as his attention is now devoted almost entirely to the subject of the coal strike, his report may be deferred for some time.

Mayor Maybury will call the meeting to order, and then turn over the whole subject to the conference to deal with as it sees fit.

"We have our own ideas," the mayor said yesterday, "but we don't propose to give the vistors the impression that this is a cuta nd dried affair. We go into the conference merely as individuals."

Any person who has a certificate from a mayor or governor or any recognized commercial body will be entitled to a seat as a delegate.

Among the most prominent delegates are: Ex-Senator William E. Chandler of New Hampshire, Senator William Mason of Illinois, ex-Congressman W. C. P. Breckinridge of Kentucky, Mayor Samuel M. VILLAGE IS BURNING.

Forest Fires Destroying Koss, Near Menominee.

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 9.—The town of Koss, formerly called Fisher, twenty miles north of this city, is threatened with destruction by forest fires. Telegrams were received here and at Marinette asking assistance.

A fire engine at Marinette was loaded on a flat car and taken to the scene. The Menominee engine is in readiness.

Word by wire from Koss says the whole town is burning and all will be razed to the ground. The entire woods surrounding the town are ablaze, and from present indications little, if anything, will be saved.

The Wisconsin & Michigan railroad stopped all trains on that branch when the alarm was given and hurried them to Menominee and Marinette for help.

The last report says several houses and stores have been burned. The railroad company has placed its cars at the disposal of the citizens, in which they can store household goods. A high wind prevails. It is just thirty-one years ago that the great Peshtigo fire, in which many lost their lives, started.

THREE BOYS GONE

Believed Traverse City Lads Have Drowned.

STARTED FOR A HUNT

Their Boat Found—Drunken Brawl in Lumber Camp Resulted in Killing of Two Italians and Serious Wounding of a Third.

Traverse City, Mich., Oct. 13.—Systematic search is being made for three boys of prominent families, who went hunting Saturday and are believed to have been drowned. They were Jack Corbett, aged fifteen, son of the late Judge R. L. Corbett, who was killed while deer hunting three years ago; Glenn Morgan, aged fourteen, son of M. D. Morgan, member of the board of public works, and Elliott Ashmun, the son of a well-known family.

The boys went hunting and about 2 o'clock are known to have embarked in a sailboat on the bay. The sea became rough and the boys have not been seen since. The boat was found partially filled with water yesterday morning on the shore, and in the afternoon a coat, recognized as owned by Corbett, was washed ashore.

It is believed the boat became unmanageable and capsized. The bodies were probably carried out by the current or sunk.

Dragging the bay has so far failed to discover them.

A frightful drunken row occurred at 1 o'clock Sunday morning in a camp of the Traverse City, Leelanau & Manistique railway near Sutton's Bay. Two Italians are dead and another is seriously wounded, having been shot through the hip. Charles Amsteed and two brothers named Ferdinand engaged in the fight. Amsteed shot Joe Ferdinand four times, the victim dying almost instantly. The other Ferdinand then engaged with Amsteed, and the latter was literally carved to pieces, over fifty stabs being inflicted with a knife.

Justice Revold held an inquest and the four Italians are under arrest. Sheriff Brown is investigating.

Five Years at Jackson.

Gaylord, Mich., Oct. 13.—The dynamiting cases from Vanderbilt have occupied the attention of the circuit court nearly all last week. It will be remembered that some time ago the residence of the village marshal was partially destroyed by the explosive. George Colbath was arrested for the crime, and, after conviction, confessed, implicating Arthur L. Morse as an accomplice and swearing that John Gray, a liquor dealer, had employed him to do the job. In the case of Morse the jury disagreed, and the case against Gray was continued to the next term of court, the prisoner giving bail in the sum of $4,000. Colbath, who had been held as a witness, testified that Gray had induced him to do the deed. Colbath was sentenced Saturday to five years at Jackson.

Collision at Lapeer.

Lapeer, Mich., Oct. 13.—During a heavy fog Sunday morning the Grand Trunk passenger train, due here at 5:03, ran into a freight caboose at the east switch, near Division, wrecking the engine and demolishing some freight cars. Engineer Hart jumped and sustained a broken nose and other bruises. His fireman was uninjured. The coaches were pulled back to Lapeer, where the passengers had breakfast. Hart was sent to Detroit over the Michigan Central and the regular train left for Battle Creek via Port Huron, Detroit and Durand.

Hargraves Given Fifteen Years.

Traverse City, Mich., Oct. 13.—John T. Hargraves, whose trial for murder consumed nine days, was sentenced to Jackson to fifteen years at hard labor. The sentence is the extreme limit for manslaughter, of which he was convicted. Hargraves was convicted of killing his wife on April 21.

MINOR TELEGRAMS.

Money For Missionaries.—The subscriptions obtained at the two meetings of the Christian Missionary Alliance, held in New York Sunday, amounted to $60,000. Of the offerings, over $2,000 was in cash. The Revs. A. B. Simpson and Henry Wilson were the speakers.

Arctic Explorer Honored.—Emperor William has bestowed the decoration of the Prussian Royal Order of the Crown of the First Class upon Captain Vverdrup, the Arctic explorer. King Oscar of Norway bestowed the Grand Cross of St. Olaf on Captain Sverdrup last week.

Enormous Hailstones.—Late Sunday evening a hailstorm, lasting five minutes, caused many thousand dollars' damage in St. Louis. Hailstones measuring two inches in diameter fell, and the streets resembled a fall of snow. Green houses all over the city were practically ruined.

Collided at Full Speed.—As the result of a mistake made by a motorman, one electric street car ran at full speed into another in the Avenue de la Republique, Paris, Sunday evening. Both cars were crowded. Thirty-nine persons were more or less seriously injured.

Flooded With Counterfeit.—Counterfeit American silver dollars are being made in China and circulated in Manila extensively. The suspicion is held that some of this money was shipped from San Francisco. The dollars are of silver and of standard weight. They have been detected through the improper stamping of the word "Liberty" on the goddess. The low price of silver ensured to the makers of the counterfeit money a profit of 100 per cent. American silver circulates as gold in the Philippines.

Committed Suicide.

STATE CROP REPORT

It Estimates the Wheat Yield at 18,000,000 Bushels.

RAINS PREVENTED SOWING

Bean Crop Practically Ruined on Account of Excessive Amount of Water—Corn is Slow—Plenty of Buckwheat This Year.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 11.—In the official crop report, issued Friday, Secretary of State Warner says the precipitation in the state for September was 1.37 inches above normal. In the southern counties, however, it was four inches above. This greatly damaged farm crops. Corn continued to grow rather than ripen, and potatoes rotted on low heavy land. The greatest damage, however, was sustained by the bean crop, which in many cases was wholly ruined. A new growth in sugar beets was started, and while this may have increased the yield, it had a tendency to decrease the percentage of sugar.

The estimated number of acres of wheat on the ground last April, based on reports filed by inspectors, was 965,000. The final estimated yield per acre is 18 bushels in southern counties, 21 in central, 19 in northern and 19 for the entire state. From this the total yield for 1902 is estimated at 18,000,000 bushels.

The acreage sown this fall as compared with the average is 80 for the state. Owing to excessive rains in September, it was impossible to sow many fields. Many farmers who intended to sow wheat after beans have been unable to do so because of their inability to secure the beans. In some cases they have abandoned the idea of sowing this land, it being so late in the season.

Owing to cool weather, corn is not as ripe as it should be at this time. Much will undoubtedly fail to ripen before a frost. Many correspondents report that there will be much soft corn and also that corn is molding in the shock. This will not only injure the fodder, but also the quality of the grain. The estimated yield per acre is 28 bushels.

Potatoes continued to grow during September owing to absence of frost in most parts of the state. There are numerous reports that potatoes are rotting on low, wet land and also that much damage has been done by blight. The estimated yield per acre is 72 bushels.

September weather practically ruined the bean crop in most parts of the state. This is especially true in the counties that produce large quantities of beans. In some instances a part of the crop has been secured, but as a rule the larger portion was damaged so as to be fit only for feed. A few correspondents report that some farmers contemplate plowing under the entire crop, thus making a total loss. The estimated yield of beans is only 11 bushels per acre.

The total acreage of buckwheat is reported at 21,388, and the estimated average yield per acre is 14 bushels.

Michigan Pensioners.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Michigan pensions were granted Friday as follows: Increase, reissue, etc.—Horace Young, Chesaning, $8; Levinas Babcock, Shabona, $10; Orson T. Taylor, Vassar, $14; James M. Ransom, Coldwater, $17; William W. Trussell, Stanton, $17; Benjamin S. Everest, Palo, $17; Andrew M. Van Deusen, Elsie, $8; Harvey Greer, Benton Harbor, $10; William H. Carpenter, Soldiers' home, Kent, $12; Charles Darby, Swartz Creek, $24; George W. Colvin, dead, Buchanan, $6. Widows—Harriet A. McVay, Grass Lake, $8; Laura Holmes, Rapid City, $8; Elizabeth Thorington, Kingston, $12.

Two Miners Met Death.

Calumet, Mich., Oct. 11.—Two miners met death in the Calumet & Hecla mine yesterday. Matthew Zager, a Crotian timberman, was killed in No. 4 shaft of the Calumet branch by falling from a hanging rock. He was thirty-three years old and leaves a widow and two children. John Trijovvich, employed in the Hecla branch, was struck by a stick of timber and instantly killed.

Forest Fires Still Burn.

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 11.—Men coming down from the northwestern part of the county report that the forest fires are still burning, and will continue several days, at least unless heavy rain comes. Many small logging camps have been destroyed, a number of houses burned and farmers have lost heavily. The total loss cannot be estimated, but will reach thousands of dollars.

Thieves Got $2,500.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 11.—The police have been on the lookout for a gang of burglars who Thursday night broke into Walsh's general store at Downington and dynamited the safe, securing $2,500. The burglars got $1,000 in cash and $1,500 in certificates of deposit. They escaped before any clue to them could be secured.

Cow Fell on Her.

Coldwater, Mich., Oct. 11.—Mrs. Brown, wife of a farmer near Sherwood, was perhaps fatally injured in a singular manner. She saw a cow entangled in a rope, and while trying to release the animal it fell on her, breaking two ribs and injuring her internally. She is not expected to live.

Two Children Drowned.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 11.—Matt Randa, aged six, and Ulrich Ruana, aged six, were drowned Friday afternoon in a quarry pit near Jacobsville, this county. It is not known how they fell in.

Candy For Change.

"Some people wonder why we carry a stock of cheap candy, penny candy," said the man who keeps the railroad newsstand. "Well, you see, it's this way: I have a lot of regular customers who want it. They take it out in change. For instance, one man has been buying two evening papers from me every afternoon for several years. If he has any pennies, I never see them. He always throws down a nickel, picks up his two papers from the pile and then takes three pieces of candy, which he chews while waiting for his train. Other men saw him do this and followed suit, and now it's quite the regular thing."—Philadelphia Record.

BAER AND MORGAN

Likely to Meet Today in Conference on the Strike.

TRIAL WEEK AT THE MINES

Reading, Pa., Oct. 13.—George F. Baer, president of the Reading company, left here late last night on a special train for New York. His sudden departure was occasioned by a telegram reported to have been sent him by J. P. Morgan.

Mr. Baer declined to state the object of his trip. In answer to a question he said: "You know as much about it as I do."

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 13.—This is the beginning of a week which it is generally believed will put to a test the claim of the operators that they will be enabled to start up their collieries if given protection, and the counter claim of the United Mineworkers' organization, as expressed in Wednesday's resolutions, that the strikers will not return to work without concessions, even though the entire military force of the United States should be here to protect them.

With a determination to prove their claim, the operators have been for the past week making a supreme effort to secure men. That they have succeeded to some extent is evidenced by announcements, made with some positiveness, that various collieries will resume operations in the course of a few days. The Delaware & Hudson Co. will make a start today at the Bellevue. The Green Ridge Coal company will open up its Green Ridge colliery probably today or tomorrow, but assuredly some day this week. Other companies say they are figuring on a resumption at certain collieries, but decline to give their location.

The United Mineworkers' leaders continue to assert that the military can do nothing towards inducing men to return to work and that all the men who could be induced to go back to work without concessions are already back.

Strike disorder is now almost wholly wanting.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Secretary Root, who returned to Washington last night, refused to discuss his interview with J. P. Morgan Saturday, further than to say that he did not carry a message from the president to Mr. Morgan and did not telegraph the president from New York, as has been stated. The fact that Mr. Root did not now consider his conference with Mr. Morgan of any particular significance seems to be apparent, as he did not see the president last night, and it is supposed that he did not hear anything to communicate to the president indicating a speedy termination of the strike.

Senator Quay of Pennsylvania saw the president for an hour Sunday and at the close of the conference the statement was made that there was "nothing to say." Of course, it was known that the senator came to discuss the strike situation, but what information he conveyed or what suggestions he received cannot be stated. The senator departed immediately after the conference for Philadelphia. Little information as to the strike situation could be obtained here. It is understood that the operators are glad to have their side of the case laid before the president, and especially the work they are doing to supply coal. It is said that they have divided the country into districts and will attempt to equalize the supply so that no one community will suffer; also that the railroads will make special arrangements to handle soft coal so as to supply all who can make use of it in place of anthracite coal.

Secretary Root spent some time at the temporary White House last night in consultation with the president regarding the coal strike. Nothing could be ascertained as to what took place, the secretary declining to say anything about his visit, and the officials at the White House being equally reticent.

Reading, Pa., Oct. 13.—Four trains of washery and mined coal, consisting of 225 cars, equal to 6,750 tons, passed down the Reading road during Saturday night. The fuel is intended for sale to the company's employes and for use in the locomotives. This was the heaviest shipment since last May and is greater than Friday night's run, which was 189 cars.

Miners of Belgium May Strike.

Charleroi, Belgium, Oct. 13.—The national committee of miners of four of the great Belgium coal fields met Sunday and passed resolutions in favor ff demanding an increase of 15 per cent in the wages of coal miners, the object of the demand being to create a diversion in favor of the striking coal miners in France and to prevent the supplying of Belgium coal to France.

The Only Way.

"Ah, Reginald, dearest," she sighed, "but how can I be sure that you will not grow weary of me after we have been married a little while?"

"I don't know," he answered, "unless we get married and see."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Possibility.

"So you refused him?" said Maud.

"Yes," replied Mabel. "I told him I shall send back any letters unopened."

"I wouldn't be so rude. There might be theater tickets in some of them!"

There is a wide difference in getting what we think we deserve and getting what is in store for us sometimes.—Pittsburg Gazette.

FINALLY SETTLED.

New Orleans, Oct. 13.—The strike of street railways company's employes, which has effectually blocked traffic on all city lines for two weeks, was settled last night by the union almost unanimously accepting the governor's ultimatum, on a secret ballot. Negotiations, which began Saturday night, continued until 7 o'clock yesterday morning, when the executive board finally decided to submit the matter to a general meeting of the union Sunday afternoon. The basis of settlement is that the men will go back to work today at 20 cents and ten hours, with a minimum of seven and a half hours a day, no discrimination to be made against any of the men under charges, and as many to be taken back as are needed for the operation of the company's lines.

There is widespread rejoicing in the city over the settlement of the strike. It began Sunday morning, two weeks ago, and has been effective. Not a single passenger has been carried on a car since it began, and no passenger car has been more than five blocks from a barn.

The credit for the settlement is largely due to W. S. Parkerson, who took up the cause of the strikers Saturday morning, and labored indefatigably all night and all day to convince them that they could hope for nothing better and that they could not prevail against the militia. United States Senator Foster, Governor Heard and Mayor Capdevielle were all instrumental in bringing about the final result.

SUICIDES IN WASHINGTON.

Two Old Men Take Their Own Lives by Hanging.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Edward T. Krantz, aged sixty-five years, was found dead last night in the belfry of the Trinity Methodist church, corner Fifth and C streets, S. E. He was hanging by a rope around his neck that had been fastened to the round of a ladder. The coroner deemed an inquest unnecessary, as the case apparently was one of suicide.

George Huston Cooper, aged sixty-one, committed suicide at his home at No. 1132 Fifth street N. W., yesterday by hanging himself to a closet door. He had been suffering from acute melancholia. Mr. Cooper was a clerk in the fifth auditor's office of the treasury department.

SULTAN WANTS WAR.

Bocolod's Chief Writes a Letter of Defiance to Americans.

Manila, Oct. 13.—The sultan of Bacolod, Mindanao, has rejected the friendly overtures of General Sumner, commander of the American forces in Mindanao, in a defiant letter, in which he invites war. The sultan says: "The sultan of Bacolod desires war forthwith. He wishes to maintain the religion of Mohammed. Cease sending letters. What we want is war. We do not desire your friendship." Friendly Moros report that the sultan of Bocolod is fortifying his strongholds. He is in possession of many rifles. It is expected that an American column will be sent from Camp Vickars to capture and reduce the Bocolod stronghold. It has not been decided when the move is to be made.

Election Riots in Austria.

Vienna, Oct. 13.—Serious election riots occurred Sunday afternoon at Saint-Poelten, thirty-five miles from here, after a meeting of the supporters of the Christian Socialist candidate for election to the provincial diet. Several train loads of anti-semites, under the leadership of Herr Lueger, left here to attend the meeting. Herr Farmar, burgomaster of Saint-Poelten, who is a Nationalist, refused to allow the anti-semites from Vienna to march through the center of Saint-Poelten and compelled them to take a circuitous route. After the meeting the anti-semites attempted to force their way through the principal streets of the town and broke through a cordon of police and gendarmes. A regiment of infantry was called out and restored order. Many persons were arrested.

Noted French Officer Dismissed.

Lemans, France, Oct. 13.—M. D'Ormescheville, government commissioner of the council of war of the Fourth army corps, has been relieved of his functions. M. D'Ormescheville was prosecuting counsel at the first courtmartial of former Captain Dreyfus. He also conducted the prosecution against a soldier named Voisin several years ago, who was charged with murdering and robbing a woman at Cherbourg-Voisin, was condemned to penal servitude for life and was transported to Cayenne. The real murderer of the woman for killing whom Voisin was sentenced, confessed recently and Voisin was brought back to France and pardoned. He demanded a revision of the courtmartial proceedings, however, and secured an acquittal.

Flowers of the Cranberry.

One of the daintiest of wild flowers of June is the blossom of that time honored concomitant of roast turkey, the cranberry. While, however, everybody knows the berry, few are acquainted with the flower, for the peat bogs where it blows in the choice fellowship of the stately pitcher plant and the golden club and of many a rare orchid are quite remote from the beaten paths of travel. The cranberry plant is a small, slender, somewhat trailing shrub, with the neatest of evergreen leaves, from amid which a few threadlike stalks lift their nodding flowers. When fully expanded, the pink lobes of each corolla are curled back like a lily's, and from the heart of them the compressed stamens protrude in the shape of a spear point or beak. The imaginative may see in this long beaked little blossom a resemblance to a tiny crane's head, whence some hard pressed etymologist has thought to derive the word cranberry—that is, crane-berry.—"Country Life In America."

Italian Rings.

Rings of Italian workmanship are remarkably beautiful. Venice particularly excelled in this art. In the Londesborough collection is a fine specimen. The four claws of the outer ring in open work support the setting of a sharply pointed pyramidal diamond, such as was then coveted for writing on glass. The shank bears a fanciful resemblance to a serpent swallowing a bird, of which only the claws connecting the face remain in sight.

It was with a similar ring Raleigh wrote the words on a window pane, "Fain would I rise but that I fear to fall," to which Queen Elizabeth added, "If thy heart fail thee, do not rise at all," an implied encouragement which led him on to fortune.

What is that which never asks any questions, but requires many answers?—The street door.

Never ask Advice.

When you have a cough or cold don't ask what is good for it and get some medicine with little or no merit and perhaps dangerous. Ask for Foley's Honey and Tar, the greatest throat and lung remedy, it cures coughs and colds quickly.

A bump of destructiveness—A railway collision.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by J. J. Orr.

The ready money system—Dun, or be done.

'Tisn't safe to be a day without Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in the house. Never can tell what moment an accident is going to happen.

Danger in Fall Colds.

Fall colds are liable to hang on all winter leaving the seeds of pneumonia, bronchitis or consumption. Foley's Honey and Tar cures quickly and prevents serious results. It is old and reliable, tried and tested, safe and sure, contains no opiates and will not constipate.

A milkman accounted for the weakness of his milk by saying that the cows got caught in the rain.

The excitement incident to traveling and change of food and water often brings on diarrhœa, and for this reason no one should leave home without a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. For sale by J. J. Orr.

Every penny is saved that is spent to help the needy.

When once liberated within your system, it produces a most wonderful effect. It's worth one's dollar to feel the the pleasure of life that comes by taking Rocky Mountain Tea. J. J. Orr.

Living without God is risking the loss of two worlds.

Old People have their Troubles.

Mr. Francis Little of Benton Harbor, Mich., is over eighty years of age. Since 1865 he has been troubled more or less with indigestion and constipation and has tried almost everything in use for those ailments. Last August he began using Chamberlain's stomach and liver tablets and was soon feeling much better. In a recent letter he says: 'I have used three boxes of the tablets and now think I am well." These tablets improve the appetite and invigorate the stomach liver and bowels. For sale by J. J. Orr.

The man who is right with God will do right to man.

No danger of consumption if you use Foley's Honey and Tar to cure that stubborn cough.

MRS. E. B. WOOD

Gave the Following Interesting Report to the Research Circle of the

GENERAL FEDERATION

Of Womens' Clubs, Held in Los Angeles

MY DEAR FRIEND:—

You cannot possibly imagine the magnitude of the task that has been set before me. I am to vainly strive to give you an adequate idea of the Grand Federation of Woman's Clubs and the picture would be indeed incomplete unless you could learn something of the beautiful city in which it was held, famous flower crowned Los Angeles. The old Spanish priests called it in their musical language "La puebla de la reina de los Angeles," viz., "The city of the queen of the angels," our busy Anglo Saxons have shortened this to Los Angeles.

It is a great modern city of more than 120,000 people of many nationalities. It has many stately churches pointing heavenward on wide streets, great public buildings, factories, department stores, theaters, schools, elegant residences, flower wreathed cottages and also the little homes of the very poor.

There is a Chinese quarter occupying several streets, where 2500 Chinamen have homes and opium dens and stores and theaters and joss houses as wonderful but far less in number than those in San Francisco.

There are a number of old adobe houses built more than a century ago of unburned clay, one story high with walls six feet thick, plastered inside and out and with one or two small windows, and used even now as homes by the poorest Mexicans and the Chinese. One of these still in good condition was said to have been General Fremont's headquarters more than sixty years ago. A very old adobe mission church is still standing used every Sunday by Mexicans and Spaniards.

Beautiful parks, the largest with their surface diversified by lake and hill, and river and plain, each with a wealth of flowers, avenues of palms, and other graceful sub-tropical foliage furnish unrivaled resting places, and a succession of foothills with lovely colorings spread away to the distant horizon.

Los Angeles is peculiarly fitted for holding great conventions, so many interesting journeys can be made from it as a center. Pasadena, Redlands Smiley Heights and a thousand other places becken the tourist with alluring words of promise and chiefest among these attractions, the marvelous trip up Mt. Lowe is an enchanting experience.

On electric cars one rides for 20 miles, past vigorous plantations of lemon, olives and oranges, past beautiful hills, and two or three rose-embowered towns, past the San Gabriel valley that leads into the blue haze of the Puente Hills, past fields of poppies and desolate stretches of sand, stones and scrubby bushes, rising always until we reach Rubio Canon at the foot of Mt. Lowe and are now 2200 feet above the ocean.

This canon is a mighty gorge in the mountains, dense growths of greenery cover the five hundred feet to the top interspersed with masses of granite enough for several cathedrals.

Going back to the Incline, we entered the cable car for our journey of 3000 feet upward, rising 62 feet in every hundred and seeing miles of valley and plain and distant ocean spread out below us. At the top of the incline, we entered an electric car for a five mile ride in sharp turns and zig-zags and horseshoe loops to reach loftier levels, looking down into mighty canons and up towering cliffs, speeding along shelves of granite no wider than one car, over bridges that seemed like spider webs, giant trees growing far below us, still onward, past fragrant mountain lilac and sage and spirea and enjoying the incomparable vistas that open before us through forests of oaks and pine.

Our car ride ends at Alpine tavern, a mile above the ocean and we have still 1000 feet of mountain trail to climb on burro or on foot before we reach the top, the immensity, the silence, the solemnity can never be forgotten.

A different trip is to the Pacific ocean also 20 miles distant from Los Angeles. Longbeach, Santa Monica, Redondo and several other beaches entice you to spend long hours by the white-capped waves. Santa Catalina, a mountainous island, lies 25 miles from the shore. Steamers carry passengers to its one pleasant city Avalon.

There are row boats with a canopy over the top and a plate glass window occupying the whole bottom of the boat through this window we find exquisite pleasure in looking down at the strange tropical under world 70 feet below us. Grand trees of kelp thrust their amber foliage to the surface of the water, all kinds of seaweed shrubbery of various vivid colorings and indescribable beauty waved and swung as if to music. Great boulders were there, covered with barnacles and pearly shells and sea moss, golden perch, star fish, jelly fish looking like fairy air ships, abalones and whole schools of small brilliant blue fish were floating lazily through the sun lighted waters, a most fascinating picture.

I am obliged to omit the San Gadriel mission buildings, the soldiers' home and many other things and words would fail me to bring more fully before you southern California, "our Italy" with skies and water as blue as those of the Mediterranean. The stories told you of its lovely climate have not been exaggerated.

They have no thunder storms excepting in the mountains and if one could be fortunate enough to reach there the first of February with vivid remembrances of our cold northern winter, the contrast would seem wonderful. The weather, too cold for comfort without a fire at morning and evening but not cold enough to hurt the roses, was warm and pleasant out doors at midday.

The flowers we grow here with such patient sheltering care and so little success and many others unknown to us run riot there the whole year through and seem eternal if they have proper care in well watered gardens. Pepper trees with graceful foliage and red berries, palm trees a century old and 60 feet in height, magnolias and eucalyptus, each add their tribute to the lovliness, and out in country places the yellow mustard crowns everything with glory and hundreds of acres of California poppies lift up their cups of gold.

In addition to the expensive irrigation a fog, sea born, drifts in from the ocean towards evening, bringing moisture and coolness and drifts out again in the sunlight of the next morning and so vegetation retains its vigor through the long rainless season.

To this fair summer land so eminently fitted to receive them, came thousands of club women from the green hills and cultured cities of New England from the strong middle west, from the palmettos and fragrant roses of our own older south, from canons and mesas of the Great Divide, from many an isolated home starving for companionship, from Hawaii, South America, England, Australia, India and Ceylon and one delegate from Teller in Alaska, 75 miles north of Nome.

A representative gathering truly, of able and gifted women to discuss the social, industrial and literary problems of the day. Many of these women were wives of prominent wealthy and distinguished men of our land, and many had come up through poverty and had won a brilliant name and position for themselves. The women of southern California united to do them honor.

The exquisite fiesta was put off until that week for them. Several beautiful receptions were given the most elegant being at the woman's club house, where 6,000 women came and went in a continuous stream during the long evening. I cannot describe and you will have to imagine the crush, the waiting, the turning away of scores, when the spacious rooms were already over-crowded, the strains of sweetest music, the sparkle and flash of jewels, the bewildering impression of shimmering satin, soft velvets, and filmy lace, the atmosphere of culture and grace and refinement.

The floral decorations, mingled with countless incandescent lights were superb. The parlor where the president, Mrs. Lowe, and her general officers received had a wide frieze of pink roses with their own foliage, which fell in in heavy garlands at the corners of the room.

The next room where the State Federation presidents received was magnificently decorated with pink poppies, pink sweet peas and ferns. In another room were banks of red carnations, amaryllis and smilax; in another, palms and countless callas and geraniums: from the moment when the first lady entered until the last one left, it was a grand ovation.

The conventon met in Simpson's auditorium, said to hold 5,000 people, and held constant overflow meetings at the Jewish Temple B'nai Brith. Both of these great buildings were wonderful in floral beauty. More than 60,000 callas with immense quantity of roses and smilax and palms were used for the first three days in the auditorium alone, replaced then by a like number of red carnations, amaryllis etc.

The president, Mrs. Lowe, in delightfully drawling southern accents called the great convention to order on May 1, and Mrs. Dorland, a lovely gray haired lady of Los Angeles, lead in prayer "asking God to bless them as they had come from the four corners of the earth, representing the homes of the world and praying that those homes might be made stronger and sweeter and many crooked ways might be made straight by what should be said and done here.

Governor Gage of California, gave a stirring address of welcome. The mayor of Los Angeles spoke in behalf of the city. Mrs. Bulkley, president of California state federation, and several other women followed, and were answered in the most charming way by Mrs. Lowe. Each of these addresses ought to be repeated to you in full, alluding, as each did to the various fields of woman's labor and woman's success as she strives to draw all to the truth and has made "freedom" a word understood throughout the world.

The rules of the convention were then announced and Mrs. Caroline Severance, living now in Los Angeles, but in 1868 living in Boston and organizing there the first woman's club, was introduced, read an able paper and an original poem and was made honorary vice president of the Federation.

Mrs. Florence Kelley of New York, vice president of the Consumer's League, told of their work, which is to educate shoppers to buy only those goods with the "white mark" which shows that the factory has complied with the state factory laws, does not work its employees over time, nor employ child labor, nor the work of sweat-shops. She had seen a handsome dress suit being made in a sweat shop by a consumptive in a room where a child was dying with typhoid, pieces of the suit lay all around the dying boy and and yet that suit without fumigation would be worn into gay rooms crowded with the young and lovely unsuspecting any danger.

A fine paper was read by Mrs. Belle M. Perry of Charlotte, president of Michigan's State Federation. She is a very charming woman, actively interested in educational, reformatory and literary work. She has been a vice president of the General Federation, president for several years of the Michigan Press Association, active in newspaper work and has published a book, "Life of Mrs. Stone, of Kalamazoo.

In her paper, she spoke of municipal reforms as influenced by women. She said that before women try to dabble in public affairs, they should make sure they possess the right kind of knowledge to accomplish the thing which they would undertake. The capital stock, which woman should bank upon when she enters the arena of municipal reform, is a reputation for reliability. Only woman of known reliability should be chosen for this work. The right woman in the right place is very important for committee work, in connection with civil management. Effective municipal work is within the province of woman's clubs. Groups of women workers that have achieved something may be termed culture centers. Woman's organizations are means of growth, and woman's clubs will work in municipal reforms and in many other ways for years to come.

Another important paper by Mrs. Frederick Schoff of Philadelphia, was on Juvenile Court Law. It is the right of every child to develop morally, physically and intellectually that they may become good citizens, but through exceedingly adverse conditions hundreds of thousands of children are deprived this right, and club women have worked hard to induce the state to supply the need. No state can afford to leave this to chance or haphazard charities. Wise laws covering childhood's needs and the co-operation of the community in carrying out those laws are necessary before we can have an ideal civilization.

Mrs. Cynthia Westover Alden, president of the International Sunshine Society, a woman the happiest looking that I ever saw, was introduced. She organized this society a few years ago, and now it is spreading around the world and has more than 100,000 members. Its object is to scatter sunshine in dark places. She said, keep the corners of your mouth turned up and not down, do something for somebody else quickly, give something of yours to lighten weary hours for others and try in every way to increase happiness in your vicinity.

Mrs. Larned, president of the National Household Economics Association, said, women's clubs are a powerful factor, in the direction of science, in the management of our homes, that the family may be properly housed and clothed and fed: and yet we have to admit that in this century of progress, man is the sickest animal alive.

We are not all born with a talent for housekeeping we are just born ordinary. The higher work of the world is dependent on the physical conditions in which it is done. The height to which the pinnacle of a column may be raised is determined by the breadth of its base and in economics, the breadth of the base is determined in the home.

Miss Jane Addams of Hill House Settlement in Chicago, with a face so earnest that she seemed to bear the cares of of the world, made a thrilling appeal to the clubs to realize their responsibility, as to child labor in factories. There is an increasing tendency to use the cheaper labor of women and children at the machines. Foreigners and their children are very anxious that the children should earn wages. As soon as the bright foreign child has learned our language he can do better work than his lumbering peasant father or ignorant mother, but the child becomes stunted in every way, and the effect is most disastrous to his future usefulness.

Women's clubs should work to have laws passed that shall forcibly prevent children having the joy and youth crushed out their lives turning them into sad physical wrecks. Mrs. Frederick Nathan, a wealthy and beautiful woman from New York, said, we have white slaves today, slaves toiling in fever-filled dark rooms, the lash of hunger urging them on so long as there is such a demand for cheap goods, we cause these poor slaves to suffer. She urged the clubs to become acquainted with the conditions under which their goods were produced.

Mrs. Barnes of Kentucky, told us that their club women had for six years been sending traveling libraries among the mountaineers. The old people cannot give up the habits of a life time, but the young people, in those isolated and ignorant homes are rousing from the lethargy of a century and eagerly seize opportunities for improvement. They are Anglo-Saxons, morbidly conscious of educational defects, loyal to the country, hospitable to the stranger, they think that they should settle all domestic difficulties themselves and the state should regulate national affairs only.

Traveling libraries and art collections have been sent out by club women in 25 states and unquestioned good has already been achieved Club women are establishing vacation houses for working girls in each state, amid choice surroundings and at nominal price. In some of these the girls do the work, reducing the expense and learning to make a home.

In New York the club women have started a mutual benefit fund for sick and funeral expenses and have interested 4,000 girls. They have also an employment bureau patronized by all benevolent organizations and only one per cent of these girls change places except to get married. Club women have taught working girls the laws that are for their protection and anything which enlightens their ignorance is a force for good government, and womens clubs are reaching many who cannot be helped by any other organization.

You will all be interested to know how the color question was decided; and I will give you the proceedings from the public record. These by-laws were adopted by a viva-voce vote, under suspension of the rules.

Section II From a state where a club is a member of the State Federation, it would also be eligible to the General Federation, if recommended to its executive board by the executive board of the State Federation. The power of admission to remain as given in article 3, of the by-laws as follows:

Section III The President shall refe all applications for membership to the committee on membership appointed by the board of directors, for its action on the same; the action of the committee on membership shall be in writing and a unanimous vote of the committee shall be required to elect. In case the committee fails to agree the application hall be referred to the board, the written vote of two thirds of which shall be necessary to elect to membership. It is thus seen that the effect of the amending clause is two fold.

First, the question of club eligibility is taken away from the general federations committee on membership, and is placed in the hands of the "executive board" of the general federation after such eligibility has been recommended to that board by the executive board of the state federation of which the applicant club is a member.

Heretofore it has been possible for clubs which were not members of a State Federation to apply to the president of the General Federation for membership in the latter body. It is the understanding of the delegates to the present convention, that the wording of the amendment, makes State Federation membership a necessary qualification for General Federation membership.

Second. The amending section bears on the trouble making color-question in this way. Each State Federation has the right as it always has had, to admit to its membership a club of negro women, but a club which has not been admitted to State Federation, cannot apply for membership in the General Federation, and another bar is put up against inter-racial membership in the General Federation, by the proscription that a federated club shall not be eligible unless recommended by the State Executive board to the General Executive board of the General Federation and thus, in order to gain admission to that body a club would have to first gain admission to a State Federation, and then successfully run the gauntlet of the State Executive board, the general committee on membership and in last resort the whole board of directors of the General Federation. It is apparent from this that by the adoption of the amending section, the convention has to all practical purposes barred the colored club from the General Federation.

But farther details of the papers or the work would only be wearisome. Far reaching questions were ably discussed, such as civil service reform, woman's influence on schools and on municipal government. Journalism as related to society, the preservation of the interesting mission buildings of California, the great forestry question, the endeavors to keep the land-marks of the great Pueblo race, these, with many other things will have to be omitted.

The sixth biennial has gone into the past, the practical good it accomplished does not show on the surface. Its mission was to sow seed for future harvests, and time is needed to give the proper perspective to its work, and its results. More than 200,000 women are represented in the clubs of the General Federation.

Its purpose is to bring them into communication with one another, that they may realize a unity of interest and become mutually helpful, making the things desired by the State Federations common property and showing ways of usefulness to all the clubs that belong to the General Federation.

The work is still in its formative period and much must be done before the opportunities opening to the clubs can be fully grasped by them.

The General Federation is unwieldy in numbers, needing more concentration, stricter disipline, and better order, if it is to keep its high standard. The convention failed to impress forcibly some of the great truths for which it stands, because womens' voices do not carry well and the audience was so immense that the speakers could not all be distinctly heard.

You will ask what are the practical fruits of the ten years of labor since the federation was started? A general answer may be given in the statement, that every public step taken within that period for the betterment of the condition of women and children, bears the impress of agitation by club-women.

Every act of state or national legislation calculated to make life better worth living for women and children, has been due to such efforts. Better wages, less hours of labor, improved sanitary and other conditions in places of employment, and a general regard for the welfare and comfort of women workers are landmarks in the progress of womens' clubs, and, along with these special objects in the cause of humanity, there has been a development of fellowship in the direction of social, literary, and scientific culture.

The good already attained can be made greater and more effective by increasing systematic effort and club cooperation. When, all their efforts shall be stimulated by organized endeavor and bounded only by nationality, future generations will acknowledge humanity's full debt to woman's clubs and we may hope for universal peace in the parliament of nations the federation of tne world.

Pekin, Oct. 9.—The Manchurian territory lying south of the Liau river was restored to the Chinese today in accordance with the Manchurian agreement. Although reports show an increase in the trade of Manchuria, reforms are not expected there until the exacuatio nis completed, as Russia maintains her objection to the extension of the imperial post to the railroad and the interior and discourages trade.

The temperature during September has been two degrees below the normal. The precipitation in the state during the month was 1:37 inches. The precipitation in the southern counties was, however, nearly four inches above the normal. The rainfall was continued thus doing much damage to farm crops. Corn continued to grow rather than ripen in order to be out of the way of the frost. It caused potatoes to rot on low, heavy land. The most damage was done, however, to the bean crop, which in many cases was wholly ruined. It also started a new growth in sugar beets. While this may have increased the yield in tons of beets it had a tendency to decrease the per cent of sugar.

CLUB NOTES.

The Monday Club held their first regular meeting yesterday afternoon, there was a good attendance and an interesting program.

Applications for membership have so exceeded the vacancies that they have been obliged to extend their associate list to twice the usual number and contemplate fitting up a home of their own in the old Heesen Hall, which they expect to occupy as soon as the necessary repairs can be made. The next meeting Oct. 20th will be at the Universalist church as usual, with the following program;

Leader—Miss Phelps.

The Fifteenth Century—Mrs. Albert Waring.

Discovery of America—Miss Stacy.

The members of the Research Circle opened their club year for 1902—03 Tuesday evening, Oct. 7, with a reception at their club room, to which an invitation was extended to the ladies of the Monday Club. The only literary work presented was a paper by Mrs. E. B. Wood description of events attendant upon the meeting of the General Federation of Womens' Clubs at Los Angeles, Cal.

Mrs. Wood had the happy fortune to be present at this coming together of women from all parts of the world who are deeply interested in club work and the welfare of their fellow creatures.

After the reading of the paper came an interval of social mingling, with games for those who desired to sharpen their wits.

Then followed an invitation to the banquet hall which was prettily decorated with autumn's choicest offerings.

When the good nights were said the members of the circle felt that they were successfully launched upon the full sea of another years' work on History, Literature, Music and Art. South America furnishing the subject matter for the history topics. C

Get the Most Out of Your Food

You don't and can't if your stomach is weak. A weak stomach does not digest all that is ordinarily taken into it. It gets tired easily, and what it fails to digest is wasted.

Among the signs of a weak stomach are uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, and disagreeable belching.

"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla at different times for stomach troubles, and a run down condition of the system, and have been greatly benefited by its use. I would not be without it in my family. I am troubled especially in summer with weak stomach and nausea and find Hood's Sarsaparilla invaluable." E. B. HICKMAN, W.Chester, Pa.

Rubber, meaning to look, cannot be found in the ninth grade room dictionary, but then, the dictionary may be an old edition. No doubt that is the case for the word was used in the above sense by an authority.

A feature of the Pioneer Day program in the High School was a paper read by Mr. Henry Conklin on "The Schools of Sixty and Sixty-five years ago." A delightful comparason was drawn between the schools of that and the present time. As Mr. Conklin had personl experience in the schools of that time, he made his paper one of particular interest.

MUST BELIEVE IT

When Well Known Tecumseh People Tell It so Plainly

When public endorsement is made by a representative citizen of Tecumseh the proof is positive. You must believe it. Read this testimony. Every backache sufferer, every man, woman or child with any kidney trouble will find profit in the reading.

Mr. W. C. Witherall, agent for buggies, harness and other machinery, place of business south western section of Tecumseh, says: "I cannot praise Doan's Kidney Pills highly enough, for they have been a great friend to me Some years ago I was an expert at sheep shearing and did a lot of that work. Every body knows it is very hard on the back and it finally brought on a severe pain across the loins. Nothing did any good until a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box and the treatment gave immediate relief. When I finished the box the trouble was entirely removed. If I feel any symptons of a return a resort to Doan's Kidney Pills quickly wards off the attack. They are a reliable remedy and I consistently recommend them." Just such emphatic endorsement is plentiful in Tecumseh. Call at C. A. Wright's drug store and ask him what his customers report.

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cent per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

When the body is left for man to measure, the soul has gone for God to weigh.

No such thing as "summer complaint" where Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is kept handy. Nature's remedy for looseness of the bowels.

Young man, be prudent. Whatever may be your ability or your expectations, you can't eat to-morrow's dinner to-day.

The Fairy Lamplighter.

Affection often inspires ingenuity. In a life of Joseph Severn the narrative of the artist's care of the poet Keats in his last illness includes a graceful incident. Severn, worn out with watching and tireless service, would sometimes drop asleep and allow the candle to go out, thus leaving the sick man in darkness, which he dreaded. Realizing that this was liable to occur, Severn hit upon a happy device to keep the light still burning. One evening he fastened a thread from the bottom of the candle already lighted to the wick at the top of another unlighted one set ready near by.

Not being sure the experiment would succeed, he had not mentioned it, and when later on he fell napping as the first candle was burning low the invalid was too considerate to awake him, but lay patiently awaiting the extinction of the fluttering flame. Suddenly, just as he expected gloom and blackness, the connecting thread—too fine and distant for him to see—caught fire, and a tiny spark began to run along it. Then he waked the sleeping nurse with an exclamation of joyful surprise.

"Severn! Severn!" he cried. "Here's a little fairy lamplighter actually lit up the other candle!"

But it was only the good fairy of many sickrooms—loving forethought—that had lighted the candle.

Somewhat Strenuous.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 13.—Walter S. Westerman, prohibition candidate for governor of Michigan, visited Detroit Sunday and spoke during the day in three of the city churches. His intentions, should he become governor of Michigan, are somewhat strenuous, as is witnessed by the following, which he is quoted as saying: "If I am elected governor, with a prohibition legislature, I will see that every law now on the statute books relative to the liquor traffic is immediately repealed and a new law enacted that will prohibit the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and give the executive officers power to completely suppress the saloon. If I am elected without a legislature that will back me, I will send a note to every prosecuting attorney and every sheriff in Michigan requiring them to enforce the present liquor laws to the very letter, and will give them thirty days to put the order into execution. After the expiration of that time I will make an itinerary to take in every county in the state and meet the people at the county seat. If I find that the law is not being enforced I will remove the officers who are responsible and put in their places prohibitionists whom I know can be trusted to do their duty."

Shot Through the Heart.

Paw Paw, Mich., Oct. 13.—Ed Hall, the butter maker at the Glendale creamery, met death suddenly Saturday. About 11 o'clock he told his wife he would take a gun and go out and shoot a woodchuck he had seen in the brush. Mrs. Hall heard the report of the gun soon after, but thought nothing of it until about 4 o'clock, when she saw a fire in the woods and started in search of her husband. He was shot through the heart and his clothes were all afire and nearly burned off. It is not known how he came by his death. He was in good circumstances and only recently married.

Handsome Building Dedicated.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 13.—The magnificent Wayne county building was formally dedicated to the cause of justice Saturday, which had for its guests many eminent jurists and distinguished lawyers, whose presence was commanded by the importance of the event. It was not only a delightful occasion, but much substance and thought were embodied in the several addresses that were delivered.

Wall Collapsed; Man Killed.

Jackson, Mich., Oct. 13.—At 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning a section about sixty feet long of the west wall of the new Otsego hotel, being built on the site of the old Hibbard house, collapsed and carried five men down three stories in the ruins. One is dead, two very seriously injured and may die, and the other two escaped with injuries which will not prove fatal.

His Life in Peril.

"I just seemed to have gone all to pieces," writes Alfred Bee, of Welfare Tex., "biliousness and a lame back had made life a burden. I couldn't eat or sleep and felt almost too worn out to work when I began to use Electric Bitters, but they worked wonders. Now I sleep like a top, can eat anything, have gained in strength and enjoy hard work." They give vigorous health and new life to weak, sickly, run-down people. Try them. Only 50c at C. A. Bronchitis For Twenty Years.

Mrs. Minerva Smith, of Danvill, Ill. writes: "I had bronchitis for twenty years and never got relief nntill I used Foley's Honey and Tar which is a sure cure." Contains no opiates.

Watch The Kidneys.

A professor was expostulating with a student for his idleness, when the latter said, "It's of no use; I was cut out for a loafer." "Well," declared the professor, surveying the student critically, "whoever cut you out understood his business."

Miss Hurry is one of the teachers in the Tecumseh school. When a disobedient kid is called up for a basting for his misbehavior, he dances all kinds of two step and exclaims, don't, Hurry. Nothing slow about her, however.

Percy Yarick, whose home is in Adrian, accidently "discovered himself" about two years ago. His discovery consisted in finding out that he was the finest kind of a female impersonator. Percy got a job with a show and hasn't been home since. Adrian friends have just learned that he was married about six months ago to a sister professional.

The postoffice department recommends spelling the names of states and territories out in full in addressing letters and particularly against abbreviating Alaska, Hawaii, Idaho, Iowa, Ohio, Oregon, Samoa, and Utah. "Ala may be Alabama or Alaska; "Ia," might be Indiana or Iowa; "Io." Idaho or Iowa and "O." may stand for Ohio, Oklahoma or Oregon. In the handwriting of some people "Ind." is often mistaken for "Md." and vice versa.

Julius Dean who lives south of Stony Lake was dangerously hurt on Tuesday by falling from a straw stack distance of about ten feet. Mr. Dean is subject to fainting spells one of which came upon him as he stood near the edge of the stack where he had been helping the threshers. Before aid could reach him he pitched headlong to the ground below. It is reported that Mr. Dean has several ribs and his collar bone broken besides being terribly bruised, and is now in a precarions condition. —Brooklyn Exponent.

Quiet people generally do a whole lot which others do not know about. We always supposed Miss Mertie Miller looked after the assistants duties in the postoffice, but Chas Quigly let the cat out of the bag, or rather, the bees out of the nest. He was shingling at her home one day last week and in tearing off the old shingles opened up what proved to be a bee hive. Charley made a dive for the ladder, our informant says, came down head first and quit work until things cooled down. After some "smart" work the bees were disposed of and about 100 pounds of honey was found, at least, it seemed as though there ought to have been that much, and "further than this, deponent saith not."—Blissfield Advance.

Ed. Kidd, a laborer, whose home is a mile west of Jasper, is serving sixty days in the jail at Adrian for a peculiar offense.

On the morning of Wednesday, Oct. 1 Ed. arose with his "mean clothes" on, and began saying abusive things to Mrs. Kidd. He kept this up during the forenoon, and at the dinner table the woman got fatigued and threw a glass of water over him.

Kidd then took the kerosene can and poured its contents over his wife and baby. Whether or not it was his intention to set fire to his family is unknown, as the victims escaped, but the justice of the peace before whom Kidd was brought for trial on Saturday last, thought his actions had been pretty rough and sentenced him accordingly. —Brooklyn Exponent.

Forest Silvernail, who lives in Wright wishes he had never seen a matrimonial advertisement. He answered one in which a young milliner in Muskegon, claiming to be worth $5,000, wanted a husband. The course of true love ran smooth, but after the ceremony the bride said she was unincumbered with worldly goods, and her lord and master must take her to his home. The groom advanced money, so it is claimed, to pay transportation on her goods, but the goods never arrived.

Silvernails parents were not blessed with the addition to their household; so the bride wanted to go home, and, in response to a letter, her mother and sister went to Wright and wanted to take the happy couple to Muskegon. The elder Silvernail did not like this arrangement, and the result was a family affair which was not entirely agreeable.

Stricken with Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured.—Geo. R. McDonald, Man, Logan county, W. Va. Several other remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by J. J. Orr.

The earth is a tender and kind mother to the husbandman, and yet at one season he always harrows her bosom, and at another he pulls her ears.

No one has been able to explain why it is that a man feels he is more likely to get up in the morning by keeping his watch or clock half an hour fast.

For a lady to sweep her carpet with embroidered under-sleeves would be considered indecently dirty; but to drag the pavement with her skirts seems to be very genteel.

"What is the chief use of bread?" asked an examiner at a recent school exhibition. "The chief use of bread," answered the urchin, apparently astonished at the simplicity of the inquiry, "is to spread butter and jam on it."

"Speaking of shaving," said a pretty girl to an obdurate old bachelor, "I should think that a pair of handsome eyes would be the best mirror to shave by." "Yes, many a poor fellow has been 'shaved' by them," the wretch replied.

Eating From the Same Plate.

In former days it was usual for a couple seated together to eat from one trencher, more particularly if the relations between them were of an intimate nature or, again, if it were the master and mistress of the establishment. Walpole relates that so late as the middle of the eighteenth century the old Duke and Duchess of Hamilton occupied the dais at the head of the room and preserved the traditional manner by sharing the same plate. It was a token of attachment and tender recollection of unreturnable youth.—"Old Cookery Books."

Russian Police Regulations.

One of the regulations of the Russian police refers to the censorship of price lists of goods, notes of invitation to parties and personal visiting cards; also for the censorship of seals, rubber stamps and business cards of individuals or corporations. Another order regulates the sale of soap, starch, toothbrushes and insect powder, and another controls the printing on the paper used in making cigarettes.

Bones For Bread.

There is an interesting child's story called "Jack the Giant Killer," in which one of the giants is supposed to use the expression "fe-faw-fum," or something like it, when Jack has climbed a beanstalk and been hidden by the giant's wife, the rest of the growl being, "I smell the blood of an Englishman, but be he alive or be he dead I'll take his bones to make my bread." Possibly it has not occurred to many to ask where the idea of making bread out of bones originated, as we do not often seriously investigate fairy tales. It is a historical fact that during the siege of Paris by Henry IV., owing to famine, bread, which had been sold while any remained for more than $1 a pound, was made from the bones in the charnel house of the Holy Innocents. This occurred in 1594.—New York Press.

Napoleon III. and His Cigarettes.

The most obstinate of cigarette smokers was the Emperor Napoleon III. It is an error to suppose that he was ambitious. A fatalist, he followed a plan which he imagined had been traced in advance. At Sedan, when the end came, he calmly lit a cigarette. Hugo's epic anger against him had a large element of irritation at the man's supreme calmness. Hugo was not a cigarette smoker. He never understood, he could not understand, him. Zola, who was a cigarette smoker and who ceased in order that he might become a great workman, understood and described Napoleon III. in "La Debacle" perfectly.

ENTERTAINING THE PRINCE.

Siam's Heir to the Crown Is Given a Good Time.

Washington, Oct. 13.—His royal highness, Chowfa Maha Vajeravudh, crown prince of Siam, accompanied by his suite, reached Washington on a special train at 8 o'clock Saturday morning. During their stay here they will be the guests of the nation. After breakfasting in their private apartments at the Arlington hotel the crown prince and his party donned their court dress and, escorted by a squadron of the Second United States cavalry, were driven to the temporary White House to pay their respects to President Roosevelt. All the members of the cabinet now in the city—Secretaries Hay, Wilson and Hitchcock and Postmaster-General Payne, together with Secretary Cortelyou and Colonel Bingham, the president's military aid, in full uniform, were present to assist in the reception. The greetings between the president and the prince were cordial on both sides.

His royal highness spent Sunday in his apartments at the Arlington and in driving about the city. No visitors were announced. In the morning, accompanied by his brother, Prince Chakrabongse; the Siamese minister and one of his aides, he drove through the Soldiers' Home grounds. Returning, he was driven through the chief residence portion of the city. After luncheon, the prince and the members of his party went for another drive to Arlington. The prince is particularly interested in soldier life, he himself having had a thorough military training.

The second in the series of dinners in honor of the royal visitor was given him last night in the banquet hall of the Arlington. The Siamese minister, Phya Akharaj Varadhara, was the host of the occasion, and covers were laid for twenty-five guests.

RAN INTO A WRECK.

Fast Train Met With Accident Which Caused Two Deaths.

Altoona, Pa., Oct. 13.—An express train ran into a wrecked freight train near Barre, three miles west of Petersburg, at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. The passenger engineer and the freight brakeman were instantly killed and the passenger fireman was probably fatally injured:

The dead are: Engineer, John W. Smith, aged forty-two, of Harrisburg; Brakeman H. A. Traxlow, aged thirty, of Shade Gap, Huntingdon county. Seriously injured: Fireman C. A. Black of Harrisburg.

An eastbound freight train broke in two and, the parts coming together with great force, fourteen cars were broken and overturned across all the tracks. At the same moment the fast line east, running about fifty miles an hour, came along on the adjoining tracks and crashed into the wreckage. The locomotive was completely stripped and a postal car, baggage car and four coaches containing 120 passengers were derailed and broken.

Brained an Aged Negress.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Oct. 13.—Lloyd Nelson Young, a white planter, crazed by drink, went on a rampage near Pembroke Saturday night, after being put off a train that he had flagged. He secured an ax and brained Rebecca Macray, an aged negress, whom he met on the road. Leaving the ax with the body, he sprang on Joseph Landy, colored, aged seventy, and cut his throat, fatally injuring him. After terrorizing the citizens for two hours, he was overpowered by a posse and brought here for safe-keeping to escape a mob of several hundred negroes that had been formed to lynch him.

A Defeat For the Rebels.

Colon, Colombia, Oct. 13.—Persons who just arrived here from Cartagena say that forces of the government have defeated the revolutionists at La Cienaga. There is no further news of the situation at Santa Marta. It is reported also that the government has driven the revolutionary general, Uribe-Uribe, from the strategic position he held near Teneriffe on the Magdelena river. General Uribe-Uribe is said to have been compelled to retreat with all his forces toward the interior of the country. The Magdelena river is now reported to be again open to traffic.

Mysterious Death of a Fireman.

Minneapolis, Oct. 13.—Mystery surrounds the death of Elmer Stone, a fireman, whose body, burned to a crisp, was found under a pile of shavings in the basement of the Lumber Exchange building after the firemen had extinguished the flames and departed early Sunday. The suicide theory is discredited by the conclusion that if the man had secreted himself in the burning shavings, his writhings would have attracted attention. The police have failed to find any reason for suspecting that Stone was murdered and then thrust into the flames.

Bribery Scandal in Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 13.—Three members of the board of education of South Omaha—A. V. Miller, president, and members J. L. Kubat and Theodore Shroeder—have been arrested charged with receiving bribes. The specific charges are receiving money from school teachers in consideration of the latter securing increases in salary and bribery in connection with furnishing typewriters for the board.

A Mother's Awful Mistake.

Omaha, Oct. 13.—Arthur Moran and three children, aged 7, 9 and 11 years were poisoned Sunday by eating cakes in which arsenic had been placed by the mother, who mistood it for baking powder. The two younger children are in a critical condition and it is thought they will die. The oldest child and the father probably will recover.

Leaped Into a Park Lagoon.

Springfield, O., Oct. 13.—Mrs. Jane Keller, wife of the foreman of P. P. Mast & Co., while temporarily insane, leaped with her child into a park lagoon Sunday. Her husband traced her immediately and succeeded in rescuing the mother alive, but the child was dead.

Pat Definition.

In a Liverpool school lately a number of scholars were asked to explain the meaning of the term "righteous indignation."

One little chap replied:

"I didn't know he had any business."

"May it please you honor," said the latter, "that is a personal reflection."

"If women would pay more attention to their health we would have more happy wives, mothers and daughters, and if they would observe results they would find that the doctors' prescriptions do not perform the many cures they are given credit for.

"In consulting with my druggist he advised McElree's Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught, and so I took it and have every reason to thank him for a new life opened up to me with restored health, and it only took three months to cure me."

Wine of Cardui is a regulator of the menstrual functions and is a most astonishing tonic for women. It cures scanty, suppressed, too frequent, irregular and painful menstruation, falling of the womb, whites and flooding. It is helpful when approaching womanhood, during pregnancy, after childbirth and in change of life. It frequently brings a dear baby to homes that have been barren for years. All druggists have $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

OFFICIAL CHANGES

Considerable Shifting in the Diplomatic Corps.

SECRETARIES PROMOTED

Washington, Oct. 15.—The following changes in the diplomatic corps have been announced: Henry J. Wilson, now minister to Chile, to be minister to Greece, in placeof Char les S. Francis, resigned. John B. Jackson, now first secretary of embassy at Berlin, promoted to be minister to Chile in place of Mr. Wilson. H. Percival Dodge, now second secretary of embassy at Berlin, promoted to be first secretary in place of Mr. Jackson. R. F. Reynolds Hitt, now third secretary of embassy at Paris, promoted to be second secretary at Berlin in place of Mr. Dodge. Peter Augustus Jay of Rhode Island appointed third secretary at Paris in place of Mr. Hitt.

All of these changes hinged on one vacancy, namely, that caused by the retirement from the diplomatic service of Charles S. Francis as minister to Greece. His resignation is received with genuine regret at the state department, where the officials declare that he has been a most efficient and painstaking minister, whose loss will be felt in the service. His business interests connected with the Troy, N. Y., Times, of which he is editor and proprietor, seeming to demand his presence at home, he has been obliged to quit the diplomatic service.

It was fully intended that Mr. Wilson, who succeeds Mr. Francis at Athens, should have had a European post as far back as last spring, but no proper opening offered before this date. Even as it is, Mr. Wilson sacrifices $3,500, a year's salary, to effect the advantage of a residence in Europe, for his new post is salaried at but $6,500.

On the other hand, by leaving Europe for South America, Mr. Jackson increases his salary from $2,625 to $10,000 per annum. He nevertheless preferred an European post, and it is said that he will receive such an assignment when a vacancy occurs in the future, for the department sets much value on Mr. Jackson's abilities.

The appointments in the minor places are all in the line of diplomatic reform which Secretary Hay has marked out. In every case, it is said, the transfer is made entirely without regard to individual pressure or influence and solely upon the basis of merit as shown in the work of the secretaries. Mr. Hitt, who goes to Berlin, is a son of Representative Hitt of Illinois, and Mr. Jay, who is appointed at Paris, is a lineal descendant of John Jay, who was President Washington's first secretary of state.

Washington, Oct. 15.—Mr. Pioda, the retiring Swiss minister, called at the state department yesterday to say farewell to the officials with whom he has been associated so long and pleasantly. He will sail on La Savoie the 30th for this month for home. Mr. Pioda has achieved an unusual decree of popularity during his stay in the United States, and as an evidence of that fact is to be found in the projected farewell reception and dinner to be extended to him by his friends in New York before he sails.

Henry's New Auto Broke Down.

Berlin, Oct. 15.—Prince Henry's new automobile, in which he started from Hamburg Oct. 9, via Dusseldorf, for Darmstadt, where he will spend his vacation with the princess and their children, broke down in the country before he reached Dusseldorf, and the prince was compelled to stop all night with the proprietor of a repair shop. He is traveling under the name of Von Achenbach, but at Osnabrueck, where he stopped for benzine, he was at once recognized by the town people, who made a demonstration in his honor.

FAMOUS BRIGADE

200 OF OLD BOYS ON HAND

Will Enjoy Themselves For Two Days in Detroit—First Regiment Elected Gen. Hitchcock President—Many Distinguished Soldiers Present.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 15.—Grizzled, sinewy veterans, with every line in their ageing faces telling of adventure and battle, gathered in the city yesterday to participate in the thirteenth annual reunion of the famous Custer brigade. Among the picturesque crowd of 200 are a number of distinguished soldiers whose names will ever be linked with that of the gallant Custer, who later met a heroic death at the hands of Sitting Bull's bands in the Little Big Horn mountains.

Every veteran cavalryman among them is a raconteur, and the tales they tell are only equaled by their delight in relating them. The famous Custer brigade, whose reunions bring together many noted soldiers from throughout the state, is composed of four regiments, the First, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Michigan cavalry regiments, that fought through the many battles of the civil war under General George A. Custer. The brigade originally mustered 3,244 men. Of these, 1,515 lost their lives in the struggle. The reunions of later years muster only some 300 veterans, whose ranks are thinning with increasing rapidity.

For two days the picturesque Custer brigade will hold court at the G. A. R. building on Grand River avenue. Yesterday afternoon the First regiment was quartered in the G. A. R. building, where an informal reception was held and the election of officers took place. General E. M. Hitchcock of Detroit, whose war record bristles with tales of hardships endured and honors won, is the president; George L. Holmes of Detroit being secretary. Some sixty members of this regiment answered the roll call.

The historic Seventh regiment was organized at Grand Rapids in 1862 with 916 officers and men. It was assigned with the other two of equal fame to the Michigan brigade, then commanded by General Copeland, but soon afterwards by the man who was to gain glory for himself and for the brigade, General G. A. Custer. The brigade took part in nearly every engagement leading up to the crisis at Gettysburg, and in that bloody battle lost 229 men.

The Fifth regiment meeting was held at the Belle Isle Casino in the afternoon. Despite the cool weather, the veterans managed to enjoy themselves by cracking jokes and recalling old comradeships and adventures. General R. A. Alger was a member of this body, it being from the start a Detroit organization.

The preliminary examination will be held today and the trial will probably come on at once, as the circuit court is now in session.

Killed a Burglar.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 15.—Two unknown crooks attempted to rob the South Shore depot at Lake Nebagamon early Tuesday morning, but were surprised by Agent Towne, with the result that one of the men is dead and the other, wounded, is being searched for by a posse. The agent was awakened by a noise at the station, later found to have been a dynamite explosion, which blew open the safe. On hastening to the scene, he was fired on. After a lively exchange of shots one of the burglars took to his heels, leaving his dead companion. He was followed some distance by a trail of blood. Towne has been exonerated by a coroner's jury.

STRIKE OFF

Miners and Operators Agree on a Commission.

PRESIDENT BROUHT IT ABOUT

Conferred With Leaders at White House Until Late Hour Last Night—He Adds One More to Commission List—Mitchell Will Call Strike Off.

A commission of six persons, with a seventh, Mr. Carroll D. Wright, as recorder, will adjust differences between operators and miners.

President Mitchell of the miners' union will take the necessary measures to call the strike off.

The president will urge immediate resumption of mining, and the operators are expected to begin next week.

The announcement that the strike was ended was made by Secretary Root, with exuberant good humor, at the White House shortly after 1 o'clock this morning.

Organized labor has a representative on the commission, in the person of E. E. Clark, grand chief of the Order of Railway Conductors, named as a sociologist.

The president added Bishop Spaulding of Illinois to the list of five members suggested by the operators. As named, the commission is perfectly satisfactory to both miners and operators.

Assent of the miners was given through President Mitchell and Mr. Sargent, commissioner of immigration, and of the operators through Messrs. Robert Bacon and George W. Perkins of the banking firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.

The final outcome followed a series of conferences, beginning with two during the night with Messrs. Bacon and Perkins.

Events moved quickly at the last, the president being determined on a speedy settlement.

The commission will assemble in a few days and choose a chairman, probably General Wilson. It then will arrange for sessions and testimony.

President Mitchell has called a meeting of the executive committee, and the strike will be called off at once and mining resumed in two or three days. Some of the members of the commission were named by Messrs. Sargent and Mitchell at their conference with the president, and in later meetings last night Mr. Sargent officially represented the miners' union leaders.

The members of the strike settlement commission are Brigadier-General John M. Wilson, E. W. Parker of Washington, D. C., connected with the geological survey; Judge George Gray of Delaware, E. E. Clark of Cedar Rapids, Ia.; Thomas H. Watkins of Scranton, Pa.; Bishop John L. Spaulding of Peoria, and Carroll D. Wright.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 16.—The prolonged anthracite coal strike is not yet practically settled, but some progress was made Wednesday, and while there remain certain obstacles to be removed, these, in the language of Secretary Root, it is believed, can be resolved and a termination of the strike finally secured.

The principal of these obstacles is the composition of the proposed commission, or board, to arbitrate the differences between the miners and operators.

Mr. Mitchell indicated formally yesterday to President Roosevelt that the mineworkers' union dissents from the restrictions placed by the operators on the choice of the proposed arbitration tribunal and desires the president to have an absolutely free hand in the selection of members of the commission to be charged with an adjustment of future relations between the employers and employed. He laid special stress in stating his objections on the proposition that one of the commission should be judge from the eastern district of Pennsylvania. He was very insistent in some of his objections, which he voiced in what might be termed a counter-proposition to that of the operators.

After the president and the head of the miners' union had exchanged views freely and gone over this counter proposition of Mr. Mitchell's, a call was sent out by President Mitchell for a joint meeting today of the executive boards of the mineworkers' union for the three anthracite districts of Pennsylvania. At this meeting it is believed an agreement will be reached on a statement to be officially promulgated by the miners' union in response to the proposition of the operators. President Roosevelt, having obtained the views of Mr. Mitchell, at once communicated with the operators and initiated efforts to reconcile the differences developed and to have the operators make some further concessions, his aim being to reach a common accord between miners and operators, whereby the labor dispute may be finally composed and mining of coal resumed.

At the conclusion of the conference Mr. Mitchell said that he had no information which he could give to the public. It was announced, likewise, at the temporary White House, that no official statement of the conferences would be made at this time.

When the last conference had been concluded, Mr. Mitchell left the White House, and after a brief conference with President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor and some other local labor leaders, departed for Wilkesbarre.

Mr. Mitchell's visit to Washington was by invitation of President Roosevelt, who asked the miners' president to come to Washington in order that they might discuss the terms of the proposition submitted to the president last Monday night by the anthracite coal railroad presidents, in the hope that the miners and the operators, as a result of the conference, might be brought into agreement as to the appointment by President Roosevelt of a commission to arbitrate existing difficulties between them.

While no authorized statement of the counter proposition could be obtained, it can be stated, on excellent authority, that Mr. Mitchell, in criticism of the proposition of the operators, took exception to the disparagement of the miners' union and to the limitations of time in which, under the proposed agreement, there is to be no strike.

His particular objection, however, was to the insistence of the mine owners that they should be permitted to designate the classes from which the arbitrators should be drawn by the president. He expressed himself as being as anxious as ever for arbitration, but planted himself squarely on the proposition that the president should be allowed to name the arbitrators without any restrictions or limitations made either by the miners or by the mine owners.

Mr. Mitchell, in his counter-proposition, insisted that President Roosevelt be given a free hand in the selection of the board of arbitration and that the terms under which the operators propose to create that board be remodeled at least to some extent. It is understood also that the wording of the mine operators' proposition, omitting any reference to the miners' union, does not meet Mr. Mitchell's approval. He desires, if possible, to obtain some formal recognition of the union, although that is a technicality which he may waive subsequently as, by any agreement to arbitrate the controversy, the miners will get a general recognition of their organization. Mr. Mitchell also expressly opposed the restriction made in the operators' proposition limiting the selection of a federal judge, as one of the arbitrators, to a particular jurisdiction.

It is stated on excellent authority, although not the president or Mr. Mitchell, that President Roosevelt agreed to present Mr. Mitchell's contention to the operators. It is believed that this will be the next step taken.

While the feeling among those who are familiar with the position taken by Mr. Mitchell is not rich in optimism, it is believed generally that the differences existing between the miners and operators will be resolved finally.

PRAISES ENGLISH ARMY.

General Young Wants a Dozen British Soldiers Sent to America.

London, Oct. 16.—The Pilgrims' club, the newly organized Anglo-American organization, gave a luncheon to Generals Corbin, Wood and Young yesterday at the Carlton hotel. Major-General Sir William Nicholson, who occupied the chair, toasted King Edward and President Roosevelt. War Secretary Brodrick proposed toasts to the American army and the visiting generals, praising the former and expressing his pleasure at seeing such distinguished representatives of that service. The American generals replied. Ambassador Choate and Anthony Hope spoke of the value of such meetings in fostering good relations between the two countries.

General Young has secured the consent of Earl Roberts and Mr. Brodrick to a plan to send a dozen of the best British non-commissioned officers to America in order that they may give an exposition of their training as an example of that which is now carried out in the British service. The war office will pay the expenses of the British soldiers. General Young hopes to be able to get the war department at Washington to send a dozen American non-commissioned officers to England so that they may investigate the developments of the setting-up drill in its up-to-date form as it is practised in this country.

General Young said to a representative of the Associated Press: "The gymnastic exhibition we saw at Aldershot beats anything we have got in the way of smartness. The men who took part in it were non-commissioned officers qualifying as gymnastic instructors. It was the finest thing I have ever seen in that line, and I feel sure that an interchange of experiences in this branch of military training will be of much benefit to both countries. Earl Roberts received my suggestion with regard to the British soldiers going to the United States and picked out the team to go with the greatest enthusiasm."

German Miners Are Sympathetic.

Berlin, Oct. 16.—The central committee of the German Coal Miners' association has sent $1,250 to the American striking coal miners and has issued directions to the members of the associations not to work extra time, with the object of increasing the supply of coal for export, adding: "As our comrades know, the American miners have already been engaged for five months in a mighty struggle with gigantic united capital, and last week our brothers in France also struck." After reciting the French miners' demands, the German committee's order continues: "If our French brethren get their just demands that means progress for us. The German government will no longer be able to say that other countries are doing less for labor than Germany. A victory of the American miners will also be an important success for us and for the international miners' cause."

Chicago Boodler Squeals.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—The defense in the Masonic temple tax case was taken completely by surprise yesterday when James B. Hoy, one of the defendants in the case, announced through his attorney that he would be a witness for the state. At the same time a request for a separate trial was made and Judge Chetlain at once granted the motion. It was stated in court that Hoy called on State's Attorney Deneen Tuesday night and made a full confession of his connection with and knowledge of the alleged Masonic temple tax conspiracy.

Bliss Can't Campaign.

Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 15.—Governor Bliss' sprained ankle is doing as nicely as could be expected, and the governor says he is feeling very well with the exception of a slight dizziness, which he attributes to his lack of exercise. His face was considerably cut up in the accident. In speaking of the campaign the governor said he would have to cut out many of his engagements to speak around the state; but that he would conduct an active campaign through correspondence.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by J. J. Orr.

CHAPTER X.

At this moment there was a lull in the proceedings, and the rogues seemed to retire to some place at a distance from the stairway and to consult with low voices upon the matter. While I was attending to these gentlemen Ippolita had been busy with some affair in the further corner of her apartment. I now had leisure to observe her, and I noticed that she had procured from somewhere in the room a small brazier's furnace of much the same size and shape as that which a modern tinsmith is wont to carry with him through the streets. She had lighted a fire of charcoal in it, and it seemed to me likely that the poor child was endeavoring to prepare something in the way of a repast, having been now almost a day without food. She presented a charming spectacle as she bent over the furnace, her sweet face aglow with the flame of it, and I thought what a dainty housewife she would make and looked forward to the time when this goddess would preside over my own menage.

"And a score of years after," said she, "it came to pass"—

"What dost thou say?" I exclaimed, with a fear upon me that the gentle creature had gone insane with the extent of her misfortunes.

"I do but proceed, fair sir, with the tale which I did commence erstwhile."

"Ah!" said I, wondering much at the nerve which enabled her so unconcernedly to continue her narrative at the very moment when we were threatened with a sudden and violent death.

"And it came to pass that after a score of years, when thy grandfather Sigismondo led the unsuccessful revolt against the Albizzi, his followers, having been dispersed, did besiege him in his own house, the castle of the Pazzi, where we now are, and they did force the entrances thereto, and Sigismondo, fleeing before them, took refuge in the cellar, and when all the men at arms took torches and followed him down into these underground vaults, lo, he had vanished utterly away from them."

She had got thus far in her narrative when suddenly the bravos made a swift and stealthy rush up the stairway, that they might take me unawares. Fortunately, however, I heard them in season, and, springing to my post at the half open door, I was just in time to receive them.

The first fellow stumbled upon and fell across the dead body of the lieutenant, and I had no difficulty in dispatching him, running my sword twice into his carcass with the same ease with which I would have thrust a butter trier into a firkin. The next rascal gave me infinitely more trouble, as he succeeded in getting upon the landing and forcing the door wide open, so that he confronted me fairly and squarely. Before I expected it he gave a vicious lunge with his sword and scratched my left shoulder quite seriously. Immediately afterward, however, I gave him a neat stab through the windpipe, and he, dropping his weapon and clapping his hand upon the blood spurting orifice, I took the occasion to search with the point of my rapier, delicately and skillfully, for his vermiform appendix, with the result, as is usual in such operations, that he at once succumbed.

The rest of the rascals now took fright at the speedy fate of their comrades and beat a hasty retreat to the regions below.

"And when thy father, the noble Arnolfo de' Pazzi," said Ippolita, who was still busy with the fire which she had started in the small charcoal furnace, "shall come at last to cross the river Styx"—

"Ippolita," I exclaimed, with some irritation in my voice, for I was heartily sick by this time, "if thou hast not yet finished with thy tale I prithee put the completion of it off until some more auspicious moment."

"Nay, Timoteo, I had in sooth concluded the narrative, and I shall now eftsoons proceed to the application of it."

"Pestilenza, we will dispense with the application of it," said I.

The rogues were now gathered again in a group at the bottom of the stairs, and presently two of the stoutest and most expert swordsmen of the lot, by evident agreement, left their comrades and came upward to attack me. When they had reached the top, one of them stooped down, that he might cut me, and the other prepared to thrust at me over the head of his companion.

My opponents knew next to nothing about the noble art of fence, and it is even a question with me whether they could distinguish quarte from tierce or knew the difference between one, two, and cut and disengage. They were, however, very muscular and ugly customers, and I can assure you that I had my hands full even from the very first. When I say hands, I speak understandingly, for with my left I had caught up the topmost of my three previous victims by the scruff of the neck, and I now managed to hold the defunct so that he partly shielded my body from the furious attacks of his living fellows. I had a suspicion as I did this that the rogue was not as dead as he looked, for it seemed to me that he squirmed in my grasp every time that he was perforated by my enemies. When, however, they had filled him with as many holes as a sieve he ceased his contortions and gave me no more trouble. I now concluded that it was time to do something. I therefore made the eight parades, one after the other, followed them up with a straight thrust and a disengagement both over and under the arm and ended with a flanconnade. They were now evidently flustered with my mode of attack, so I made the celebrated feint of doubling on both sides and finished the business by giving the lower rascal a time thrust over the arm and the other a time thrust in the octave, and they were both dead men.

There were now five men outright dead upon the stair, in addition to which I had killed one in the cellar and had maimed another to that extent that he was incapacitated from all further offensive operations. This made seven in all and left but six of the original thirteen to oppose me. As I thought of these flattering results I felt quite proud of the unaided achievements of my good right arm and at the same time was not a little discouraged as to the final outcome of the struggle.

The six remaining banditti, having just witnessed the defeat and death of the two last named bravos, who were probably the best fighting men among them, clustered around the bottom of the stairway and showed their impotent rage by the most horrible mediæval imprecations and by ribald talk and gestures which it would be impossible for me to write down.

All at once I heard a sound from the chamber of Ippolita and of the lifting of one of the boards of the floor, and at this sound all six of the knaves left off looking at me and directed their gaze at the ceiling immediately above their heads. Then there seemed to fall upon their faces from the rafters above some kind of a bright liquid, and at once there came from their six villainous throats the most awful, terrible, ear splitting, heartrending shrieks and yells which were ever heard this side of hades, and they struck wildly into the air and clasped their hands over their eyes, and they fell upon the floor and groveled there and crept this way and that until one by one they had all disappeared from view. And now there came up to my nostrils a foul stench as of burned flesh or leather, and I sought out Ippolita, and in a moment's space I found out and understood the whole thing which had happened.

She had found in this chamber of the tower the brazier's furnace, already supplied with charcoal, and upon the top of it there was a small round pot filled with lead, and the dear, ingenious girl, knowing right well from her mediæval education what the thing was meant for, had set fire to the charcoal and when the lead was melted had lifted one of the loose boards of the floor and poured the molten metal so adroitly upon the faces of the six thieves that she had burned the eyeballs out of every mother's son of them.

As there was now no longer anything to fear, we decided to descend at once to the parlor floor.

Going down the stairs, we passed to the lower floor and found ourselves in the banquet hall of the palace. And now, happening to cast my eyes upon the lifesize, full length portrait of a fierce old knight in half armor, which had hung low down upon the wall in front of me at the opposite side of the room, I became, as it were, fascinated with it, so that I could hardly remove my eyes from its wrinkled and sinister features, and I asked Ippolita if she knew which of my honored ancestors the picture represented.

"Marry, that I do," she answered, "as well as thou knowest it thyself. It is the face of Michelozzo de' Pazzi, thy great-grandfather's father, commonly called Michelozzo the Bad. Well indeed should I know it, for it was said that he did most foully murder Messer Ridolfo Albizzi, the father of my great-grandfather Galeazzo. Messer Ridolfo was last seen entering the castle of the Pazzi to transact some business with thy forbear, and it was thought that Michelozzo did away with him by casting him into an underground well which existed for such purposes and which is even to this day supposed to exist in this castello maladetto of thy race. Ah, Timoteo, thou dost come of most desperately wicked ancestry, and I marvel much that I find it in my heart to trust my life and happiness to thee."

"Oh, come, Ippolita," said I. "They really weren't such a bad lot, after all, as men go, and, for the matter of that, thou hast not much to brag of thyself in the line of ancestors. Take, for instance, thy great-grandfather, Galeazzo. From all I can learn, he was the most unscrupulous old cutthroat that ever the principality produced."

I regretted instantly the having said this, as I saw that the dear girl was exceedingly provoked by it, so that she trembled with vexation, while a single tear coursed slowly down her soft, rose tinted cheek. At that moment I could have sworn that the portrait of old Michelozzo winked at me. I turned toward Ippolita and saw that she, too, had noticed it, for she had forgotten her short lived resentment and was gazing at the villainous old condottiere with a look of alarm and wonder. Then suddenly, without saying anything, she arose and seized my rapier, which I had laid upon the table, it being more convenient to sit without it, and, running swiftly and gracefully to the portrait, gave as pretty and scientific a lunge as I ever saw and ran the old gentleman through the middle of the diaphragm.

Sarah Lovejoy.

October 14, 1902, Mrs. Sarah Lovejoy, wife of Henry Lovejoy, died of cancer, aged 80 years and two months.

Miss Sarah Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Richard and Keziah Horton, was born in Middletown, New York, August 15, 1822. She came to Michigan with her parents in 1831, and settled in Raisin. There she was married to Henry Lovejoy in 1842. They resided in Raisin 21 years. Then, having moved to Tecumseh, they resided here ten years. From here she went to live with her only daughter, Mrs. Grandvill Knight.

Hers has been a useful, devoted life among her loved ones, and all who knew her only knew her to love her. She had been a long, patient sufferer, but had borne it all with great Christian fortitude. Our loss will be her eternal gain. While she will be missed in the home as elsewhere, her tired spirit has gone to Him who gave it. We extend our heartfelt sympathies to the family, especially to the bereaved, aged husband and the daughter.

Rev. S. Louisa Haight officiated at the funeral, which was held at her late home at 10:30 yesterday morning.

Snails.

The popularity of the snail as an article of food is not confined to Paris, but extends throughout southern Europe and some parts of Africa. Dr. Edrard, a French writer, in a pamphlet says that 90,000 pounds of snails are sent daily to Paris from the gardens of Poitou, Burgundy, Champagne and Provence. Those reared in gardens are fed on aromatic herbs to improve their flavor. Their market price is from 2 francs 50 centimes to 3 francs 50 centimes a hundred, while those from the hedges, woods and forests bring only 2 francs to 2 francs 50 centimes. The proprietor of one snailery in the vicinity of Dijon nets over 7,000 francs annually.

The snail is reared and fattened with great care in some cantons of Switzerland as an article of luxury and is exported in a pickled state. It is also eaten as a relish and nutritious article of food in Austria, Spain, Italy and in some sections of the United States. The Ashantees and other African tribes smoke them and eat them as daily food all the year around. In Algeria in the markets large heaps of snails are sold by the bushel and the hundred as an article of food. Venders hawk them in the streets of Cairo. In modern Rome fresh gathered snails are hawked by women from door to door.

Centuries In Building.

Persons who are disposed to grumble at the length of time required to finish public buildings should take heart from the example of the Cathedral of St. Peter, in Cologne. That structure was 632 years in building. It was begun in 1248 and was pronounced completed in 1880. The great Cathedral of Milan was begun in 1386 and was not completed until 1805, 419 years later. Rostermel castle, in Cornwall, took ninety years to build, and one third of that time was employed in excavating for the foundation. The late Lord Bute was engaged for over twenty years in building his great palace in the isle of Bute, and his successor is still at work on it. The palace of the Dukes of Atholl, in Scotland, has been building since 1830, and the work is still going on. In the cases of the other buildings mentioned, however, the money for their construction did not come entirely out of the pockets of the taxpayers, which, after all, makes a considerable difference as to the matter of looking at it.

For Diabetic Patients.

In a diet for diabetic patients milk is only occasionally allowed, yet eggs, cream, buttermilk and all kinds of cheese may be taken freely. Tart fruits are permitted, and peaches and strawberries may be eaten with cream, but without sugar. The sweet fruits—pears, plums, grapes, apples, bananas, etc.—are forbidden. Koumiss, coffee with cream, but no sugar, and cereal coffee are the drinks permitted, tea being excluded and no wines or liquors except claret, Rhine or other acid varieties. All vegetables containing sugar or starch are forbidden, which leaves cauliflower, lettuce, string beans, spinach, cucumbers, greens, young onions, etc., to be eaten. Olives are not forbidden. A moderate meat diet is recommended, particularly the fatty parts, and all kinds of fish are allowed.

His Measure Taken.

Aggie—He told me I wuz de only gurl he ever loved.

Katie—Well when a feller talks like dat give him de googoo eyes reversed. He's nuthin' but a born diplermat!—Puck.

Another Attack.

Rev. John P. Varner, formerly pastor of the M. E. Church at Tecumseh, but now at Owosso, in a sermon Sunday night fiercely attacked Carnegie, Rockefeller and the coal barons and other trust promoters. He declared many pulpits are silent because millionaires in the congregation put up the money to prevent a discusson of the trust promblem by the pastors. There are no millionaires in Owosso.
—Adrian Times.

There is an old saying that it is a heard task to wag the elephant by the tail, It would seem that our Tecumseh preacher has attemped to do this several times lately. He may succeed in moving the tail but if he stirs the elephant will he kindly not forget to write and tell us how he did it.

Katherine Willard

"The Power Behind The Throne," Theodore Kremer's phenomenally successful romantic drama, will be presented at the Bradley Opera House on Saturday, Oct. 18. Miss Katherine Willard's tour last season was marked by the most emphatic success. Many return dates were played, and on each occasion Miss Willard played to capacity. The production of "The Power Behind The Throne" is costly and elaborate, and it is promised that the play will be one of the most satisfactory and enjoyable performances ever seen in this city.

MEDICAL SOCIETY

Of Lenawee County Held a Meeting Oct. 14 in Tecumseh

DR. SAMUEL CATLIN

The Lenawee County Medical society held its quarterly meeting in Mrs. Look's studio, Tecumseh, Mich. The committee of local physicians consisting of Drs. Howell, Catlin and Maddox made all the arrangements for entertainment and the grand success was due largely to their efforts.

The meeting was announced for one o'clock, but as a great many of the members were obliged to drive, it was somewhat later when it really commenced. While waiting for some of the members to come, the ones present on time decided to defer the regular papers and discussions until later and listen now to some case reports.

Dr. Howell started by giving the history and treatment of a very severe case of strychnia poisoning. The case was especially interesting in that the patient having taken in the neighborhood of 40 grains of strychnia and the symptoms being very severe. Dr. Howell succeeded by his energetic and proper measures in bringing him out all right.

An interesting discussion followed this, in which others reported similar cases, the only difference being—the patients died.

During the discussion a number of physicians had come in and it was decided to commence the regular meeting.

Dr. Kirkpatrick, the president, called the meeting to order and in absence of the secretary, Dr. Treat asked for nominations. Dr. Jenkins moved that Dr. Rice of Tipton be made secretary pro tem, which was duly voted upon and carried.

Dr. Tonne of Geneva, was then asked to give his paper on "inversion of the Uterus, post portum." The paper was a report of a case of the doctor's own, in which he had no warning of this very dangerous and exceedingly rare complication. He made every effort known which was of no avail and the patient rapidly succumbed to the shock and died. As we learn often more from our failures than our successes, he brought the case before us to let us learn all that was possible from it. He then suggested a line of treatment he would follow should another case fall into his hands.

The paper was very ably written and exceedingly interesting, although we hope none of us to even have a case of such grave condition, it is better to be prepared and not needed than be needed and not prepared.

The discussion which followed was very interesting and participated in by every member. All agreed very well with the doctor in his line of proposed treatment and some were able to add some suggestions of additional value.

Dr. Jewett of Adrian, next read his paper, "Early use of the Curette in cases of Abortion." The doctor took the stand of the up-to-date members of the profession in advocating its early use in nearly all cases of abortion, occurring during the early months or weeks of gestation. The method indications and after treatment were concisely and pointedly stated and the subject was one of keen interest to all. Dr. Jewett's paper was one of scholarly and scientific interest as well as of practical value.

The discussion was exceedingly active every one giving his or her views. As about half were for and half against the use of the curette, the time was not let to drag, some even renewing the discussion after Dr. Jewett had closed it. As the whole the youngest members seemed to be for the curette and the older ones advocating the use of the finger, which Dr. Jewett closed the remarks by saying, was alright if properly veiled to be sure of asepsis.

After this five new members were voted in and a short discussion about obtaining a Charter for the society from the State Medical society followed. As a disagreement on a slight technicality occurred it was agreed to lay this matter aside until the next meeting. Dr. Jenkins proposed the next meeting be held at Adrian the second week in January. This was accepted and Dr. Ross of Rome, and Dr. Maddox of Tecumseh, were asked to prepare papers for that meeting.

Dr. Catlin then invited the visitors and members to a luncheon served at his home. The members, it is needless to say, made haste to accept this kind and generous invitation from one of our most venerable members.

The doctor's beautiful home was made warm and cheery by grate fires and plants and flowers.

Dr. Howell, Dr. and Mrs. Catlin received, and the guests were asked to the dining room where a dainty and delicious luncheon was served by the wives of Drs. Maddox, Rice, Jones and Howell assisted by Miss Eleanor Norcross.

After the lunch a social interchange of medical incidents and experiences was enjoyed by the physicians.

"The fastest selling article I have in my store," writes druggist C. T. Smith, of Davis, Ky., "Is Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, coughs and colds, because it always cures. In my six years of sales it has never failed. I have known it to save sufferers from Throat and Lung diseases, who could get no help from doctors or any other remedy." Mothers rely on it, best physicians prescribe it, and C. A. Wright guarantees satisfaction or refund price. Trial bottles free, regular sizes, 50c and

All Stuffed Up

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat.

No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic.

"I was afflicted with catarrh. I took medicines of different kinds, giving each a fair trial; but gradually grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I then concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking five bottles I was cured and have not had any return of the disease since." Eugene Forbes, Lebanon, Kan.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

STRIKE ENDED

Settled through the Efforts of PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT,

Who Appointed the Commission of Six Men.

At last the great coal strike is ended and according to the dispatches taken from yesterday's evening papers coal will be obtainable in a few weeks.

A commission of six persons, with a seventh, Mr. Carroll D. Wright, as recorder, will adjust differences between operators and miners.

President Mitchell of the miners' union, will take the necessary measures to call the strike off.

The president will urge immediate resumption of mining, and the operators are expected to begin next week.

The announcement that the strike was ended was made by Secretary Root with exhuberant good humor, at the White House shortly after one o'clock this morning.

Organized labor has a representative on the commission, in the person of E. E. Clark, the grand chief of the Order of Railway Conductors, named as a socialogist.

The president added Bishop Spaulding of Illinois, to the list of five members suggested by the operators. As named, the commission is perfectly satisfactory to both miners and operators.

Assent of the miners was given through President Mitchell and Mr. Sargent, commissioner of immigration, and of the operators through Messrs. Robert Bacon and George W. Perkins of the banking firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.

The final outcome followed a series of conferences, beginning with two during the night with Messrs, Bacon and Perkins.

Events moved quickly at the last, the president being determined on a speedy settlement.

The commission will assemble in a few days and choose a chairman, probably General Wilson. It then will arrange for sessions and testimony.

President Mitchell has called a meeting of the executive committee, and the strike will be called off at once and mining resumed in two or three days. Some of the members of the commision were named by Messrs. Sargent and Mitchell at their conference with the president and in later meetings last night Mr. Sargent officially represented the miners' union leaders.

The members of the strike settlement commission are Brigadier-General John M. Wilson, E. W. Parker of Washington, D. C., connected with the geological survey; Judge George Gray of Delaware, E.E. Clark of Cedar Rapids, Ia.; Thomas H. Watkins of Scranton, Pa.; Bishop John L. Spaulding of Peoria, and Carroll D. Wright.

Mrs. L. M. Mooney.

Miss Philinda Dart was born in Truxton, Courtland county, New York, Sept. 28, 1824. She was married May 31, 1824 to Luke M. Mooney. Three daughters were born to them, the youngest of which died at the age of nineteen. Her husband and two daughters, Mrs. Jennie Knouse of Tecumseh and Mrs. J. J. Neeley of Hudson, still survive her.

The family moved to Tecumseh nearly fifty years ago where they have since resided. Mrs. Mooney became a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, when about thirty years of age, at which she has been a regular attendant until within the past few years, poor health deprived her of this privilege, though her interest in the church remained the same.

A few days prior to her death she seemed somewhat improved in health, so all were unprepared for the blow, which was so soon to follow. After an illness of but a few hours, she passed across the river to be with her loved ones on the other shore.

The funeral was held Monday at her late residence on Kilbuck street, Rev. Leslie Bower officiated. The following relatives from out of town attended the funeral: Alonzo Dart of Sturgis, Mrs. Calvin Dart of Coldwater, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Neely and children of Hudson, and Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Dart of Jackson.

MUST BELIEVE IT

When Well Known Tecumseh People Tell It so Plainly

When public endorsement is made by a representative citizen of Tecumseh the proof is positive. You must believe it. Read this testimony. Every backache sufferer, every man, woman or child with any kidney trouble will find profit in the reading.

Mr. W. C. Witherall, agent for buggies, harness and other machinery, place of business south western section of Tecumseh, says: "I cannot praise Doan's Kidney Pills highly enough, for they have been a great friend to me Some years ago I was an expert at sheep shearing and did a lot of that work. Every body knows it is very hard on the back and it finally brought on a severe pain across the loins. Nothing did any good until a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box and the treatment gave immediate relief. When I finished the box the trouble was entirely removed. If I feel any symptons of a return a resort to Doan's Kidney Pills quickly wards off the attack. They are a reliable remedy and I consistently recommend them." Just such emphatic endorsement is plentiful in Tecumseh. Call at C. A. Wright's drug store and ask him what his customers report.

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cent per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

A Kind Word.

Many a friendship, long, loyal and self sacrificing, rested at first on no thicker a foundation than a kind word. Two men were not likely to be friends. Perhaps each of them regarded the other with something of distrust. They had possibly been set against each other by the circulation of gossip or they had been looked upon as rivals, and the success of one was regarded as incompatible with the success of the other, but a kind word, perhaps a mere report of a kind word, has been enough to be the commencement of an enduring friendship.

DORA HUNT

Dora, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Hunt, was born May 24, 1881 and died Sept. 6, 1902. Her childhood, her youth, the little span of her youth, was spent with her parents at their home in Franklin. An affectionate child she grew to be a woman of rare thoughtfulness and kindliness for others. The little span of her life so brief was full of loving deeds and thoughtful care for her parents and friends.

"Dora always looks after everything," "Dora never gave me a cross word." Such was the testimony in her home circle long ago. Quiet, modest, retiring in disposition, only those who met her at home knew her as she was. She sleeps so sweet in the cemetery at Tipton.

The circumstances attending her death were peculiarly heart rending. Her parents were journeying in the west, leaving Dora in her usual health. Then came the sudden illness. At the time of her death Mr. and Mrs. Hunt with a party of friends were camping in Yellowstone Park. Telegrams were sent to them and men were sent into the park to search for them but in that vast national playground it was impossible to find them. They left Dora in health but when the agonized parents returned they found her not.

CARD OF THANKS.

To the many kind friends who ministered to our Dora in her last illness, to the singers and to her Sunday school class and to the Grange for the many beautiful floral tributes, we wish to extend our heartfelt thanks.

COURAGE OF AMERICANS

By Not Giving in to Rheumatism They Find Relief from Pain.

Americans do not sit down and cry over their troubles, but look around for a way out; that was the way Athlophoros was created—to drive the Uric acid from the blood—the cause of Rheumatism.

Uric acid in the blood is likened to floating ice in a river—we all know how ice congests commerce and retards progress—Uric acid is the same—it prevents proper circulation of the blood, besides poisoning it, and brings on complications with the stomach, kidneys and heart.

Many people think they have Dyspepsia, Bright's Disease and Heart Trouble, whereas once rid of the Uric acid they are freed from all, as well as their Rheumatism. Athlophoros goes to the seat of the trouble and quickly forces out the Uric acid—improvement is noted at once and the cure is sure—one bottle will prove if you are being helped—it only costs you the price of one bottle to test it—All druggists sell it—if not, send $1 to The Athlophoros Co., New Haven, Conn.

Don't sit still and suffer.

Prisoners Were a Hungry Lot.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 16.—County Treasurer Mann made his annual report yesterday, showing that it cost $217,379 to run the county during the past year. The surprising feature of the report is the very small sum received in fines from criminals, only $809 90 in fines having been collected. ENORMOUS BAIL FOR ANDREWS.

Supreme Court Places Amount at $100,000.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 16.—The supreme court orders Frank C. Andrews, the convicted embezzler of City Savings bank funds and under sentence of fifteen years in Jackson prison, admitted to bail in the sum of $100,000. If the bail is not furnished within fifteen days Andrews must go to Jackson.

The court orders that the sureties to the bonds must be approved by the judge of the recorder's court.

The arguments of the lawyers for the prosecution that the noted prisoner could not be extradited if he once got beyond the jurisdiction of the court, evidently had great weight with the supreme bench in fixing the amount of bail to be furnished.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 16.—Andrews received the first news of the supreme court's action from a reporter. He refused to discuss the possibilities of furnishing the large amount required, saying he first wanted to talk with his attorneys. Andrews, however, was distinctly shocked, as he had confidently expected bail would be almost nominal.

Attorney John W. Beaumont, who has been employed on the Andrews case from the very first, was also informed of the action of the supreme court by a reporter. The information was startlingly unpleasant for him, and he winced under it. When he recovered his composure he said:

"The information is authentic, I suppose. One hundred thousand within fifteen days! He couldn't furnish half of it. It's absurd! I suppose he will go to Jackson if the order stands."

Struck For Higher Wages.

Ypsilanti, Mich., Oct. 16.—The men employed on the East Cross street macadamizing job struck yesterday for a raise from $1 60 to $1 75 per day, but all went back to work at the old figure to wait for the next meeting of the common council to act on their request. The sewer diggers struck for $1 75 about six weeks ago, but they were not successful, as their places were quickly filled with men at the old wage. The macadamizing must be completed before cold weather sets in, and labor is very scarce, so the present strike bids fair to accomplish its purpose.

Ithaca in Darkness.

Calumet, Mich., Oct. 16.—The Calumet & Hecla Mining Co. has discharged nearly sixty men and closed down two furnaces and the cupola at the Lake Linden smelting works. The scarcity of anthracite coal is given as the cause of the action.

Roosevelt Orders Boy's Body Home.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 15.—When President Roosevelt was in Detroit, a guest of General R. A. Alger, George Coughlan, a young man of this city, called upon the general, and through the latter's efforts the body of Frank Coughlan, his brother, which is buried in a soldier's grave at San Francisco, will be in this city Friday. All efforts to secure the removal of the body to this city through the war department were unavailing until the attention of President Roosevelt to the matter, and the order was issued by the president at General Alger's request that the body of young Coughlan be exhumed and sent to his home in this city.

"If women would pay more attention to their health we would have more happy wives, mothers and daughters, and if they would observe results they would find that the doctors' prescriptions do not perform the many cures they are given credit for.

"In consulting with my druggist he advised McElree's Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught, and so I took it and have every reason to thank him for a new life opened up to me with restored health, and it only took three months to cure me."

Wine of Cardui is a regulator of the menstrual functions and is a most astonishing tonic for women. It cures scanty, suppressed, too frequent, irregular and painful menstruation, falling of the womb, whites and flooding. It is helpful when approaching womanhood, during pregnancy, after childbirth and in change of life. It frequently brings a dear baby to homes that have been barren for years. All druggists have $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

A HOT CONVENTION

Likely to Be Held dy Mine Union Delegates.

PROPOSITION IS OPPOSED

Reports Current That Locals Are Instructing Delegates in That Manner—Principal Question is Over Discharge of Non-Union Men.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 18.—Reports were circulated last night that locals of the United Mineworkers in West Scranton, Pittston and some other localities had voted to instruct their delegates to oppose the acceptance of the operators' proposition unless the companies would agree to discharge the non-union men, take back all the old employes, drop th suits instituted against strikers recognize the union. It was impossible to verify these reports, but they are persistently and generally circulated.

A significant fact in this connection was the concern of District President Nicholls over a published report that he was at the head of a movement to oppose the acceptance of the proposition. "This report," said Mr. Nicholls last evening, "is doing no end of mischief. It has caused our men to view the proposition with suspicion, and when they suspected it they commenced to look for the flaws which they supposed I had found in it. I want it stated that the report that I am opposed to the proposition is absolutely false and without foundation."

"Will the leaders of the United Mineworkers give the members any advice or instructions regarding their conduct towards the non-union men?" was asked of Mr. Nicholls.

"I do not think so," replied Mr. Nicholls. "I do not see that we are called upon to ask our men to take those fellows to their hearts and to treat them as they would a dear friend. In 1900 L advised that the non-unionists be treated in a friendly manner, with a view of winning them over. I do not propose to do it again."

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 18.—In accordance with the call issued Thursday by order of the executive boards of the anthracite districts of the miners' union, all "locals" throughout the coal field began electing delegates Friday to the convention which will be held here next Monday to consider the acceptance or rejection of the arbitration plan submitted by President Roosevelt. Most of the local unions held their meetings last night. They all will have been held by night. It is practically certain that a majority of the delegates will come to the convention instructed to vote in favor of accepting the arbitration scheme. President Mitchell will go into the convention and make a strong speech for the acceptance of the arbitration scheme.

The indications are the convention will last two days and that there will be much debate on various features of the arbitration plan. The conditions at some collieries are different from those existing at other places. The principal question to be discussed before the plan is accepted by the miners will be that of taking care of all the men. The conditions of the mines are such that all workmen cannot be given work immediately, and some will have to wait for weeks before the companies can take care of them. The operators will not dismiss the non-union men in order to give employment to a returning striker. It is understood the union will take care of all such men who fail to find immediate employment.

The coal companies will do all in their power to meet the public demand for coal. Preparations for resuming as soon as the miners call the strike off are going on apace.

It is estimated that 25 per cent of the collieries will be in operation on the first day after the suspension is over. The railroads are also making every effort to have enough cars on hand to carry the freshly-mined coal to market and are sending thousands of cars into the regions and placing them on sidings at the collieries.

The state troops are having an easy time of it, and are expecting to hear of the withdrawal of a portion of the division at any day.

Earl Roberts May Visit Us.

London, Oct. 18.—The Associated Press learns that Generals Corbin, Young and Wood have tendered Earl Roberts a cordial invitation to visit the United States and that the British commander-in-chief replied at a late hour last night that he had practically decided to accept the invitation in December of 1903 and that there was a possibility of his crossing in time to witness the international yacht races in that year. It is Earl Roberts' desire that Generals French and Kelly-Kenny accompany him.

Want Miss Stone's Ransom.

Washington, Oct. 18.—Representatives of the missionary societies have at length formally requested the state department to make a demand on Turkey for repayment of the amount of ransom paid on account of the release of Miss Ellen Stone. The requests assume the liability of Turkey as settled, but the state department has by no means assured itself on that point, and it is stated that the responsibility still lies between Turkey and Bulgaria, with perhaps the weight of evidence against the latter country.

Rome, Oct. 18.—Archbishop Guidi, the apostolic delegate in the Philippines, and his secretary, Fr. O'Connor, started Friday for Manila. They were bid farewell at the railroad station by a large gathering of distinguished Vatican officials, heads of religious bodies and representatives of the ministers accredited to the Vatican.

MAYBURY AGAIN

Democrats of Detroit Renominate Him.

LUCKING UP FOR CONGRESS

Preliminary Election Plan Given a Test by Republicans—Found Wanting in Some Respects—No Definite Returns at Midnight.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 18.—Mayor William C. Maybury was unanimously renominated for another term by the Democratic city convention yesterday afternoon.

The boom for Dr. E. B. Smith fizzled out as completely as it did three years ago. Not a show of opposition did the Smith people make to the Maybury sweep, although a few minutes before the convention assembled they expressed themselves confident of being able to win out. Dr. Smith's name was not presented to the convention, and when a roll call of the delegates was made after Mayor Maybury's name was put in nomination, five votes represented the doctor's strength. Mabury's vote was 101.

It took but a short time to fix up the remainder of the ticket, which is as follows:

For city clerk, Edward F. Keusch; for city treasurer, W. B. Thompson; justice of the peace, Thomas W. Fitzsimmons, D. C. Grobbel; estimators-at-large, Fred Guenther, Thomas W. Thompson, Martin Kulwicki, Levi J. Fick and Anthony Petz.

Not since the memorable convention that nominated J. Logan Chipman for congress over fifteen years ago, has there been such a general clamor for a congressional candidate as was that of the first district Democratic congressional convention that nominated Alfred Lucking in Philharmonic hall yesterday morning.

The nominating speech was made by Elliot G. Stevenson. Lucking was also present and made quite a lengthy speech.

The McLeod primary election plan has been tried, and there are those who declare that it was found wanting. The secrecy of the ballot, which was to be one of the features of the new scheme for making Republican nominations, was something that existed yesterday only in the minds of those who hoped that the clause of the McLeod regulations allowing ballots to be taken outside of the election booths would be offset by the rule that voters must retire to one of the individual stalls before casting his ballot.

At midnight the county and city situation was still very problematic owing to the cumbersome machinery of the McLeod primary election plan. In so far as could be gleaned from the unofficial returns from some thirty scattered precincts and townships, Dr. J. T. Carstens was leading the mayoralty ticket. Arthur L. Holmes was far ahead of his rivals for the county treasureship and James E. Scripps looked like a sure winner in the third senatorial district.

Mackinac Pioneer Dead.

Mackinac Island, Mich., Oct. 18.—Dominick Murray, proprietor of the New Murray hotel, and a pioneer of Mackinac island, died at his home yesterday. He was born Aug. 12, 1820, at Newport, County Mayo, Ireland, and came to Mackinac island in 1842, accompanied by two younger brothers, Patrick and Michael, both of whom are living at St. Ignace. Mr. Murray was sheriff of Mackinac county for seventeen consecutive years. During the mormon troubles with old King Strang, on Beaver island, he had many exciting adventures.

Karrer, Port Huron, $8; Arvid Thomas, Hillsdale, $8; George H. Brocks, Hastings, $30. Widows—Jemima Messersmath, Jackson, $8; Susan M. Mishap at Caro Junction.—The 6:45 passenger train with two coaches, going to Caro, run into a defective switch at Caro Junction and the rear coach was ditched. E. W. Porter, an attorney from Bay City, was injured in the right shoulder; one other man was slightly injured.

Ore-Loading Record Broken.—All ore-loading records on the great lakes were broken at Ashland, Wis., when 5,202 tons of iron ore were loaded at the Chicago & Northwestern docks in one hour and eight minutes (about eighty tons a minute), the ore being loaded into the steamer James H. Hoyt.

Secretly Married.—It has leaked out that Dr. J. H. Kellogg's oldest daughter Bessie, of Battle Creek, was secretly married to R. M. McPherson of Lincoln, Neb., five weeks ago. The lovers became acquainted while she was attending college at Lincoln, but were married in Battle Creek. The parents accepted the situation and their son-in-law.

Expanded Them.

"What does this mean, daughter? Here is another lot of milliners' and dressmakers' bills. Don't you remember that I expressly ordered you not to contract any more debts without my knowledge?"

"Certainly, papa, but I haven't contracted any debts. On the contrary, I've expanded them."

BUYING A HOME

Some Cold Facts Dug Up dy Accountant Humphrey.

LOOKS BAD FOR AGENCIES

Takes Thirty-nine Years Under Agreements, According to Humphrey, to Secure a Lease—Atty.-Gen. Oren Wants Agencies Barred From State.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 20.—An Illinois publication issued in the interests of the various socalled home purchasing concerns which are operating in Michigan and elsewhere, and which Attorney-General Oren is endeavoring to have barred out of the state on the ground that their business is fraudulent and against public policy, made a savage attack on State Accountant Humphrey of Michigan because of the testimony he gave before the Calhoun circuit court. This testimony was given in a case brought against a Battle Creek concern by the attorney-general, and the companies or associations affected by it do not like the showing made by Humphrey as to the working out of their scheme. Inasmuch as there are now a dozen or more of these co-operative organizations working in all parts of the state, the exposition of the actual workings of their plan made by Accountant Humphrey will be of interest.

The contracts are sold in $1,000 combinations. A membership fee of $5, which is credited to the expense fund, is charged. In addition there is a monthly payment required of $2.35, of which $2 is credited to the home fund and 35 cents to the expense fund. This monthly payment is to continue until the contract matures, at which time it is increased to $5.35, of which $5 is credited to the home fund and 35 cents to the expense fund. These payments are to continue until the total amount credited to the home fund equals $1,000. The contract is said to mature when the credits to the home fund in excess of home fund obligations amount to $50. After such maturity the association agrees to pay $50 a month on such contract to the holder and either indorse this payment upon his land contract or deposit it in some bank in trust for such contract holder. When the sum of the $50 payments made by the association equal $1,000 the contract is said to have been "fully performed."

Results of Accounting.

In view of the fact that there has not yet been discovered any rule of progression that will apply to the problem under consideration, Cccountant Humphrey made an accounting with a certain definite number of contracts.

A statement upon which an accounting was made by Mr. Humphrey was based upon twenty-five contracts taken out at the same time; no additional contracts to be issued by the association. This showed as follows: The first of the twenty-five contracts would be "fully performed" in 201 months by the payment of $1,075.35, while the last one would be "fully performed" in 470 months by the payment of $1,169.50. The total payments to the society in performing the twenty-five contracts would be $27,793.75, of which $25,000 would be credited to the home fund and $2,793.75 to the expense fund. Therefore, 10 per cent of the entire payments would be credited to the expense fund. The holder of contract No. 1 would obtain his home in 201 months, or 16¾ years, by a contribution of 7 per cent to the expense fund, while it would take the holder of the twenty-fifth contract 470 months, or 39 1-6 years, with a contribution of 14¼ per cent to the expense fund to obtain his home.

The state accountant also made an accounting with one contract standing alone and receiving no benefit from payments upon other contracts. This accounting showed that it would require $1,080.25 to fully perform this contract, and that it would take 215 months, or 17 11-12 years to accomplish this.

There is no speculation about any of the above statements, as the actual transactions are entered in each of them.

The attorney-general puts these concerns on the same basis at the diamond contract and other schemes that have been exploited within the past few years. A careful examination of the workings of the latest project leads to the conclusion that some of the contract holders in every association of this character will have been a long time dead before their contracts are "fully performed," and that all of them, whether they win or lose, will have paid dearly for their whistles.

BRITISH IN A FIGHT

Command Under Col. Cobbs in East Africa Attacked.

OVER FIFTY MEN KILLED

Force Was Attacked by Natives From Ambush—Colonel Phillips Killed—Situation Somewhat Alarming and More Troops Wanted.

London, Oct. 20.—The foreign office has issued an undated dispatch from Colonel Cobbs, commanding one of the columns of British forces operating against the Mad Mullah in Somaliland. The dispatch was forwarded through the British vice-consul at Berbera, Somaliland. The British forces engaged were composed entirely of native troops and levies. Colonel Cobbs says:

"My force reached Erego this morning. When about one day's march north of Mudug it was attacked in the thick bush. Two advances were made and the enemy was beaten back in the morning. Their losses were heavy and we captured 100 rifles. Our force then proceeded to collect animals for transportation purposes and to join the detachment at the stockade camp. In the afternoon a reconnaissance was made, and after sharp fighting the enemy were again driven off.

"I deeply regret to report the following casualties: Colonel Phillips and Captain Angus and fifty men killed and about one hundred men wounded. The latter include Captain Howard and Lieutenant Everett, but both are doing well. There were severe losses among the transport and riding camels. The forces will reach the stockade camp tomorrow and will advance to attack the enemy."

The vice-consul also telegraphs the substance of a later dispatch from Colonel Swain, who says that as a result of the fighting at Erego Oct. 6, which was very severe, the Somali levies are considerably shaken. The Mullah, who is said to be in communication with Kail and Inger, in the direction of the Webbe river, is bringing up reinforcements from all sides. Colonel Swain is much hampered owing to the necessity of transporting the wounded and water. He is retiring on Bohotle. He asks that 600 further reliable troops be dispatched from Berbera forthwith.

Somaliland is a province on the east coast of Africa, and the town of Mudug some150 miles inland from the ocean.

TERRIBLE RACE RIOT.

Three White Men and Eight Negroes Reported Killed.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 20.—Three white men and eight negroes are reported to have been killed in a race riot at Littleton, Ala., a small town twenty-five miles southwest of this city, last night. The number of wounded has not yet been ascertained.

The riot is said to have been caused by a crowd of negroes attacking a white woman who was passing over a railroad bridge enroute home from a visit to a neighbor.

As soon as the white citizens of the town learned of the attack they began searching for the woman's assailants. The negroes refused to deliver the woman's assailants and armed themselves to protect their leaders. When the posses arrived the negroes opened fire, killing three officers. The deputies returned the fire, killing eight negroes.

Owing to the large number of negroes, who outnumbered the whites ten to one, the posse was forced to retreat. The negroes are reported to be in complete possession of the town and have entrenched themselves. The negroes have captured a powder magazine, the property of a coal company, and are strongly fortified.

How Ney Faced Death.

Marshal Ney was the son of a hard-working cooper and had risen from the ranks of the army. He was a child of the people, and whatever may have been his vanities he threw them all aside in his last days.

When he was led out to death, an officer ordered a bandage tied over his eyes.

"Why should you do that?" said Ney. "Haven't I been accustomed for twenty-five years to look bullets and cannon balls in the face?"

He himself ordered the soldiers to fire, standing and facing them.

His career summed up in one life the spectacular heroism of the past.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by J. J. Orr.

CHAPTER XI.

NOW the most curious part of the matter was that the sword had run through the canvas up to the hilt, where it remained as if it had pierced some reasonably solid body. Ippolita turned and looked at me with a wondering and somewhat frightened expression

Then I came to her aid and, seizing my sword, drew it out, though not without some trouble, and the blade came forth with a sort of whistling, sighing sound, and it was of a crimson hue, and at that moment I heard a thud, as if some soft and heavy body had fallen. Then Ippolita, handing me the sharp dagger which she carried in her bosom, I cut the canvas of the portrait completely out of its frame.

And we saw, to our immense surprise, that the old portrait had covered up a doorway leading to a dark and narrow passage. The door of this passage was now open, and across the sill lay the yet warm body of a fat rascal, into whose paunch Ippolita had stuck my sword as she might have stuck a pin into a pincushion. The fellow wore a white cap and a white, greasy apron, and I came at once to the conclusion that he was my father's cook, that he had been in league with the band of robbers and that my dear fiancee had spitted him in the moment when he was spying at us through the narrow slits which, I now found, had been made in the eyes of Michelozzo.

Taking a lighted taper and kicking the corpse to one side, I now, followed by Ippolita, commenced to explore this secret and mysterious passageway. After we had walked perhaps seventy feet we came to a chamber about twelve feet square, and here it seemed to end. On our way along the corridor my charming companion had found and picked up a handkerchief, and after examining it minutely she now cried out:

"By all the martyrs and Messer San Nicolo into the bargain, this is naught other than the handkerchief of Pico Albizzi, my beloved cousin and the brother of Federigo. It is now the half of a year past that he did come to this, the Pazzi castle, to summon thy sire Arnolfo to the presence of the duke, my father. Days passed, and he returned not, and it was a week afterward that a peasant passing by the Arno, by which name, as thou knowest, is sometimes called the turbulent stream which floweth through the town, found upon the banks of it some way below the city his lifeless corpse. Santissima ergine, he hath, like Ser Ridolfo, been thrown into the Pazzi well, and this passage, this very room, did conduct him to it."

"But, fair lady," I said, "if that is so, how came he to be found upon the Arno's banks?"

"And was not Ser Ridolfo's body also found there?" she answered, with some disdain. "May there not well be from this black bottomless well of thy castle a sluiceway leading to that neighboring stream?"

I now examined the chamber into which we had come and found in the middle of the floor a great crack which reached from wall to wall, and I made up my mind that we were standing directly over the watery tomb which had proved so convenient in the cases of Messers Ridolfo and Pico. It seemed to me altogether likely that the floor of the room, having the great crack in the middle of it, was made in two halves and that these two halves could be let down like lids whenever any one should touch the lever or spring which opened them. Coming to this conclusion, I at once led Ippolita out of that insidious deathtrap, and we commenced to search along the walls of the pasageway for the mechanism by which it could be made to operate. I soon found an iron lever or handle in the corner immediately outside the room, and I took hold of it and pulled, and at once the two halves of the floor went down as though they were hinged to the walls, and in the place of the floor we saw nothing but black, frightful, impenetrable water.

I now dragged the dead body of the cook to the well and threw it in. He came to the surface and floated there upon his back, and as his great fishlike eyes were wide open he presented a spectacle which was anything but agreeable. This water now all at once seemed to sink and recede. Then there came up a great sucking, gurgling noise, and we looked down and saw that it had all gone out of the bottom, taking the cook with it. In a moment the water commenced to come up again. We could not see it at first, away down between the black shining rocks, mounting little by little; then it seemed to rise faster, and in five minutes it was up to the level where we had first seen it. I now worked the lever the other way, and the two halves of the floor came up and met, and the chamber was exactly as it was when we had first entered it.

At this moment we heard a loud knocking at the great street door of the palace. It instantly occurred to me that it was made by Ippolita's people, who had found her whereabouts and come for her, and I immediately set about letting them in. It was some time before I could find the key, and meanwhile they kept at it hammer and tongs, so that I was glad at length to be able to unlock the door and to stop their infernal din. But, lo and behold, when I finally opened it, instead of Ippolita's people, there crowded in, in less time than it takes to tell it, a score of men, among whom I at once recognized Cante Gabrielle, the podesta, the eight members of the signoria and the captain of the watch, with almost a dozen of his men. These latter had surrounded me before I was even aware of their intention, and I made up my mind to submit to capture with a good grace, seeing that there was nothing else to do.

The haughty countess now demanded of the magistrate an explanation of this high handed outrage committed in her presence and upon the person of a gentleman of her acquaintance, and the podesta, who, I now observed, was bandy legged and not above four feet and a half in height, thus answered her:

"Gracious lady and beauteous daughter of our great and worshipful duke, we have proof indubitable that this knave before us, who hath doubtless cajoled and tricked thee with his lying tongue, is a most foul and dangerous conspirator against the duke, my father, and that he [illegible] doth plot against his life. And, to show that I speak sooth, it is whispered about at this very moment that the Elevationists have already arisen and that in the name of this man who is now our captive they do intend this very night to sack the palace and to murder thy sire. Wherefore hie thee away presently to a place of safety, and, as for this swashbuckler, this traditore santanico, go to, we will attend to his affair."

The graceful and stately daughter of Castruccio listened to him with an air of wonder and then gazed at me for a moment with a regretful and half incredulous look. It did not seem to me possible that she could at once believe the word of this gross and senseless official in the face of my love for her and the devotion I had shown her, but she seemed upon the point of doing so. She now turned away from me coldly, and I knew at once that her determination was taken.

"It is all on account of that unfortunate dissension about our ancestors," thought I, "and because of her finding that infernal handkerchief in the passageway."

"Sayest thou even so, worthy podesta?" said she at length. "And yet I might have been convinced sooner of the prince's perfidy if I had believed the evidences which have been thrust upon me and had listened to the dictates of reason. Ho, ye burly men of the watch, bind the villain hand and foot and tie him fast in yonder chair!"

To say that I was shocked and grieved and surprised beyond measure at my quondam inamorata's harshness toward me does but poorly express my feelings. The halberdiers of the watch to whom she had given this peremptory order at once produced cords and secured me firmly to the chair as she had directed.

"And now," she continued, "Messer Gabrielle and right worshipful members of the signoria and men of the watch, follow me, every one of ye, and, by our Lady, I will show ye such crying and damnable evidences of the guilt and cruelty and bloodthirstiness of this family of the Pazzi as will cause ye to wish them presently exterminated from the face of the earth."

With that she took the wax taper and went along the secret passage, and they all, without exception, followed her, and when she had come to the entrance of the ominous chamber she stood aside by the doorway and let the whole score of them pass into the room, and I could see the whole proceeding from the chair where I sat.

"This," said she to the closely assembled group before her, "is the most wicked spot in this most wicked and bloody castle. Domeniddio alone knoweth how many murders have here been done upon their foes by the remorseless Pazzi. See, I have but to pull this lever and the floor will disappear from beneath your feet and ye will be cast down into that black and bottomless well of which you have doubtless heard."

At this a great fright seemed to seize upon the gaping crew, and they crowded quickly and eagerly to the entrance, and then Ippolita must have pulled the lever, for I saw their hands wave in the air, heard a most awful and blood curdling shriek made of all their combined voices and saw them suddenly disappear. Then there came a great splashing, a sound of oaths and of blows and of death struggles, and in a moment all was still once more.

Ippolita now worked the lever back, and the floor rose again to its place. Then she came to me very quietly and coolly and proceeded to untie my fastenings.

"I will wager thou didst believe that I did not love thee, my Timoteo," said she. "Beshrew me, but I did not think that so light a touch would move yon iron lever, and now that I do bethink me I am of the opinion that I did bear upon it too heavily."

Was she not a magnificent, noble and yet inexplicable creature? With one movement of the hand she had disposed of and put out of existence the whole of the executive and judicial part of the government of the realm, to say nothing about a half score of the watch, and yet she made no more of it than if they had been so many flies.

I now went out to the stables and saddled Aldebaran, my noble steed of ebony, and, hunting around at some length, I found a dilapidated pillion, which I also strapped upon him. Then I led him to the great door of the castle and took a long rich cloak which had been brought by one of the robbers and which he had evidently stolen at the duke's banquet, and wrapped it around Ippolita so that her dress and face were concealed. I lifted her upon the pillion and, springing to my place in the saddle, gave the intelligent animal the rein, and we set out for Castruccio's palace.

FROM WASHINGTON.

A Letter Full of Good Things on COAL STRIKE, BEEF TRUST,

Washington, Oct. 20, 1902.

The conclusion of the coal strike, representing as it does to most people, the triumph of reason over brute force, of common sense over obstinacy, of arbitration over strike, look-out and boycott, oppression and violence, is the one subject which held public attention in Washington all last week. There is a unanimous sentiment that great thanks are due to the president for his timely, intelligent and dignified interference. The personnel of the commission is regarded with marked approval. Whether the individual believes that the operators or the miners are the injured parties, all have confidence that the arbitration commission will ascertain the facts and that its findings will procure justice to all concerned for a period of not less than three years. Beyond the confident belief that the miners at their convention today will accept the settlement agreed upon by President Mitchell, and that all the arbitrators will accept the the responsibility laid upon them by the president, no details are obtainable. It is presumed that the commission will hold sessions in Washington, New York and in some city in the coal regions. It is also known that it will require a two-thirds vote on all questions at issue.

It is generally accepted that the miners will return to work not later than Thursday of this week. Some apprehension is felt over the situation resulting from the employment of new men to take the place of the strikers. It is estimated that about 1,700 such men are now at work and, unless the operators make a special effort, they will be compelled to leave a similar number of the strikers without employment.

Prof. David T. Day, chief of the division of mineral resources of the geological survey, said yesterday, that he did not believe it would be possible for the coal output during the first two weeks to exceed 60,000 tons and the supply would not be normal before February.

As if to mitigate the relief occasioned by the settlement of the coal strike, the news comes from New Jersey of the incorporation, under the laws of that state, of the beef trust, under the name of the United States Packing Co., with a capital of $1,000,000, which amount, it is anticipated, will be shortly increased to $500,000. The articles of incorporation provide for the adoption of all the methods usual with similar corporations, including the purchase and maintenance of retail butcher shops. As usual, the stockholders are "dummies," clerks in the office of the trust company which procures the charter.

The secretary of the treasury has finally resorted to the purchase of bonds with a view to relieving the money stringency. Only a week ago the secretary was deploring the scarcity of bonds on which the banks could base an extensive issue of currency. Now he is buying them up and thus further diminishing the supply. His course is similar to that pursued by Secretary Gage and others of his predecessors and is doubtless rendered necessary by the exigencies of the situation, but it serves to again emphasize the deplorable incongruities of our financial system, incongruities which, in a country of fewer natural resources, must have resulted in serious panics and loss, ere now.

President Roosevelt recently issued a timely warning to the members of his cabinet, in the form of a circular letter calling their attention to the lavish use of money and printer's ink in the preparation of government publications. He states his belief that "there is much useless matter and a large number of unnecessary and expensive illustrations included in many of the reports and documents published." While all that Mr. Roosevelt says is true, he fails to call attention to the root of the evil which is found in congressional orders for the printing of large editions of handsomely printed publications so that members of congress may have abundant handsome momentos to send to their constituents. This whole practice has degenerated into a dishonest scheme for making the government pay a large share of the campaign expenses of aspirants for re-election.

As a result of the combined army and navy manœuvers, the engineer's bureau of the war department will now turn its attention to the development of a more adequate system of coast defense. The manœuvers demonstrated the fact that, while it would be impossible for an enemy to approach any important point along the northern Atlantic coast by daylight, without the knowledge of the military forces charged with the coast defense, at night the feat is possible of accomplishment. Every effort will now be made to establish a system of search lights, electric signals and batteries which will make such night attack impossible. Such a system is now installed but the recent manœuvers demonstrated that it contained many defects which the engineers will seek to remedy.

Those school children who have to wrestle with the old rule, "the sum of the squares of the two sides of a right angled triangle will equal the square of the hypothenuse" and, as they struggle with the intricacies of square root are included to question the use of such apparently abstract propositions, may be interested to know that the whole system of the modern range-finder, by which the distance of vessels at sea is accurately ascertained, is based on that single proposition. A small telescope on a mount provided with spirit levels, etc. is levelled at the water-line of the ship. The exact height of the small end of the telescope above the sea level is known and furnishes the perpendicular, the angle of the telescope furnishes the hypothenuse and tables carefully calculated before hand, supply the base or the actual distance from the ship. Another table supplies the "trajectory," the circle which the shell will describe when shot up into the air, and with these figures the gun can be aimed with mechanical accuracy. The trajectory is necessary because in firing at long range big guns are never aimed directly at the target but are pointed upwards at an angle which will insure the projectile's falling at a given point, just as a ball is thrown a long distance.

CLUB NOTES.

The Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs is asking President Roosevelt to appoint Jane Addams, of Hull House fame, on the commission to arbitrate the coal strike. They claim that Miss Addams, as an eminent sociologist is particularly fitted to deal with the problems of working men.

The Wit and Wisdom Club were delightfully entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kemp, last evening. There was an exceptionally large attendance and a general good time reported. The program was in charge of Rev. DeSpelder and was carried out as announced: Roll Call, Jewish proverbs and quotations; "The World's Debt to the Jew", Table Talk, led by Prof. Kellogg, Does the Historical Novel teach History? Miss Carol Kemp assisted with instrumental music, violin and piano after which refreshments were served, Mr. and Mrs. DeSpelder assisting the hostess with the serving. The Wit and Wisdom is a fortnightly organization which believes in a light supper after heavy literary work and the idea meets with such approval that there is always a quorum as their meetings and unanimous reports of a good time.

At the Baptist State convention held last week in Detroit, Rev. C. A. Eaton, of Cleveland, who is styled "Rockefeller's Pastor," handed down an opinion on women's clubs which the young people of the denomination would do well to preserve as a curiosity for the generations who come after us. He says:

"And you women," addressing women in general, "would better leave off your fooling around with clubs and afternoon teas and stay home and take care of your babies. We say we need more preachers. But preachers are born, not made, and how can a Christian preacher be born of a heathen mother? Where is the woman today who consecrates her babe to the ministry."

We didn't know that an attendance on clubs and afternoon teas was an evidence of heathenism. Young Baptists used to be taught that heathen mothers gave their babies to the crocodiles of the Ganges; we supposed we had advanced a step. We don't know how it is in Cleveland, brother, but here in Michigan we do not so much "need more preachers" as we do more practicers. Any of us can preach! We hope the babies of the present club women will be the better citizens because their mothers knew how to do other things beside "taking care" of them. And if any of them, despite their unfortunate "heathen" environment, should happen to become preachers, we trust it will be with some greater claim to distinction than being just a "Rockefeller's Pastor."

Katherine Willard and company gave a fine presentation of the above named play at "The Bradley," Saturday evening. Every character was nicely represented. Aria, by Miss Willard, Ruth Gadsly as Frau Winter, Camille Porter as the maid, Maude Durand as the Duchess are finely protrayed and Guy B. Hoffman and Wright Lorimer are worth mentioning as especially good as the Musician and Baron. In fact the company was very evenly balanced, not a poor one among them.

DON H. C. BOWEN

Nominated by the Democrats as

STATE REPRESENTATIVE

For the First District of Lenawee.

On a bleak 5th of December, thirty-one years ago, there arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. N. Bowen, two and one-half miles northwest of the village of Tecumseh, their first born, a son, and the subject of this sketch, Don H. C. Bowen. Like most country boys his early youth was spent in doing chores, robbing bumblebees nests, attending district school and making friends, which latter occupation has been continued from that day to this, his circle of friends being limited only by the scope of his acquaintanceship.

In 1886 he entered the Tecumseh High School, being graduated with honor in the class of 1890, afterward taking an advanced as well as a commercial course in the college at Delaware, Ohio. In his school days he took an active interest in lyceum work, acquiring the art of pleasing as well as convincing argument in debate and an ease of delivery and address.

After spending a year or two upon his father's farm, Mr. Bowen took a position as editor of the Tecumseh Herald, where his ready mind and pencil were ever busy pushing ahead the interests of his native village and townsmen. It was while with this paper that he was instrumental in organizing and holding together the independent party ticket which has been for the past five years, dominant in village politics, giving a clean, progressive and economic administration, together with a marked improvement in street and sidewalk conditions, and fire protection. Four times elected village clerk by ever encreasing majorities, he handled the office to the satisfaction of all parties, by his prompt, genial, courteous treatment and willingness to please and accomodate.

A Democrat by birth and ancestry, believing firmly in the principles of his party, he engages the respect of his opponents by his unobtrusive manner and advocacy of the right of every man to his own opinion, while the friends from other parties who have stood by him in former contests are counted by the score. Prehaps his own words in answer to a question will give the best idea of the situation: "Many of the best friends I have in the world are Republicans".

Well known at home politically, and having perhaps the best knowledge of local politics of any one person, he is more widely acquainted through his lodge affiliations, being prominently known throughout this part of the state as a zealous and hustling lodgeman. Don Bowen has no "politician's glad smile" which he puts on and takes off as election times draw near or depart, but is justplain, genial, good natured "Don" to everyone, poor or rich, respected or despised, from the gray haired pioneer to the street urchin; alike yesterday, tomorrow.

So when the Democrats of the first legislative district of Lenawee saw fit to nominate him as their candidate for representative, they knew that every democrat in this district could heartily endorse the action of the convention and that every independent voter could do the same with the assurance that their interests as men and citizens would be taken care of under the rule of "the greatest good to greatest number". The democratic nominee has nothing to explain away, is tied to no machine gang nor clique and stands as an advocate of equal taxation, primary election reform, the repeal of special privilege acts and absolute local control by municipalities. Is anti-ripper, anti-Navin and anti-bossism, believing that every man is a free moral agent, who should lead, and not blindly follow.

If elected, as he certainly should be all classes will have their representative; the farming classes being benefited by his early training and associations and the population centers by his experience as a student of their conditions, whereby he has made of himself a successful business man, and neither will be to the detriment of the other, while extensive travel throughout the state has made him conversant, not only with the people, but with the varying conditions which go to make up this commonwealth, and cannot help but enhance his value as a representative of the people. So when the electors of this district cast their votes next month let them consider well, and if they choose to elect a bright, capable, honest young man to be their representative, who will be a credit to the district and to himself, then let that vote be cast for Don H. C. Bowen.

Aching Joints

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, are joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

Sufferers dread to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and their condition is commonly worse in wet weather.

"It has been a long time since we have been without Hood's Sarsaparilla. My father thinks he could not do without it. He has been troubled with rheumatism since he was a boy, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine he can take that will enable him to take his place in the field." Miss Ada Doty, Sidney, Iowa.

BAILEY-BARNES.

Miss Anna May Bailey and Mr. Arthur Seth Barnes, of Bristol, Conn., were

UNITED IN HOLY WEDLOCK

At the Home of Mr. and Mrs. James Clarkson in the Presence of 75 Guests.

A beautiful wedding occurred last Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Clarkson, northeast of Tecumseh, being the marriage of Miss Anna May Bailey to Mr. Arthur Seth Barnes, of Bristol, Conn.

Promptly at six o'clock the services began. As the bride and groom entered the front parlor through the folding doors, ropes of smilax and ribbon made an aisle for their passage. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Mrs. Levi Hayden. The party took their stand in an embowered corner of the room, distinguished by its beautiful decoration. During the words of the service soft piano accompaniment continued, lending peculiar charm and impressiveness.

The beautiful ring service of the Episcopal church was performed by Rev. Scarlett, of Macon. Miss Josephine Hayden was the only attendant, she bearing the ring on a silver tray. The ropes of smilax were held by Misses Winnifred DeBald, of St. John; May Clarkson, of Ann Arbor; Camilla Mead and Lina Havens, of this place. The bride was beautiful in a gown of white peau de soie silk made over whitetaffata. A wedding supper was served from 7:30 to 9.

The decorations of the parlor were especially fine. The dining room presented a beautiful scene, the color scheme of the bride's table was of green and white, the others being of yellow and pink and were in charge of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Anderson.

Many handsome gifts were received which told in a material way of the esteem in which this young couple are held.

The happy couple left the same evening on a wedding trip but will return before going to Bristol, Conn., where they will make their future home.

The out-of-town friends attending were: father of the groom, Mr. Barnes of Bristol, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Clarkson, daughter, Miss Mary and son Willis, of Ann Arbor; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Clarkson, of Detroit; Judge and Mrs. DeBald, of St. John; Mr. and Mrs. Walsdorf, of St. John; Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Phelps, of Marshall; Mr. and Mrs S. W. Anderson, Mrs. E. B. Wood, Mrs. Levi Hayden, Misses Camilla Mead Lina Havens and Mary Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Anderson of this place.

Republican Meeting

Charles E. Townsend, the republican candidate for Congress in this district, will address the citizens of Tecumseh at the New Bradley opera house tomorrow, Wednesday evening, Oct. 25, 7:30 o'clock. Mr. Townsend is a good candid talker and will endeavor to present the issues of the day in a fair way. All are invited to come and hear him.

Wheatland girls are jealous, caused by the arrival of the northern lady, recently. A certain "Farmer" thinking there wasn't anyone in Hillsdale county good enough for him, advertised for a wife. A lady promptly answered, this soon ripened into a love affair. The lady tired of waiting for him to come after her, and packed up a very commodious trunk, put a collar on her little dog, and started for his home, situated some miles east of North Adams. It would seem that he was not favorably impressed, for he immediately picked himself up and took in the Washington excursion. Thinking better of this, he returned in a few days, and now we are anxiously waiting for the next chapter, which proves to be equally as interesting as the first, as the new comer announced her intention of staying indefinitely.

"I think I must look over it," as the horse said to the gate of the clover field.

One day well spent is worth two well meant.

If the camera could photograph our thoughts, how would you like to have your picture taken? I am asking the question of you, the man or woman who is reading this paragraph.

ANSWER IT HONESTLY

Are the Statements of Tecumseh Citizens Not More Reliable Than Those of Utter Strangers?

This is a vital question.

It is fraught with interest to Tecumseh,

It permits of only one answer.

It cannot be evaded or ignored.

A Tecumseh citizen speaks here,

Speaks for the welfare of Tecumseh.

A citizen's statement is reliable.

Mr. S. Erskine, proprietor of the well-known barber shop says: "For ten years off and on I had a dull pain in my back imperfect action of the kidneys, and often I could hardly stoop or get up again. I think it was caused by standing so much at my work.

Be that as it may, I was in bad shape. I used a great many medicines but without receiving much benefit until Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice and I got a box at C. A. Wright's drug store. I must confess that I was agreeably surprised for after using one box I was much relieved. After the use of two boxes my back is stronger and better than it has been for a long time. Doan's Kidney Pills are the best medicine I have ever used and I have such faith in them, I believe I will be conferring a kindness on those suffering from kidney trouble in making known their merits."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cent per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Wolsey's Household.

In Cardinal Wolsey's palace no less than 280 beds were provided for strangers, with superb canopies and curtains of silk or velvet. There were bedsteads of alabaster, quilts of down and pillowcases embroidered with silk and gold. The chairs of state were covered with cloth of gold; the tables and cabinets were of the most costly woods. Much of the splendid furniture was emblazoned with "my lord's arms." Everywhere was impressed the cardinal's hat. The same magnificence appeared in the decorations and ornaments of the chapel, but the forty-four gorgeous copes of one suit and the rest of the sacerdotal pomp displayed there were eclipsed by the majesty of Wolsey's secular equipment,

The annual expenses of his household exceeded £30,000, an immense sum for those days. His retinue of 500 persons, his kingly stud, his sumptuous open table, are mentioned in every history. When he rode to and from Westminster in his character of lord chancellor, his mule was attended by a long train of nobles and knights on horseback; his pursuivant, ushers and other officers led the way in rich liveries, while footmen with gilded poleaxes brought up the rear.

Unkind.

"I think," she said, "I should like to marry an imaginative man."

"Well," said her friend, speaking very sweetly, "what other kind of a man can you expect to marry, if he has a chance to see you in daylight?"

Telephone Saved Her Life.

Owosso, Mich., Oct. 20.—The telephone Sunday saved the life of Miss Maggie Tyrrell, operator for the Union company in this city. Miss Tyrrell was not feeling well and did not work. She lighted the gas in her room at the residence of F. C. Greenman in the afternoon and accidentally turned on both burners, only one of which was lighted. Miss Tyrrell awoke from a doze to find the room filled with fumes, but managed to stagger to her telephone and call central. "Send me some help," was all she could say before fainting away. Central heard her fall and sent in a hurry call for a doctor, who broke in Miss Tyrrell's door and carried her out into the air.

Mr. Richardson, who was twenty-five years of age and a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, left Munising to spend Sunday with a former classmate in Chicago, and no trace of him since has been found. He had just recovered from an attack of typhoid fever.

Returned Her Stolen Jewels.

Duluth, Oct. 20.—Mrs. T. D. Merrill, who lost a pearl necklace and diamonds valued at $7,000 last Wednesday, recovered the jewels Sunday. The gems were in a jewel case which Mrs. Merrill kept in a safety deposit vault at one of the banks. She took the case from the vault and left it on the counter while she wrote and had cashed a check. She then left the bank, forgetting her valuable property, but returned quickly to find it gone. The police were notified and a reward of $500 was offered for the return of the jewels. A stranger went to the Merrill home yesterday and delivered the gems to their owner. He refused to receive the reward and declined to give his name or to tell how the jewels came into his possession.

Sippets.

Sippets, mentioned often in English stories, may be either of bread or of toast. Sippets of toast are thin oblongs of bread toasted to a golden brown, slightly buttered and piled in one or two layers, log cabin fashion, without breaking, on a folded napkin; or the sippets are of untoasted bread arranged on a hot plate, the juice from roasted beef or mutton poured over.

A Weather Glass.

A simple weather glass is made thus: Obtain a glass jar, such as is used for pickles, and put some water into it; then get a bottle with a long neck, if possible, and put it in the jar, with the neck downward, till the mouth just touches the water. When the water rises in the bottle, it is going to rain, and when it is down fine weather pre

His Life in Peril.

"I just seemed to have gone all to eces," writes Alfred Bee, of Welfare Tex., "biliousness and a lame back had made life a burden. I couldn't eat or sleep and felt almost too worn out to work when I began to use Electric Bitters, but they worked wonders. Now I sleep like a top, can eat anything, have gained in strength and enjoy hard work." They give vigorous health and new life to weak, sickly, run-down people. Try them. Only 50c at C. A. What the Bellevue doctors believe t be one of the smallest babies with a chance of life that has ever been born is now in the hospital at New York City. The baby weighs only 10 ounces. It is a little less than eight inches long and its head is not any larger than a ping pong ball. The child is perfectly developed, and its head is especially well formed, the features being as perfect as they are diminutive. The baby has black eyes, and a little fringe of black hair encircles its tiny head. The baby is the daughter of Patrick and Frances Lombardi, 22 and 20 years old, respectively.

The Best Business College.

In selecting a business training school the best is the only one profitable to be considered. The best business college in America, in age, efficiency, enterprise and proved results, is the Detroit Business University, Detroit, Mich. It points to over fifty years of unexampled success.

W. C. Moran, of Rural Route No. 1, delivered his mail though Madison and Palmyra to day by an automobile. Andrew Bachle, from the Church Manufacturing company, took one of the new machines to "test it out," as the term is, and help Mr. Moran deliver his mail in a hurry. The trip with a horse usually takes all day, or seven and a half hours including a stop for dinner. This trip was made in two hours and 38 minutes, and the cyclometer registered 29¼ miles. They were home in time for dinner at the usual hour for eating. The machine worked finely, going though the heavy sand in good shape. "Every-body seemed to like it except the chickens," says Mr. Moran, "and they looked terribly surprised."—Adrian Telegram.

A curiosity in the vegetable line is in the possession of Frank A. Kalder, a Hillsdale county man, who raised it on his farm. It is a winter radish, weighing 11½ pounds. The body is 22 inches long, and the total length including the roots, is three feet.

The girls employed at the canning factory at Manchester are now receiving $1.00 per day, the result of their strike.

The Royal Month and the Royal Disease.

Sudden changes of weather are especially trying, and probably to none more so than to the scrofulous and consumptive. The progress of scrofula during a normal October is commonly great. We never think of scrofula—its bunches, cutaneous eruptions, and wasting of the bodily substance,—without thinking of the great good many sufferers from it have derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla, whose radical and permanent cures of this one disease are enough to make it the most famous medicine in the world. There is probably not a city or town where Hood's Sarsaparilla has not proved its merit in more homes than one, in arresting and completely eradicating scrofula, which is almost as serious and as much to be feared as its near relative—consumption.

NO UNIFORMS FOR THEM.

Kalamazoo Department Store Girls Refuse to Wear Them.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 18.—An attempt of Olin, White & Olin, the large department store here, to compel all clerks to wear uniforms caused a mutiny among them which yesterday brought about a dramatic culmination. A general strike of all the employes of the big store was threatened if the order was insisted upon. The firm employs twenty-five lady clerks.

An order was issued recently by Charles White, one of the partners, requiring all to wear black waists and skirts, with high linen collars, four-in-hand white ties, with blue polka dats, and white aprons, without lace trimming of any sort. It also strongly suggested these clerks must not wear their hair in pompadour style, but tied in a Psyche knot back of the head. The idea was to distinguish the employes of the store and previous customers from feeling abashed in the presence of clerks dressed as well as themselves.

Friday morning all appeared gowned as usual. Miss Katharine Hollestette, one of the best salesladies in the city, was summoned to the private office as soon as White appeared and took in the situation. She wore a dainty white waist and fancy tie.

When asked why she did not obey the mandate and wear a uniform, she answered: "I don't consider it anybody's business but my own how I dress."

Upon being told she must obey or quit, she instantly left the store, immediately securing a position with a rival firm.

Instead of surrendering when they saw Miss Hollestette discharged, the girls are more united against the uniform and declare the effort is an appeal to a few who wish class distinctions emphasized. All declare they will leave the store rather than be forced into distasteful costumes. The idea is not generally looked upon favorably by some of the best society women. Some hint at a boycott if the girls are discharged and others employed who will consent to wear uniforms.

Budget Approved.—The Cuban cabinet has approved the annual budget, the expenditures in which amount to about $14,000,000; the receipts are estimated at over $16,000,000.

Russian and Japanese Trade.—Negotiations have nearly been completed for the establishment of extensive trading relations between Russia and Japan, under which special privileges are to be granted to each country. A line of first-class steamers is to be promoted between the Bleck sea and Japan.

Ask For Special Donation.—The miners' relief committee of 100 has sent out a circular to ministers of Chicago churches, asking a special donation Sunday. "The close of the strike brings no immediate relief to the sufferings of many thousand women and children in the poverty-stricken region," says the circular.

France's Wheat Harvest.—Consul Haynes at Rouen has transmitted to the state department the first estimates made of the coming wheat harvest of France, which gives it at 382,840,484 bushels, with a surface of 16,814,740 acres. This is an average of 50.69 bushels per 2.4 acres, against 49.89 bushels last year.

Business Men on a Trip.—A trip of more than 3,000 miles, which will require fourteen days to complete, and in which several states will be visited, will be made by a number of leading business men, bankers and manufacturers of Chicago. The state of Texas is the objective point and this party of Chicago business men will spend seven days in crossing the state and will stop at all the larger towns in the state.

Professional Envy.

An Italian philosopher has amused himself by constructing a scale of degrees for the measurement of professional envy. The highest point in this envy measurer is ten.

Architects are happily placed lowest on the scale. They register only 1; advogates and priests and military men are ranged at 2, and in the ascending scale he gives us professors of science and literature, 4; journalists, 5; authors, 8; physicians, 9; actors and actresses, 10. The small amount of envy among architects is held to be due to their precise, severe and rigid studies. The same thing applies to advocates.

Among the clergy envy is found mostly in preachers. In the military career envy is quiescent in time of peace, but can become acute in time of war. Envy makes men of science and literature lead solitary lives, diffident of each other. Among physicians envy is still more prevalent, and they do not spare their colleagues, often terming them charlatans. In the theatrical world envy reaches its acute form, vanity playing a great part in its production.

Crows as Weather Prophets.

The belief that two crows are a happy omen and that they appear to warn men from disaster is very ancient. Alexander the Great was thus saved in Egypt by two crows, and King Alonzo would assuredly have perished in 1147 had it not been for two crows, one of which perched on the prow and the other on the stern of his ship, so pointing the prow of the royal barge safely into port. Crows and rooks are very much alike. It is said that when rooks desert a rookery it forebodes the downfall of the family on whose property it is.

They are also credited with being good weather prognosticators. When the weather is about to be very bad, they stay as near home as possible, but when they foreknow that it will be set fair they start off in the morning right away to a distance where they have an instinct that the food they need is plentiful. Again, if the rooks are seen venturing into the streets of a town or village it is a sure sign of an approaching snowstorm.—All the Year Round.

Books and Bookshelves.

"Low bookshelves," says a furniture dealer, who is a lover of books as well, "have an origin in a reason besides the caprice of fashion. Heat is injurious to the binding of choice books, drying out the natural oil of the leather and making them warp and get out of shape. Most rooms are very warm in the upper parts, and these five and six foot bookcases are a necessity rather than a notion. Cold is as hard on books as overheating, and an atmosphere that is too damp or too dry also injures them. The sun pouring in directly on the shelves fades the bindings. You can have a cheerful, sunny library and yet keep the volumes out of the sun's full power."

Breaking Up "Chatter."

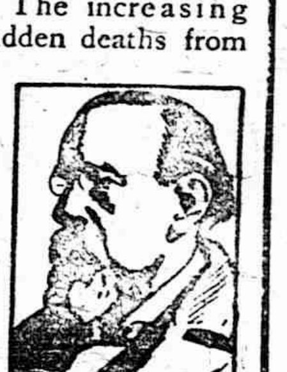
The famous painter Fuseli had a great contempt for "chatter." One afternoon a party of friends paid a visit to his studio, and after a few moments spent in looking at the pictures they seated themselves and proceeded to indulge in a long and purposeless talk. At last, in one of the slight pauses, Fuseli said earnestly, "I had pork for dinner today."

"Why, my dear Mr. Fuseli," exclaimed one of the startled group, "what an extremely odd remark!"

"Is it?" said the painter ingenuously. "Why, isn't it as interesting and important as anything that has been said for the last hour?"

Parliamentary Frontiers.

On either side of the commons chamber of our parliament house there is a distinct line along the floor, and any member who, when speaking, steps outside the line on his side is liable to be called to order. These lines are supposed to be scientific frontiers, and the neutral zone between is beyond the length of a sword thrust, and, although members no longer wear swords, except those who are selected to move and second addresses to the throne on certain occasions, the old precaution still lingers on.—Westminster Gazette.



A Good Hearted Man,

or in other words, men with good sound hearts, are not very numerous. The increasing number of sudden deaths from heart disease daily chronicled by the press, is proof of the alarming prevalence of this dangerous complaint, and as no one can foretell just when a fatal collapse will occur, the danger of neglecting treatment is certainly a very risky matter. LAST TROUBLE REMOVED.

New York, Oct. 18.—Bradstreet's weekly review of trade today says: With the settlement of the great coal strike of 1902, the most remarkable in some respects of modern record, practically the only unfavorable feature in general trade and industry disappears. Coincident with this also have been the ending of several minor troubles of a similar nature. While relief to the public mind is, perhaps, the most immediate result, it is natural to expect that present abnormal prices and conditions in fuel supply will gradually disappear.

All other trade developments this week are largely favorable. Retail trade has generally improved, stimulated at the west, northwest and south by cooler weather, fall festivals and carnivals. Jobbing demand is also better, particularly at the west. Dry goods, shoe, hat and caps, clothing, hardware and lumber dealers have all done well.

Reasonable strength is noted in butter and cheese, and the metals are also higher. In the general strength of farm products the weakness in cotton is notable. Wool is firm at all eastern markets, manufacturers are liberal buyers, stocks are being pretty well reduced and holders are inclined to ask for higher quotations.

Wheat, including flour, exports for the week ending Oct. 16 aggregate 5,240,688 bu, against 5,645,779 last week, 5,536,073 in this week last year, and 3,796,643 in 1900. Wheat exports since July 1 aggregate 78,371,180 bu, against 95,103,917 last season and 55,302,165 in 1900. Corn exports aggregate 180,674 bu, against 180,358 last week, 640,033 last year and 2,886,993 in 1900. For the fiscal year, exports are 1,558,266 bu, against 14,944,843 last season and 50,094,691 in 1900.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending Thursday, Oct. 16, number 203, as against 170 last week, 198 in this week last year, 223 in 1900, 221 in 1899 and 213 in 1898. In Canada failures for the week number 15, against 20 last week and 29 in this week a year ago.

WAR PRACTICALLY OVER.

"Nicholas Mole, Haiti, Oct. 17.—St. Marc surrendered on Oct. 14; National forces occupied town peaceably. Cincinnati arrived at Gonaives Wednesday noon (Oct. 15). Firmin evacuated Gonaives and has left by Hamburg-American steamer for Mathewtown, Bahama islands, with about 250 adherents, leaving no government at the place. Have landed force for the protection of American consulate and to preserve order. German gunboat landed force also. National forces are near at hand, and it is expected they will occupy town Saturday or next day. All quiet there. It is considered practically the end of the revolution. I am returning to Gonaives immediately; I shall embark landing party and will proceed to Cape Haitien when affairs are settled at Gonaives. No attempt has been made to blockade ports mentioned in my last telegram (St. Marc, and Gonaives). French cruiser d'Assais arrived at Gonaives Thursday, Oct. 16, 8 p. m.

THE BATTLE CONTINUES.

Venezuela Waging Greatest Fight in Her History.

Washington, Oct. 18.—The greatest battle that Venezuela has ever known is still raging, according to a cablegram received Friday from United States Minister Bowen at Caracas, which reads:

It has been decided at the state department that the one United States vessel now at La Guiara, the port of Caracas, is sufficient for the present needs. The Henrietta, which is the vessel referred to, might in case of need quickly send a guard of marines and blue jackets to the United States legation at Caracas if Mr. Bowen desires their presence, and even a small guard, it is not doubted, will be sufficient for all purposes.

The Mississippi 400,000 Years Ago.

Did you ever figure on what was the probable condition of the great Mississippi river 10,000, 100,000 or even 400,000 years ago? Scientists suggest that the erosion of its bed was accomplished by a mighty cataract, which began far down the river, probably at the place where it then emptied into the gulf, and by gradual retrogression dug out the valleylike gorge through which it now flows. That this theory is tenable may be inferred from the high, wall-like bluffs, features so characteristic of the upper part of its course.

A wearing away of a monster cataract would of course necessarily leave high walls or bluffs on either side. These are the well known features of the father of meandering streams. It would seem, according to this theory, that St. Anthony's falls constitute the remnant of what was once the most stupendous cataract in the world. Geologists estimate that it has taken the river 400,000 years to carve out the mighty ditch through which it now flows.

Stricken with Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured.—Geo. R. McDonald, Man, Logan county, W. Va. Several other remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by J. J. Orr.

SCRAMBLE FOR JOBS

Thousands of Workmen Flock to the Mines.

MACHINERY SOMEWHAT RUSTY

Operators Assure Us Plenty of Coal Before Cold Weather Begins—Many Engineers and Pumpmen Failed to Get Their Old Jobs.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 23.—Rapid progress is being made by all the coal companies in the anthracite region toward a general resumption of coal mining. The suspension officially ended at 7 o'clock this morning, but the quantity of coal that will be mined this week will not be great. It is not believed 25 per cent of the normal production will be reached until some time next week. There are a number of mines that will not be in condition for operation for several months, and there are others that will not be ready for the men under two or three weeks.

The day was devoted to a general inspection at most collieries to see what is needed in the way of repairs before the men can cut coal. Every piece of machinery must be gone over to see whether it is in fit condition to be operated before the fans in most mines can be started to drive out the gas and other impurities in the air. In a great number of collieries there will have to be much timbering done to prevent "squeezes."

The nearly six months' idleness has in many instances rusted breaker machinery, which may cause some delay in starting. Notwithstanding the many drawbacks, however, the company officials are confident there will be plenty of coal for distribution before real cold weather sets in.

A Rush For Jobs.

Thousands of men of every class made application for work yesterday. Under the decision of the convention, those directly employed in cutting and handling coal cannot return to work until this morning, but workmen who are needed for repairs and otherwise to place the workings in condition for operation were reinstated wherever needed. There were many disappointments, however, principally among the engineers and pumpmen. These two classes of mineworkers struck on June 2 for an eight-hour day and also to help the miners win their contest. Their positions are not so arduous as those of the miners and their labor and wages paid are comparatively better. They want their old positions back, and in many cases they failed.

It is the opinion of the workers that the superintendents will find a way to re-employ all of them. The unionists say the companies will get rid of all incompetent men hired during the suspension, because when the collieries begin working full time the non-union men will not be able to fill their places properly.

One of the developments of the day was the great number of men who have been employed throughout the strike who left their places and returned to their homes. Hundreds were paid off by the several coal companies in this valley, and the same is true of the other regions.

President Mitchell is now engaged in preparing the miners' side of the case for presentation to the arbitration commission. He will appear before the tribunal and will have with him a number of assistants.

Death List Reaches Twelve.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Four of the five bodies taken to the morgue from the fire in the plant of the Glucose Sugar Refining company Tuesday night have been identified as follows: Otto Trapp, Edward Steinke, Andrew Woselka, Joseph Barry. It is almost certain that several more bodies are lying in the ruins, but the heat of the debris has prevented firemen from making any search, and the exact number is not known. Seventeen time checks were not returned to the superintendent during the day, but five of the men holding the missing checks were seen near the ruins during the day. A switchman declares that he saw four men slide down a water pipe, and it is known that one man jumped into the river and made his escape. This diminishes the list to eleven or twelve.

Why Boer Leaders Are Coming.

Berlin, Oct. 23.—Dr. Dickie, pastor of the American church here, conversing with the Boer generals Saturday, asked General Botha why he was going to America and he replied: "Because many of the most prominent men in the United States are of Dutch descent and therefore sympathize with us." "Yes," said General Dewet, "many cousins of my family are in America." Dr. Dickie said he had never heard of a Dewet in the United States. "The name is spelled De Witt," replied the general. "Most of the De Witts in America are distant kinsmen of mine."

Illegally Occupying the Lands.

Washington, Oct. 23.—Colonel John S. Mosby, special agent of the interior department, called upon the president Wednesday and laid before him the result of his investigation of the illegal occupation of public lands in Colorado and other western states by stock raisers. Colonel Mosby told the president that millions of acres of public land that ought rightfully to be open to the homestead settler were occupied by stock raisers. After concluding the investigation it is making the interior department, it is expected, will take measures to oust such stock raisers as are not occupying the public lands lawfully.

Britain Has Her Hands Full.

Simla, India, Oct. 23.—The military authorities now anticipate that a whole brigade of troops will be required to cope with the Somaliland difficulty. The regiments are preparing for eventualities. Four Maxim guns will accompany the troops sailing today.

Standish, Mich., Oct. 23.—During a thunderstorm here last night four valuable cows belonging to E. G. Allen were killed by lightning and a man working near was shocked, but not fatally.

A GREAT EVENT

The Soo Celebrates Completion of Power Canal.

DOINGS FOR FOUR DAYS

Appropriate Ceremonies Commemorating Completion of Greatest Enterprise of Its Kind in World—Develops 50,000 Horsepower.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 23.—Today begins the great four-day celebration of the completion of the immense power canal, and a time which it is proposed shall live in the memory of all who may be so fortunate as to attend. From the beginning to the end of the festal season the people of the Soo are assured of a series of events that will appropriately commemorate the greatest enterprise of its kind in the world. For four years they have waited for a realization of what seemed too much like a dream to be true, and now that the time has come for the final dedication of the work little else is thought or spoken of. An outline of the program is as follows:

On Thursday night an informal banquet in the Iroquois hotel will be given by the Consolidated Lake Superior Power company to about 350 guests.

Children's Day.

Friday will be children's day. The forenoon will be given over to an inspection of the canal and powerhouse by the officials and guests of the company and the general public.

In the afternoon the children's parade will be given.

Friday evening the company will give a general reception and grand ball to the citizens of the city at the armory.

Saturday, the real opening day, will be ushered in by a plan which Chief Engineer Von Schon insists on keeping under his hat. He says there will not be a man, woman or child in the Soo but will wake up with the celebration very forcibly called to their attention in an audible way.

The feature of the morning, the civic parade, promises to be the greatest display of marching bodies the Soo or the upper peninsula ever witnessed.

At 11:30 there will be a naval parade on the river of all shipping in the harbor.

The opening ceremony will occur at high noon. Luncheon will be served in the powerhouse immediately after the ceremony, and this is to be follower by speaking in the powerhouse, where an auditorium with a seating capacity of over 2,000 will be arranged.

Following the ceremonies at the powerhouse and the speaking will come the industrial parade, which will consume the balance of the afternoon.

At night will occur the illumination of the powerhouse and canal and city.

Saturday night the company will tender to their guests at the armory a banquet, beginning at 8 o'clock, as it is planned to have the function at midnight.

On Sunday special services will be held in the churches of the city.

This canal is a triumph of engineering skill and industrial enterprise, the greatest hydraulic power plant in the world. Starting in the lower arm of Lake Superior, it passes straight through the heart of the city, and by a magnificent true curve debouches into the St. Mary's river a mile below the rapids.

Wonderful Energy.

The canal is 203 feet wide at the water's edge and carries 22 feet of water. It is to produce energy aggregating over 50,000 horsepower. The interior of the canal is made perfectly smooth and true so as to offer the least possible friction. The upper 4,000 feet are through solid sandstone, where the cut is 30 feet deep to give the required level for the canal. This immense excavation is as clean cut as the mark of a square testing rod through a roll of butter. Over 6,000 feet pass through clay and sand, and to make this as nearly perfect as the rock section, all below the water level is planked like the deck of a ship.

Went Off at the Wrong Time.

Muskegon, Mich., Oct. 23.—Eliza Everts, aged 12 years, was shot in the breast with a single-barrel revolver which would not go off, except at the wrong time. The cap on the nipple would not explode, so he took hold of the barrel of the revolver with his right hand and placed the hammer on a fence rail. It went off and the ball penetrated the breast. His condition is not serious.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Sugar Beets in Plenty.—The sugar beet industry is in a flourishing condition at Royal Oak this fall. Thousands of bushels are being hauled in by teams for shipment to the factory at Rochester.

Bust of Washington.—The Ypsilanti chapter of the D. A. R. will give to the public schools Friday afternoon a bust of Washington, the speech of presentation to be made by Mrs. J. A. Watling, past regent of the order, and the response to be by Superintendent Austin George.

Old Soldier Seriously Injured.—A. A. Udell, a veteran of the civil war, better known as "Major," fell from the roof of a house that he was working on at Three Rivers and smashed the bones in his hip, besides badly injuring him otherwise. His condition is critical.

Sweater Saved Him.—Emory, the eight-year-old son of R. A. Whiting, a Grand Trunk engineer at J[illegible]n, poured coal oil on the furnace to make it burn brisker, and the [illegible]es immediately enveloped him. He had on a sweater, which prevented fatal burns, although he was badly scorched.

His Quaint Suggestion.

A Frenchman, who appears to have been of a thrifty turn of mind, conceived the idea in 1878 that too much valuable time was being wasted in cleaning sardines when preparing them for the market. He found a way of preparing them without cleaning them, and on this he took out letters patent. Apparently he had some slight misgiving as to whether the public would be perfectly suited with his invention, and so in his claim he makes this parenthetical entry:

Fish put up by this process may be slightly unpleasant to the customer at first, but he soon gets used to it.

IN A DEATH TRAP

Believed at Least Thirty Persons Perished.

IN CHICAGO FIRE LAST NIGHT

Explosion in Sugar Refinery Set Fire to Building—Thirty Men on Seventh Floor Probably Caught by Flames—Five Known to Be Dead.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Five men are known to have lost their lives in a fire which last night partially destroyed the plant of the Chicago branch of the Glucose Sugar Refining company, situated at Taylor street and the Chicago river. The list of dead will certainly be much greater than five and may reach as high as thirty. The estimates run all the way from that number down to ten. Only one of the five men whose bodies have been recovered has been identified. The list is as follows:

Dead: Frank Rothenburg, foreman, skull crushed in leaping from fifth story: unidentified man, six feet tall, skull crushed in leaping from fifth story; unidentified man, small in stature, both legs broken, killed by jumping from building; Frand Lawrence, electrician, supposed to be dead, known to have been in building and not seen since: unidentified man, medium height, crushed in jump from window; unidentified man, medium height, head crushed.

The fire broke out with an explosion in the drying house, which is seven stories in height and stands close to the main building of the plant, which is fourteen stories high. A third structure is four stories high. The two smaller buildings were completely destroyed and larger building was badly damaged. The fire spread after the explosion with such rapidity that it was impossible for the men in the upper stories of the drying house to make their escape, and it is the number of men believed to have been at work on the seventh floor that causes the uncertainty in the list of dead. Some of the employes who made their escape say that there were twenty-nine or thirty, and others say that there were not more than ten at work when the fire broke out. Whatever the number, all are dead. Four men leaped from the upper floors and all met death. The fifth man in the list of dead is an electrician, who is known to have entered the building and was there at the time of the fire. He is supposed to be dead for the reason that all the firemen and laborers about the burned building say that no man made his escape from the upper floors. Frank Moore was working on the fourth floor and made his escape by sliding down the water pipe. He declared that none of the men in the floors above hi mwere able to get away.

The dryhouse and the other smaller building of the plant are a mass of redhot debris, and it will be impossible to search the ruins for several hours.

Railroad Accidents.

Washington, Oct. 22.—The number of persons killed in train accidents during the months of April, May and June last, as shown by a bulletin issued by interstate commerce commission Tuesday, giving the reports made by the railroad companies, was 140 and the injured 1,810. Accidents of other kinds, including those sustained by employes while at work and by passengers getting on or off cars, etc., swells the aggregate to 616 killed and 9,520 injured, or a total of 10,136 casualties. The total number of collisions and derailments was 2,010, of which 1,094 were collisions.

An Assassin Headed Off.

Paris, Oct. 22.—The Figaro this morning says a man was detected early Tuesday morning attempting to climb a wall of the Elyssee palace. It is believed that he intended to hide in the palace garden in the hope of obtaining an opportunity to assassinate President Loubet. The man was arrested and found to be armed with a poignard and a loaded revolver.

WAS HE HONEST?

Ingham County's Clerk Handled Finances Peculiarly.

SUPERVISORS INVESTIGATING

Previous Shortages Quickly Made Up—Admits He Is Careless With Figures—His Deputy Has Disappeared.

Mason, Mich., Oct. 22.—The affairs in the office of the county clerk are beginning to assume a more serious aspect, and it is freely rumored about the city that the explanations heretofore offered to account for apparent discrepancies now fail to be as satisfactory as it was thought they would be.

The first public intimation that anything was wrong was a charge made by the Lansing Journal that a large sum in fine moneys had never been turned over to the treasurer by the clerk. When this was published it became apparent that something like $2,000 paid by the military clothing boodlers had not been accounted for. County Clerk Woodworth at once covered into the treasury enough to straighten this matter up, and so confident were the supervisors that there was nothing wrong, more than carelessness, they refused to order an investigation. Later, the stories of shortage becoming more widely circulated, Woodworth paid over $455 more.

The next charge against the official wa sthat he had overdrawn his salary account $1,733 98. Clerk Woodworth had a peculiar method of drawing his salary. He has two deputies, one at Mason and the other at Lansing. The latter collects his salary of $700 from the fees paid him, turning over the balance to his chief. Woodworth then draws warrants for this amount and his own salary ($800) and collects them himself, paying his Mason deputy from his own salary and fees.

When the charge was made that Woodworth had overdrawn his salary account, he deposited $2,000 in the county treasury and invited the supervisors to investigate his books. He admits that he is a careless accountant and that he is apparently short, but in his demand for investigation claimed that he could explain almost all of the seeming discrepancies, and that for all he could not he was ready to settle. The committee of investigation was appointed Monday and is at work on the books, with what result it is too early to say.

The fact that Deputy Clerk L. N. Gansley disappeared Monday evening, leaving no reason for his absence, has given rise to various rumors, some of which charge him with having raised orders in the clerk's office. Nothing definite, however, will be known until the investigating committee reports to the board of supervisors.

The committee was in session until a late hour yesterday, and matters seem to be going from bad to wose.

Immense Forest Reserves.

Washington, Oct. 23.—Approximately 6,000,000 acres of land in northern California were provisionally withdrawn from the public land area for the creation of forest reserves under orders issued Wednesday by Commissioner Hermann of the general land office. A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by J. J. Orr.

Old People Have their Troubles

Mr. Francis Little of Benton Harbor, Mich., is over eighty years of age. Since 1865 he has been troubled more or less with indigestion and constipation and has tried almost everything in use for those ailments. Last August he began using Chamberlain's stomach and liver tablets and was soon feeling much better. In a recent letter he says: 'I have used three boxes of the tablets and now think I am well." These tablets improve the appetite and invigorate the stomach liver and bowels. For sale by J. J. Orr.

PRINCE TIMOTEO

....By DAVID SKAATS FOSTER

Copyright, 1898, by the International Literary and News Service

When we were well on the way, there came bounding along the street and knocking over such of the pedestrians as got in his way a gigantic black hound, having much the appearance of a Danish boarhound, and as soon as he saw us he made for us and ran alongside my horse, making now and then great springs into the air, as though he fain would have dined off the calves of my legs, while all the time he was baying and yelping vociferously. I drew my rapier in order to spit him the next time he came near enough, for the beast made me exceedingly nervous, but Ippolita held me from it and cried out joyously:

"Now, by all the saints at once, it is none other than my valiant, good and trusty Nero. How he hath found me I know not, but in sooth he must have sought me long, for it is the faithful nature of the beast. Fair prince, harm him not, for he is my treasure, my pet and my darling."

Nero, seeing now that his mistress had recognized him, began to leap and gambol all the more, and the oftener she cried "Down!" the higher he came up; so at last I gave him a good welt on the side of the head with the flat of my sword, and he afterward ran along very quietly beside us.

"Per Messer Domeniddio!" Ippolita now exclaimed as we pursued our way with light hearts toward the palace. "What will the duke, my reverend father, say anent my having quit the house last eve and having stayed out all the night and day? Marry, I fear that he will chide me sore and will deem this tale of robbers is much too fanciful."

"But Fiorella will have told him of thy abduction," said I.

"Nay, not so, fair prince, for he would have had the ears cut from the jade upon the very hearing of the matter. Rather hath she told him some fairy narrative to excuse her conduct and account for my absence. Would that it were so, that I might see her lying tongue grow black with the strangling of the bowstring which I shall presently provide for her!"

CHAPTER XII.

WHEN we arrived at the great porch of the duke's mansion, we found a score of saddled and armored war steeds standing there, some of them being haltered to the pillars of the porch and others held by lackeys or squires, and the immense building was lighted up from top to bottom, and there was much noise of singing and shouting within, as if a great orgy were in progress. To know what was going on, I bade Ippolita take the bridle while I got down and went to one of the squires who were holding the horses.

"Prithee, fellow," said I, "tell me what unusual thing is toward upon this night that the duke's palace should contain such sounds of wassail and such brilliancy of illumination and that so vast a multitude should throng the streets of the city."

"Thou hast the appearance, friend, of having lately come into the town, and it may well be, therefore, that thou hast not yet heard the news. Know, then, that the Elevationists have arisen it is now these two hours since and that they have overthrown the government, vanquished the duke's guards and put the duke himself to death, and, that thou mayest see that I say sooth, cast thine eyes to the top of the door of the palace, and thou shalt see what thou shalt see."

I looked in the direction which he indicated and saw a decapitated head with gory locks stuck upon a pike at the top of the archway. The eyes were closed, the features pinched and the formerly rubicund cheeks fallen in, but I knew it at once for the head of the once arrogant and magnificent Castruccio.

"By my halidom," said I, "but I would fain know who hath led this sudden and successful revolution."

"Go to, my friend," he answered. "Now who should lead it but the greatest Elevationist of them all, Prince Timoteo of the Pazzi?"

"So," thought I, "the thing hath been done under my name and against my orders. I will come about with these knaves presently in such a fashion that they will wish themselves farther. Meanwhile I must get Ippolita out of the way, for she must not see this ghastly sight."

I returned to the countess, and as I approached her I perceived that her eyes, even at that very moment, were fastened in a stony and fearful stare upon the mutilated head of her father.

I now led my fiery charger with his lovely burden a little to one side, to an obscure spot, and there, telling her the history of my dealings with the Elevationists and how they had acted that night without my sanction and totally in opposition to my wishes, I bade her wait for me till I should have gone into the palace and subjugated the villains and brought them to account. I then sprang up the granite steps of the portico, crossed the vestibule and suddenly burst into the banquet hall, where the whole martial company was assembled.

It was truly a stately sight and one well worth the seeing, for there was a table 150 feet in length, stretching almost from one end of the great apartment to the other, and at this table sat full 200 men at arms whom I at once recognized as the warlike band which I had seen in the underground chapel of the monastery and who were now clad and accoutered as I had beheld them on the former occasion.

"What, ho!" I thundered in a voice which immediately procured silence. "Base dogs and contumacious caitiffs, what mean ye by this orgy? What warrant had ye for this outbreak, and why have ye disobeyed my orders, which were that the rising should be postponed? Tell me, moreover, why I should not cause to be cut off the heads of the ringleaders of ye!"

At this the assemblage seemed somewhat abashed, but a burly halberdier rose up from his seat and deliberately snapped his thumb and finger at me.

"I snap my fingers at thee," said he.

It was unnecessary for him to say so, as every one had seen him do it. I went to draw my sword that I might perforate him when I suddenly became almost paralyzed by observing upon a raised seat some way down on the other side of the table no less a personage than Brother Ambrose, the ex-friar and erstwhile captain of the band of thieves.

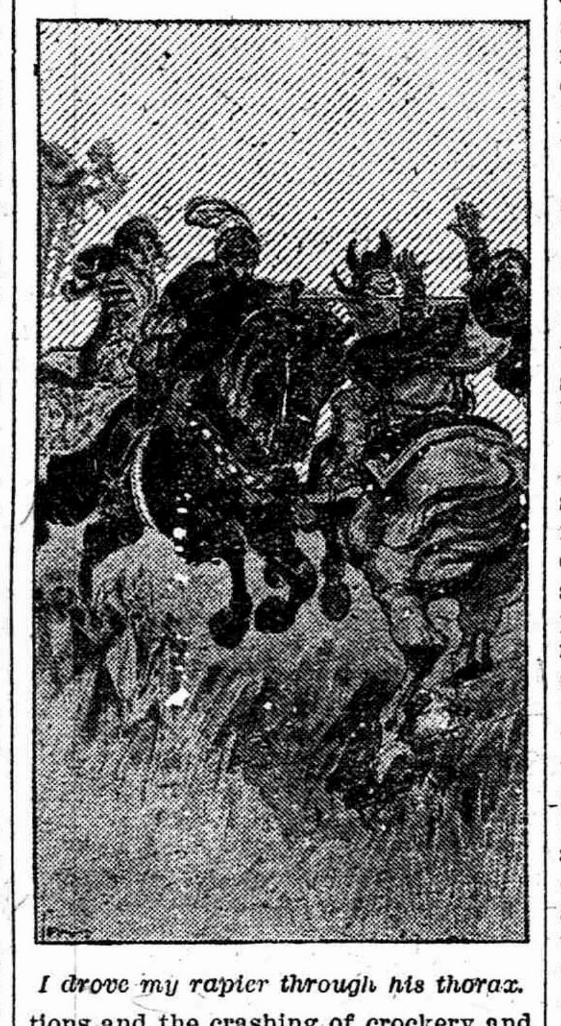
"Seize that man," I cried, pointing him out, "for, by our Lady, he is the same friar who escaped the flames yestreen, besides being the captain of as vile a pack of robbers as ever stole Pardy, seize him, I tell ye."

"Hold thy tongue, thou scurvy impostor," cried Brother Ambrose coolly, at the same time rising from his seat. "Thou hast but a short while to live, and thou wilt best improve it by listening to what I now say to thee."

The faces of all the old warriors looked ominous. I felt somewhat uneasy and glanced toward the entrance, but found that a score of them had risen and lined themselves in front of it, so that escape was impossible in that direction. The renegade monk now continued:

"Thou dost assert that thou art Timoteo, the son of the noble Arnolfo. Now, by my faith, how may that well be when I myself, as all these stout men at arms can vouch, am Prince Timoteo, the last of the Pazzi, and at present, by God's grace, ruler of this our goodly principality of Firenzalino? Ha! Thou dost start; but let the galled jade wince, as Boccaccio says. Listen to me, and I will tell thee the tale, as I have already told it to these trusty warriors, my vassals. A score of years ago my sire, the noble Prince Arnolfo, was minded, in order to preserve me from the machinations of mine enemies, to let me down, by means of a long, stout rope, into the outside world. Nathless, when I had come down a matter of a hundred feet or more I repented me of it and did crawl into that level of the copper mine, the mouth of which doth open upon the face of the cliff. Being come by this means back into my native land I had shame to appear before my sire, and from that time to this I have led a wandering life, seeing all things, enjoying all things and proving all things, that in the end I might be schooled and qualified for the position to which I knew some day I would attain. That I speak sooth hath been shown by the old graybeard Jacopo, who hath recognized and acknowledged me and who hath at the same time denounced thee as an impostor and, moreover, as a foreigner, who, by his innocent aid hath come into this, our land, from the lower world of heretics and villains in opposition to the laws made and provided. Wherefore, I say to thee that thou shalt die. Seize him, my valiant minions, and, by our Lady, let his shrift be a short one."

I drew my sword, and as they closed around me I prepared to sell my life as dearly as possible. Then all at once there sounded a most infernal and deafening racket in the vestibule, and into the banquet hall like a thunderbolt, trampling down like wheat those who stood in his way, burst my great black charger Aldebaran, with Ippolita upon his back, upright and proud and vengeful as the goddess Cynthia. In a moment they were by my side, and I sprang into the saddle, took the reins and drove the infuriated and magnificent beast alongside the table down the whole length of the banquet hall, crushing and trampling upon all who could not get out of the way. Then I turned and came up again on the other side, for I wished to be impartial in the matter, and a great part of the table was upset by the rush of the knights away from me, and the hall was filled with howlings and maledictions and the crashing of crockery and the rattling of tin, so that it was nearer pandemonium than anything I had seen before, and it happened that most of them had laid aside their weapons at the beginning of the banquet, and those who had weapons could not use them by reason of the crush, or, if they did use them, the blows fell upon their own friends, so that Aldebaran and Ippolita and I broke through them all and gained the vestibule and from there dashed into the street and so away.



I drove my rapier through his thorax.

"Gramercy," quoth the spirited and lovely countess, with her arms clasped tightly around me and her laughing mouth at my ear, "but that swift course that we did run around the banquet hall was a rare and joyous one, and I do swear by Peter Martyr that I have not had so much plaisaunce since I did ride upon the carousal last Candlemas at the county fair, and as for those scurvy, unwashed knights, may they take the infinite and exceeding number of broken bones and dark purple bruises which they did receive from thy right noble steed as guerdon for the full payment of the debt I owe them for having hewn the head from my beloved sire, which same was much too short before they did lay hands upon him."

We went down across the city toward the western gate, and our course for the greater part of the way was somewhat slow on account of the great number of people in the street. Once in awhile, however, I made a burst of speed, and in doing so I trampled down and ran over several pedestrians, one of whom I had good reason to believe—the wish being perhaps father to the thought—was none other than Gian Jacopo, the man who had so foully and cravenly betrayed me. When we reached the gates, we found them closed, but the keepers were there, and upon my shouting, "Open in the name of the prince!" they immediately flung them wide, and we passed out upon the broad highway of the principality.

The air was sultry, and the heavens were fast clouding over with an approaching storm. The moon still shone, however, so that I had no difficulty as yet in keeping to the path, and as I put mile after mile between us and our enemies my confidence arose, and I felt that with Aldebaran beneath me and Ippolita beside me, or, rather, behind me, I could defy the whole population of that pestiferous land. When we had gone some miles in a westerly direction, I heard hoof beats upon the road behind us and at once knew that we were pursued. Listening awhile, I came to the conclusion that the sound was made by but one horseman. I therefore turned my steed's head around, and, chuckling to myself at the humor of the joke which I was about to enact, I rode to meet this solitary enemy at full speed. When I had come to within a hundred feet of him, the moon shining brightly at the moment, I saw, to my delight, that it was Prince Timothy, alias Brother Ambrose, and, drawing my sword and holding the point toward him, I clapped spurs to Aldebaran and, coming up to him with great velocity, drove my rapier through his thorax so completely and powerfully that the hilt of it snapped off against his breastbone, and he fell to the earth like a clod, while his horse ran back toward the city.

"By St. Reparata," exclaimed Ippolita, her arms tightening upon me in a fond hug, "but thou art a merry youth and a handy one with thy weapon!"

We now set forward again upon our way, and I presently found, to my mortification, that in the bout with Prince Timothy—if really the knave had right to that title—my noble charger had got a sprain and had become dead lame. The heavens were now completely clouded over, and the rain began to fall in great drops, there were sudden and violent gusts of wind, and ever and anon came distant rumblings of thunder, so that it behooved us to get straightway to some place of shelter. I lifted the willowy form of Ippolita from Aldebaran, and, leaving him in the road for lack of knowing what else to do with him, we struck across country and ascended a great rocky hill, upon which it seemed to me that I beheld a light. When we got to the top of it, we found no habitation whatever, but there were some trees and overhanging crags, beneath which we found some sort of protection from the storm, which now came upon us in full force.

I shall never be able to describe that storm. I had never imagined anything like it, and I really believe that there never was a worse one. The gusts of wind became a hurricane which tore the very trees out by the roots, the rain fell in solid sheets, the lightning was so continuous that I could have read a good sized book through without once stopping, and the thunder was so terrible and stupendous that it seemed to be ripping the very bowels out of the earth. We had found a fairly reasonable shelter from the blasts and torrents on the lea side of a great overhanging rock, and here, with her dear head upon my shoulder, Ippolita, worn out with the fatigues of that day and night and crushed by the ghastly experiences to which her innocent and gentle nature had been subjected, fell into a sweet and untroubled sleep, which lasted through all that great and frightful storm.

Soon after she began to slumber I felt something cold and moist touch the hand by which I held her to me, and, turning, I beheld that it was the nose of that faithful beast Nero, who had followed us all those weary miles and who now stood guard, like a trusty Cerberus, over the sleeping form of his incomparable mistress.

I shall never forget one feeling which I had when the storm was at its height, and that was a rocking and pitching sensation, as though I were in a boat on a rough sea. This kept up for quite awhile, and then I felt sudden sinking, a sudden qualm about my stomach and my heart, which lasted for fully five minutes, so that my bowels seemed to come up into my throat. It was exactly the sort of feeling which a man has when going quickly down the lift of one of those thirty story buildings, only much worse, and I wouldn't like to experience the like again. And now the whole ground around us seemed to be flooded with water, and the waves dashed almost to our very feet, and I thought it was something strange that the floods could have risen to the top of that high hill.

The lightning now ceased and the storm went down, and I must have slept some myself, as when I next took note of my surroundings I found the daylight had come. And what an awakening that was, and what a surprise was that which was awaiting me, a surprise, miraculous, prodigious, stupendous and sublime, a surprise which beggars all description and which it is useless for me to attempt the portrayal of. When I awoke and gazed about me, the principality of Firenzalino had vanished, and Ippolita and I were seated upon a rocky island of scarce an acre in area, and round about us were the pellucid waters of the very lake which I had crossed in order to scale the sides of the mesa encantada. There had been another earthquake, like unto the one of 1492; the country of the exiles, of the Pazzi and the Albizzi, had gone down again into the bowels of the earth, and of its city, its inhabitants, its flocks and herds, its vineyards, streams and forests naught remained save the remembrance of the one day which I had passed in that fairylike and romantic realm.

When I say this of course I except the highborn and beautiful Ippolita, who was ten times more precious to me in that she was now the only human thing left to remind me of my most wonderful and fascinating experience. There was also the trusty Nero.

I presently heard a grinding of something against the rocks near at hand, and, going down to investigate, I found rubbing its nose upon the bank the very boat which I had moored to the mesa encantada when I commenced my ascent. To embark in it with Ippolita and to gain the opposite shore of the lake was a matter of a few moments, and in a few hours more we found ourselves safe and sound in the city of Florence, where I was at once married to the fair and haughty heiress of the duchy of Firenzalino.

He commenced selling the News a year ago last April, starting with six customers. Now he has sixty and during his school vacation his list has reached seventy. With the money earned by selling papers he has bought a bicycle and has had plenty of spending money. After paying his bills each week, he puts all even dollars in the bank and keeps the smaller denominations for his daily use. In this way he has banked $70. Considering his field, young Powers has done as well as the famous Bud Jones, who built a house from his savings as an Evening News agent. A FINE OPENING.

The Star Course Season was opened Very Nicely Last Evening by the SLAYTON WOMAN'S SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Giving a Grand Concert.

About fifteen years ago, Prof. J. Hecker came to Elgin, Ill., from Winnipeg and took charge of the Elgin National watch factory band. At this time the band had a good reputation, being run by the watch factory. But under Hecker it was made famous, ranking among the best bands in the country, until at the time of the World's Columbian Exposition it was counted the most famous of military bands in the United States.

At the time of their first coming to Elgin, I remember Prof. Hecker as a great conductor and teacher, "Carl" as a little chap in long curls, and the three little girls, and they were little girls at that time, fine piano players. Mrs. Hecker spent her entire time instructing the children, they never attended public school.

Since those days time has favored these people. "Carl" is one of the finest violinists in the country. Miss Stella is certainly a great pianist, having many times played with the Thomas orchestra at the auditorium in Chicago and having been greatly complimented by the great Paderewski. The younger members of the family are all artists in their line, and now aided by the Slayton Symphony Orchestra, this is one of the greatest musical organizations in the country.

The concert last evening was fine in every way: The members of the organization are not prodigies but all finely schooled musicians and, under the able direction of this master, will make its mark in the musical world and as a concert company score the greatest success.

It is to be hoped that the remaining numbers on the Star Course will, in their way, be half as good as the commencement. GEO. N. STACY.

Terrible Charge Against Gen. Wood.

It is charged by the Adrian Times against Gen. Fred B. Wood, democratic candidate for congress in the second district, that he wears a faded overcoat. This is a frightful accusation and Wood owes it to his constituents to either deny the charge, if it is false, or get off the ticket if true. The citizens of the second district, though largely a pastoral people, are particular in the matter of dress. It is difficult to conceive that any man seeking to represent the people of such a district would climb over a fence into a field in a faded overcoat to proselyte a plowman in a plug hat, white kid gloves, swell shirt front and claw-hammer cutaway! A faded overcoat! We can scarcely credit it, even on such excellent authority as the Adrian Times. It is a most serious charge to bring against the general, but all we have to say about the matter is that "if the coat fits, let him wear." But such a candidate should be made an example of.—Detroit Tribune.

This little article on the editorial page of the Detroit Daily sounds very much like our old Lenawee County man E. J. Smith and it now transpires that Gen. Wood should call "liar" real hard or get off the ticket. At this stage of the game it would be hard luck to get off the ticket as it now really looks to "a man up a tree" very much like an election for Tecumseh's good natured man Gen. F. B. Wood.

THE KEYSTONE DRAMATIC CO.

At the New Bradley All Next Week.

Max. A. Arnold, representing McGill & Shipman's Keystone Dramatic Company, is a guest at the Lilley House. Mr. Arnold is here looking after the interests of the Keystone Dramatic Company which will be the attraction at the New Bradley theater next week. The company will open their engagement on Monday evening, presenting Lem B. Parker's great sensational comedy-drama, "For Home and Honor." This play is one of the best written by this popular author, and abounds with genuine dramatic situations, is brimful of good, clean comedy; the cast is in excellent hands, the costumes—especially those worn by the ladies—are beautiful; high class specialities are given between each act; besides the Keystone Company carry a carload of scenery and beautiful mechanical and electrical effects. On Monday evening one lady will be admitted free when accompanied by a paid 30 cent ticket, provided seats are secured at Orr's drug store before 6 p. m. Monday. Sale of seats now on.

Dancing School.

Prof. Sturges, the new dancing master opened his winter classes here in the armory last evening. The music was especially fine. Miss Kathelene Bosteeter, of Sturgis, is the pianist and James Dodge, of Adrian, plays the snare drum. This will be an attractive feature of the classes. Prof. Sturges is a fine dancer and the class was well attended. The lessons are from 7 to 9, and after these hours Thursday evening is an assembly to which others out side the class are invited. About thirty couples were present last evening and the scheme promises to be a great success.

If the camera could photograph our thoughts, how would you like to have your picture taken? I am asking the question of you, the man or woman who is reading this paragraph.

ANSWER IT HONESTLY

Are the Statements of Tecumseh Citizens Not More Reliable Than Those of Utter Strangers?

This is a vital question.
It is fraught with interest to Tecumseh,
It permits of only one answer.
It cannot be evaded or ignored.
A Tecumseh citizen speaks here,
Speaks for the welfare of Tecumseh.
A citizen's statement is reliable,
An utter stranger's doubtful.
Home proof is the best proof.

Mr. S. Erskine, proprietor of the well-known barber shop says: "For ten years off and on I had a dull pain in my back imperfect action of the kidneys, and often I could hardly stoop or get up again. I think it was caused by standing so much at my work.

Be that as it may, I was in bad shape. I used a great many medicines but without receiving much benefit until Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice and I got a box at C. A. Wright's drug store. I must confess that I was agreeably surprised for after using one box I was much relieved. After the use of two boxes my back is stronger and better than it has been for a long time. Doan's Kidney Pills are the best medicine I have ever used and I have such faith in them, I believe I will be conferring a kindness on those suffering from kidney trouble in making known their merits."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cent per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

MARSCHNER CHOSEN.

Detroit's Scandalous Preliminary Election Affair Finally Settled.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 22.—Fred W. Marschner was yesterday settled upon as the candidate for the office of county treasurer on the Republican ticket by the Republicans in convention. And thus is settled a controversy in which startling exposures were made, tending somewhat to put to flight the belief of honesty on the part of certain ones to whom was intrusted the counting of votes in certain precincts of the city.

A desperate struggle was made by the followers of Holmes, the opposing candidate, to stem the tide of opposision. Attorney Charles D. Joslyn made impassioned speeches and flashed affidavits on the assembly. He crossed swords with Allen H. Frazer, acting for Marschner, and bitter acrimony was indulged in. It availed nothing. The convention was almost solid for Marschner and by a final vote of 28 to 11 the purging was effected, with D. P. W. Bouncer Herman Wartell as the cathartic.

The result was attained by throwing out Wartell's precinct and accepting the official returns from all other precincts, leaving Marschner's majority at 64. The anti-Holmes people were satisfied, no attempt being made to use the recount figures in the recounted precincts, which if used would show a majority for Marschner of nearly 300 votes.

WATSON RESIGNS'

Great Record-Keeper Couldn't Agree With Boynton.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 22.—Thomas Watson, great record-keeper of the great camp Knights of the Modern Maccabees, tendered his resignation to Major N. S. Boynton, great commander of the order, Tuesday to take effect Nov. 1, 1902.

While the resignation comes as a great surprise to members of the order, it has been an open secret for some time that there has been a great deal of friction between Watson and Boynton. Ever since the issue of expansion first came up Boynton and Watson have been arrayed against each other, and at Marquette the feeling grew bitter. When Boynton won out and Watson was re-elected it was thought that there would be harmony in the order, and when the two men came back to Port Huron it was thought that their differences had been settled and that there would be no more trouble.

On the first night, however, when a public reception was given them, it was noticed that the breech was still wide and since that time they have been growing further apart.

DURAND PLEASED THEM.

Formal Opening of Democratic Campaign in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 22.—The Democratic campaign was formally opened here last night with Hon. L. T. Durand, candidate for governor, as star speaker. The big Light Guard Armory was well filled with a representative gathering, who paid close attention and liberally applauded Mr. Durand's forcible hits made in his discussion of state issues, to which he confined his remarks. He touched on primary election laws, on local self-government and equal taxation in a manner which showed thorough knowledge of his subject from the standpoint of popular sentiment, and showed an earnestness that permeated his audience and left a good impression of the speaker.

Mayor Maybury presided and introduced Mr. Durand and Mr. Lucking, the Democratic candidate for congress, who also made an interesting address.

Taverns In Sweden.

Taverns in Sweden are closed on Saturday, which is pay day, while the savings banks are kept open until midnight. This plan induces the workmen to invest their money where it will pay them interest instead of in alcoholic stimulants.

Dress does not make the person. Nor does a cleau exterior indicate a clean, interior. To be well all organs of the body must work in harmony. Rocky Mountain Tea does this work. J. J. Orr.

Bronchitis For Twenty Years

Mrs. Minerva Smith, of Danvill, Ill. writes: "I had bronchitis for twenty years and never got relief nntill I used Foley's Honey and Tar which is a sure cure." Contains no opiates.

Living without God is risking the loss of two worlds.

It is never too late to mend if you begin now.

In a North Missouri town not long ago a boy was required by his teacher to write an essay on "The Mouth," and this is what he wrote: "The mouth is the front door to the face. It is the apperture to the cold storage of our anatomy. It is the hotbed of toothache and the bunghole of oratory. The mouth is the crimson aisle to the river; it is the fountain of patriotism and the tool chest for pie. Without the mouth the politician would be a wanderer on the face of the earth, and go down to a dishonored grave. It is the grocer's friend, the dentist's hope. It is the temptation lunch counter when attached to a pretty girl, and a tobacco fiend when attached to a man."

Gray?

"My hair was falling out and turning gray very fast. But your Hair Vigor stopped the falling and restored the natural color."—Mrs. E. Z. Benomme, Cohoes, N. Y.

It's impossible for you not to look old, with the color of seventy years in your hair! Perhaps you are seventy, and you like your gray hair! If not, use Ayer's Hair Vigor. In less than a month your gray hair will have all the dark, rich color of youth.

Acid Chamber Collapsed.

St. Louis, Oct. 22.—Sulphuric acid chamber No. 1, of the St. Louis Chemical company plant, collapsed while twenty men were at work. Two had narrow escapes, being pinned beneath timbers and lead pipes. The disaster was caused by the weight of the lead plates which line the frame. The loss will reach several thousand dollars.

William Hess Discharged.

Flint, Mich., Oct. 22.—William Hess, arrested July 6 on suspicion of murderously assaulting William Lockyer, who was found unconscious under the railway bridge, was discharged in the circuit court here, the officers not having a case against him.

Farmer Tired of Life.

Averill, Mich., Oct. 22.—Last evening Hank Wismer, living in township of Hope, shot himself over the heart. The reason for the deed cannot be learned. Doctors say he cannot live.

Small Crop of Sugar Beets.

Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 22.—The beet crop threatens to be a failure for the present season, and the farmers who had given large tracts of land to grow the saccharine tubers are feeling very depressed. On some sides it is asserted that the crop will not average more than one-third of last year's, while the sugar factories express the hope that it will be at least two-thirds as large.

Selected Another Site.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Owing to the inability of the government to secure title to the property selected as a site for the federal building at Traverse City, Mich., the secretary of the treasury has made another selection, the property being located on the southwest corner of Cass and State streets, directly across the street from the property originally decided upon.

Nobility Recommends Nervine.

The above portrait is that of Countess Mogelstud, of Chicago, Ill., whose gratitude for the benefit received from the use of Dr. Miles' Nervine prompted her to make this statement:

"It affords me great pleasure to add my testimony to the very excellent merits of Dr. Miles' Nervine. Although I am past 80 years of age I find it soothes the tired brain, quiets the irritated nerves and insures restful sleep. I never feel contented without a bottle of it in the house." A Concession In Price.

"People in frontier towns," said a Klondike pioneer, "get used to paying big money for trifles, and $2 for a box of sardines and $5 for a pound of bad coffee become reasonable prices. I kicked once upon a time because the price asked was too small. It was like this: I had a jumping toothache, was nearly wild with it, when I went to the shanty where I was told there was a dentist. A rough looking fellow told me that he was it, and I asked him to draw my tooth. He looked me over, got his forceps fastened on my tooth and yanked it out after a couple of hard twists.

"'How much?' I asked.

"'Well, $2, I guess,' said the dentist.

"I paid him, although my jaw still ached pretty badly.

"'That's the cheapest thing I've seen around here,' I said.

"'Well,' he said, 'I thought I'd make it low because, on account of the bad light, I pulled the wrong tooth.'

"I had to go the next day to have the bad tooth out, and he made matters square by charging me $10."—New York Tribune.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT FOR CONSTIPATION

Constipation is nothing more than a clogging of the bowels and nothing less than vital stagnation or death if not relieved. If every constipated sufferer could realize that he is allowing poisonous filth to remain in his system, he would soon get relief. Constipation invites all kind of contagion. Headaches, biliousness, colds and many other ailments disappear when constipated bowels are relieved. Thedford's Black-Draught thoroughly cleans out the bowels in an easy and natural manner without the purging of calomel or other violent cathartics.

Be sure that you get the original Thedford's Black-Draught, made by The Chattanooga Medicine Co. Sold by all druggists in 25 cent and $1.00 packages.

Morgan, Ark., May 25, 1901.
I cannot recommend Thedford's Black-Draught too highly. I keep it in my house all the time and have used it for the last ten years. I never gave my children any other laxative. I think I could never be able to work without it on account of being troubled with constipation. Your medicine is all that keeps me up.

DEED OF ONE MAN

Held Up and Robbed Train on a Montana Road.

MURDERED THE ENGINEER

Blew Open the Safe and Rifled Express and Mail Cars—Believed He Made a Big Haul—Reward For His Capture.

Missoula, Mont., Oct. 25.—An eastbound passenger train on the Northern Pacific was held up Thursday night near Drummond, Mont., forty-five miles from this city, and Engineer Dan O'Neill was killed.

The train, which included mail, baggage and express cars and nine coaches, arrived at Missoula at 10:20 p. m. and proceeded eastward after a short delay at this station. It arrived after midnight at a place two miles west of Drummond. Here the train was signalled to stop, and the engineer slowed up. While doing so he saw a man creeping toward him over the tender. The man, who was armed called to O'Neil to stop the train instantly.

The engineer took in the situation at once and, pulling open the throttle, tried to start the train at full speed. The robber divined his purpose and fired at him. The shot took instant effect and the engineer fell dead at his post.

The robber then proceeded to rifle the express and mail cars. He plundered the regular mail and blew open the safe in the express car, which was wrecked by the explosion.

The amount of plunder which he secured is not known at present, but it is supposed to be large. The excitement on the train was intense. The sudden stoppage of the train, followed soon by the explosion, spread alarm among the train hands and the passengers. The darkness of the night and the loneliness of the place added to the general scenes of terror.

Word of the attack was sent to Drummond, whence it was telegraphed to Deer Lodge, about fifty miles away. Bloodhounds were sent out at once and steps were taken to keep vigilant watch for the robbers.

It was assumed that at least eight men were engaged in the holdup, but the latest advices are that one man alone perpetrated the murder and robbery.

Dan O'Neil, the dead engineer, lived in this city and had a wife and five children. He had been in the service of the Northern Pacific longer than any other engineer.

The Northern Pacific has offered a reward of $5,000 for the delivery, dead or alive, of the train robber who killed O'Neil.

Who Killed Mrs. Dennis?

Washington, Oct. 25.—A coroner's inquest was begun here yesterday over the remains of Mrs. Dennis, the fashionable dressmaker who died Wednesday as the result of the mysterious assault committed upon her ten months ago. One of the important witnesses, Richard Cole, a colored porter, who attended to some of Mrs. Dennis' financial transactions and who was acquainted with most of her callers, was absent on account of illness. On account of the revival of talk regarding the possible connection between the tragedy and the subsequent suicide of Samuel J. Presley, a printer, two of the latter's brothers from New Orleans were in attendance. Dr. Wade H. Atkinson testified to the condition in which he found the victim of the assault and said he knew of no trouble that Mrs. Dennis had ever had, although he had known her for ten years. Mrs. Jane E. Dennis, the aged mother-in-law of the woman, threw little light on the case. She said she knew of no enemy of her daughter and said it had been Mrs. Dennis' custom to send her money to the bank by Cole, though she kept a small amount in the house. She said Presley had never visited her daughter and that she knew of no male visitors.

NOTORIOUS WOMAN

IN SEARCH OF HEALTH

Story of Her Life Sounds Like a Dime Novel—She Broke Seven Faro Banks at Cripple Creek—A Nurse at Galveston.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 27.—Gay, dashing Edith Gene Babcock arrived Sunday direct from Mt. Clemens. Despite attempts to maintain her former airs, her exuberant gaiety, she looked sadly wasted away. She is here for treatment at one of the local tuberculosis sanitariums after utter failure to receive benefit at West Baden, Ind., and Mt. Clemens.

The woman's romantic history was notoriously before the public when she broke seven faro banks at Cripple Creek, quitting play $800,000 to the good.

At Galveston, during the time of the dreadful disaster, she did heroic work as a nurse. Later she bobbed up in Richmond, Va., where Count Philip Christoval fought a duel with a newspaper man in defense of the woman's honor. The count nearly died of a shattered arm. This summer at Canfield's, Saratoga, Christoval was still her slave, and good luck followed her, but she broke down in health.

She will talk but little, but says she has no system of play, only is very lucky: "My career should be a warning to others," she sadly observed. "I, too, was warned, but thought I was an exception to the general rule. Now I know better. If I live my future will be very different."

Physicians are confident they can save her life.

The complainant is the Old Colony Trust company of Boston, Mass., trustee, and the cause of the suit is the telephone company's default in the payment of interest on these bonds. That such a step would be taken was not unexpected.

Accounts Muddled.

Monroe, Mich., Oct. 27.—Although it was announced last Wednesday that City Treasurer Lauer, who is short in his accounts, had made good the shortage to the city through his bondsmen and in turn secured them, it developed that the muddle has by no means been straightened out. The public school teachers were not paid last week, and perhaps will not be until the investigation now in progress has been completed.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 27.—It begins to look as though Frank C. Andrews would not go to Jackson just yet. Andrews has until next Thursday to satisfy the required bond, but it is said the bondsmen will be offered today.

GIFT TO MITCHELL

Men of Miners' Union Remember Him.

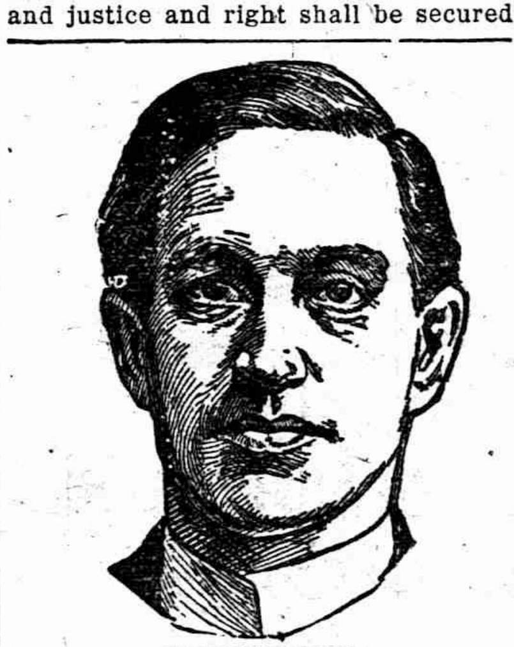
GOLD BADGE AND WATCH

Poles, Slavs and Lithuanians Were the Givers—He Leaves For Washington—Refuses to Receive Donation in Way of Funds.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 27.—President Mitchell was in conference with the district presidents, Nicholls, Duffy and Fahy, for several hours Sunday. He outlined his case as he will present it to the board of arbitration in behalf of the miners, and the same received the approval of the district presidents. This afternoon President Mitchell was presented with a gold badge and gold watch by the Polish, Lithuanian and Slavish members of the united mineworkers. The badge bears his monogram "J. M." in diamonds just underneath the bar containing the pin by which it is fastened to the coat lapel. Below this is the button of the United Mineworkers' of America, from which hangs a pendant—a tiny pick and shovel, with miner's lamp in the center, underneath which is a medallion. The seal of the organization in the center is in the form of a breaker boy standing in the midst of a bank of coal. The presentation took place at President Mitchell's headquarters and a large crowd listened to the speeches of presentation and acceptance.

Mr. Mitchell, in the couse of his remarks, said:

"I look forward to the time when strikes shall be no more, when peace and justice and right shall be secured for those who toil; when labor and capital, each recognizing its rights and obligations to society, shall work in harmony for the common welfare of our country and the general good of all our people.



JOHN MITCHELL.

Latest portrait of the great leader of the miners, who has brought the recent strike to such a successful issue.

"Gentlemen, I thank you with all my heart. I cannot express my feelings to you properly at this time."

District Presidents Nicholls, Duffy and Fahy and other leaders also made brief addresses.

Shortly before 4 o'clock Mr. Mitchell left headquarters for the Lehigh Valley depot. He was accompanied to the station by a large and enthusiastic crowd and when he boarded the train he was cheered and wished godspeed on his journey to meet the commission at Washington today.

A movement is said to be on foot among the Polish, Lithuanian and Slavish miners to raise a large sum of money for Mr. Mitchell.

Mr. Mitchell said he had no desire for a fund of this character, as it would separate him from his fellow-workers. He believed that no man can acquire great wealth without wringing it from the toil of some fellowman. He spoke of the labor movement as it stands in the United States today as an American labor movement.

Coal Commission Ready.

Washington, Oct. 27.—All is in readiness for the meeting this afternoon of the anthracite coal strike commission. All the members of the commission are in the city and most of the operators or their representatives are here. The meeting will be called to order at 2 o'clock and the wishes of both parties to the controversy will be considered as to the method of proceedure during the testimony. No testimony will be taken today. It is expected that very little evidence will be heard in Washington, as it is not the desire of the commission to compel the attendance of witnesses here if the evidence they have to give can be secured at greater convenience to them at or near their places of residence. Five of the mine operators, or their representatives, arrived here last night. They included President George F. Baer of the Reading; E. B. Thomas of the Erie; John B. Kerr.

Kicked to Death.

Sharpsburg, Pa., Oct. 27.—As the result of a row at a dance held at the house of M. Sando, an Italian, Antonio Stein lies dead at the Pittsburg morgue, and the police are searching for Antonio Rich, an Italian from Pittsburg, who is said to have committed the murder. Manila, Oct. 27.—The cholera is gaining a strong foothold on the island of Mindanao. It is expected to spread there, as it has elsewhere in the islands. The disease continues to be bad in the province of Iloilo, island of Panay, but it is light elsewhere. It has disappeared from Manila. The cases reported up to date exceed one hundred thousand.

Killed by Flying Missile.

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 25.—Edward Hart was instantly killed at Nadeau by the bursting of a fodder cutter, a piece of iron weighing 12½ pounds tearing a great hole through his breast.

Out of Death's Jaws.

OFFERED THANKS

King and Queen Perform Last Coronation Ceremony.

IN ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL

The Day a Rainy One and Few People Turned Out—Lord Mayor Acted as Escort—Scene a Brilliant One Within the Church.

London, Oct. 27.—The last ceremonies connected with the inauguration of the reign of King Edward occurred Sunday when the king, accompanied by Queen Alexandra, the Prince of Wales and almost all the members of the royal family, drove to the St. Paul's cathedral and offered up thanks for the recovery of his health, which had enabled him to be crowned. The weather was rainy and small crowds marked the royal progress through the metropolis.

At Temple Bar the lord mayor of London and the corporation, in bedraggled robes, met the king and escorted him to the cathedral. In the nave of St. Paul's were gathered several thousand persons, including Premier Balfour, leading members of the nobility, almost all the members of the cabinet and foreign ambassadors to Great Britain, among whom was Mr. Choate. The honorable artillery company formed an imposing line; the members wore their busbies and carried fixed bayonets. Before the service was over several of the artillerymen had fainted as a result of long standing.

The choir and the bishop of London the Rt. Rev. Arthur Ingram, escorted the king and the queen to the throne under the reredos. There was a full choral service of thanksgiving, followed by a sermon from the bishop of London, who laid special stress upon the fact that this was the second time in his majesty's life that he had entered St. Paul's to give thanks for his recovery from a dangerous illness. At the end of the sermon the Te Deum was sung heartily.

The royal party then returned to Buckingham palace and were well greeted on the way wherever the crowds were large enough to raise a cheer. In spite of the rain, King Edward ordered that the carriages be kept open and Queen Alexandra bowed and smiled from behind a small umbrella.

The scene at Sa. Paul's was more brilliant than devotional. All the officials present wore their uniforms and their decorations, creating a blaze of color seldom seen in the cathedral. King Edward was dressed in the uniform of a field marshal and wore the decoration of the Order of the Garter.

Panama Title Is Clear.

Washington, Oct. 27.—Attorney-General Knox has decided that if the United States should accept the offer of the new Panama Canal company, submitted last spring, for the sale of the canal for $40,000,000, it would receive through the parties in interest, a valid and unincumbered title to the property. This decision was arrived at after a thorough, exhaustive investigation in Paris, first by Special Attorney Charles W. Russell and later by the attorney-general himself. The attorney-general formally submitted the opinion to President Roosevelt Saturday.

Twenty Persons Indicted.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 27.—The grand jury Saturday afternoon returned a partial report, including twenty-five indictments in the grave-robbery cases, which have been under consideration for the last three weeks. Of the indictments returned, ten only were made known. It developed later that five indictments had been returned against physicians who are charged with complicity in the "body-snatching business," for failure to keep records of bodies received, among whom is Joseph C. Alexander, demonstrator at the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by J. J. Orr.

DAVID A. HAMMOND.

AUDITOR GENERAL

On the Democratic Ticket. A Finely Educated, Honest Citizen.

David A. Hammond, the democratic candidate for auditor general, is a native of Washtenaw county, having been born in the township of Augusta Dec. 16, 1855. His early years were not different from the average farmer boy's. In those days that section was new country and his circumstances were such as to make it necessary to shift for himself at an early age. He became familiar with all kinds of labor incident to farm life in a new section. He attended the district school winters, and "worked out" summers, and when he was 16 years old, having accumulated a little money, entered the state normal school at Ypsilanti. He was unable to pursue his studies here without intermission on account of lack of funds. Before he was 18 years old he was teaching a district school to get money to continue his education. He taught his first school in Calvin township, Cass county, on the border of the black settlement of that county, and out of an enrollment of 55, 27 were Negroes. He taught several terms of winter school and kept on with his work at the normal and finally graduated in 1878. In the fall of 1878 he was elected principal of the high school at Blissfield, Lenawee county, which position he held for four years. While he was in this position, he was elected township superintendent of schools, carrying the election in a township which had given 329 majority for Garfield the fall before. The following year he was elected a member of the county board of examiners and one year thereafter became its secretary. He was also elected superintendent of the Tecumseh schools, where he followed in the footsteps of some of the best known educators in the state. He was when elected the youngest man who had ever held the place, but his work was so satisfactory that he continued in the position for six years and was elected for the seventh year by the unanimous vote of the board, but resigned to take the superintendency of the Charlotte city schools, for which place he was asked to become a candidate, although there were forty applicants for it. He continued in this office for five years, and during his administration the graduates of the high school were admitted to the University in all courses without examination, for the first time.

While holding this position he was nominated by his party in 1890 for member of the state board of education and elected. During his six-year term he served on the most important committees of that board and for two years was its treasurer, handling and disbursing nearly $100,000 of funds each year. He was always a staunch friend of the state normal college in everything tending to its development and well being. He was influential also in securing the location of the second normal school at Mt. Pleasant. In 1893 he determined to quit teaching and removed to Ann Arbor and went into the newspaper business. Two years later, while still owning his interest in the Ann Arbor Weekly Argus, he accepted a position on the road with E. H. Butler & Co., and sometime thereafter with the American Book Co He spent three years in the employ of these school book houses and then returned to the active duties of his newspaper work, when the Daily Argus was launched. At this time the Democrat Publishing company was formed. with S. W. Beakes, Senator Chas. A. Ward and D. A. Hammond the principle stockholders. Mr. Hammond was elected president of the company, a position which he still holds. At the present time this company owns all the democratic papers of Washtenaw county with a single exception, there being included in the list five different papers, now combined into three. Mr. Hammond is a forcible writer and gives his attention largely to the editorial work of the various papers of his company.

In all the public positions he has held, he has always shown marked executive ability and capacity. During his career as a teacher he served on every examining board for teachers provided for by Michigan laws, and licensed teachers of all grades from one year to life, and from the township to the state. He was a successful high school teacher as well as city superintendent, and worker in teachers' institutes. He was successful as a traveling man and has a wide acquaintance throughout the state. He is a successful newspaper man.

While Mr. Hammond has always been a democrat, he has been a consistent one and never a bitter partisan. In all the positions he has held many of his best friends and supporters have been republicans. It is a fortunate circumstance that men like Mr. Hammond were put upon the democratic ticket this year when the contest is to be waged upon state issues and when thousands of republicans, wearied with boss rule and legislation for the benefit of the few at the expense of the many, are disposed to support that ticket and feel that they can do so with consistency and self respect.

Mr. Hammond will make an ideal auditor general. He is a fine accountant, a thorough gentleman, and, what is even more important, thoroughly honest. The people can be sure that no corrupt scheme to rob the treasury, no "grafts" will pass the auditor general's office while it is filled by Mr. Hammond.

Although a man of large intelligence and a fine scholar, Mr. Hammond has always felt himself one of the plain people from whom he sprung, and the plain people, if he is elected, will find in him a state officer whom they can respect, approach with confidence, and always trust.

Harry P. Stearns.

Harry P. Stearns, the democratic candidate for Register of Deeds. is a young man 33 years of age, and is well qualified for the office. He is a graduate from the Adrian high school, from the literary department of the University, and spent a year in the legal department of the same institution. He is a printer by trade, being now on the honorary list of the Adrian Typographical Union. He was for two years a member of the county board of school examiners. He was appointed, without any solicitation on his part to the position of assistant postmaster, by L. W. Hoch, and his services were deemed so satisfactory to the public that Postmaster A. W. Smith retained him during the latter's entire administration. He left the office with Mr. Smith, and has since devoted his time to his whole sale subscription agency, which business he has brought to a remunerative basis.

Last spring he was nominated for alderman in the fourth ward, and was complimented by an election in the face of 150 adverse majority to over-come. In the council he has been careful and conservative, and at the same time progressive and energetic. He is chairman of the lighting committee, and has been giving the subject much study with a view to securing a larger number of lights there, and matters have already been brought to a state, which assures success in this direction.

Mr. Stearns has excellent clerical ability, has a large acquaintance in the county, has had some legal training, which is at least not undesirable for register, has energy, push and vigor, and has no sore spots, no axes to grind, no fences to fix.

He is during the campaign devoting his whole energy to his duties as county chairman, and will not have time to do anything at all in the way of a personal canvass. His friends will doubtless appreciate this fact and see that he secures the full party strength at the polls.—Press.

Not Superstitious, But—

"No, I am not a believer in the supernatural," said the hard headed woman. Nevertheless, she went on to tell how some oriental personage she had met had declared that if you lost anything it is no good to look about for it, but to visualize it. Last week this woman lost a valuable hatpin. She searched high and low for it in vain. Then all of a sudden she remembered the words of the native, and she sat down and closed her eyes tightly and thought of nothing but her loss. A few minutes passed, and upon a disk of darkness there appeared the bright outline of a hatpin seen through the folds of a blanket. Immediately afterward my friend was startled by her maid's voice: "I have found the pin, ma'am. It was lying in the folds of a blanket on your bed!"—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Ring Sickness.

Unfortunate passengers aboard steamers are not the only ones to endure the agonies of nausea. Any circus man will tell you that it is a most difficult thing to overcome the miserable sensation caused by constantly circling round a small ring. Clowns even and ringmasters suffer from it, merely from seeing the horses go round and round, and one well known ringmaster, even after years of experience, still finds that if a horse balks a little or gets behind time, compelling him to follow close upon it, he will probably undergo a painful fit of sickness after leaving the ring.

A Cold Snub.

Edmond About was once invited to the house of the Princess Mathilde, and before dinner, seated beside his hostess, he was sending off a brilliant display of fireworks. Looking up, he noticed that the Count Nieuwerkerke was coming over to join in the conversation. "Go away," he called to him familiarly. "Leave us alone, you great, jealous person!"

At which the princess rose, touched her finger to the bell and said to the servant: "Conduct M. About to his carriage. He is not dining here tonight!"

Consumption

Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

A sample will be sent free upon request.

Will the merchant who is wise ever cease to advertise? Yes—when the trees grow upside down, when the beggar wears a crown; when ice forms on the sun, when the sparrow weighs a ton; when gold dollars are too cheap, when women secrets keep, when a fish forgets to swim, when satan sings a hymn, when girls go back on gum, when the small boy hates the drum; when mince pies make pleasant dreams: when love is not what it seems; when lawyers tell the truth: when cold water makes you drunk. when you like to smell a skunk; when a drummer has no brass, when these things come to pass; then the man that is wise will neglect to advertise.

Don't burn up the autumn leaves but let them lie where they fall. They are nature's coverlet and nourishment for the grass and tender roots. Don't sweep them into the gutter, or let the city carts sweep them away to fertilize the refuse of the city dumps; better rather gather them yourself from the gutter and spread them thicker on your lawn and flower beds. Then in the spring time the grass will be greener and the flowers more beautiful.—Ex.

Geographical Contest—Mr. Conkling, leader.

The club ladies united with the Universalist church people in making the last church social, which took place last Thursday evening, a reception for the departing pastor who has been equally helpful in club and church work. There was a large attendance and a pleasant time reported.

The Monday Club held a sort of farewell meeting at the Universalist church yesterday afternoon. The church has been their home for two years, and has proved such a pleasant and commodious meeting place that they take leave for quarters of their own with some regret, Miss Haight's resignation from the pastorate making a change necessary. A vote of thanks was extended to the church society for their kindness to the club and Miss Haight responded for them and for herself in a manner which made the regret at her leaving felt sincerely.

The next meeting of the Monday Club will be held at the new rooms in Heesen Hall, across from the library, November 3d, with following program:

Mrs. Crosby, leader.

Eminent Colonial Women—Mrs. McCann.

Colonial Child Life—Miss Jennie Gillespie.

Jebiel H. Bramble died at his home on Chicago street Saturday morning after an illness of about two weeks, age 85 years 4 months.

Mr. Bramble was born at North Hector, Seneca County, N. Y., June 22, 1817, being one of seven children of which Willard Bramble, of North Hector N. Y. is the only one living.

He was married Feb. 14, 1847 to Anna Wixson. To them were born four children, three daughters and one son. Together with his wife they moved from New York to Michigan in 1852 and have since lived in Tecumseh and vicinity.

He joined the Baptist church in 1858 under the pastorate of Rev. McLeod and had since been a faithful worker. He leaves a wife and son, C. H. Bramble, of this place to mourn his loss. The funeral was held at 2:30 at the Baptist church this afternoon. Interment at Brookside cemetery.

ELECTION.

The Best Men to Vote for in LENAWEE COUNTY

Without Regard to Party Tickets.

It has for a number of years been the policy of the HERALD to pick out from the nominees of the county tickets a number of persons who, according to the idea of the HERALD, would be the best persons for voters to vote for. The modern idea is that voters should vote for persons at the time of county election without regard for party and, in fact if the good of the county is taken into consideration, should be the case.

Without regard to party the following ticket could be voted for at the election next Tuesday and if all were elected, every man would be a good one and would faithfully do his duty.

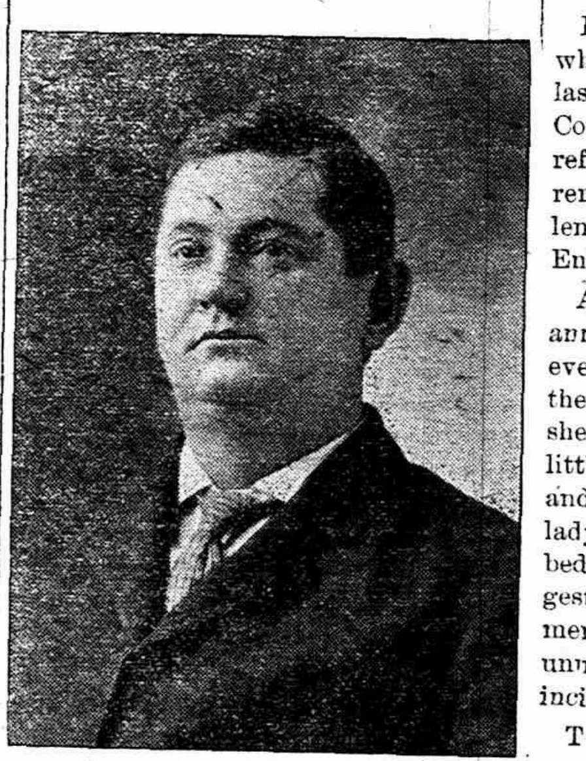
The HERALD has never been a political paper but its subscribers could always find out what men it favored and, in the time of county election, it always takes the side of those it thinks are the most capable and trustworthy for the office. This is how the HERALD stands for the election of November 4.



Wm F. Shepherd.

The Republican nominee for sheriff has been the sheriff of Lenawee Co, for two years and a better man for this office has never been elected. He is painstaking, obliging a gentleman and above all in every way a good officer. He has been a successful officer in all his criminal work, found all the criminals that any man could find and has avoided all the blunders that so many former officers have made. He should, and no doubt will be elected again. No voter in the county who casts his ballot for Shepherd will make a mistake.

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is a healthy action of these organs.

They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency.

"I had pains in my back, could not sleep and when I got up in the morning felt worse than the night before. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and now I can sleep and get up feeling rested and able to do my work. I attribute my cure entirely to Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. J. N. PERRY, care H. S. HON. F. B. WOOD

Receives a Great Reception at JACKSON:

At his Appearance It Took Five Minutes for the Cheering to Quiet Down so He Could Be Heard.

Jackson, Mich., October 27. (Special.)—The biggest and most enthusiastic audience of the campaign greeted Lorenzo T. Durand and Gen. Fred Wood at the Atheneum to-night. It was a crowd which filled the house to its capacity. A noticeable feature of the meeting was the ovation which was given Gen. Fred Wood, the democratic nominee for congress, who could not proceed for some minutes because of the applause.—Free Press.

The entire plant of the Ann Arbor Printing Co. has been sold to George F. Kenney, of Detroit. The plant includes the Daily Times and the Weekly Courier-Register. The plant will remain in Ann Arbor.

A lady resident of the First Ward was annoyed after retiring, Wednesday evening, by the presence of a mouse in the room. Some time during the night she awoke with a start to find that the little animal was between the sheets and had bitten her on the finger. The lady turned up the light and chased her bed-fellow out of the room. The strangest part of the story is that the other members of the househould heard no unusual noises and knew nothing of the incident untill the following morning.

Two freight trains came together this morning near Hillsdale in a head-on collision. The large engine, No. 716 was thrown off the track, and the freight cars of both trains were piled up to a great height, blockading the track and causing No. 32, the eastbound fast mail, which reaches this city at 7:51 a. m., to be annulled or go over the Air Line. The wrecking train and crew from Air Line Junction, in charge of Division Superintendent Corogan, of Toledo, passed through here about 8:15 on its way to the scene of the wreck.—Wednesday's Adrian Times.

Theodore Roosveelt on "The Presidency."

Before his nomination for the vice-presidency, Theodore Roosevelt wrote expressly for The Youth's Companion an article on "The Presidency." It will be published in the number for November 6th, this being one of the remaining weekly issues of 1902 sent free from the time of subscription to every new subscriber who at once sends $1.75 for The Companion's 1903 volume. When this article on "The Presidency" was written no one could have foreseen or dreamed even that its author would so soon be called upon to take up the duties of the great office. For this reason alone what Mr. Roosevelt has to say possesses extraordinary interest, and will be eagerly awaited by persons of all shades of political opinion.

A twenty-eight-page prospectus of the 1903 volume of The Youth's Companion and sample copies of the paper will be sent free to any address.

Tecumseh People are Requested to Honestly Answer This.

Is not the word of a representative citizen of Tecumseh more convincing than the doubtful utterances of people living everywhere else in the Union? Read this:

Mr. Charles Bartholomew, who runs the bicycle repair shop in the south eastern section of Tecumseh, says: "Some eighteen years ago the doctors said I had diabetes and that I could not live. I got better but have been troubled ever since with the kidney secretions, particularly retention of the kidney secretions which caused me considerable anxiety. I tried all kinds of medicines said to be good for kidney trouble but the annoyance still remained. Finally my attention was called to Doan's Kidney Pills and I got them at C. A. Wright's drug store. They are splendid They gave me more relief and acted quicker than any remedy I ever used. From my experience I can say they are a reliable remedy and I consistently reccomend them.

An odd thing happened in the barber shop the other night. Two young men each about the age of 24 came in to get shaved. One had his right arm taken off at the elbow, the other young man's left arm was gone at the same place The two are great chums and they attract some attention when seen because of their misfortune. The corn husker was the means by which each lost his arm. As to other vicinities we know ot, but we believe there are more men in this part of the county who have lost arms and hands by that dreaded machine than in battle.—Onsted News.

Michigan folks who think the past summer has been an exceedingly wet one will be interested in some figures from William P. Pack, a former Michigan man, who is now governor of Benquet province, in the Philippines. He says that in his district the rainfall during the month of August amounted to 54.64 inches. Here in Michigan the banner month was June, when the precipitation was something over seven inches. There was one day in August, according to Gov. Pack, when nearly eleven and a half inches of rain fell. —Adrian Times.

The Smorgasbord.

The Swedes use the smorgasbord as a whet for dinner or supper. The smorgasbord consists of a side table furnished with bits of fish, ham, meat and other things. The fish is nearly sure to be raw. You may eat it in morsels, with hard boiled eggs or with oatcake or bread. There are also butter and cheese and pickles, and you are supposed to vary the entertainment with one or two glasses of corn brandy—a very different spirit to cognac—which may be contained in vessels like tea urns, with taps needing to be turned.

Anglo-Saxons at first acquaintance are prone to imagine that it is all the meal. In this matter I have heard a gentle waitress reproach a countryman of mine inferentially in a way that ought to have staggered his heart. The ignorant gentleman went from one little dish to another and, like a swarm of locusts, left nothing in his track.

He also tossed off the thimblefuls of corn brandy as if they had been so much lemonade. "Monsieur," murmured the girl at length, "your dinner is ready." And she pointed to his soup, which smoked for him at the dining table proper.—All the Year Round.

If Two Worlds Should Meet.

Our world is spinning through space at a speed of over 1,000 miles per minute, says an astronomer. Should it come in collision with a globe of equal size going at the same rate of speed, what would be the result? The very best thinkers of the age tell us that heat enough would be generated by the shock to transform both of the colliding bodies into gigantic balls of vapor many times their present circumferences. Some have thought that in case the center of the earth is composed of solid and colder matter than is the generally accepted belief this might not be the case, but after searching all the leading authorities I must admit that I cannot find a more appropriate "finis" than the following, which is from an eminent scientist: Should such an unheard of event occur the heat generated would be sufficient to melt, boil and completely vaporize a mass of ice fully 700 times the bulk of both the colliding worlds—in other words, an ice planet 150,000 miles in diameter.

The Sun Myths.

It was in Bayard Taylor's day that the sun myth had its vogue. One night at a party Taylor was greatly bored by the persistent efforts of a guest to discuss sun myths. No matter what direction the conversation might take, this person would ruthlessly drag it back again to his favorite topic.

At last the distressed poet raised a very interesting question in regard to the threadbare subject. "Did you ever think," he asked, "that the name Smith, so common all over the world, is derived from sun myth?" No one had ever dreamed of such thing. Max Muller had overlooked the point completely.

"Quite possible; certainly most plausible," said Taylor. "Sun myth, Sumyth, Smyth, Smith, and some still spell the name with a y." The discussion was ended.

No Cause For Alarm.

Rev. Mr. Brown, a man of less than medium stature, possessed a high, squeaky voice. Not long ago he was invited to exchange pulpits with a minister in a neighboring city. The church in which he was to preach was much more imposing than the home chapel, says Lippincott's Magazine. Arriving early, he peered from behind the pulpit and watched what he considered an immense congregation with trepidation.

As the last notes of the organ voluntary died away his little head popped up from behind the desk, and without a word of warning he piped out, "It is I; be not afraid."

The Astute Salesman.

An astute salesman was enjoined by his employer to be strictly honest, but to sell goods. Next day the salesman displayed some new fabrics, saying to the lady shoppers, "Here is some calico that looks just like silk." But they turned up their noses scornfully. The following day he said to the same shoppers, "Here is some silk that is made to look like calico," and they bought every yard of it. This shows us that we should use due judgment as to which end of a truth is first presented. —Judge.

The Inventor of the Cork.

Don Perignon, a poor blind monk, first thought of cork for bottle stoppers. He was employed in a royal monastery as overseer of the extensive vineyards, being himself a manufacturer. Indeed, it is said he discovered by experimenting with wines and grape juices that highly effervescing beverage known as champange. Necessity in his case was doubtless the mother of his inventing the cork stopper, for his champagne must have needed a better stopper than was then used—merely a bunch of flax soaked in oil. If he was the first to put a cork into a bottle, the world is indebted to him, since its impermiability, elasticity and lightness render it invaluable for this use.

His Life in Peril.

"I just seemed to have gone all to pieces," writes Alfred Bee, of Welfare, Tex., "biliousness and a lame back had made life a burden. Three Great Navigators.

To review the work of Columbus without referring to that of Vespucius and Magellan would leave the story of new sea and world discovery disconnected and incomplete. This will be patent when it is remembered that, though a believer in the rotundity of the earth, it was not Columbus, but Magellan, who first physically demonstrated that fact by circumnavigation. And Magellan might have failed but for the previous work of Vespucius. The latter had explored the Atlantic coast of South America farther south than any of his predecessors and the south Atlantic ocean eastward to the islands of South Georgia, nearly to the parallel of Cape Horn.

By this journey Vespucius demonstrated with a considerable degree of certainty that the strait, which had for some years been looked for, leading to the elusive unknown sea that bounded the eastern coast of Asia, was not to be found through the new lands of the west north of 54 degrees south at all events. The mouth of the Amazon, the bays of Rio Janeiro and of the La Plata had been explored and were found to contain fresh water, so that through none of these could an entrance to the unknown sea on the farther west be found.

The Teacher and the Shirt.

There is a teacher in a school in a town in New Jersey who has Brooklyn relatives, since it is her birthplace and was her residence until she wandered into the wilds of Jersey to train the youthful savage in the way he should educationally go. Among her scholars was one boy, a Tommy Russell, who was well nigh incorrigible. One day, patience exhausted, the teacher caught the lad and gave him a shaking that made his teeth rattle in their sockets. More, so vigorous was her clutch that she tore his shirt. The next morning the lad appeared with a neat bundle, laying it before the teacher on the desk.

"What is this, Tommy?" asked the teacher.

"I dunno, teacher," was the reply. "Me mudder sed giv' t'youse."

The teacher opened the bundle to find Tommy's torn shirt with this memorandum:

"You tore the shirt; now you can mend it."—Brooklyn Eagle.

His Worm Class.

"Hello, papa!" cried the daughter of the Wall street operator after the father reached his porch after his ride out from the city on a suburban train and seated his little one on his knee. "But, papa, I've got one you can't guess."

"Can't guess?" said the financier. "Another new joke?"

"A good one, too," chattered the little girl. "You ought to guess it, but you can't. Now, if a student is a bookworm what kind of a worm are you?"

"Well, that is a hard one. We're all supposed to be worms in one way," said the speculator.

"Yes, but you'd be a tapeworm," broke in the little girl, with a burst of laughter; "you read the ticker tape so much."

"That's right," was the answer.—New York Tribune.

English Meat Pie.

The veal and ham pie which is a common English dish should be better known here. The bone end of a piece of veal is stewed till the meat is tender, with an equal amount of smoked ham. Take out the bone, strain the stock and separate the veal and ham pieces. Cut each in strips and lay in alternate layers in a deep baking dish. Season, cover with the clear stock and finish the dish with a flaky crust that will bake quickly. The dish is eaten cold, and when cut like any pie it will be found that the meat is set in a delicious jelly.

A Grand Success.

The story of a Scotchman who attended a funeral which lasted two days is told by a man who was present. On the second day, having imbibed too freely, he rose and proposed the health of the bride and groom.

A friend urged him to sit down, saying, "This is not a wedding; it is a funeral."

"Well," retorted the Scotchman, "whatever it is, it's a grand success."

"An attack of pneumonia left me with muscular rheumatism, headache, and pains that seemed to be all over me. I was scarcely able to move for about a month when I decided to give Dr. Miles' Pain Pills and Nerve Plasters a trial. In three days I was again on my route and in two weeks I was free from pain and gaining in flesh and strength."

Easily Applied—No Odor—No Dirt.

To polish a stove like peppering a beefsteak may seem odd to those who have never used Sifter Stove Polish, but nevertheless, it is the newest, easiest and most convenient method known. Sifter Stove Polish is put up in a large, round box with a perforated top similar to a pepper box. The polish never drips out and does not require soaking in water before using. There is never any waste. It is good to the last pinch. It is gently sifted on the stove, brushed with a damp cloth and lightly rubbed with a dry cloth. A brilliant, jet black lustre is obtained. There is no odor, no dirty saucers or pans, no rusty boxes to cover. The Sifter box is always clean. Sifter Stove Polish is cheap. It costs 5 cents a box, will polish more stoves than three times its cost in any other polish. All dealers.

A half crazy, idiotic being resembling a man has been roaming around the village since Sunday afternoon. The County superintendent of the poor came over from Caro yesterday and recognized the unfortunate being as one of his regular boarders, and took him home with him. Now, with the exception of a stray mouse about the house the ladies of Reese have nothing to fear.—Reese Review.

Bronchitis For Twenty Years

Mrs. Minerva Smith, of Danvill, Ill. writes: "I had bronchitis for tweuty years and never got relief nntill I used Foley's Honey and Tar which is a sure cure." Contains no opiates.

Several farmer in the vicinity of Union City who from the monstrous growth of clover had expected at least an average yield of seed, were disappointed after the hulling process last week to find in some fields less than a bushel per acre. They discovered too, something the oldest resident hasn't often seen—that the long rain had caused the seed to sprout in the clover head, some of it showing two leaves.—Coldwater Courier.

State Supt. of Public Instruction has appointed a teachers institute to be held in Adrian Oct. 30, 31, and Nov. 1. Prof C. O. Hoyt of Ypsilanti, will be conductor, a lady teacher from Grand Rapids will be one of the instructors. Dr. T. H. Lewis of Adrian College will give an address upon "The demands on the modern teacher," on the evening of the 30th. Com. Hensel and Prof. Willson, of Adrian, are the local committee in charge.

Watch The Kidneys.

The Monroe Canning Company will close its tomato season with a "run" on Saturday. The recent heavy frosts did not damage the crop, but the supply was so low that the factory has been run only three days during the past week. The present year's output at this factory will not exceed 375,000 cans, which is little more than half the number filled last season. Next week the company will begin canning pumpkins. Monroe Democrat,

"Whenever you find a man finding fault with a local paper, open it up and ten to one he hasn't an advertisement in it; five to one he never gave it a job of work; three to one he does not take the paper, two to one that if he is a subscriber he is delinquent; even odds he never does anything that will assist the publisher to run a good paper, and forty to one that if the paper is a good one and full of life, he is the most eager to see the paper when it is out.

Roy Ritter, who lives east of Cambridge Junction, accidentally caught his hand in a corn binder on Tuesday. The index finger on his hand was so badly crushed that it required amputation at the second joint. Wednesday morning his father, A. P. Ritter, came to Brooklyn with the same kind of hand having caught his finger in the same way as his son. The injured member also required the same kind of treatment.—Brooklyn Exponent.

A Literary Kleptomaniac.

Among French writers no one carried the profession of the literary brigand to such an extent as Mme. de Genlis. In 1830 her evil ways brought her into the courts of law under very discreditable circumstances. Bout, the publisher of a series of manuals, engaged her for the sum of £16 to write a "Manuel Encyclopedique de l'Enfance." The manuscript, which had been paid for, was on the point of being printed when it was discovered to be an exact copy of a book of the same kind published in 1820 by M. Dasscha. I do not find it easy to understand the audacity of a writer who would perpetrate a fraud of such enormity or the imbecility which would suppose that it would not easily be detected.

Another time she contributed to a Paris newspaper a feuilleton which turned out to be a close reproduction of a romance printed some twenty years before. Surely the poor woman suffered from literary kleptomania.—Gentleman's Magazine.

Reason and Instinct.

A certain north country miner was particularly proud of a clever little dog he possessed. At times he was apt to claim a little too much for his pet, and one morning a neighbor was endeavoring to point out the difference between instinct and reason when an amusing interruption occurred.

A seedy looking tramp turned the corner, and the dog, without so much as a word from his master, sprang into the road and offered battle.

"There you are," laughed the miner as the dog snapped and snarled round the heels of the tramp; "'e don't like the look of the chap. That's instinct."

Suddenly the tramp turned and kicked the dog into an adjacent field.

"There you are," ejaculated the miner's friend grimly. "The chap don't like the look of the dog. An' that's reason."—London Tit-Bits.

Practice and Preaching.

When the late Bishop Hare was presiding over a Methodist Episcopal church in New York city, a large reception was given in his honor, to which a brother of his, a lawyer, who closely resembled the bishop, was invited.

During the evening a member of the conference who had never met the bishop's brother approached him and, shaking him warmly by the hand, said: "Good evening, Bishop Hare. I greatly enjoyed the sermon you gave us today. It is just what this church needs."

"You are mistaken in the person," said the brother, smiling, as he pointed to the bishop on the opposite side of the room, "that is the man who preaches; I practice."

NATIONAL GRANGE

Goes Into Session at Lansing November 12.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 25.—The annual convention of the National Grange will begin on Wednesday, Nov. 12.

Following is a general outline of the work of the grange, as set forth in a circular sent to the subordinate divisions of the order:

The National Grange opens at 11 a. m. on Wednesday, Nov. 12. At 2 p. m. the address of the national master will be read. On Wednesday evening will occur the reception by the state and the city of Lansing.

Thursday will be devoted to business, the illustration of subordinate degree work and forms occupying the afternoon. The evening will witness the conferring of the fifth and sixth degrees, which any fourth degree patron in good standing may receive.

Friday morning will be devoted to business, and the afternoon and evening to instructive and elaborately dressed renditions of the seventh degree.

Saturday will probably be given to state institutions. The Agricultural college will be visited and a formal reception, banquet and entertainment enjoyed. In the evening it is possible that some public function will demand attention.

Sunday will be devoted to memorial exercises in memory of prominent grange workers who have died during the year past.

The second week will be devoted mostly to the routine work of the order, but various excursions and banquets will doubtless be tendered if time will permit.

Genesee County's Equalization.

Flint, Mich., Oct. 25.—The committee on equalization, in their report, show that the value of real and personal property in Genesee county is $26,906,581. Every town in the county and ward in the city shows a gain of from $8,000 to $230,000 in assessed valuation of real estate, and all but eight a gain in assessed valuation of personal property.

Aged Farmer Fearfully Injured.

Coldwater, Mich., Oct. 25.—H. S. Lamlee, a Quincy township farmer, aged seventy-eight, while driving to Quincy with a load, stopped his team part way up a hill to rest. In attempting to block the wheels the team backed up, the entire load passing over him. The unfortunate man sustained a fracture of the collarbone and was so seriously injured internally that he may die.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Killed by Falling Earth.—Angus Isaac, a strone mason of Detroit, was smothered to death Friday by the caving in of earth upon him while working in a sewer excavation on Eighteenth street.

Injured by Pitchfork.—John Culver of Superior, five miles from Plymouth, while unloading straw fell from the load and struck on a pitchfork, which penetrated his abdomen. Dr. Oliver of Plymouth was called and says his condition is critical.

Bone Driven Through the Flesh.—While picking apples in his orchard, near Coldwater, Joseph Locke fell from a tree, breaking both bones in one leg. The bones were pushed through the flesh and it is thought amputation will be necessary.

Second Michigan Infantry.—Thursday, ct. 30, at Kalamazoo, the valorous Second Michigan infantry will hold its annual reunion. Company A of the regiment came from the Scott Guard, and on the roster were the names of Colonel August Goebel, Captaind Joseph Burger, Captain John Hardy and other prominent Detroiters.

Farmers Turn to Stook Raising.—The farmers near Battle Creek are turning their attention to the raising of stock more than for years in the past. In the vicinity of Galesburg over 5,000 sheep have been imported for feeding purposes in the past few weeks. Many are also turning their attention to the fattening of hogs upon the refuse from the food factories.

According to figures compiled by the board of trade, 1,284,000 bushels of peaches were marketed at Grand Rapids during the season just closed. Of this amount over 1,000,000 bushels were shipped to outside markets by rail. The value of the crop marketed at Grand Rapids is estimated at $950,000.

The old 27th regiment which numbered 1000 men during the civil war, all Michigan men is now reduced to 80, the others have all answered to death calls.

"If women would pay more attention to their health we would have more happy wives, mothers and daughters, and if they would observe results they would find that the doctors' prescriptions do not perform the many cures they are given credit for.

"In consulting with my druggist he advised McElree's Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught, and so I took it and have every reason to thank him for a new life opened up to me with restored health, and it only took three months to cure me."

Wine of Cardui is a regulator of the menstrual functions and is a most astonishing tonic for women. It cures scanty, suppressed, too frequent, irregular and painful menstruation, falling of the womb, whites and flooding. It is helpful when approaching womanhood, during pregnancy, after childbirth and in change of life. It frequently brings a dear baby to homes that have been barren for years. All druggists have $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

TWO CANNOT LIVE

Six Men Caught by a Premature Explosion.

ANOTHER MURDER IN DETROIT

Hotel Landlord Shot by Robbers—Attempt Made to Blow Up Residence of Farmer Near Marshall—Dynamite Failed to Go Off.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Oct. 30.—By premature explosion in Walpole mine last evening six men were injured. Two of them, Captain Benjamin Martin and John Beard, cannot live. The others were badly injured, but physicians cannot yet say whether they will die or not. The accident was very peculiar, as all the men were injured in the back. This is the first serious accident at Walpole mine in several years.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 30.—Another deplorable murder has been added to Detroit's annals of crime for 1902, for Horton Warren, proprietor of the Goderich house, died in St. Mary's hospital at 7:45 last evening, the victim of a bullet wound received in a vicious assault in the entrance of his own house on the midnight previous.

The deed was committed by two men who, previous to shooting Warren, had robbed a man into whose room they had broken, and they were fleeing from the house when overtaken by the proprietor and another occupant named Miller. A scuffle ensued and Warren was mortally wounded.

Mrs. Warren, who rented the room to the two men who committed the murder, tells her story as follows:

"The two young men who shot my husband came into the hotel early in the evening and got rooms next to a traveling man from Milwaukee, saying they were friends of his. I heard a racket upstairs and a noise in the traveling man's room. I then ran down stairs and told Mr. Miller to call my husband, who was next door. While they were coming the two robbers came down stairs and started out of the front door. My husband and Miller were just coming in, and I called for them to stop the men. Miller knocked one down and fell with him, and while my husband was trying to help him the other man fired two shots. The robbers then ran away."

A score of detectives scoured the city yesterday in an effort to locate the two thugs, but nothing could be found of their whereabouts.

Marshall, Mich., Oct. 30.—An attempt was made Tuesday night to blow up the residence of George Brownell, a well-known Calhoun county thresher, who resides five and one-half miles east of this city in Marengo township.

The officers were notified yesterday morning and Sheriff Williams, Deputy Sheriff Garfield and Officer Doud went out and made an investigation. They found eight sticks of dynamite bound together and placed in the wall in the foundation of the house. Each stick weighed a half pound, there being enough to blow the house to slivers.

The dynamite was connected with one cap and a long fuse ran from the cap to a burning torch. The fuse had burned and the cap exploded, but the dynamite did not go off, because of poor connection.

The officers have a clue to the guilty party, and Sheriff Williams went to Jackson and Deputy Sheriff Garfield to Albion to make further investigation.

Pitched Him Into the River.

Jackson, Mich., Oct. 30.—M. S. Lyons, seventy years of age, was caught on the high bridge yesterday afternoon in front of the Michigan Central railway's "Chicago and Boston Special" passenger train. He laid down and escaped being struck until the chair car, with its low steps, came along. This step hit him and threw him into the river. He was fished out and will live.

Brakeman Lost His Life.

Holly, Mich., Oct. 30.—Adolph S. Duncke, aged twenty-five, a freight brakeman on the Grand Trunk, fell between the cars near here yesterday. His body was terribly mangled.

Killed by His Own Team.

St. Johns, Mich., Oct. 30.—Charles Britton of Essex township, was instantly killed Wednesday morning by being run over by his team, which ran away.

Peculiar Phenomenon.—A peculiar phenomenon occurred Wednesday at Ann Arbor, a perfect rainbow, although no rain had fallen for twenty-four hours. The strange thing about the rainbow was that instead of its points extending toward the horizon they extended upward and obliquely.

Michigan Degree of Honor.—The Degree of Honor held a school of instruction at Lansing Wednesday, delegates being present from various parts of the state. Addresses were made by Mrs. Nellie L. Hewitt of Maple Rapids, Mrs. Lulu K. Webster of Belding, and Mrs. Alice Cressinger of Maple Rapids.

HOW THEY GET IN

Ineligible Immigrants Come By Way of Canada.

FOREIGN AGENTS TO BLAME

Canadian Restrictions Are Not as Severe—Would-be American Citizens Told of Easy Way of Admission Over the Border.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Commissioner General Sargent of the immigration bureau yesterday made public a report from Robert Watchorn, special immigrant inspector, dated Paris, Aug. 22, 1902, on the immigration to the United States by way of Canada. Mr. Watchorn says that Europeans, who obviously are ineligible to enter the United States for several years, have been directed by designing agents to Canadian ports, with a view to effecting a surreptitious entrance into the United States across the international boundry. Intending immigrants who by reason of some disqualification are rejected by the lines running to United States ports are turned over to lines running to Canada, and with few exceptions they are accepted without question. Thousands every year thus find their way to Canada and thence to the United States.

Mr. Watchorn says: "Every steamship agent alludes to the fact that the United States immigration laws are now being strictly inforced there, and in consequence the Canadian route is earnestly recommended as one 'where anyone is accepted who is capable of walking off the ship,' a statement which is invariably coupled with a gratuitous lesson in North American geography, designed to impress on the emigrant's mind the cheering information that Montreal is a 'border city' from which a walk across the border is a very easy matter, unattended by any inconvenience whatever, there being no inspection of immigrants at said border."

In conclusion, the report urges that all roads into the United States be made equally straight and narrow.

Murderer Gave Himself Up.

New York, Oct. 30.—A young man who described himself as William G. Johnson of 464 North Eighth street, Philadelphia, entered the Green Point police station last night and said that he desired to surrender himself as the murderer of Albert C. Latimer, who was shot, apparently by a burglar, in his home in Hancock street, Brooklyn, on the night of July 2 last. The man said that he surrendered because he was stricken with remorse and was weary of wandering about the country. He was locked up and will be arraigned today.

Dog Found Woman's Body.

Reading, Mass., Oct. 30.—A huntsman's dog found the body of a murdered woman just off the well-traveled highway near the Wakefield line Wednesday afternoon. The victim evidently was a tramp, and she has not been identified. Walter Locke, whose dog drew him to the place, found the body to be warm. There was every indication that the murder itself had been committed elsewhere and that the body had been taken from a wagon and dragged into the field where it was found.

Two Killed in Train Wreck.

Cincinnati, Oct. 30.—A Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton passenger train, which left Hamilton at 9:57 o'clock last night, ran into a local freight train two miles east of Oxford. Engineer Conn and two unknown men were instantly killed. Mail Clerk John Connor of Hamilton was badly hurt. The passengers were badly shaken up, but it is not believed any of them were seriously injured.

Worth Trying Again.

The impecunious author passed over the manuscript with a faltering hand. The aged but truthful editor started.

"Er—Mr. Wrightly," he said, with the air of a man who has just become saddled with a great thought, "did you ever hear that Walter Scott received the suggestion of his first successful novel while he was washing his hands?"

"I—I believe I read of it," stammered the impecunious author, slipping his hands into his pockets. A faraway look came into the face of the aged but truthful editor.

"I was merely throwing out the suggestion," he said softly.

The province of Iloilo and the adjacent island of Negros are badly infected and the situation is alarming. Some of the towns in these provinces have lost 10 per cent of their population and the epidemic continues severe.

MICHIGAN POSTOFFICES.

Gross Receipts For Year Total Over $3,000,000.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 30.—The gross receipts at the postoffices in Michigan during the last fiscal year were $3,798,271, according to Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Brisouis' annual report. This is an average annual expenditure of $1 52 for each man, woman and child in the state, based on an estimated population of 2,493,611.

The number of postoffices of all classes in the state was 2,019, of which 216 were presidential, and 1,803 were fourth-class offices. The number of presidential offices increased by nine during the year, and the fourth-class decreased by 107. The decrease in the latter class was due largely to the establishment of the rural free delivery service throughout the state, which resulted in the discontinuance of 141 offices. The report shows 169 fourth-class postmasters in Michigan resigned during the year, and 49 were removed at the end of the four-year term, 12 were removed and 10 died. Two presidential postmasters resigned, there were 100 whose commissions expired and were removed for cause, 14 offices were raised from the fourth class to presidential during the year.

Andrews Given 15 Days' Grace.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 30.—Attorney Groesbeck, appearing in behalf of Frank C. Andrews, the bank wrecker, was before the supreme court in chambers at noon Wednesday to secure the court's construction of its own order which declared that Andrews could be admitted to bail in the sum of $100,000. Groesbeck wanted to know whether the court meant that each bondsman was to qualify in the sum of $100,000, or if it was intended that they should qualify for that sum in the aggregate. Whichever way the court construed its order, Groesbeck said hi sclient would beg an extension of time in order to comply. They also extended the time for producing the bail fifteen days.

This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by J. J. Orr.

GARLAND R. GILLESPIE.

He was born in this county in 1872 and received his early education in Clinton township. He graduated from the Tecumseh high school in 1892 and from the law department at the University of Michigan in 1895 with the title of LLD. That fall he opened up an office in Clinton where he remained for over three years when he became a member of the law firm of Wightman & Gillespie in Tecumseh.

Perhaps no other young attorney has enjoyed a larger or more lucrative practice than he for the time he has followed his chosen profession. This has been brought about, by his ability to perform those matters intrusted to his care, by his courteous treatment to all and by his attention to business. His motto "Once a Client, always a client."

The duties of Circuit Court Commissioner are oft times of a high and important character. They are the same duties that are performed by the Circuit Judge and it needs a man of good judgment sound discression and ability, and it is but fair to say that Mr. Gillespie has enjoyed a larger practice and longer experience than any other nominee for that office on the ticket.

He did not seek the nomination but it came to him unsolicited and should he be elected it is needless to say that he will fulfil the duties of the office with a credit to himself and to his party.

Old John The Carrier

By SCOTT CHALMERS

Copyright, 1901, by A. S. Richardson

Rugby stared out into the drizzling twilight. The outlook was no less gloomy than his feelings.

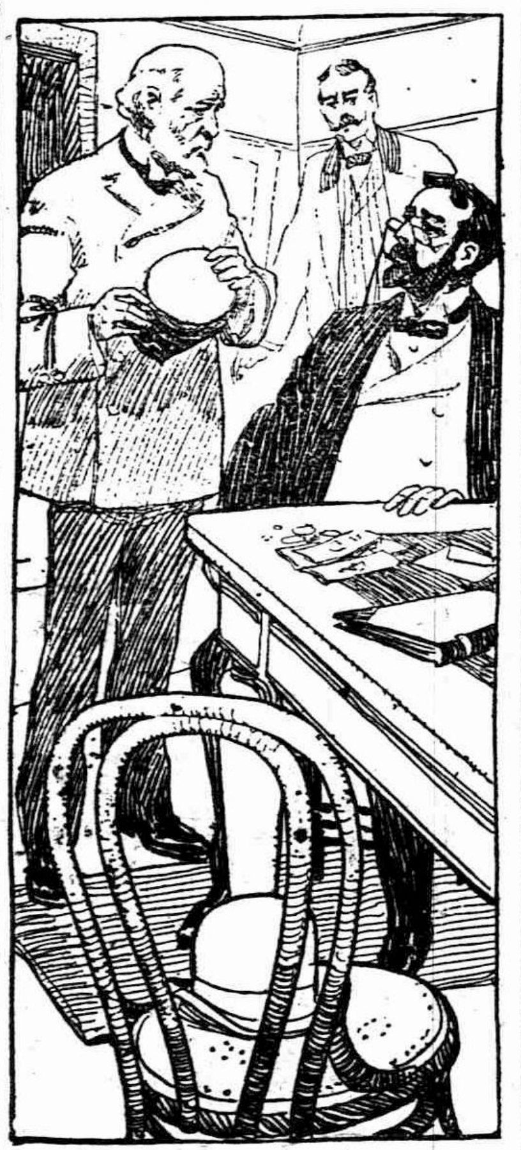
"If it had been any man on the force but old John Compton, I wouldn't take the thing to heart. But to think of old John being arrested, prosecuted, imprisoned! By heavens, I feel as if it were one of my own flesh and blood."

The young inspector dug the toe of his boot viciously into the thick rug. His elder companion and fellow worker tapped the table nervously.

"The evidence is overwhelming, and yet—well, I suppose we'll have to call him in."

Rugby silently picked up his hat and left the room. The chief leaned back in the great revolving chair and reviewed the case.

John Compton was a widower, residing with his unmarried daughter, and had been a mail carrier for over twenty years. The managers of the Nelson department store, which lay on John's route, claimed that their mail had been systematically robbed of money orders and cash sent loose in letters. Before lodging any complaint they had conducted a small detective campaign of their own. Twenty letters containing money had been sent to as many places to be forwarded to the concern. Only fifteen came to light. It could not be argued that the missing five had been lost in the mails. The Nelson people pointed the finger of suspicion at old John.



"I AM AS INNOCENT AS EITHER OF YOU."

John had gained white hair and honor in the postal service. During the first ten years of his work there was not a single mark against him. In the second term there was just one—he had been marked "late" because of the illness of his daughter.

Rugby was detailed on the case and prepared ten decoy letters inclosing marked money. He took them to various points within a few miles of the city and had them directed by strange hands. He saw them arrive in the postoffice, saw them placed in the old man's pouch, saw him start out with them. Then he followed the old carrier with a feeling almost self condemnatory.

After covering half of his route Compton stopped for ten minutes at his own home, which was in a flat house. He came out whistling and went on his way. Rugby was seated in a dim nook of the Nelson office when Compton reached the little window and handed over the mail. Instantly he counted the decoy letters Only six of the ten had been delivered.

These were the facts that Inspector Smith was reviewing as he sat in the dull twilight. When Rugby and Compton entered Smith's office there was a look of wonder in the old man's eyes, but no trace of guilt or anxiety. When told of the charge, he smiled almost childishly. When ordered to empty his pockets, he complied without the least hesitation, yet of the $12 he laid on the table no less than $10 was in the marked money. When this was pointed out to him, his confiding smile vanished, and he turned pale as he said:

"Why, I got this money only two hours ago. I gave a ten dollar bill in exchange."

"Then of course you can name the party and clear yourself?" asked Smith kindly.

"Of course I can. It—was—was"—

There he stopped. A queer change came over his face. His lips quivered like those of a trusting child who had unexpectedly received a blow from the hand it loved. Suddenly he drew himself up and looked from Smith to Rugby.

"Do either of you gentlemen believe that I have turned thief in my old age?"

"We don't want to believe it," was the reply, "but letters have been stolen, and you have the money that was inclosed in them."

"And yet I am as innocent as either of you."

"I hope so. Where did you change the money?"

"I cannot say," he replied, with tightly compressed lips.

"Do you know who took those letters?"

A spasm of pain crossed the old man's face, but he quickly recovered.

"I do not know."

Smith and Rugby looked at each other helplessly. Finally Smith spoke.

"You know, of course, Mr. Compton, the gravity of this offense and the penalty?"

Compton shivered slightly. His voice was firm, but so low that the two inspectors could hardly catch the words.

"I know the penalty, yes—prison. It's useless to have any trial. I will plead guilty. The less fuss there's over it the easier it will be for—for—others."

His voice broke on the last word. The inspectors instantly suspected that he was shielding the real culprit. Smith acted quickly. He laid his hand cordially on Compton's shoulder.

"See here, Compton; we can't believe this of you. It's our duty to place you under immediate arrest, but we're going to give you another chance. We're going to investigate further, and we ask only your word that you won't jump the town."

The old man seemed terror stricken. He avowed his guilt in piteous tones and begged to be arrested, but Smith and Rugby were firm and sent him from their presence a tottering, sobbing man.

For the next few days, while John went over his route like one in a dream, Rugby investigated the life of the old carrier's daughter. He quickly discovered that she dressed far above her station and income and indulged in several expensive vices. Marked bills were traced directly to her, and when taxed by Rugby she broke down and confessed. Every morning when her father stepped into the kitchen for the cup of coffee which seemed to strengthen him during the remainder of his route she had rifled the mail bag as it hung on the entry rack. Rugby and his chief realized that the disgrace of the daughter would be as fatal to the old man as his own arrest, and for once they failed in their official duty. They forced the woman to sell her jewels, which were one of the passions of her life. With the proceeds they made good the losses of the Nelson company.

She had been recklessly mad for money, and had neither thought nor cared for the gray haired man who fairly worshiped her and was willing to go to prison for her sake. But now she seemed to dread the sight of his white hair, the loving gaze in his eyes. She finally went to Denver, ostensibly to visit friends. She never came back. Old John, who had been simply told that the real culprit had been discovered, lived on the letters he received from Denver. If he realized that the inspectors knew the truth, he never gave any evidence of the fact. He died before the daughter, who had plunged into reckless dissipation in the far west and had sunk too low to write the longed for letter, and he never knew that strange hands, the hands of men who worked with him and loved him, would at last lay him to rest and rear the shaft above his lonely grave.

Pepys on Lent.

The scarcity of fish in old times in England made it difficult for the poor to keep Lent. Pepys remarks, "The talk of the towne now is whether Lent shall be kept with the strictnesse of the king's proclamation, which is thought cannot be, because of the poor who cannot buy fish." He also says: "Notwithstanding my resolution, yet, for want of other victualls, I did eat flesh this Lent," and again, "Our dinner was only sugar sopps and fish, the only time we have had a Lenten dinner all this Lent."

Consumption

Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

A sample will be sent free upon request.

Any one having any material relative to the history of the township of Tecumseh, which they are willing to loan, will confer a favor on the library by letting the librasians know of the same. All material will be copied and promptly returned. It is quite essential that the library should be a store house for home history as well as foreign.

The following invitations have been received by many Tecumseh friends, "Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Krischke invite you to be present at the marriage of their daughter, Edna Maud, to Mr. Roscoe Alton Hall, Wednesday evening, November twelfth nineteen hundred and two at eight thirty o'clock, 150 Martin court, Canton, Illnois." Roscoe Hall is formerly a Tecumseh boy and is the son of Mrs. Jennie Hall, of this place, and has a large circle of friends here.

Democratic Rally.

The democratic meeting at Clinton last evening was of the old time kind when Clinton was democratic by from 75 to 100 majority.

The Tecumseh band helped to render the music and Willard VanTyle opened the meeting at 8 o'clock in a very able manner. Don H. C. Bowen, candidate from this legislative district, made a strong appeal for votes and promised the people he would urge and work for the pledges made in the democratic state platform if elected.

Hon. Fred B. Wood spoke for nearly an hour and the attention and applause at the proper times gave evidences that the people were in hearty sympathy for his election.

The noticeable feature of it all was that many of the opposite party were cheering their and our friend Wood.

H. Martin Williams, of Illinois, made a strong appeal for the voters to register their disapproval of the way state affairs were being conducted the past few years in this state, and against the high protective tariff and the trusts, by voting the democratic ticket from Dan to Bersheba on next Tuesday.

P. S. Blodgett.

The death of Gen. Manager Blodgett at Cleveland last Monday was not a surprise to many people as he has been a sick man for a long time. He was well known in Adrian and, in fact, had a few "old timers" who knew him here.

Excursion to Adrian.

On account of the democratic meeting, Gen. F. B. Wood, speaker, at Adrian to night the Lima Northern will run a special train leaving Tecumseh 6:50 and returning after meeting. Fare for round trip 40c.

Deer Shooting.

The prospects for deer shooting in Northern Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan the coming season are exceptionally good, and fine sport is assured. Reduced rates will be made for excursion tickets from Chicago and Milwaukee to points on and via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. A synopsis of the game laws now in effect may be obtained on application to Robt. C. Jones, Michigan Passenger Agent, Detroit, Mich.

A friend of ours lately went into a provision store to purchase a corned tongue. The dealer handed him one, remarking that it was very nice, and, furthermore, that it never told a lie. "It is very evident, then," remarked the purchaser, "that it was never engaged in the other provision business."

"Love is an eternal transport!" exclaimed an enthusiastic poet. "So is a canal-boat," said a practical old forwarding merchant.

"Tommy my son, what is longitude?" "A clothsline, papa." "Prove it, my son." "Because it stretches from pole to pole."

"The nearest I ever came to cannibalism," said old Lord George Bentinck, "was when I swallowed a little London porter."

GEN. F. B. WOOD,

Candidate for Congress in the SECOND DISTRICT.

An Up-hill Job to be Elected in this Republican District but he is Doing Nicely.

Some weeks ago when Gen. F. B. Wood received the democratic nomination for congress, his friends thought it foolish for him to spend his time and efforts attempting to force an election on the democratic ticket, but as the weeks went on, matters looked brighter and now there are hundreds of men in this district, let alone Lenawee county, who are willing to wager that he will be elected.

The ovations given him at Jackson and Ann Arbor and all over the district are wonderful. Every man seems to like Gen. Wood and is delighted to see him come and have him talk to them. In fact, we know who Fred Wood so well, in a measure we lose sight of his affable qualities that are so easily seen by men who are in a way strangers.

Come to size the contest up, every man in Lenawee county should vote for Gen. F. B. Wood tor congress. He is an able, mature man, right in the prime of early manhood. He is capable of making a good congressman in every way. He is affable and pleasant and accommodating and will be painstaking for his constituents and interested in their behalf. He is a Lenawee county man, born in Tecumseh and at all times alive to the interests of this section.

It is of great advantage to this county that the representative in Washington should come from this county and not from Jackson or Washtenaw, and this should prompt every voter in Lenawee to vote for Gen. Wood, even though it may be a selfish interest. On these many accounts he will receive many republican votes next Tuesday and it is to be hoped enough to elect him. Any man, be he republican or democrat, will be certain that in casting his vote for Gen. Fred Wood he has voted for a clean, honest man.

THE CHURCHES.

Baptist church, Sunday, November 2: Morning, "The Bible as a Lamp." Evening, "Manly Responsibility."

Services at the Episcopal church at 10 a. m. Sunday.
REV. C. C. KEMP, rector.

Morning subject at the Presbyterian church next Sunday will be "An Urgent Question"; evening subject, "Wilt Thou be Made Whole?"

Sunday morning the pastor of the M. E. church will preach on the subject, "Visions"; Sunday evening, "The Man in the Image of God."

The Friends' quarterly meeting will be held at their church in this place Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 1 and 2. Several visiting ministers will be in attendance. Among them will be Esther Butler, superintendent of the mission work at Nanking, China. She will give a missionary address at 1:30 p. m. Sunday. All are invited to attend.

In the resignation of Rev. S. Louisa Haight from the pastorate of the Universalist church, that society loses one of the most successful and earnest preachers this church ever had. In her four years' residence among us Miss Haight has endeared herself to hosts of friends and made herself necessary to many outside of her own congregation. In her charitable work she has drawn no denominational lines and was always ready to assist with helpful words and kindly acts any who might need her ministrations. Her time was always at the disposal of her friends and the clubs and societies in which she held a membership feel that her place will not be easily filled.

An indefatigable worker she has for some time supplied the Manchester pulpit Sunday mornings, conducted an afternoon service at her own church here and in the summer time preached at Wolf Creek in the evening. Thus over-work and ill health have compelled her to rest for a time and try a milder climate for the winter. After a few months in which to recuperate she expects to go on with the work for which she is so well fitted, and no one who has ever attended one of her services at the little church on a Sunday afternoon but hopes and expects great things in the future for so earnest and broad minded a worker.

A widow once said to her daughter: "When you are my age it will be time enough to dream of a husband." "Yes, mamma," replied the thoughtless beauty, "for the second time."

An Ancient Foe

To health and happiness is Scrofula—as ugly as ever since time immemorial. It causes bunches in the neck, disfigures the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into consumption.

"A bunch appeared on the left side of my neck. It caused great pain, was lanced, and became a running sore. I went into a general decline. I was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and when I had taken six bottles my neck was healed, and I have never had any trouble of the kind since." MRS. K. T. SNYDER, Troy, Ohio.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

will rid you of it, radically and permanently, as they have rid thousands.

REV. J. P. VARNER,

Formerly of the Methodist Church

DENOUNCED PROSECUTOR RICHARDS,

Of Shiawassee County. Made Strong Attack on the Republican Ticket.

The following dispatch from Owosso will be read with special interest by Tecumseh people as Rev. John P. Varner was formerly the Methodist Episcopal minister here:

Owosso, Mich.—One of the most bitter denunciations of a public official ever heard in Owosso was delivered at the First Methodist church Sunday night, when Rev. John P. Varner attacked Austin E. Richards, prosecuting attorney and candidate for re-election on the republican ticket.

After reviewing the cases in which the prosecutor was unsuccessful, and speaking of his alleged weak policy under the liquor law, the preacher said:

"This man Richards is not the one we want again. A prosecuting attorney should be a man of brains, intellect, physique and with a backbone like a crowbar. He has a weak intellect, weak physique, weak in speech and has no backbone at all."

He described the republican county convention which nominated Richards as a cut and dried affair, and said his friends were politicians who cared nothing about law, if they had but office to live on. Attorney Odell Chapman, who acted as chairman of the convention, was designated as a man who never stood for anything good. Mr. Varner closed with an appeal to his hearers to spot Richards on election day, and in the meantime to work against him.

The fight between the local saloonkeepers and Varner is approaching a climax. The preacher admitted he received a threatening letter Saturday, which is worrying his wife, and his friends are solicitous, but Varner Saturday night defied saloonists to put their "dirty hands" on him. It is said that his past life is being quietly investigated by private detectives, in an effort to dig up something which might detract from his influence.—Adrian Telegram.

Two weeks since Rev. Varner attempted to "wag the elephant by the tail" and this time we will know by the decreased or increased majority of Richards whether he has done so or not.

The North Branch school is progressing finely under the skill and training of Miss Caldwell. She seems to be the right teacher in the right place.

If one wishes to see the hum of industry perfectly illustrated, he will be well repaid by visiting the primary schools; the new red chairs and tables seem to enthuse the little folks and the teachers are helping the inspiration.

Miss King, the fifth grade teacher, evidently thinks the geography doesn't contain it all for she supplied the almanacs and every pupil in the room were studying them last Monday morning. They were finding when the sun rises and sets at different seasons and the cause of the difference in the time of old Sol's appearing and disappearing.

A SIMPLE QUESTION

Is not the word of a representative citizen of Tecumseh more convincing than the doubtful utterances of people living everywhere else in the Union? Read this:

Mr. Charles Bartholomew, who runs the bicycle repair shop in the south eastern section of Tecumseh, says: "Some eighteen years ago the doctors said I had diabetes and that I could not live. I got better but have been troubled ever since with the kidney secretions, particularly retention of the kidney secretions which caused me considerable anxiety. I tried all kinds of medicines said to be good for kidney trouble but the annoyance still remained. Finally my attention was called to Doan's Kidney Pills and I got them at C. A. Wright's drug store. They are splendid. They gave me more relief and acted quicker than any remedy I ever used. From my experience I can say they are a reliable remedy and I consistently reccomend them.

Must Have Two Bondsmen.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 29.—Late Tuesday afternoon Judge Murphy decided, in reply to a direct question by Attorney Groesbeck, that F. C. Andrews must furnish two bondsmen who will each qualify for the sum of $100,000—the amount of the bond required—above all liabilities. The judge also ruled that J. E. Winder was not eligible to qualify on the ground that he was a non-resident of Detroit. The attorneys for the defense will take the first ruling of the judge to the supreme court in the morning. It is said that if the supreme court agrees with Judge Murphy, no further effort will be made to furnish bail. J. Elisha Winder, $75,000; James Hanley, $50,000; David Neiderlander, $65,000; this is the sum total of the real estate offered as a pledge or bond for the release of Frank C. Andrews.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

President Names Thursday, Nov. 27, as the National Holiday.

Washington, Oct. 30.—President Roosevelt has issued his proclamation designating Thursday, Nov. 27, as a day of thanksgiving.

The proclamation is as follows:

"According to the yearly custom of our people, it falls upon the president at this season to appoint a day of festival and thanksgiving to God.

"Over a century and a quarter has passed since this country took its place among the nations of the earth, and during that time we have had, on the whole, more to be thankful for than has fallen to the lot of any other people. Generation after generation has grown to manhood and passed away. Each has had to bear its peculiar burdens, each to face its special crises, and each has known years of grim trial, when the country was menaced by malice, domestic or foreign levy, when the hand of the Lord was heavy upon it in drouth or flood or pestilence, when in bodily distress and anguish of soul it paid the penalty of folly and a froward heart.

"Nevertheless, decade by decade, we have struggled onward and upward; we now abundantly enjoy material well being, and under the favor of the Most High we are striving earnestly to achieve moral and spiritual uplifting. The year that has just closed has been one of peace and of overflowing plenty. Rarely has any people enjoyed greater prosperity than we are now enjoying. For this we render heartfelt and solemn thanks to the Giver of Good; and we seek to praise him, not by words only, but by deeds, by the way in which we do our duty to ourselves and to our fellow-men.

"Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, do hereby designate as a day of general thanksgiving, Thursday, the twenty-seventh of the coming November, and do recommend that throughout the land the people cease from their ordinary occupations, and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks unto Almighty God for the manifold blessings of the past year.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington this 29th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and two, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-seventh.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

"By the President:

"JOHN HAY, Sec. of State."

President to Go South.

Washington, Oct. 30.—President Roosevelt will make a trip through a part of the south next month if official business should not make his presence in Washington necessary at that time. The trip will be made about the middle of the month, the primary object of it being to enable the president to attend the reception to be tendered by the citizens of Memphis to General Luke Wright, vice-governor of the Philippines. Subsequently, it is expected the president will accept an invitation to participate in a bear hunt in the canebrakes of Mississippi. He may embrace the opportunity while in the south to visit the Tuskegee institute at Tuskegee, Ala., of which Booker T. Washington is president.

Large Sum For Missionaries.

Minneapolis, Oct. 30.—The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church formally opened its thirty-fourth annual session here last night. The address of welcome was made by Rev. James S. Montgomery, pastor of Wesley church. The day was spent by the secretaries of the society in executive session in consideration of appropriations and expenditures. It is probable $500,000 will be appropriated this year by the secretaries. Central China was the territory discussed.

Children Cremated Themselves.

Guthrie, Okla., Oct. 30.—A negro woman, wife of a negro railroad laborer, yesterday locked their three children, two girls and a boy, aged 5, 7 and 10 years, in the house and went out for the day. The children set fire to the place and were burned to death.

A Straightforward Answer.

J. B. Lippincott once ventured to ask Ouida, the novelist, how she came to know so much about clubs, camp life, barracks, gambling houses and other places which are only visited by men. She placed her hands upon her knees and, looking straight at her questioner, said, "It is none of your business."

A Horticultural Lover.

"Did Biffkins ever tell you about his love affair?"

"Oh, yes! When he first met the girl, he thought she was a peach, and she soon became the apple of his eye, but he learned that she didn't give a fig for him, so it soon became a case of sour grapes."—Toledo Bee.

L. Hawn, Newington, Ont.

Neglected colds always lead to something serious. They run into chronic bronchitis, pneumonia, asthma, or consumption. Don't wait, but take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral just as soon as your cough begins. A few doses will cure you then.

A booth had been arranged in the large doors between the sitting and dining rooms, from which lemonade and wafers were served. Everyone pronounced the evening a very delightful event and wished the club success.

Stricken with Paralysis.

After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured.—Geo. R. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by J. J. Orr.

"I suffered agonizing pain in the left breast and between my shoulders from heart trouble. My heart would palpitate, flutter, then skip beats, until I could no longer lie in bed. Night after night I walked the floor, for to lie down would have meant sudden death. My condition seemed almost hopeless when I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, but it helped me from the first. Later I took Dr. Miles' Nervine with the Heart Cure and the effect was astonishing. I earnestly implore similar sufferers to give these remedies a trial."

Easily Applied—No Odor—No Dirt.

To polish a stove like peppering a beefsteak may seem odd to those who have never used Sifter Stove Polish, but nevertheless, it is the newest, easiest and most convenient method known. Sifter Stove Polish is put up in a large, round box with a perforated top similar to a pepper box. The polish never dries out and does not require soaking in water before using. There is never any waste. It is good to the last pinch. It is gently sifted on the stove, brushed with a damp cloth and lightly rubbed with a dry cloth. A brilliant, jet black lustre is obtained. There is no odor, no dirty saucers or pans, no rusty boxes to cover. The Sifter box is always clean. Sifter Stove Polish is cheap. It costs 5 cents a box, will polish more stoves than three times its cost in any other polish. All dealers.

He Had a Conscience.

"Wonderful fellow, that Herlock Solmes," remarked the captain a few evenings ago in the smokeroom. "I remember the occasion when I was introduced to him. It was at a crush at the Van Astorbilts. There was an awful crowd, and we were standing up in a corner talking, when all at once I missed my watch.

"'What's the matter?' inquired the detective when he noticed that I was upset, and I told him.

"Looking at the time, he observed, speaking so as to be heard for a yard or two around, 'Gentlemen, my friend here has lost his watch, but fortunately it is a striking repeater, and as it is now fifty-eight minutes to 10 when it strikes the hour we shall be sure to hear it and can so detect the thief if you will kindly listen for it.'

"Two or three fellows laughed, but all took it good naturedly except an ugly looking foreigner, who colored up under his dirt and tried to shuffle away.

"'That's our man,' said Solmes.

"And so it was, for my watch was found on him.

"Was it a repeater? Oh, no! There's where the talent came in."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Odd Ideas.

Some of the Virginia applicants for registration as voters give queer answers to the questions asked them. One negro thought the general assembly was "you three gentlemen sitting there," with a bow to the registrars. Another thought it was "a place in the woods where they went to worship the Lord." A third negro was asked to explain the freedom of the press. "When you get in a crowd, shove as much as you please," he replied.

Women In Command.

In several villages of Finland the woman has authority, for a religious sect exists there whose disciples are forced to marry and to take a vow to submit to the wife in all things. The women choose one of their number for governing head, whose duty it is to see that the men behave themselves and to punish them if they transgress. Similar are the "Purificants" of Liberia, who also recognize the supremacy of women.

White Smoke from Soft Coal

Round Oak Furnaces have large feed doors, burn wood or coal; but whatever they burn, give greater heat than any other furnaces, because all the gases and nearly all the smoke is consumed. The smoke is white from a Round Oak Furnace burning soft coal; that means no waste fuel. The principle is not new, but the application to the Round Oak is new—in that no holes are cut through the fire pot.

Round Oak Furnaces

are different from all others in many other things—in solid construction, in reasonableness of price. If you are going to buy a furnace, send for our free furnace book—contains useful information about heating, dimensions, furnace regulation, ventilation, etc.

Equal Suffrage Association Says President Favors It.

CONVENTION AT CHARLOTTE

Closed Friday Evening With Address by Carrie Chapman Catt—Mrs. Synder-Root of Bay City Elected President—Other Officers Chosen.

Charlotte, Mich., Nov. 1.—The Michigan Equal Suffrage association convention closed last night with an address by Carrie Chapman Catt of New York city, president of the national association. Mrs. Winifred Harper Cooley of Grand Rapids also spoke. Rev. Caroline Bartlett Crane of Kalamazoo was to have spoken on a sanitary subject at the evening session, but sent word that she would be unable to be present.

In the afternoon a part of the time was taken up for a memorial for Elizabeth Cady Stanton, former president of the national association. Mesdames Arthur and Jenkins of Detroit, Cooley and Ketcham of Grand Rapids, Root and Doe of Bay City, and others spoke, all paying honor to the memory of their dead member.

The committee on resolutions recognized with pleasure the growing sentiment of organized labor toward equal rights for women and gladly noted their activity in securing organizations of working women. The present agitation to undermine the coeducational system in the higher institutions was declared a menace to educational interests, and denounced in vigorous language. They recommended that the taxpaying women of Michigan be exempt from taxation until the state accords them the franchise. The committee are of the opinion that to counterbalance the rapidly increasing foreign vote the women should be permitted to vote.

The following paragraph taken from the report of the resolutions committee was vigorously applauded: "That we rejoice at the fact that the president of the United States has proved his allegiance to the political rights of women citizens by recommending their enfranchisement, while governor of New York, and by recent expressions of approval."

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Martha E. Snyder-Root, Bay City; vice-president, Mrs. Guilielma H. Barnum, Charlotte; recording secretary, Mrs. Edith F. Hall, Flat Rock; treasurer, Mrs. Emily B. Ketcham, Grand Rapids; auditors, Mrs. H. Margaret Downs, Grand Rapids, and Lila E. Bliss, Luman; delegates to the national association, to be held in New Orleans next March, Mrs. Winifred Harper Cooley, Grand Rapids; Edith F. Hall, Flat Rock; Mrs. Helen P. Jenkins, Detroit; Mrs. Emily B. Ketcham, Grand Rapids, and Mrs. Clara B. Arthur, Detroit; alternates, Rev. Olivia Carpenter Woodman, Paw Paw; Mrs. Sarah E. Smith, Grand Rapids; Lila E. Bliss, Luman; Mrs. Carrie A. Miller, chesaning, and Miss Martha Baldwin, Birmingham; member of the national association, Mrs. Belle M. Perry, Charlotte.

Port Huron's Schools Closed.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 1.—The high school and St. Stephen's parochial school, which are across the street from each other, were closed Friday afternoon owing to the smallpox scare, and will remain closed until the danger is over. All of the patients have been quarantined, but so many people have been exposed that further cases are expected to be reported.

South Manitou Disappearing.

Charlevoix, Mich., Nov. 1.—It is claimed by residents of South Manitou island that careful soundings, made since a recent sinking of a piece of land near the lifesaving station, show that where the water has always been quite shallow it is now very deep, and conditions point to the early swallowing up of the entire island by Lake Michigan.

Scenic Hall Dedicated.

Marquette, Mich., Nov. 1.—The new building at the Northern Normal school, which will be known as Peter White Scenic hall, in honor of northern Michigan's foremost citizen, was dedicated Friday afternoon with appropriate ceremonies by President Angell of Michigan university. NEW WAGE SCALE

Begins November 1, Says Strike Commission.

NO OBJECTIONS OFFERED

Another Day Spent With Underground Laborers—Three Other Important Questions May Receive Early Attention.

Scranton, Po., Nov. 1.—The first important action by the anthracite coal strike commission, which is arbitrating the differences existing between the miners and their employes, was taken Friday when it was announced by Carroll D. Wright, the recorder of the commission, that if any award affecting the existing rate of wages shall be made, the award shall be effective from Nov. 1. It was fully expected this question would come up before the arbitrators, but the action of the commissioners shuts off any possible controversy that either side may have desired to raise. The miners wanted the new scale, if one is made, to date from the time they returned to work, but the operators left the matter to be decided by the commission. The mineworkers are perfectly satisfied, however, with the decision of the commission. The strike has been off only one week, and most of the men have not worked more than four or five days. The announcement of the commission was contained in the following brief resolution: "Voted, unanimously, that if the commission at the conclusion of its hearings and deliberations, makes any award affecting existing rates of wages such award shall take effect from Nov. 1, 1902."

Accompanying the resolution was a brief statement made by Recorder Wright.

The commission spent Friday in continuing their inspection of the mines and the mining region about Scranton. They visited the Manville colliery, operated jointly by the Delaware & Hudson and the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western companies, in the forenoon, and the afternoon was spent in riding through the region on a special trolley car. The commission will spend Saturday in the vicinity of Wilkesbarre, returning here in the evening.

It is possible the commission may make a preliminary report on three of the principal strike questions. They are the increase in wages, a shorter workday and the weighing of coal. After these have been decided the commission can take up all other questions without undue haste. It is known the commissioners have this feature under consideration, and it is very likely a preliminary report will be made.

The commissioners were underground for two hours and a half.

WOULDN'T ANSWER MITCHELL.

Illinois Coal Operators Inclined to Squelch Him.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—The Bleck Diamond today says that the Illinois Coal Operators' association, through its commissioner, Mr. Herman D. Justi, has declined to answer certain questions propounded by President Mitchell of the United Mineworkers' of America. These questions are:

1. The views of the Illinois operators as to the responsibility of the miners' organization.
2. The advantages of joint contracts with that organization.
3. Their approval of its methods of disciplining its members.
4. Their views concerning the reasonableness and conservatism of its officers.

Mr. Justi, in his reply to Mr. Mitchell, said that up to this time the anthracite strike commission had not called for any testimony from the bituminous operators in Illinois, and the association had decided that none should be given unless called for by the commission.

Mr. Justi added that, should the anthracite strike commission find it necessary during its investigation to formulate a series of questions for the bituminous operators to answer concerning the working under the joint interstate and state movement, the "operators will give the composite opinion of all the operators of the state and will speak through their association."

In Mr. Justi's opinion, it would be discourteous to the president and the commission appointed by him, to anticipate in any way any questions they might ask.

Honors For British Soldiers.

London, Nov. 1.—A long list of honors and promotions in recognition of South African services was gazetted Friday. Lord Methuen is made a knight grand cross of the Bath, Major-General F. W. Paterson Rioters Get Five Years.

Paterson, N. J., Nov. 1.—Rudolph Grossman and William McQueen were sentenced to five years in state's prison for rioting and malicious mischief at the time of the strike in this city last June. Appeals were taken and the prisoners filed new bonds in $17,000 cash.

Memphis, Nov. 1.—Cresceus, in his attempt to lower the two-mile trotting record, yesterday afternoon made a wonderful performance, trotting two miles in 4:17 flat. The former record was 4:28¼. The driver and Cresceus received an ovation.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 3.—Walter Cole, fullback of the Tennessee deaf and dumb football team, is reported dying as a result of injuries received in a game played at Maryville Saturday. He has a broken collarbone and serious internal injuries. Cole's home is at McKeesport, Pa.

WAS NOT A SUCCESS

Assembly at Benton Harbor Surrenders its Charter.

$2,000 LOSS LAST SUMMER

Assembly Must Own Its Own Grounds, Says Dr. Dickey, in Order to Be Successful—Hope to Organize Another Soon.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Nov. 3.—The directors of the Benton Harbor assembly, after thorough deliberation, have decided to surrender their charter and go out of business. This association was organized and a state charter was granted last spring, but one assembly being held, under the management. Dr. S. C. Dickey, manager of the Winona assembly at Warsaw, Ind., was a director and one of the prime workers in the Benton Harbor association.

The loss incurred by the running of the assembly the past summer amounted to over $2,000, which has all been paid. Dr. Dickey declared that an assembly to be a success must be located on permanent ground owned by the association. It is hoped that in the near future it will be possible to secure a proper site and give the twin cities a permanent assembly. All the property of the Benton Harbor association was sold and removed to the Winona assembly ground.

Ore Supply Increased.

Marquette, Mich., Nov. 3.—The Cleveland Cliffs Iron company has made further additions to its already great ore supply by concluding two more deals for iron lands in this county. One is the lease of a tract of about 400 acres of land at Swanzey, owned by the Escanaba River Land & Iron Co. The Cleveland Cliffs has been conducting diamond drill operations on the property for some months past, and it is reported a considerable deposit of gold grade ore has been found. The second deal is the securing of an option on the Barasa mine at Negaunee. This comprises forty acres, surrounded on all sides by Cleveland Cliffs property. The option gives the right of purchase at any time within a year at a price approximating $200,000. During that time a royalty is to be paid the Barasa people on all ore taken out in development work. About a quarter of a million tons are already in sight at the mine, and there is evidence of the existence of a considerable deposit.

Found 50,000 Old Pennies.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Nov. 3.—While workmen were engaged in tearing down an old frame store building at Richland, this county, belonging to A. B. Barnes, who had occupied it for forty years, they unearthed in the cellar a nail keg coated with grime and dust, and with its contents weighing several hundred pounds. Opening the keg they discovered it to be full of what at first appeared to be brand new copper pennies, but closer investigation revealed the fact that they were commercial pennies such as were used during the war and were furnished by private mints to banks, railroads, lumber companies, merchants, etc., to be used as change.

Escaped an Awful Fate.

Three Rivers, Mich., Nov. 3.—B. E. Trick, a traveling salesman from Logansport, Ind., was sandbagged at night at White Pigeon, robbed of $190 and thrown on the railroad track in an unconscious condition. He was waiting for the 11 o'clock train to return to his home. The train being late, he walked down the track toward the water tank. He was knocked down by his assailants and dragged a block, where the men put out the switch lights and threw his body on the track. He came to as the headlight shone on him and, realizing his condition, got off the track just as the train passed.

Punctured by Arrows.

Menominee, Mich., Nov. 3.—Calvin Hart, a farmer near Nadeau, has brought to a justice of the peace at Carney two arrows which he found stuck in the side of a cow and a horse in his pasture. The arrows are tipped with pieces of heavy wire, sharpened to a point. It is believed they were shot into the animals by some one who has a grudge against Hart. They made ugly wounds. The arrows are being held as evidence and efforts are making to locate the guilty parties.

Gymnasium Work Compulsory.

Houghton, Mich., Nov. 3.—Gymnasium work, which was made a feature of the course at the high school last year, proved so successful that it has been decided by the board of education to permanently adopt the system. An instructor has been engaged and classes will be organized next week. Some of the work will be made compulsory, so that all students will be numbered among the various classes.

Peculiar and Painful Accident.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Nov. 3.—Clyde B. Parrish, night watchman at the Henderson-Ames factory, met with a peculiar accident Saturday night about 8:30 while on duty in the building. He accidentally knocked his revolver from his belt, and in striking the floor it was discharged, the bullet passing entirely through the calf of his right leg, making an ugly and painful wound.

Lamp Cleaner Killed.

Calumet, Mich., Nov. 3.—Frederick Penninger forgot and used both hands while cleaning an arc light at the Calumet & Hecla power plant at Lake Linden. The shock killed him. He was forty years old and leaves a widow and daughter.

Graves' candidacy for mayor were posted in store windows along the main streets of the city. Mr. Graves did not like the idea and it was done without his sanction, but a number of the business men gave permission to post the bills. Signs are posted all over the city by both Mayor Moore and Graves. Bill boards have been brought into use and a schooner has been anchored in Black river, near the main thoroughfare, bearing at its masthead a large banner on which is A. A. Graves' platform.

Descendant of Empress Josephine.—Mrs. Anais Wilson of Savannah, Ga., aged eighty-three, died Sunday after being struck by a trolley car. Mrs. Wilson was born in the island of Martinique in 1819. Her mother, Mrs. Peters, was a cousin of Empress Josephine, the first wife of Napoleon.

A Letter From Botha.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Peter Van Vlissingen, this city, who has been prominently identified with Boer relief measures in this country, has received a letter from General Louis Botha, dated London, Oct. 23. In the letter General Botha says: "I wish to avail myself of this opportunity to express our gratitude for what you and your committee have hitherto done for us and to tender you our hearty thanks. I can assure you that if during the war it was necessary to render us assistance, there are now much stronger reasons for doing so, to help our people on their legs again, and I note with pleasure that we may count on your further assistance."

THE OTHER MAN

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]

William Dawson, a clerk in an insurance office, was sent to Chicago on business. When he had transacted it, he sat on a bench in Lincoln park. Suddenly a numbness crept over him. He fought against it, but was soon helpless, and it was half an hour before it passed off.

Then he stood up and walked about to find himself "the other man." In other words, his identity was gone. He could not remember his name, his town or anything connected with his past. He could not tell what city he was in. It has been asserted by medical men that had he made his condition known and had prompt treatment he would have been himself again after a couple of days, but he became terribly frightened over the situation and started off on a run. By and by he found himself in the country. He did not stop at any house or question any wayfarer, but toward night he fell in with a quartet of tramps. The fellows must have observed his mental condition, for they led him into a field and assaulted and robbed him. They even stripped him of his clothes and threw him the rags of one to cover his nakedness. When they left him, he walked on to the first house and started to tell his strange story. It was not to be expected that any one would credit it. In fact, it was calculated to arouse suspicion. He was detained at the house, and a constable was sent for, and later on he found himself in jail as a vagabond and one who was up to some game. When arraigned before a justice of the peace, he told his story and was given a sentence of three months in the county jail.

It was three weeks after Dawson's disappearance that his employers began to search for him. He was easily traced to Chicago, and his name was found on a hotel register, and his trunk was there, but the police could find no further trace. After several weeks it was returned as a case of murder and robbery or an accidental death by falling off a wharf. The case was referred to in so many newspapers and an advertisement was kept running so long that if Dawson was alive it seemed that he must have been found. Soon after he found himself in jail he sought to interest the jailer in his case. The man had never heard of such a thing, and he simply laughed at the idea.

Finally he was discharged.

Dawson took to the road as a tramp because he had no other recourse. He worked and begged and traveled, and six months went by. By that time he was in Iowa, and his mind was almost made up that he had been a tramp for years and years. He could recall how the strange feeling came over him as he sat in a public park, and yet he was half convinced that it was all a dream. One day, as he was plodding along the highway, he was overtaken by a country doctor driving a gig. The doctor was a good hearted man named Andrews and always had a dime for a hardup man. It so happened that he wanted a man to assist him in tearing down an old barn, and he offered the work to Dawson. It was accepted, and "the other man" had been hard at work for three days when something happened. The doctor overheard him quoting Shakespeare to himself and at once became interested. It did not take him long to find out that he had an educated tramp in his employ, and, encouraged by his kind words, Dawson told him his strange story. The doctor had read it in the papers, and he knew that such things had been and could be. One of the remarkable features in Dawson's case was that his mind had only been dulled to certain things. His memory was gone as to his identity and how he had lived his years, but he could read, write, cast up figures and was otherwise in touch with the world. There was nothing new to astonish him. Again, he had suffered no sickness and had no mental worry, and nothing had come as a shock. He was never in better health or spirits than when the feeling began to creep over him.

Andrews was, of course, interested in the case from a medical point of view. He hunted up back numbers of the newspapers and proved the man's identity. Dawson's home, education and visit to Chicago were all given, and he received the information with much surprise. He could not remember to have ever heard of the name of the town where he had lived for years, of the people he had worked for or of any journey to Chicago. In this situation of affairs he agreed that it would be best to stay with Dr. Andrews for awhile and hope that his memory would return. Six weeks had passed when he was sent to the village in the gig to make some purchases. Upon his return the doctor met him at the gate, and Dawson accosted him with:

"My dear sir, I find myself in an embarrassing position. Will you kindly tell me if the owner of this rig lives hereabout?"

"Yes; it is mine," answered the doctor, seeing at a glance that memory had returned to his patient.

"And how did I come by it?"

"I loaned it to you."

"But I—I don't understand. When did I leave Chicago? How do I happen to have these clothes on? Why did I borrow your horse and gig?"

Memory had returned to the man as he drove home from the village. There was no shock, no such feeling as had come to him when he lost it. He simply found himself wondering why he was driving a doctor's rig on the highway instead of transacting business in Chicago. The restoration was complete, and "the other man" returned to his own identity and took up his life again as William Dawson.

Broke the Rule.

A Boston man recently regaled a party of friends with a story about a certain nameless club in Boston which has strict regulations against gambling.

A quartet of club members decided to break that rule by a game of poker for small stakes. So they adjourned to one of the small rooms of the club and called the old colored servant to bring a pack of cards. When he brought them, one of the members queried:

"John, I suppose it would be something utterly new in this club if we should do such a thing as play for money with these cards?"

The negro scratched his head and deliberated, finally answering:

"Boss, I'ze been wid dis club a long time and I'ze seen many things."

"Yes, but what have you seen?"

"I'ze seen ebry rule ob dis club vi'lated 'ceptin' one."

"What rule is that one?"

"De rule 'gainst gibbin' tips to de serbants."

And straightway that rule was relieved of its lonesomeness among its fellows.—New York Times.

FARMER DALE'S MISTAKE

[Original.]

I was on a wheeling tour and stopped for supper and all night at a forlorn looking farmhouse. I was surprised to see no woman about, all the work being done by the owner of the place, Ezra Dale. After supper I lighted a pipe and sat on the porch smoking. Dale came and sat beside me.

"You have finished your evening chores early," I said. "When my wife is without a servant, she never gets the dishes washed before 9 o'clock."

"Waal, ye see, I don't do it that a-way. I wash dishes oncet a week. Then I put 'em all on ter the wagon, drive 'em inter the creek, take a mop, an' when I get through they shine like pewter."

"Don't you think a wife would be handy? She could do your mending."

"Don't need no wife. I got needles an' thread an' buttons. There's my kit." And he handed me a case containing the articles mentioned and no more.

"Where's your thimble?" I asked.

"Don't need no thimble. I tried one oncet an' couldn't use it. It's handier to git the head of the needle ag'in the wall an' drive it through that a-way."

"Did you never have a love affair?"

"Yes, oncet. It was when I was a young feller—very young an' very green. I used to look on a gal as a heathen would look on a sacred image. There was a little one livin' across the creek, Farmer Owens' daughter Daisy. Purty? Ye bet, an' gentle as a kitten. She tuk a shine to me. I was a fair lookin' young feller then, straight an' slim an' light on my feet. One evenin' I was a-passin' Farmer Owens', and Daisy come runnin' out with her finger a-bleedin' an' asked me ter tie it up fur her. I had ter git her arm under mine somehow an' hold on ter her hand an' wrap the linen strip an' wind the string an' a lot of things all at the same time. While I was a-doin' of it her hair got ag'in my cheek, an'—waal, I lost my head an', turnin', put an arm around her an' kissed her.

"Do ye know, stranger, I've since made up my mind she done it all a-purpose. I b'lieve she cut her finger ontentionally. I tell ye, women folks is tricky."

"I think that was a very nice feminine way of catching your attention," I remarked. "Go on."

"That's jist what I did do. I went on from day ter day, week ter week, till it seemed ter me if anything happened between me an' that gal I'd collapse. Somethin' did happen. Farmer Owens tuk a farm han' fur the hayin', an' what did Daisy do but take him out in her buggy that her father bought fur her at Christmas an' drive right by that house a-purpose ter show him off ter me. I tell ye, stranger, she had the wickedest eye in her ye ever see."

"Another feminine trait," I observed. "Miss Daisy was evidently a woman."

"She was a woman, stranger, an' the worst kind of a one," Dale went on lugubriously. "She broke me all up. I jist rented this farm an' went away. I didn't come back fur ten years. Then I made up my mind that women folks wasn't wuth worryin' about, an' I tuk my farm ag'in an' began ter work it. The fust time I went by Farmer Owens' Daisy come out—she had grown ter be a fine lookin' young woman of twenty-six—an' what do ye suppose she did?"

"I can't imagine."

"Asked me if I wouldn't tie up a cut finger. She had the same wicked look in her eye she had when she drove that lopsided farm han' by my house ten years afore. Women is the persistentest critters I ever see. I jist squared off an' said: 'Ye don't git me that a-way ag'in. Ye done it oncet, an' that's enough.' But, do ye know, stranger, she was so slick about it that in five minutes I had my arm about her an' she was a-restin' her head on my shoulder. She was a-cryin', too—cryin' crockerdile tears, no doubt.

"Waal, we was engaged, but it didn't las' long. The question come up as ter whether we'd be married by a justice or a parson. I don't like parsons myself, an' I wanted a justice. Daisy wanted a parson, an' she was so blame set about it that I reckoned if she was as obstinate about a small matter like that she'd be wantin' ter run the farm, so I called the thing off, an' I've been livin' alone here ever since."

"Mr. Dale," I said, "you have mistaken natural feminine traits for general cussedness."

"That's what they is, I tell ye, stranger. "Ye don't understand."

"You have declined to give up that which to a woman is a great deal, while to you it is nothing. Miss Owens was right to insist on being married by a parson, and you were ungenerous to refuse her. Now, let me give you a bit of advice. Miss Owens is still single? Yes. Well, go to her and tell her that when you first met her you were a blundering idiot and that later you were an obstinate brute. Say that if she will overlook your past errors you will spend your life in doing penance."

"Why, stranger, if I was ter do that I'd never have my own way about anything afterward."

"It is the only way to have your own way about everything with a woman. Toss it all into her hands, and she'll toss it right back to you. More than that, she'll expect you to lead, and if you don't lead she'll not respect you."

"Ye don't mean it! Say, stranger, what sort of a makeup do ye call that anyway?"

The next summer I rode past Farmer Dale's place. It was the trimmest looking farm in the county. After supper the farmer told me how much better contented he was while Mrs. Dale was washing the dishes.

EDGAR PENNINGTON.

The Art of Brevity.

The Spartans were distinguished for the brevity and conciseness of their speech. On one occasion during a terrible famine the inhabitants of an island in the Ægean sea sent an embassador to Sparta, who made a speech imploring its aid. He had hardly finished before the Spartans sent him back these words, "We did not understand the end of your speech and have forgotten the beginning."

The poor, starving people chose another spokesman and impressed upon him to make his request as brief as possible.

He therefore took with him a quantity of sacks, opened one before the assembly and said simply, "It is empty; fill it."

The sack was filled as well as the others, but the chief of the assembly said as he dismissed the embassador, loaded with meal: "It wasn't necessary to inform us that the sack was empty. We saw it ourselves. Neither was it necessary to request us to fill it. We should have done it on our own account. Be less long winded next time."—Christian Endeavor World.

A WALKING PARTY

[Original.]

Miss Chalmers was the most attractive girl at the Mountain House that summer, and before the season was half over I had resolved to win her if I could. She was with her mother, her father being engaged in business in the city. She talked a great deal of her father, and it was plain that they were devoted to each other. I wished I could meet him and do something to ingratiate myself into his favor, for I knew he would have a great influence over his daughter when the crisis came.

Miss Chalmers and I spent much time on the piazza looking at the beautiful view far below, the fields of ripening corn and those from which the grain had already been cut, the whole resembling patchwork in a quilt, often watching for the afternoon stage to come lumbering up the incline, bringing the day's passengers from the station. Besides, we were both good walkers and tramped over every possible path within reach.

"Father is a great walker," she said every time we started out. "How I do wish he would come up and walk with us!"

One afternoon Miss Chalmers was indisposed, and I was obliged to walk alone. My thoughts dwelt continually upon her, and I wished I might have an opportunity to do something heroic that would commend me to her. I walked down the winding road in the direction of the station, passing the stage on its way up. Farther down I passed two men who scrutinized me closely, then passed on, saying:

"There's a desperate character hiding in these mountains. We're looking for him. If he meets you, he might ask for a loan. He's very hard up."

"What is he like?" I asked.

"Reddish beard; sandy hair mixed with gray; sturdy fellow; cast in his left eye."

The first thing I did after the men were out of sight was to select a stout cudgel from the dead wood lying about, and I resolved that if I encountered the desperado I would see what I could do toward taking him in. It occurred to me that he might be armed, but I thought how splendid I would feel to march him up to the piazza of the hotel in view of the guests, especially Miss Chalmers, and determined to take any risk.

Half an hour later I saw a man coming up the road—"reddish beard; sandy hair mixed with gray; sturdy fellow; let me get a look at his left eye." I stopped square in his front and looked at the eye in question. If the cast was there, I could not make it out.

"Where do you hail from?" I asked in an authoritative tone.

"Why do you ask?"

"Never mind that. Answer my question."

"Not until you show your authority for asking."

"I've been looking for you," I said in the tone of an officer of the law, at the same time putting my hand under my coat at the hip where constables carry their revolvers. "Pass on. I'll walk behind."

The man looked at me and in the direction my hand had taken, then said:

"There's some mistake about this."

"All men who are wanted advance that plea. Move on."

Without a word he turned and walked on up the road. I was delighted with my success. It looked as if he would be easily landed. But I had three miles to take him and must keep a close watch. Indeed I was convinced that his want of resistance meant a ruse when an opportunity should present itself. I was right. We had gone perhaps a mile and I had closed up to within two yards of him when he suddenly turned and with the agility of a cat sprang upon me. He was as strong as he was nimble, and in a twinkling I found myself on my back, my cudgel knocked out of my hand. He seized it and, holding it over me, thrust his hand to my right hip for my revolver.

"Bluff!" he exclaimed contemptuously. "Now, young man, get up and take the lead yourself."

I was caught in my own trap, unarmed, at the mercy of a desperate man, with a club.

"Which way?" I asked.

"Up."

There is a moment in my life that I can never recall without supreme anguish, mortification, despair. A loved and loving one has done all in her power to cause me to forget it, but it is still the sore spot of my existence. At this crucial moment I was walking before my captor up to the Mountain House. At my left the setting sun was covering the wide stretch of fields below with glory, but I did not see it. I saw on the hotel piazza the guests assembled before dinner. Each looked as tall as a specter in the Brocken. And running down the path to meet us was Miss Chalmers!

"Oh, papa, is it really you? How like you to walk up instead of riding!"

"Stand off a moment, Ethel. I've got a lunatic or something in tow. If I give him a chance, he'll turn on me."

"A lunatic! Why, that's Mr. Trotter!"

"A friend of yours?"

"Of course. He's such a walker! Now you have come we can all take long walks together."

I had no heart for an explanation, and Mr. Chalmers kindly did the best he could for me. His daughter, instead of laughing at me, sympathized with me. I have consequently since been her slave, except in one respect. My wife has never been able to induce or drive me to take country walks. My walk with her father destroyed my taste for such affairs forever.

A Call Down.

Mrs. Powers—Hezekiah, if you were to live your life all over again and it came to the matter of choosing a wife do you think you would choose me?

The First Women on the Stage.

It is now ascertained beyond doubt that women first appeared upon the stage between November, 1660, and January, 1661. On Jan. 3 Pepys, that inveterate playgoer, tells us that he saw "The Beggar's Bush," "it being well done, and here the first time that I ever saw women come upon the stage."—Cornhill Magazine.

Death and the Philosopher.

A certain philosopher was in the habit of saying whenever he heard that an old friend had passed away: "Ah, well, death comes to us all. It is no new thing. It is what we must expect. Pass me the butter, my dear. Yes, death comes to all, and my friend's time had come."

Now, Death overheard these philosophical remarks at different times, and one day he showed himself to the philosopher.

"I am Death," said he sadly.

"Go away," said the man, in a panic. "I am not ready for you."

"Yes, but it is one of your favorite truisms that death comes to all and I am but proving your words."

"Go away! You are dreadful!"

"No more dreadful than I always am. But why have you changed so? You have never feared the death that has come to your friends. I never heard you sigh when I carried off your old companions. You have always said, 'It is the way of all flesh.' Shall I make an exception in favor of your flesh?"

"Yes, for I am not ready."

"But I am. Your time has come. Do not repine. Your friends will go on buttering their toast. They will take it as philosophically as you have taken every other death."

And the philosopher and Death departed on a long journey together.—Charles Battell Loomis in Brandur Magazine.

An English Sanctuary.

Beverley minster, 180 miles north of London, is the shrine of St. John of Beverley, who died in the year 721. In 938 Athelstan, king of England, gave several privileges to the monastery, one being the privilege of sanctuary. This was not merely for manslaying; it was open to all wrongdoers except those who had been guilty of treason. For ordinary offenses, such as horse stealing, cattle stealing, being backward in accounts or being in receipt of suspected goods, a man came into sanctuary about a mile from the monastery or church. There used to be four crosses on the main roads leading to Beverley marking the limit of the area. In cases of manslaughter and murder it was not sufficient to be within one of these crosses. Before the fugitive could claim sanctuary he must enter the church and seat himself in a stone chair known as the "frid stool" or "freed chair." To this place many fled for refuge from all parts of the country.

Looking Up.

The lecturer pleaded with the crowd to "look up." In impassioned tones he cried: "God always helps the man that looks up! Never look down, my friends, and do not waste too much time looking sideways. Look up, and keep on looking up! I never knew a man to fail if he looked up. Is there a man in this audience who can say that he always looks up?

A seedy stranger arose in the back row to say: "I can say that I always look up. I have steadily looked up for thirty years, and am no better off for it. Looking up is my business."

"What do you do for a living, my good man?"

"I'm a ceiling decorator."

Prima Donna and Her Voice.

Once upon a time there was a famous prima donna who made a contract with a noted impresario to sing in concerts for him at a price which made each of her notes of about the value of $1.

All went well until the prima donna found a dressing room assigned to her that did not meet with her approval. Then she complained that she was entirely too hoarse to sing, and the impresario had to make polite remarks to his audience and dismiss it after refunding the money paid for admission.

The remarks that he made out of the hearing of the audience were not so polite.

Moral.—Impresarios wish that they might have hoarseless prima donnas.—New York Herald.

Languages In India.

Twenty-eight languages are spoken in India and none of these is spoken by fewer than 400,000 persons, while the most general is the mother tongue of 85,500,000. Besides these there are in the remotest parts of the country dialects spoken by no more than 500 persons, which none other than themselves can interpret. India has nine great creeds, numbering their followers from the 208,000,000 Hindoos down to the 9,250,000 Animistics and the innumerable sects included in the 43,000 "others."

Youth's Unrestraint.

"Don't you sometimes long for your childhood's happy days?" said the sentimental person.

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne, "there are times when I would enjoy hanging on the fence and making faces at people I don't like instead of having to say: 'How do you do, dear? So glad to see you!'"—Washington Star.

Proverbs

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn," is an old time dairy proverb. It often seems to work though no one has ever told why.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion.

It is like the penny in the milk because it works and because there is something astonishing about it.

Children take to it naturally because they like the taste and the remedy takes just as naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and pale and thin children Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory treatment.

We will send you the penny, i. e., a sample free.

Oddities of Color Blindness.

While the number of color blind persons is not very large, only about five in every hundred suffering from any defect in this respect and most of those being affected only in a minor degree, yet the phenomenon sometimes assumes very remarkable phases.

An oculist states that he found two persons who possessed monochromatic vision—that is, to say, all colors appeared to them to be simply different shades of gray.

If the reader will look at a photograph of a landscape or, better, of a garden filled with brilliant flowers, he will be able to form an idea of the appearance which nature must present to one who suffers from the infliction called monochromatic vision.

A Strong Play.

RECEPTION

Given by the Rebekah Lodge for GRAND MASTER C. E. WILLIAMSON

Friday Evening. About One Hundred in Attendance.

Last Friday evening a reception was given by the Rebekahs at their hall for Grand Master C. E. Williamson and was attended by one hundred of the lodge members and other friends. The following program was given:

Welcome—Mrs. Emma Ford.
Song—The Titus Sisters.
Recitation—Adalaide Putman.
Song, "Lullaby"—Michaeleen Hiens.

Then Mrs. P. C. Snell, in behalf of the lodge, presented Mr. Williamson with a solid gold I. O. O. F. charm. The gentleman, though completely surprised, responded in his genial manner with a fine address.

The guests were then served with light refreshments by Mrs. Geo. Kempf's committee, and every one enjoyed a regular Rebekah good time.

Walstein Brighton.

The community was shocked Saturday to hear of the sudden death of Walstein Brighton which occurred about 11:30, caused by appoplexy. He leaves a wife and two sons, Floyd and Clarence, to mourn his loss. He was a member of the A. O. U. W. lodge which turned out in a body to the funeral. The funeral was held at his late home at 2 o'clock yesterday, Rev. Leslie Bowers officiating.

The Wonderful Starfish.

There are scores upon scores of different forms of marine animal life that come within the category assigned to starfishes, but the most singular specimen in the whole group is the splendid astrophyton—the "sea basket" of the sailors. It is truly a wonderful specimen of marine life, having hundreds of long and short, straight, twisted and curled tentacles, and but for the geometric precision of the plan upon which the starlike "body" is fashioned might be mistaken for a miniature, circular specimen of the devilfish. The center of the creature, the "hub," from which the five stout arms radiate; is the body, head and "thinking machine" of our curious astrophyton.

The whole, not including the labyrinthine tentacles, which branch to all the points and intermediate points of the compass, looks for all the world like an animated Fourth of July firewheel. The five main arms are divided into three each within a short space from the astro's body, and these three are almost immediately subdivided into innumerable other arms and tentacles, the whole forming a net by means of which it captures its prey and holds its victims until the life has been sucked out of them.

Saws That Cut Each Other.

A proverb has been defined as "the wisdom of the many and the wit of one;" but, clever as this definition is, it is scarcely borne out by a comparison of the most familiar of our proverbs. The following are some of the most striking: "Penny wise and pound foolish" is the exact opposite of "Take care of the pence and the pounds will take care of themselves;" so "Birds of a feather flock together" and "Two of a trade never agree." "Absence makes the heart grow fonder" and "Out of sight, out of mind," are just as contradictory as "Many hands make light work" and "Too many cooks spoil the broth." So, too, "Delays are dangerous" is the flat opposite of "Second thoughts are best," while the philosopher who invented the axiom "The early bird catches the worm" had apparently never heard of King Alfonso's world renowned saying that "All things come to him who waits." On this particular subject the opinion of the worm and the bird might be worth having.

Surprised His Wife.

A story is told of a Pennsylvania farmer who wore his old suit until every one was tired of it, and his estimable wife was almost ashamed of the hustling man who had been inside it so long. But one day he went to town to sell his produce, and while there he determined to buy a new suit and, happy thought, surprise Eliza. So he bundled a neat suit into the wagon and drove homeward.

It was after night as he hurried homeward, and at a bridge over a river he stood up on the wagon and "peeled" and threw the despised old suit in the water. Then he reached for his new clothes. They were gone—had jolted out of the wagon. The night was cold and his teeth chattered as he hurried home. He surprised Eliza even more than he anticipated.

A Remarkable Petition.

The keeper of the menagerie at Versailles during the reign of Louis XVI. had orders to administer six bottles of burgundy every day to a dromedary which had grown feeble with old age and which the king was very anxious to keep alive. In spite of this ultra generous treatment the animal died, to the great despair of his nurse, who petitioned the king with a view of obtaining the "succession of the dromedary"—that is to say, all the advantages attached to his person.

Get the Most Out of Your Food

You don't and can't if your stomach is weak. A weak stomach does not digest all that is ordinarily taken into it. It gets tired easily, and what it fails to digest is wasted.

Among the signs of a weak stomach are uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, and disagreeable belching.

"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla at different times for stomach troubles, and a run down condition of the system, and have been greatly benefited by its use. I would not be without it in my family. I am troubled especially in summer with weak stomach and nausea and find Hood's Sarsaparilla invaluable." E. B. HICKMAN, W. Chester, Pa.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Strengthen and tone the stomach and the whole digestive system.

QUIETLY MARRIED

Last Evening, at M. E. Parsonage,

MISS M. GERTRUDE SCHREDER AND MR. ED PANGLE,

Of Columbus Grove, O., to Which Place They Have Gone.

Miss Gertude Schreder and Edward Pangle were united in marriage at the M. E. parsonage by Rev. M. T. Seelye. They left this morning, amid showers of rice, for Columbus Grove, O., where they will make their future home. They have congratulations of a host of friends here.

"The Eleventh Hour"

Which will be at The New Bradley is one of the most complete travelling companies on the road, carrying all their own special scenery which was designed built and painted by Messrs. Buhler and Mann, of Chicago, the well known scenic artists, one scene alone costing $5,000.00, being a reproduction of the magnificent drawing room of a Chicago millionaire. To get as near the original as possible, photos were taken, by the permission of the owner, and thus all details were copied, even to the bric-a-brac and interior furnishings of every description. The play has met with great success in other cities and will no doubt prove a pleasant entertainment at Tecumseh, Bradley opera house, Friday, Nov. 7.

Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No cure no pay. Price 25 cents.

Deer Shooting.

The prospects for deer shooting in Northern Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan the coming season are exceptionally good, and fine sport is assured. Reduced rates will be made for excursion tickets from Chicago and Milwaukee to points on and via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. A synopsis of the game laws now in effect may be obtained on application to Robt. C. Jones, Michigan Passenger Agent, Detroit, Mich.

Helping a Sculptor.

When Macmonnies, the American sculptor, was a young man working in Paris, Falguiere, the famous French sculptor, on one occasion entered his atelier and found there a beautiful Diana that had been for months "on the stocks" and was approaching a perfection measurably satisfactory to the sculptor himself.

Falguiere became so absorbed in the work before him as to forget that it was not his own. He began to twist and pull the dainty limbs of Diana this way and that, to punch her in the ribs, turn her queenly head—for she was then only in clay, of course, and susceptible to impressions—until at last he had produced the very pose he desired. "There, my friend; I like her better so," he cried and skipped out of the studio.

He had really intended to do Macmonnies a favor and had indeed paid him the greatest compliment of which he was capable, but the young sculptor was in distress, for on comparing the remodeled Diana with a photograph of Falguiere's statue of the same character he found the Frenchman had unconsciously made a practical replica of the other. Macmonnies did not rest until he had restored his statue to its original pose.

Astronomy Before Christ.

About 500 B. C. Anaxagoras of Ionia was born. When he "grew up in wisdom," he was the first to teach the course and cause of both solar and lunar eclipses and to give his followers rules whereby they could distinguish planets from fixed stars. He was punished for declaring that the sun was not a god.

A Bee Line.

The directness of the bee's flight is proverbial. The shortest distance between any two given points is called a bee line. Many observers think that the immense eyes with which the insect is furnished greatly assist, if they do not entirely account for, the arrowy straightness of its passage through the air.

Mr. George Merritt, well known business man and proprietor of the cigar manufactory, says: "I can testify to the honesty and worth of Doan's Kidney pills. There is no humbug about them. I was annoyed for some time with a dull aching pain in my back at times quite severe. I heard so much about Doan's Kidney Pills that I procured a box at C. A. Wright's drug store and after taking them a short time I found they were helping me. Finally the pain in my back disappeared entirely. Doan's Kidney Pills are a splendid remedy for all kidney ailments.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by J. J. Orr.

VISITS THE BATTLEFIELD.

President Spent Sunday on Site of Cedar Mountain Fight.

Brandy Station, Va., Nov. 3.—President Roosevelt passed several hours Sunday afternoon on the battlefield of Cedar Mountain. Accompanied by Secretary Cortelyou and Dr. Rixey, the president drove to the site of the sanguinary struggle and there received from an eyewitness and participant an account of the fight. It was the most interesting event thus far of his present trip. The day was perfect and the drive to the battlefield was as pleasurable as could be desired. They were followed by a procession of carriages, containing people from Culpepper and surrounding country.

On arrival at the battlefield, which is dotted here and there by monuments, marking the positions of the troops during the fight, the contest was explained to the president by Judge Grimsley, who now is a member of the bench of this judicial circuit. The judge was a captain in the Sixth Virginia cavalry and was a participant in the fight. The president, a cavalryman himself, was interested particularly in the account of the famous cavalry charge made during the battle of Cedar Mountain.

In the very heart of the battlefield President Roosevelt held an informal reception. Many people had gathered from the surrounding country, and after Judge Grimsby had described the battle the president received informally those who had assembled on the field. Subsequently the president was given a shell which had been dug up on the battlefield as a memento of his visit.

A WEIRD SCENE

Population of Vienna Make Pilgrimages to Cemetery.

Vienna, Nov. 3.—One-third of the population of Vienna made pilgrimages Saturday and yesterday, All Saints day and All Souls day, respectively, to the Central cemetery of Vienna. The pilgrims started in the early morning and returned late at night. Some went on foot, while others used vehicles of all descriptions. It is estimated that 600,000 persons visited the graves in the cemetery on these two days. The pilgrims all carried wreths or flowers, and before the tombs and in the long grass burned countless candles. The sparsely occupied parts of the cemetery presented a weird and picturesque spectacle.

The monuments of Mozart, Beethoven and Schubert, as well as the plot where are buried the 600 victims of the Ring theater fire of 1881, attracted thousands of visitors. This cemetery is the largest in Europe and contains 622,000 graves.

Emperor Francis Joseph and other members of the royal family placed wreaths upon the coffins of the empress and of Crown Prince Rudolph, in the vault of the Capuchin church.

ST. PIERRE DESTROYED.

New Foundland Town Devastated by Flames Saturday Night.

St. Johns, N. F., Nov. 3.—The town of St. Pierre, Miquelon, has been devastated by fire. A disastrous conflagration started Saturday night and swept the main portion of the town. The governor's house, the government buildings, the courthouse, the building occupied by the ministry of marine, the Roman Catholic cathedral, the Presbytery, the schools and a number of other buildings were destroyed. It has not yet been learned how the fire originated. There was no wind else the entire town would probably have been completely obliterated. Even as it is, the extent of the disaster is very far-reaching, and the financial loss will probably reach half a million dollars. There was no loss of life or serious accident. The rapid spread of the conflagration was due to the trifling water supply and to the fact that St. Pierre has no adequate fire fighting appliances.

The town of St. Pierre has been partly burned down three times before —in 1865, 1867 and 1879.

Another French Duel Scheduled.

Paris, Nov. 3.—The Marquis de Dion has charged two friends, MM. Bruneau and Syveton, to make a demand on M. Gerault Richard of the Petite Republique for a reparation for offensive conduct or a retraction of certain statements made. This appears to be the prelude for a duel between the two men, who are both members of the chamber of deputies. The trouble grew out of an angry discussion recently in a corridor of the chamber.

Gas in Mine Exploded.

New Straitsville, O., Nov. 3.—M. O'Brien, a miner; Charles Sampson, stable boss, and Herbert Coran, bookkeeper, were killed by an explosion of gas in Lost Run mine, near here, Sunday. It is supposed the gas found its way into the mine from an adjoining mine, which had been abandoned for several years. It is believed the men went in to explore the mine and that the gas was ignited by the lights they carried.

The Old Folks' service held in the M. E. church Sunday morning, was largely attended, many pioneer members being present. Rev. Colvin had charge of the service which was opened with prayer by Wm. Gadd Sr., which was followed by the reading of the lesson by Mrs. Sara Wastell, the oldest living member of the church, she having been an active member for sixty years. Rev. Colvin then delivered an impressive sermon from Proverbs 10:22, closing with the following poem:

GROWING OLD.

Softly, oh softly! the years have swept by thee,
Touching thee lightly with tenderer care.
Sorrow and death they have often brought nigh thee,
Yet they have left thee but beauty to mar.
Growing old gracefully,
Gracefully fair.

Far from the storms that are lashing the ocean,
Nearer each day to the pleasant home light
Far from the waves that are big with commotion,
Under full sail and the harbor in sight.
Growing old gracefully,
Cheerful and bright.

Past all the winds that were adverse and chilling,
Past all the islands that lured thee to rest,
Past all the currents that lured the unwilling,
Far from thy course to the land of the blest
Growing old gracefully,
Peaceful and blest.

Never a feeling of envy or sorrow
When the bright faces of children are seen.
Never a year from the young wouldst thou borrow,
Thou dost remember what lieth between,
Growing old willingly,
Thankful, serene.

Rich in experience that angels might covet,
Rich in a faith that hath grown with the years,
Rich in a love that grew from and about it
Soothing thy sorrows and hushing thy fears.
Growing old wealthily,
Loving and dear.

Hearts at the sound of thy coming are lightened,
Ready and willing thy hand to relieve.
Many a face at that kind word has brightened,
"It is more blessed to give than receive."
Growing old happily,
Ceasing to grieve.

Eyes that grow dim to earth and its glory,
Have a sweet recompense youth cannot know,
Ears that grow dull to earth and its story,
Drink in the songs that from Paradise flow.
Growing old graciously,
Purer than snow.

Great Gamblers.

In Europe and the new world the most inveterate gamblers are the Spaniards and their descendants. Among African tribes the Haussas run the Chinese very close, and there are some Kanaka tribes in the south seas who push the hazard of gambling beyond the grave and stake their very bones on a last throw of the cowrie shells, which they use as dice.

No Breath to Waste.

"There is something about the atmosphere in the far north that makes men very quiet," said a man from up in the frozen region the other day. "The habit is acquired, I suppose, in tramping, when the altitude makes it necessary to use all your breath for breathing and leaves you none for talking. The result is that the men talk very little. They become almost speechless and will sit about at night, each thinking his own thoughts and allowing his fellows to do the same."

Historic City of India.

Delhi is the most historic city in all India. It may not be the oldest, although it lays claim to a respectable middle age, dating from 1000 B. C. At that time the master of Delhi called himself emperor of all the world, and emperors, at least of India, have ruled there almost ever since. Old Delhi, without the walls, is a city of picturesque ruins; imperial Delhi, the modern city, was created by Shah Jehan, a contemporary of Queen Elizabeth.

From the date of the first Mohammedan incursion, A. D. 715, perpetual warfare raged round Delhi until at length she yielded to the irresistible power of the Moguls. The city was alternately Mohammedan and Hindoo during a great many years and finally, in 1803, was made British by General Lake. Delhi has the finest and largest mosque in India. It took 5,000 men six years to build it. The noble tomb of the Emperor Humayan marks the change of creed which followed the Moslem invasion, while the observatory of Jai Singh and the deserted hall of the seventy columns recall the short triumph of Brahmanism.

Why He Didn't Vote.

An Alabamian tells this story of his negro coachman, who invariably voted: On one particular election day he returned home in the afternoon with a countenance that looked as if it had been taking some familiarities with a buzzsaw.

"What's the matter, Zack?" I asked, with some solicitude.

"It's this way, boss: I went up there to the votin' place, and there wuz the county undertakah, sah, a-sittin' with a big book open 'foah him, and he sez to me right sharplike, 'What's your name?' 'Zack Taylor,' I sez, humble. 'Let's see,' says the undertakah. And he turned over the leaves of the book. All of a sudden he stopped turnin' and begin to run his finger down the page, mutterin' to himself, 'Taylor, Taylor, Taylor, Taylor—Zack.' And putty soon he hollered out: 'Heah it is. You black scoundrel, I dun buried you ten year ago! What you mean by tryin' to vote?' Just then a passel of white men tuk and threw me out, and den I dun come home 'foah dey could bury me again!"

She Strove to Please.

The waiter girl at our table was imbued with a sincere desire to give satisfaction. She did her best to get from the kitchen precisely what each boarder asked for, and she succeeded very well indeed.

The other evening at dinner she said interrogatively to each man in turn, "Chicken or tomato soup?" and one made answer, "Tomayto," and the second said "Tomawto soup, please," and the third added, "I'll take tomatto."

Whereupon the intelligent maiden delivered the several orders into the kitchen in this wise, "One tomayto soup, one tomawto soup and one tomatto soup."

Thus each guest received precisely what he had asked for and was happy until the next order was taken.

But that is another course.—Judge.

She Followed Instructions.

A lady once employed a girl to assist her in her housework. One day the mistress wanted to make a pudding, and, having bought some plums, she explained to the girl how to stone them. She picked up a plum and took out the stone; then, thinking the girl knew how to do them, she put the plum in her mouth and left the kitchen. The servant came into the drawing room half an hour later and said, "Please, mum, I've finished." The hostess departed for the kitchen and beheld a plate full of stones only. "Where are the plums, Jane?" she asked. "I've eaten 'em, mum, as you showed me!" was the maid's reply.

A Questionable Pedigree.

Three little school children were seriously discussing the social conditions and positions of their respective parents and their ancestry, each one evidently determined to go one better than the other.

"Mother says I am descended from Mary, queen of Scots," triumphantly asserted little Eva.

"So am I then," retorted Cousin Willie.

"Don't be silly, Willie," interpolated the third. "Why, you're a boy!"—New York Times.

A Medicine for Old People.

Rev. Geo. Gay, Greenwich, Kas., is past 83 years of age, yet he says: "I am enjoying excellent health for a man of my age, due entirely to the rejuvenating influences of Dr. Miles' Nervine. It brings sleep and rest when nothing else will, and gives strength and vitality even to one of my old age."

"I am an old soldier," writes Mr. Geo. Watson, of Newton, Ia., "and I have been a great sufferer from nervousness, vertigo and spinal trouble. Have spent considerable money for medicine and doctors, but with little benefit. I was so bad my mind showed signs of weakness. I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I know it saved my life."

A Startling Surprise.

Very few could believe in looking at A. T. Hoadley, a healthy, robust blacksmith of Tilden, Ind., that for ten years he suffered such tortures from rheumatism as few could endure and live. But a wonderful change followed his taking Electric Bitters. "Two bottles wholly cured me," he writes, "and I have not felt a twinge in over a year." They regulate the kidneys, purify the blood and cure rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness, improve digestion and give perfect health. Try them. Only 50 cts. at C A. Wright's drug store.

GRAND STAND FELL.

Over Thirty Persons Injured—Michigan Defeated Wisconsin.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—With a crash that could be heard for blocks, one of the temporary grand stands erected for the Michigan-Wisconsin football game, collapsed Saturday afternoon, carrying down fully 1,000 people. Thirty-two persons were injured, but none of them fatally.

In what is conceded to be the greatest football game ever played on a western gridiron, Michigan decisively defeated Wisconsin on Marshall field Saturday afternoon and undoubtedly won at the same time the championship of the west, though a later game must be won befare that honor can be claimed. The score was 6 to 0, but it does not fully show Michigan's superiority. Only once did Wisconsin have the ball in Michigan's half of the field. Three times did the Wolverines get inside the Badger's ten-yard line and once within two feet of the goal, but Wisconsin's magnificent defense saved her a beating of at least 10 to 0.

The trick was turned in the presence of 20,000 enthusiastic spectators, and the din made by the rooters was incessant and deafening, at times drowning out the sound of the signals so the plays were run off with difficulty.

The weather was fine but too warm for such a hard game, and the players suffered accordingly. There were few delays for disability, and Michigan showed the effect of her continued aggressive offenses in having men laid out.

IN HAZELTON TODAY.

Commission Continues Investigating Workings of Mines.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 3.—The mine strike commissioners left for Hazelton at 11 o'clock last night to spend four days in further acquainting themselves with the physical features of mining. They had not decided up to the time of leaving how they would divide their time while in the middle and lower districts. It was definitely decided, though, that not more than four days would be devoted to the trip.

Assistant Recorder Neill was left behind to receive the miners' statement from President Mitchell today. On Thursday it is expected the operators' counter statement will be presented. The commissioners will then take a recess until Friday, Nov. 14, by which time the two parties will be expected to have completed the preparation of their cases and be ready to go on with the hearings. The commissioners will also devote the interim to preparation for the hearings by acquainting themselves with the details of the two statements.

Bishop Spalding preached at the late Mass in St. Peter's cathedral in the morning. His fellow-commissioners attended the service and occupied front pews. The bishop's sermon was based on the tenth verse of the thirteenth chapter of St. Paul's epistle to the Romans: "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor; therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."

Both Were Shocked.

Little Elsie was a faithful attendant at Sunday school and had listened earnestly when plans for a coming Christian Endeavor convention were discussed, her interest increasing to enthusiasm over the mysterious affair when she learned that her auntie was to attend as a delegate.

Coming into the library one day, auntie saw the little maid busily engaged in writing a letter to a cousin with whom she kept up a juvenile correspondence. She scrawled industriously for a moment; then stopped. There was a puzzled expression on her fat, ink stained face as she dangled her short legs and wriggled uncomfortably on her high perch.

"Auntie," she said, "how do you spell 'devil?'"

"Oh, Elsie," said her auntie, "I am shocked! Why are you using such a word as that in your letter? Nice little girls never say such things."

It was Elsie's turn to be shocked.

"Why, auntie," she cried, "I'm only telling her about the Christian and devil convention!"—Harper's Magazine.

Editor's Troubles In Russia.

A correspondent tells the following story of methods of censorship in Russia: I was at an evening party of the local press censor in a south Russian town. About midnight I had strolled from the music room into a cardroom and was watching a game of cards, one of the players being our host, the censor, when the hostess approached her husband and said: "I wish, my dear, you would step behind. There are three poor wretches there who have been waiting for you a couple of hours. I did not wish to disturb you sooner." "They must wait a little longer," replied the censor. "I must finish my rubber." Twenty minutes later our host absented himself for a quarter of an hour. Meeting his wife next day, I asked her who were the "three poor wretches" referred to. "Editors of the three local journals," she replied. They had waited two and a half hours in the censor's back kitchen with their manuscript and proof sheets for that morning's issue, without which they could not go to press.—Pearson's.

Hadn't Used Any Hysteria.

A certain lady of title recovered from a rather severe illness. An adept with the brush and a regular exhibitor of water colors in connection with the local art gallery, it was supposed she had overworked herself.

When the doctor was called in, an old nurse who had been in the family many years bored the medical man with her opinions as to the cause of the attack.

"It's them long hours an' hard work of the paintin' what's done it," she remarked directly she saw him. The doctor was preoccupied and scarcely heard the remark.

"Has her ladyship exhibited any traces of hysteria?" he suddenly demanded, turning to the talkative nurse.

"Oh, no, sir," was the unexpected reply. "They was water colors, all on 'em—real beauties too."—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

Censoring Shakespeare.

A masterpiece of censorship was once performed by the Turkish censor, Nischan Effendi, on the occasion of the production of Shakespeare's "Othello" at Constantinople. He "corrected" the drama so thoroughly as to leave hardly a trace of the original. Among other words, he expunged "Cyprus," giving ingenious reasons for this correction. "Cyprus," he said, "is a Turkish island. It would be politically unwise to send Othello to Cyprus, because the territorial integrity of Turkey is guaranteed by treaties. Why not put, instead of Cyprus, some Greek island, such as Corfu?" And thus it came to pass that from respect to the treaty of Paris Othello had to go to Corfu.

NOT TRUE HEROISM

To "Grin and Bear" Rheumatism a Relic of the Past.

Grit your teeth a minute while you listen to this story. If you have Rheumatism it is because you have an excess of Uric acid, which has clogged your blood, the same as floating ice does a river, only the Uric acid poisons in addition. You cannot be freed from Rheumatism until this Uric acid is dispelled. It can be dispelled because we have done it and are doing it every day with Athlophoros.

We have found the action the quickest when the pain is the greatest.

With half a bottle and in twenty-four hours Athlophoros has enabled men to get out of bed and go to work. There is no need to stand pain.

LITTLE REDUCTION IN SENATE

Republican State Ticket Elected by Considerably Decreased Majorities—How State Legislature Stands—One Democratic Congressman Elected.

Washington, Nov. 6.—The latest returns received show that the Republicans (including in this description the fusionists elected from the Pittsburg-Allegheny districts in Pennsylvania) will control the next house by a vote of 204 Republicans to 179 Democrats, with one district, the Eighth Tennessee, and two California districts, remaining so much in doubt that the official returns will be needed to decide the result. The totals given are believed to be correct, although there are a few districts, such as two in Colorado and one in Minnesota, where the Republican and Democratic party managers respectively do not concede defeat, but the general result could not be affected even should their claims prove fell founded. The table by states is as follows:

The Eighth Tennessee and the First and Second California districts are not included in this table, being classified still as doubtful, leaving three votes to be added to the columns according to later returns.

SENATE IS REPUBLICAN.

Little Reduction Likely in Their Majority in That Body.

Washington, Nov. 6.—The next United States senate will be Republican by at least 16 majority, against the present majority of 20. The present senate contains 54 Republicans and 34 Democrats in a total of 90 seats, there being two vacancies from Delaware, where the Republican legislature failed to elect. The terms of 30 senators expire with the present congress. Of these 31 seats are to be filled, not including the two from Delaware, but including the McMillan vacancy; 19 are now Republican and 12 Democratic, Wellington of Maryland being classified as a Republican, and Harris of Kansas, McLaurin of South Carolina and Teller of Colorado as Democrats.

THE EMPIRE STATE.

Remarkable Situation Which Is Favorable to Republicans.

New York, Nov. 6.—Since Roswell P. Flower, in a Democratic landslide defeated J. Sloat Fassett for governor, in the face of Republican claims for an easy victory, there has not been such an overturning of votes from the Republican to the Democratic party in this state as that which took place Tuesday.

With the exception of Erie, Albany and Renssalaer counties, every Democratic prediction of sweeping majorities was carried out and amplified. Especially was this true below the Bronx. The claims of 112,000 for the Greater New York district were more than verified. The failure to realize Democratic hopes removed all chance of Coler's election.

With a registration 4 per cent below that of two years ago, the Democratic party in the Greater New York district showed a gain in voting power in a majority of the counties of over 40 per cent, and this tremendous gain was met and defeat for the Republicans averted by the also quite remarkable fact that several of Republican up-state counties gave Odell larger pluralities than in 1900, while several others equalled their pluralities of that presidential year.

Over its combined vote in the state two years ago the Democratic party gained at least 35 per cent, and the Republican party lost 40 per cent. From a plurality of 111,000 Odell drops to below 10,000, a loss of over 100,000.

Judge Gray, Dem., for judge of the court of appeals, ran 18,000 ahead of Coler in New York city, and is probably elected.

John Cunneau, Dem., for attorney general, may also have pulled through.

While the Democrats have gained three, and possibly four, members in the senate, and about 15 in the assembly, the legislature is safely Republican, insuring the election of a Republican to succeed United States Senator Platt.

Former Senator D. B. Hill has declined to make any comment on the result in this state.

Governor Odell says: "The victory which was won Tuesday, in my opinion, is a rebuke to unclean politics."

The latest returns give Odell, Rep., for governor, less than 10,000 plurality over Coler, Dem.

In Greater New York Coler's plurality is approximately 117,500. This large plurality, however, was not sufficient to overcome the Republican majorities from up the state.

The Democrats have probably gained four congressmen.

Albany, Oct. 6.—The official pluralities for governor in the various counties of the state as reported to Governor Odell by the county clerk, show a total plurality for Odell of 135,975 and total plurality for Coler of 123,085, Odell's plurality over Coler being 12,887.

Philadelphia, Nov. 6.—Practically complete returns from the state indicate a plurality for Samuel W. Pennypacker, Rep., for governor of about 135,000. The incoming house of representatives will be made up of 157 Republicans and 47 Democrats, and the senate will contain 39 Republicans and 11 Democrats.

Columbus, O., Nov. 6.—Chairman Dick, at the Republican headquarters, has complete returns from 86 of the 88 Ohio counties, showing a Republican plurality for state candidates of 90,807. The two counties not heard from are Putnam and Noble. The former gave a Democratic plurality of 1,451 and the latter a Republican plurality of 751 last year. Deducting this difference of 700, he estimates the Republican plurality in Ohio at 90,107, but he expects both Putnam and Noble counties will show Republican gains and that the official vote will exceed these figures. Although 17 counties have not returned their total vote, it is estimated as close to 800,000.

Chairman Garber of the Democratic state committee said: "The Democrats made gains in more than two-thirds of the counties in which Mayor Johnson of Cleveland pitched his tent. Complete returns will show an average Republican plurality for state candidates, as compared with recent years. Democrats are not discouraged. We will fight again on the same line."

Milwaukee, Nov. 6.—Belated returns increase Governor Lafollette's plurality in the state. The latest estimate brings his figures up to 50,000. As near as can be figured, the next legislature will be made up about as follows: Assembly, 75 Republicans and 25 Democrats; senate, 31 Republicans and 2 Democrats.

St. Paul, Nov. 6.—With the receipt of more complete returns, the majority of Governor Van Sant assumes larger proportions. It is at least 50,000 and may go as high as 75,000—a record-breaking majority in Minnesota for a gubernatorial candidate. The governor apparently has run considerably ahead of the rest of the state ticket, although the entire ticket is elected by about the normal majority.

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 6.—The Republican victory in Kansas is complete. A good majority of the legislature, all the state offices and a large part of the county offices were taken by the Republicans. Chairman Albaugh of the Republican state committee made the following statement: "Returns have been received from every part of the state, and they indicate the election of W. J. Bailey and the entire Republican ticket by about 35,000 plurality."

War Against the Railroads.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Members of the interstate commerce commission assembled here Wednesday and will begin today an investigation relative to a charge, by the Chicago Live Stock association, that discriminating rates against live stock are in effect in the west. The sessions of the commission promise to be interesting, as the railroad companies are prepared to defend the existing rates, which are in violation of a ruling by the commission that the rate on raw material shall not be greater than that on the manufactured product. Railroads between Chicago and the Missouri river are charging 18 and 20 cents on packing house products and 23½ cents on cattle.

Will Avert the Rice Famine.

Manila, Nov. 6.—The Philippine commission has quietly purchased upwards of 20,000 tons of rice in India and on the Asiatic coasts in order to avert the rice famine, which is threatening many provinces. The plans of the commissioners were concealed in order to avoid a further disturbance of the Oriental market and so as to prevent possible combinations with the view of raising prices. The government's stock of rice gives it control of the local market and prevents operators from charging excessive prices.

Cattle Perish in the Flames.

Naper, Neb., Nov. 6.—The most destructive fire that ever visited this county has been raging on the Rosebud Indian reservation since Sunday. Three hundred head of cattle are known to have been burned and several ranches in the path of the flames have not been heard from. Several hundred settlers are now holding the flames in check along the north line of Boyd county, where a great many cornfields were destroyed.

Thousands Hissed the Murderer.

Nice, Nov. 6.—Henry Vidal, who confessed to the extraordinary wanton murder of two women and to attempts to assassinate various others, was sentenced to death here yesterday. The defense failed to obtain mitigation of the sentence on account of the murderer's weakness of intellect. Thousands of persons hissed the murderer as he was being conducted to prison.

Grief.

Grief never sleeps. It watches continually, like a jealous husband. All the world groans under its sway, and it fears that by sleeping its clutch will become loosened and its prey then escape.

Startling, but True.

"If every one knew what a grand medicine Dr. King's New Life Pills is," writes D. H. Turner, Dempseytown, Pa., you'd sell all you have in a day. Two weeks' use has made a new man of me." Infallible for constipation, stomach and liver troubles. 25c at C. A. Wright's drug store.

Obliging.

At a musicale where a priest was a guest a young woman with a robust soprano voice did most of the entertaining. She was very proud of her accomplishments and her musical education. She sang songs in German, Italian, French and English. When she appeared to have exhausted her repertory and the company present were wishing for a change in the programme, the clergyman paid her some compliments and added:

"Why, Miss Jones, I think you could sing ad infinitum."

"I really don't know it," responded the obliging young woman, "but if the music is here I'll try it."—New York Times.

TWELVE ARE DEAD

Terrible Accident on Streets of New York.

EXPLOSION IN A CROWD

Fireworks Became Ignited—Sixteen Persons Picked Up Unconscious—People Were Out Celebrating Announcements of Election.

New York, Nov. 5.—Twelve persons were killed outright and 74 others were injured by a series of explosions of pyrotecnic bombs and other fireworks at Madison Square last night. Many of those killed were literally blown to pieces.

The dead: Dennis Shea, patrolman, of the Brooklyn bridge squad; William G. Fenney, 12 years old; Harold Roblee, 12 years old; Nathaniel Bingley, 13 years old; Joseph Arber, 21 years old. Five unidentified white men and two unidentified colored men.

Fifty thousand persons had gathered in the square to witness the ascension of an airship and a fireworks display. The densest portion of the throng that packed the square was gathered along Madison avenue, close to the place reserved for the discharge of the fireworks.

A few minutes after 10 o'clock the first row of mortars was touched off, but before the discharge took place one of them fell over on its side, and the next instant the bomb was shot into the thickest of the crowd, where it exploded and hurled the people into heaps.

The jar of the mortar and the concussion of the explosion knocked down the rest of the row of mortars, and a thundering volley of huge projectiles plowed through the crowd. Almost instantaneously the second group of twenty mortars about 100 feet further up the avenue discharged their contents into the crowd, and a moment later the third group, evidently ignited by the showers of falling sparks, exploded in the same manner.

In the panic thousands ran blindly across the square, tripping over seats and benches, and falling, were trampled on. The police on duty were carried along by the rush, and for half an hour the wildest confusion reigned.

The explosion took place among the fireworks that were to be set off to celebrate the announcement of the election returns. The report was so heavy that windows were broken in the houses around the square. When the first panic had subsided sixteen persons were found unconscious on the ground. Some of these, however, quickly recovered. Others had been horribly mutilated.

Five hundred extra policemen were ordered on duty and the work of caring for the dying and taking the wounded to the hospitals was carried on with all possible speed. It is stated that fully fifty persons were more or less injured. Some of these, however, were removed by their friends, while others were taken to the hospital.

POLITICIAN SHOT DOWN.

Hon. Hale Johnson Killed in Row at Bogota, Ill.

Effingham, Ill., Nov. 5.—Hon. Hale Johnson, a prohibition leader of national prominence and a vice-presiden tial candidate on the Prohibition ticket in 1896, was shot and killed by Harry Harris yesterday afternoon at Bogota, a village in Jasper county, thirty miles from here. Mr. Johnson, who was practicing law at Newton, the county seat, went to Bogota to collect an account, on which judgment had already been rendered, against Harris.

An altercation occurred between Johnson and Harris, at the Harris home, and the latter secured a shotgun and fired at Johnson at close range, the charge striking Johnson in the face and causing instant death.

Killed by Robbers.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Charles E. Behlens, a real estate dealer, was shot and killed in a saloon here early Tuesday. Behlens and Benjamin Marcviglia, proprietor of the saloon, were preparing to go home when four masked men with revolvers drawn entered. Two of them rifled the cash register. Behlens attacked one of the remaining thugs and the latter's companion then shot Behlens. The police have good descriptions of the robbers.

President Visits Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Nov. 5.—President Roosevelt will today attend the celebration by the grand lodge of the Most Ancient and Honorable Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons in Pennsylvania of the sesqui-centennial anniversary of the initiation of George Washington into the Masonic fraternity, which event took place in the lodge at Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 4, 1752.

Frenchmen in a Duel.

Paris, Nov. 5.—The duel between the Count de Dion, president of the Automobile club and a prominent sportsman, and M. Gerault Richard of the Petite Republique, took place yesterday. M. Gerault was wounded in the right arm. The duel was the outcome of a quarrel in the chamber of deputies, in which Richard kicked de Dion on the shins.

Will Surrender the Pirates.

Rome, Nov. 5.—A dispatch received from the town of Midi, on the Lohela (yemen) Arabia coast, which was recently bombarded by the Italian gunboats in their pursuit of Red sea pirates, says the authorities of Midi, beside promising to deliver the pirates to the Italians, gave an undertaking to collect indemnity of $3,000 for the families of Italy, who were killed by the pirates.

Millionaire Sands Selling Out.

Manistee, Mich., Nov. 5.—Louis Sands, the Manistee millionaire lumberman, has transferred his interests in the Sands Electric Light company and Manistee Gas and Fuel company to Indianapolis parties; consideration approximately $150,000. This is said to be the first step in the removal of the Sands interests from Manistee.

*Re-elected.

Detroit, Nov. 6.—Returns received show that Governor Bliss' majority is upwards of 36,000. This, considering the light vote cast throughout the state with the exception of Wayne county, is regarded as a very good showing for the head of the ticket. The governor was cut deeply in many of the counties in the lower part of the state, however, and he ran about 20,000 behind Warner, Republican candidate for secretary of state.

Durand carried Kalamazoo and Jackson counties, and returns show that he also carried Saginaw county, the home of both the gubernatorial candidates. Durand, it appeared, had pulled the Saginaw city ticket through with him. Washtenaw, as shown by early returns, is also in the Durand column.

The fight for congressman resulted in a Republican victory in all districts except the first, which lies wholly within the city of Detroit, and the result of which was influenced by local conditions. Alfred Lucking will be Michigan's sole Democratic representative in the national legislature. A feature of the congressional fight was the "cleaning up" in the Seventh district by Henry McMorran, Rep., Martin Crocker of Mt. Clemens, the Democratic candidate, being defeated by about 5,000.

Carpenter's Great Run.

Judge Carpenter of Detroit leads the Republican state ticket everywhere. His majority will approximate 65,000, or nearly 30,000 more than Bliss received. Fred Warner for secretary of state is a good second. Bliss was hit particularly in the three cities of the state, Detroit, Saginaw and Port Huron, which were ripperized by the last legislature. In Wayne county 146 precincts give Durand a plurality over Bliss of 9,751. Bliss carried Kent county by about 1,400, although Warner has a majority there of 3,459, and William Alden Smith carries the county by 4,968. Smith leads the ticket. Bliss was cut in the Soldiers' Home precinct.

The Congressmen.

The majorities of the eleven successful Republican candidates for congress are well up to two years ago. In the second Townsend carries every county except Washtenaw, his plurality being about 2,100. The pluralities in the other districts are: Third, Gardner, 4,160; fourth, Hamilton, 5,275; fifth, William Alden Smith, 7,000; sixth Sam W. Smith, 4,307; seventh, McMorran, 5,037; eighth, Fordney, 8,250; ninth, Bishop, 6,625; tenth, Loud, 3,608; eleventh, Darragh, 7,975; twelfth, Young, 13,776.

Wayne County.

Wayne county was decidedly the football field in Tuesday's election in the state of Michigan, and of course the city of Detroit was the storm center. Not only was the contention between the Democratic and Republican parties fierce, but what was undoubtedly one of the most bitter congressional struggle the First district has known for twenty years, occupied a front position on the stage. The issue of ripperism injected into the mayoralty and numerous personal controversies inside party lines had a telling effect and defeated at least one candidate on the Republican county ticket.

In point of numbers, Governor Bliss was the worst sufferer, running nearly 10,000 votes behind his ticket.

The congressional fight was intensely bitter and was largely a personal campaign against Corliss, who was a candidate for fourth term. Lucking made a vigorous canvass and rolled up a majority of over 3,000.

Landslide in Monroe.

Monroe, Mich., Nov. 6.—The success of the whole Republican county ticket in Monroe county Tuesday is as surprising to the Republicans as it is to the Democrats, and is the sole topic of conversation. Nobody seems to be able to figure out just how it all happened. This county has always been considered a Democratic stronghold, and only once before did the Republicans make any great showing in a county election. The landslide this year is the most complete in the county's history. In fact, it is the only time on record when the Republicans have swept everything. The Republican majorities vary all the way from 70 to 800, with Circuit Judge Harry A. Lockwood leading. Charles E. Townsend (Rep.) for congress follows with a majority of 700, and Simeon Van Aiken (Rep.) for state senator has nearly the same number.

AT BRISTOW STATION

BY SCOTT CHALMERS

Copyright by T. C. McClure

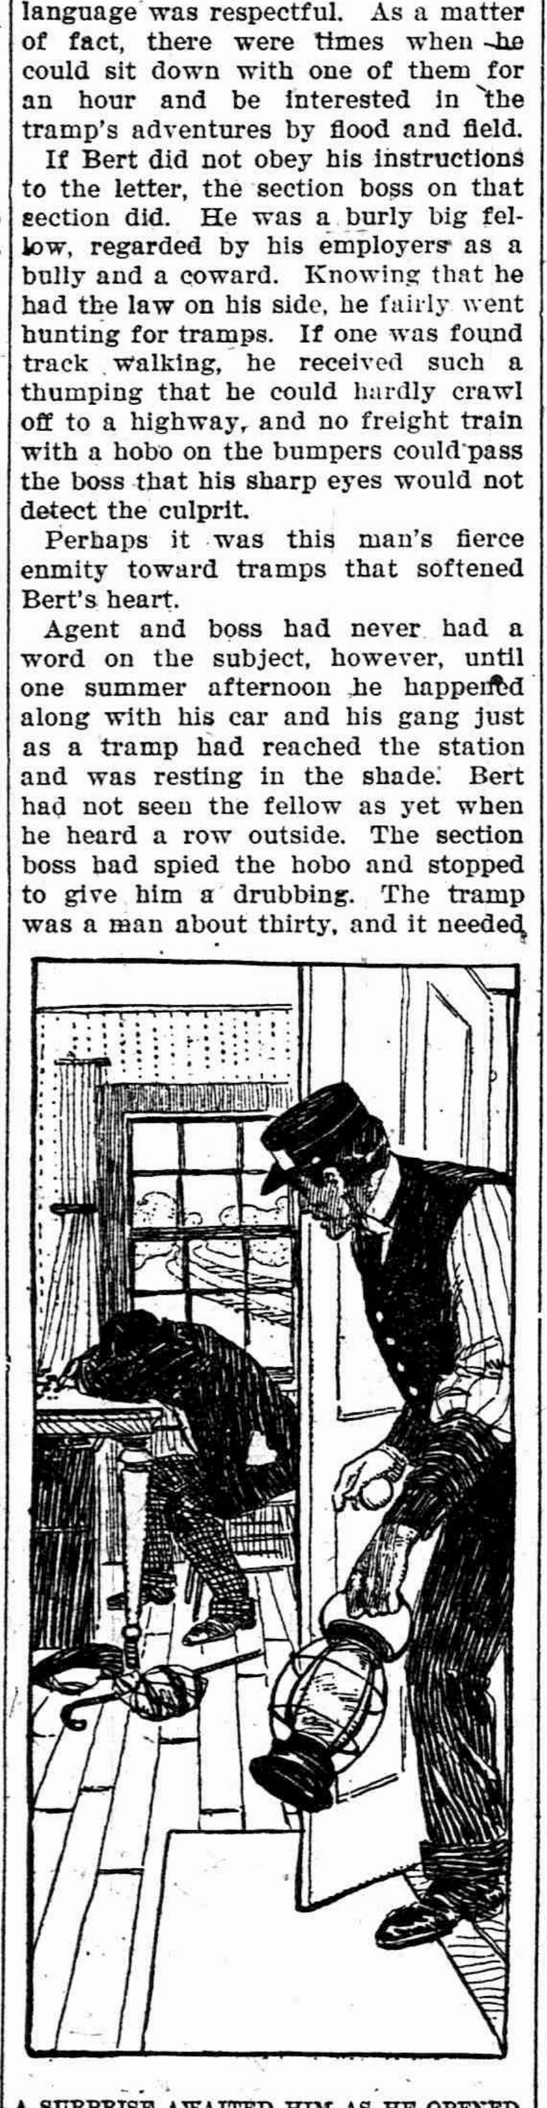
Bristow Station was in the Panhandle section of Texas, and a more lonely and dreary place it would be hard to find. There was but one building, which served for freighthouse, passenger depot and ticket and telegraph office. Bert Brown, the K. and M. agent, had to do all the business and cook his own meals over an oil stove. There were four trains daily over the road; but, unless flagged, the two passenger trains went through Bristow at a fifty mile clip. To the west of the station was a long siding with cattle pens, then a straight track for thirty miles over the prairie.

Bert could always count on a visit from three or four tramps a day, and, though the instructions from the division superintendent were to "discourage" them, he took his own course in the matter. To "discourage" them meant to threaten them with pains and penalties and refuse them even a drink of water. To Bert it looked too much like childish spite, and, though he may have done some growling now and then, he always had a bite to eat and a bit of tobacco for the "tourist" whose language was respectful. As a matter of fact, there were times when he could sit down with one of them for an hour and be interested in the tramp's adventures by flood and field.

If Bert did not obey his instructions to the letter, the section boss on that section did. He was a burly big fellow, regarded by his employers as a bully and a coward. Knowing that he had the law on his side, he fairly went hunting for tramps. If one was found track walking, he received such a thumping that he could hardly crawl off to a highway, and no freight train with a hobo on the bumpers could pass the boss that his sharp eyes would not detect the culprit.

Perhaps it was this man's fierce enmity toward tramps that softened Bert's heart.

Agent and boss had never had a word on the subject, however, until one summer afternoon he happened along with his car and his gang just as a tramp had reached the station and was resting in the shade. Bert had not seen the fellow as yet when he heard a row outside. The section boss had spied the hobo and stopped to give him a drubbing. The tramp was a man about thirty, and it needed only one glance at his face to prove that he was not born to the road. He had an intelligent eye, and his speech was that of an educated man.



A SURPRISE AWAITED HIM AS HE OPENED THE DOOR.

The section boss was already slamming him around when Bert interfered. As the big brute let go of his victim he gave him a whirl and brought him down on the iron rail. The hobo lay there until Bert assisted him to rise. He complained of a pain in his side, but after resting for awhile it seemed to pass off. The story he told was not new to the agent. Born of good parents and with a good start in life, drink and a spirit of adventure had been his bane. He did not mention what occupation he had followed, and Bert, in his genial, thoughtful way, refrained from exhibiting too much curiosity. After accepting lunch, a bracer of whisky and a few coins he left the station and continued westward. This was toward sundown.

The tramp had been gone about an hour when a thunderstorm came up, and for an hour it rained furiously. A mile to the east of Bristow they were putting in a new bridge over a small creek, with the rails laid on a temporary track. It was not Bert's business to worry about that bridge, and he hadn't given it a thought when he received a message from Clairsville, nine miles to the west, that the section gang had been dumped into the ditch and all badly hurt. Then arose the question whether it was his duty to remain at the station and be ready for a call or to make a trip to the new bridge and see that all was safe.

He knew that the creek would be bank full from the downpour, and as it was in the dry season, when no rain was expected, the temporary tracks might be swept away. After fifteen minutes of doubt and worry he telegraphed Clairsville that he was going to the creek and at once set out on a run. He had scarcely started when a gale sprang up in his very teeth, and within ten minutes it was all he could do to make way against it at a walk. Darkness had fallen before he reached the culvert. The bridge was gone!

The first train due was a freight at 9 o'clock. This train would sidetrack at Bristow for the express bound east. He had brought a red lantern, and this he managed to secure to a pole suspended over the track. That would stop the freight, and he would get back to the station in time to flag the express.

The wind was howling along at the rate of sixty miles an hour, and a dozen different times in returning over that mile of track Bert was blown flat or clear off the track into the ditch. Even with the gale at his back it took him as long to go as it had to come, and he was thoroughly played out when he reached the station. Even when he mounted the platform he heard the instrument calling him and realized that something was up.

A surprise awaited him as he opened the door. Sitting at the table, with his head on his arms and apparently asleep, was the tramp of the afternoon. The instrument was calling "B B," as if lives depended on an instant answer, and Bert had to reach over the sleeping man's shoulder to reply. In a minute came this message from Clairsville:

"What the dickens is the matter with you? Are there any more empties on the way?"

"What do you mean?" Bert asked.

"I mean that I have ditched the seven cattle cars, and want to know if any others got away."

It took some time to make matters plain. Several times Bert shook the sleeper and called to him to vacate the chair, but he did not move. The 4 o'clock freight had brought down sixteen cattle cars and after backing them in on the siding had pulled out and left the switch wide open. The section gang had passed the spot without noticing the switch, and when the gale came up seven of the cars had been blown out on the main track and started down the road at thirty miles an hour. The other nine would have followed had not one of them jumped the track and held the rest. Clairsville had received word of the runaways and ditched them to prevent a smashup with the express.

It was no ghostly telegram that had been sent in Bert's absence. The injured tramp who had left him that afternoon had for some reason returned to the track later on. He must have seen the open switch and sighted the runaway empties. He had made his way down to the station to give Bert the information and, finding him gone, had sat down to the instrument and warned Clairsville. He had given Bert no hint that he was an operator, but such was the case. He had sent the message through in good shape and saved the road a big smashup.

"Here, wake up, wake up and shake hands and let me thank you," Bert shouted as the mystery was solved and he felt his heart growing big.

No reply broke the silence which suddenly and strangely impressed Bert. The hands he touched were cold.

The inquest was held at Clairsville, and the verdict was "heart disease, aggravated by a recent injury." The "recent injury" consisted of three broken ribs. The fact that this was received at the hands of the section boss was not stated. That the poor chap had ever managed to walk a hundred rods the doctors declared a wonderful thing. He was nameless, homeless and friendless, and the railroad company had no sentiment and no gratitude. The poor bruised body was laid in a pauper's grave, unmarked and uncared for, and only Bert Brown stood beside the last resting place of Bristow Station's hero.

A Voracious Spider.

It is a curious study to watch the little white, brown specked spiders which hover among plants seeking what they may devour. It seems almost incredible that they will conquer and carry off to their dens insects twice their size, but this is just what they do, capturing flies of the largest kind. They will hide under the petals of the flowers, and when Mr. Fly comes buzzing along they will spring out at him, and the next thing he knows he is being dragged off to be served up at a spider luncheon. They grip the fly by the neck, if he has a neck, and dart down the leaves, skip to the grass and away, sometimes taking flying leaps of a foot and a half, then disappearing no one knows where. It's the old story of the spider and the fly, only the spider doesn't stop to coax, but boldly carries off his booty without saying, "By your leave."

Caught Napping.

Uncle—Dear me, Carl, what a poor memory you have!

Nephew—A poor memory, you say? Why, I can repeat four pages of the names in the directory after reading them through only once!

Uncle—I'll bet you a hamper of champagne that you can't do it.

Uncle—Well?

Nephew—Muller, Muller, Muller, etc., ad infinitum.

All the four pages of the directory being taken up with this familiar patronymic, our student won his bet in fine style.—From the German.

An August Month.

"Do you believe in the superstition that June is a lucky month in which to get married?"

"Why, no," dissented Mrs. Porque Pacque of Chicago decisively. "August is my favorite month."

"On what do you base your belief?"

"Well, you see, I do all my marrying in that month, and the divorce courts give alimony and counsel fees every time."—Baltimore Herald.

Growing Walking Canes.

Few men who use walking canes are aware that the growing of walking stalks is a special industry and that certain kinds of canes are not merely collected as they may be found growing in forests. One may find at any store where the sticks are sold many canes of almost precisely the same length, weight, shape and material. Canes having a tangle of roots at the handle, for instance, are much sold in England. They are grown by a "farmer" who makes it a specialty to trim and shape young ash plants.

To Clean Brass.

To clean brass and keep it always bright rub it with a solution of oxalic acid, one ounce of acid to one pint of water, and alternate with a solution composed of one-half pound of rotten stone and one ounce of oxalic acid, with as much water as will make it into a stiff paste. Apply the solutions and polish with a piece of leather or an old silk handkerchief. Both solutions should be labeled "Poison."

Presence of Mind.

The Caller—Is Miss Araminta at home?

The Maid (who has received general instructions)—She is not—

A voice from the upper landing: "Oh, yes, I am, Janet."

The Maid (continuing)—Apt to be out when you call, sir.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Reward of Merit.

Papa—Where did you get that dollar?

Little Son—That's the one you gave me on my birthday.

Papa—My, my! And you haven't spent it? Here's another dollar.

Little Son—Thank you. I hope mamma won't borrow this one, like she did the other. She just paid it back.

A CIPHER

[Original.]

Edward Corbett came home to dinner late.

"Andrews kept me," he said to his wife, who met him in the hall.

Corbett pulled a handkerchief from his overcoat outside pocket and with it a trolley transfer ticket, which fell on the floor unnoticed by either Mr. or Mrs. Corbett.

"You rode home?" asked the wife.

"No; I walked."

Corbett went up stairs to dress, and Mrs. Corbett espied the transfer ticket and picked it up. Surely her husband must have dropped it. What would he be doing with a transfer ticket if he had walked home, as he had said? That was a lame excuse he gave for being detained. Was he deceiving her? Looking at the back of the transfer ticket, she saw some figures in pencil.

At dinner Corbett ate sparingly. His wife noticed it. She was sure he had taken his dinner with some one before coming home and that he had dined with a rival.

"Did you say you walked home, dear?" she asked.

"Yes."

Mrs. Corbett made no reply. Tears came into her beautiful eyes.

"What in the world is the matter, my love?" asked the husband.

"You are deceiving me!" she moaned.

"Deceiving you? In what respect?"

"You came home late."

"I explained that."

"You are not eating heartily."

"I lunched rather late today."

"You said you walked home."

"I did."

"Then what were you doing with a transfer ticket?"

"I had no transfer ticket."

"One dropped from your pocket. I picked it up in the hall. You have been corresponding with some one in cipher." Mrs. Corbett covered her face with her pocket handkerchief.

"How ridiculous!" muttered Corbett impatiently. "What nonsensical accusations! Why do you suspect me of communicating with some one in cipher?"

Mrs. Corbett threw the transfer ticket on the table before him and recovered her face with her handkerchief.

"Thirteen, twenty-five, twelve, fifteen, twenty-two, five," Corbett read on the back of the ticket.

"Ethel," he said, "I have no more knowledge of the meaning of this than you have."

"How can you be so brazen faced? Any fool could interpret the cipher. The numbers stand for the letters of the alphabet."

"The letters of the alphabet!"

"Yes. Thirteen is the thirteenth letter, m; twenty-five is the twenty-fifth letter, y—my. Then twelve, fifteen, twenty-two and five spell love—my love." She burst into passionate weeping.

"By the great horn spoon!" exclaimed Corbett. "Was man ever caught in such an absurd mystery? What ever put it into your head to find out what these letters stand for?"

"We had such an alphabet when we were children."

"Oh, you did! I should think it might do for children, but I should never suspect grown people of using it."

Mrs. Corbett, in face of what she considered conclusive proof, could not be convinced of her husband's innocence. Indeed she was sure that he was guilty. It was a dreary dinner, for despite the husband's best efforts he could not make his wife talk, and he could not induce her to cease crying. When they were sitting gloomily toying with their coffee spoons, there was a violent ring at the doorbell. The servant hastened to the door and ushered in Mr. Andrews, who, being intimate with the Corbetts, came directly into the dining room.

"Pardon my bringing business to your home, old man," he said to Corbett, "but the fact is that matter of which I was speaking to you this afternoon is likely to get me into more trouble than I told you of. I have the papers of an important case locked in that safe, and if I don't get them out by tomorrow morning it may be contempt of court."

"It was very stupid of you to forget the combination," said Corbett.

"I feared I would, and yesterday afternoon on my way home I made a memorandum of it, but lost the memorandum."

"That was equally stupid of you."

"What's the matter with you two?" said Andrews. "You are as cross as if you instead of I had lost the combination of the safe. And you," to Mrs. Corbett, "seem to be in some great trouble."

"Never mind our troubles," said Corbett. "You came here about your own. My advice is to force your safe."

"It would be both expensive and difficult."

"Very well; go to the judge with a cock and bull story about forgetting your safe combination and see if he doesn't give you a chance to remember it behind bars."

"I can remember all but the last two numbers—thirteen, twenty-five, twelve, fifteen. The others I can't recall for my life."

"Twenty-two, five!" shrieked Mr. and Mrs. Corbett in a breath. "There they are on a street car transfer!"

"By Jove," cried Andrews—"the very transfer I wrote them on in the car yesterday!"

"You were sitting by me."

"Yes, and must have stuffed it into your pocket instead of mine."

"But they spell 'my love!'" exclaimed Mrs. Corbett.

"What a noodle I've been! They told me the figures spelled something when I bought the safe."

To the guest's astonishment, husband and wife rushed into each other's arms.

WILLIAM GOULD PRICHARD.

What a Jealous Wife Found.

A Fayette woman suspected that her husband was in the habit of kissing the hired girl and resolved to detect him in the act. Saturday night she saw him pass quietly into the kitchen. The hired girl was out and the kitchen dark. The jealous wife took a few matches in her hand, and, hastily placing a shawl over her head, as the hired girl often did, entered the back door, and immediately she was seized and kissed and embraced in an ardent manner. With heart almost bursting the wife prepared to administer a terrible rebuke to the faithless spouse, and, tearing herself away from his fond embrace, she struck a match and stood face to face with—the hired man.—Salisbury (Kan.) Press-Spectator.

Take no chances on the man who wants to lend you a dollar. He'll probably come back later for ten.—Baltimore News.

Some Brilliant Sword Strokes.

Elephants are completely disabled by one blow from the Arab's two handed sword, which almost severs the huge hind leg, biting deep into the bone. This feat is varied by slashing off the trunk, leaving it dangling only by a piece of skin. A ghoorka has been seen to behead a buffalo with a single blow of his cookrie. And Sir Samuel Baker, a man powerful enough to wield during his African exploration the "baby," an elephant rifle weighing 22 pounds, once clove a wild bear with his big hunting knife almost in halves as it was making a final rush, catching it just behind the shoulder where the hide and bristles are at least a span thick. Sir Walter Scott relates how the Earl of Angus, with his huge sweeping brand, challenged an opponent to fight and at a blow chopped asunder his thigh bone, killing him on the spot.

There is a story current in Australia that a Lieutenant Anderson in 1852, during an encounter with bushrangers, cut clean through the gun barrel of his adversary with his sword. And at Kassassin it is related that one of Arabi Pasha's soldiers was severed in two during the midnight charge. But in the opinion of experts this is very improbable, even had the new regulation saber been then in use.—London Globe.

Celebrated Names.

In the Nineteenth ward of Brooklyn all but one of the streets and three of the avenues are named after patriots who signed their names to the Declaration of Independence. These names are Rush, Morton, Clymer, Taylor, Wilson, Ross, Rodney, Keap, Hooper, Hewes, Penn, Rutledge, Heyward, Lynch, Middleton, Gwinett, Walton, Gerry, Bartlett, Whipple, Thornton, Wythe, Harrison and Lee. Washington avenue forms part of the western boundary of the ward. In the Twenty-first ward there are streets and avenues that bear the names of Hopkins, Ellery, Floyd, Stockton, Hart and Lewis, all signers of the Declaration. In the southern part of the ward there are streets and avenues which bear the names of Pulaski, De Kalb, Kosciusko and Lafayette, soldiers who came from Germany, Poland and France to give aid to the Americans in their struggle to throw off the British yoke. A street in the western part of the ward bears the name of Spencer, who compiled some of the history of this country.

A Horse's Revenge.

A strange case of a horse taking revenge on a brutal driver is reported from Rennes, France. The horse was dragging a heavy load of bricks from a kiln at Lormandiere to Rennes, and the carter hardly stopped flogging him all the way. On reaching Rennes the driver was unharnessing when the horse bolted down the street. He allowed himself to be caught and led back quietly, but the moment he saw his tormentor he rushed at him, caught him in his teeth, dashed the man to the ground and rolled upon him. The man was seriously injured and would probably have been killed but for the help of the people standing round, who had, nevertheless, the greatest difficulty in getting the horse away from his victim.

Women.

"If you want to get on with women," says Max O'Rell, "never criticise them and never offer them advice." And never forget that this is a rule that works only one way.

Proverbs

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn," is an old time dairy proverb. It often seems to work though no one has ever told why.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion.

It is like the penny in the milk because it works and because there is something astonishing about it.

Children take to it naturally because they like the taste and the remedy takes just as naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and pale and thin children Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory treatment.

We will send you the penny, i. e., a sample free.

It is sufficient to say that the result of election in Tecumseh is given in full. That of the whole country can be found in part on the first page. The vote given to Hon. F. B. Wood in his home town is very gratifying to every one. Every republican running in Lenawee county was elected and perhaps some that were not running might have been elected.

SPEEDY WORK.

Miss Gertrude Schreder and Ed. Pangle

MARRIED MONDAY,

After Being Around the Village in the Afternoon, Visiting with Their Friends.

When on Tuesday morning it was reported that Miss Gertrude Schreder and Ed Pangle were married the people were indeed surprised. The couple were together visiting around the village Monday afternoon and, although it was mistrusted that soon the wedding would be announced, no one thought it so soon and the surprise was complete.

Mr. Pangle has lived in and about Tecumseh for some time and is well liked and much respected here as an exemplary young man in every way.

Miss Schreder is one of the sweetest girls in Tecumseh. For five years she has been typesetter on the HERALD and for quite a portion of that time has had charge of that department. In all this time she has scarcely been out of the office a day and was in every particular a perfect and faithful employee. But with all her faithfulness and strict attention to business, she could not withstand the epidemic of marrying which has struck the HERALD office this fall. Fact is, to be "strictly in it," I will no doubt have to turn Mormon and take on a second or third wife. I actually came home from Colorado with $5.00 in my pocket as it was written to me that the whole force was then to get married and I must make immediate haste.

However much as the HERALD dislikes to lose this young lady as an employee, it can but congratulate Mr. Pangle on his gain, for he certainly secures one of the smartest, brightest, sweetest girls in all Michigan.

Tuesday morning the happy couple left for Columbus Grove, O., which town will be their future home, and took with them the best wishes and congratulations of scores of friends.

The Girl Bachelor on Matrimony.

The mayor of Hammond, Ind., appropriately named Knotts, has begun a crusade for matrimony. He thinks that married men make the best and happiest citizens, and points the finger of scorn at local celibates. Miss Oglethorpe, a Hammond "girl Bachelor," in disagreeing with the mayor uses some pithy sentences:

Married women look older than their single sisters of the same age. The girl bachelor doesn't have to wait until three o'clock in the morning, "to have it out" with the man who delivers the rolls. Nor does she have to agonize over the prospect of losing a love that cannot stand a thirty-two-inch waist measure. All the physical culture classes I ever saw were composed of married women. Who invented the skin-tight "tailor-made?" A man. Who devised eel-like draperies that demand a figure as slim as a fishing rod? Another man. In what countries do women luxriate in loose Mother Hubbard like garment? In Oriental ones where there are no men milliners. What forces us to wear these abominations that squeeze and choke? Again I say, man. Theoretically man believes in rational dress, but he would rather be dead than caught out with a female who illustrated his opinions on the subject.—Washington Post.

Walter F. Stimpson, the inventor of the Stimpson computing scale, has been in town this week to organize a stock company, and to build a factory here for the manufacture of truck and other heavy scales. Milan being Mr. Stimpson's old home, is what induced him to come here more than anything else, and he proposes to let the stockholders, made of Milan people, in on the ground floor, asking no bonus whatever, simply to take stock and share profits equally. The building is to be of brick, 50x220, and will employ from the start about one hundred men, which means an additional population to Milan, at once, of three hundred or more. Some manufacturing industry is what Milan needs, and we hope and believe that Mr. Stimpson will have no difficulty in securing the stock required. Work on the building will commence at once, and we understand some car loads of scales have already been ordered. This is an exceptional offer for Milan, as most towns pay a large bonus for an institution of this kind.

MARRIED AND SETTLED.

Last Evening at the Residence of the Bride's Parents in Clinton.

MISS NELLIE MARTIN was married to DR. W. D. REED

And Immediately Departed for Their Own Home in Tecumseh.

For some time there has been much speculation about the wedding of Dr. W. D. Reed. It was reported some time since that the event was soon to occur. The doctor took possession of his house on Maiden Lane last August and since that time has been fixing the place over, painting and papering, buying new furniture and carpets and stoves and everything necessary for house-keeping. He made no secret about the event, thinking that when he and the lady got ready, they would get married and, as they would have a home of their own, it would make little difference to the populace when the event occurred.

Last evening the doctor drove up to Clinton and, having found Miss Nellie Martin at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Martin, they were married, then drove to their home in Tecumseh and started to keep house in their own home on Maiden Lane. The doctor took breakfast at the family residence this morning and the only difference made was that he was down to his office about an hour earlier than usual.

Miss Martin is one of the most delightful girls in Clinton, her home has always been in Bridgewater about a mile north of Clinton. She has been a teacher in the Clinton schools a few years and is loved and respected by every one in that town.

Doctor Reed is known by all in Tecumseh. He came here a number of years ago and, by hard work and strict attention to business, has become today one of the "solid" men of town. No man is better thought of than Dr. Reed and Tecumseh people are delighted to welcome the new couple to our midst.

About 10 o'clock Wednesday evening, the band serenaded Dr. and Mrs. Reed in their new home, the affair being gotten up by members of the Tecumseh Club, of which organization the doctor is a charter member

George Louis Snell.

George Louis Snell was the son of Calvin and Mary Snell, and was born in Tecumseh, Dec. 11, 1844, where he lived until 1861. On the first day of Oct. of that year when not quite 17 years of age, he enlisted in the third Michigan Cavalry and served until discharged in 1864, at which time he reenlisted and served until the close of the war.

He came back to Tecumseh in June of 1869, and on Nov. 7, 1870 was united in marriage to Miss Ida M. Halstead, with whom he lived until the time of his death, which occurred in Gobleville, Van Buren county, Nov, 1, 1902. Had he lived but seven days more he would have been married 32 years.

He had been for some time in feeble health and at times a great sufferer, but his death came suddenly and was a great shock to his friends.

He leaves besides his widow his oldest sister, Mrs. Barbara M. Walter, of Greenville, Texas, and his youngest brother, Charles Snell, of this place, besides numerous other friends to mourn his loss. He was esteemed in Tecumseh by all who knew him, and was an Odd Fellow and a Mason.

Masonic service was held in Globeville and Odd Fellow's in Tecumseh.

Asleep Amid Flames.

Breaking into a blazing home, some firemen lately dragged the sleeping inmates from death. Fancied security, and death near. It's that way when you neglect coughs and colds. Don't do it. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption gives perfect protection against all throat, chest and lung troubles. Keep it near, and avoid suffering, death and doctor's bills. A teaspoonful stops a late cough, persistent use the most stubborn. Harmless and nice tasting, it's guaranteed to satisfy by C. A. Wright Price 50c 1.00 and Trial bottles free.

All Stuffed Up

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat.

No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic.

"I was afflicted with catarrh. I took medicines of different kinds, giving each a fair trial; but gradually grew worse until I could hardly bear, taste or smell. I then concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking five bottles I was cured and have not had any return of the disease since." EUGENE FORBES, Lebanon, Kan.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures catarrh—it soothes and strengthens the mucous membrane and builds up the whole system.

AUTUMN WEDDING.

Miss Estella Young and Benjamin Wiegert, of Douglas, Mich.,

UNITED IN MARRIAGE

At the Home of the Bride's Parents, In the Presence of Fifty Guests.

A beautiful home wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Young, Wednesday afternoon, November 5, at which time their daughter Estella was married to Mr. Benjamin Wiegert, of Douglas, Mich.

They were married under a bower of white by Rev. Edward Mott. The bride was tastefully dressed in light green albatross, trimmed in white silk and lace, and the groom wore the conventional black.

Guests from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Young, daughter Ella, of Milan; Mr. and Mrs. John Mooney, of Cone; Charles and Miss Blanche Beevers, of Ridgeway; Lieut. Anna Young, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Linton, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Luce, Miss Alma and Roy Luce, of Tipton: Miss Lettie Young, of Adrian.

Mines Near Meadow Creek.

Henry Cupples, superintendent of the B. & L. mines near Meadow Creek, was in the city Friday. He spent the week on Wisconsin creek where he has been for the purpose of removing the tools and machinery from the Klondyke mine and the mill used in connection with the operations carried on there by W. B. Holmes The machinery will be returned to the B. & L. mines. It is the opinion of Mr. Cupples that it will be needed there in the very near future, as the recent development work in the different mines has exposed some fine bodies of ore that carry high values in gold. To the Madisonian man he stated that every thing around that property looked most promising.

The above item from the Madisonian, of Virginia City, Montana, speaks about our old Tecumseh friend, Henry Cupples, who is doing right well out in that country.

Deer Shooting.

The prospects for deer shooting in Northern Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan the coming season are exceptionally good, and fine sport is assured. Reduced rates will be made for excursion tickets from Chicago and Milwaukee to points on and via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. A synopsis of the game laws now in effect may be obtained on application to Robt. C. Jones, Michigan Passenger Agent, Detroit, Mich.

Mr. George Merritt, well known business man and proprietor of the cigar manufactory, says: "I can testify to the honesty and worth of Doan's Kidney pills. There is no humbug about them. I was annoyed for some time with a dull aching pain in my back at times quite severe. I heard so much about Doan's Kidney Pills that I procured a box at C. A. Wright's drug store and after taking them a short time I found they were helping me. Finally the pain in my back disappeared entirely. Doan's Kidney Pills are a splendid remedy for all kidney ailments.

Alleged Fraudulent Land Entries.

Washington, Nov. 6.—The interior department has suspended, with a view to cancellation, a large number of alleged fraudulent land entries in Nebraska, made by soldiers' widows who, it is charged, have entered into an agreement for the transfer of the lands to cattlemen. W. N. Lesser of Iowa, a special agent, whose headquarters have been for several years at North Platte, Neb., has been suspended in connection with these proceedings. The action follows an investigation that has been quietly conducted. The exact extent of these operations is not disclosed, but so far as known there are about 45 or 50 of them, each entry being for 160 acres. Under the law, soldiers' widows have a right to make entries of public lands without any residence requirements, but they are required to make improvements and cultivate the lands. It is understood that the women who made the entries are mostly Chicago people, who were influenced to take these steps by the agents of cattlemen, with the agreement to transfer the land to the latter by leases, with the right to purchase.

BEYOND A DOUBT.

Good Hard Facts, Told in a Few Words as Possible.

Mrs. Edgar Packard, of Tecumseh, Mich., says: "Until I tried Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills sold at Chas. A. Wright's drug store I suffered a great deal from nervousness, sleeplessness, headaches and indigestion. Since using the pills I can say my nervous system has been toned up, I sleep well, the headaches are gone and my digestion is greatly improved. I think the pills a fine nerve medicine.

Tongue Reading.

According to the disciples of linguistology or the science of tongue reading, it is a demonstrated fact that a big tongue indicates dissimulation; a long and broad tongue, garrulity and generosity; a narrow tongue, concentration and talent; a short, broad tongue, garrulity and untruth. The man with a very short and narrow tongue is a liar of true artistic merit.

Geo. Yellott, Towson, Md.

A Scared Corpse.

"It was, I think, at the Haymarket that one of the most amusing of unrehearsed incidents occurred," says a writer in M. A. P. "The play was 'Romeo and Juliet.' Mrs. Scott Siddons was the Juliet of the occasion. All went well until the final scene. Paris was duly slain, and Juliet lay stretched upon her bier. Just then some of the scenery caught alight somehow, but some men from behind soon extinguished it. Juliet, with commendable presence of mind, did not move an eyelid, but the corpse of Paris was nervous. He raised himself to a sitting posture, then got upon his feet and fled from the stage. The danger being removed, his courage returned, and the audience was afforded the pleasing spectacle of a corpse crawling along the stage from the wings to take up the proper position for the final curtain. It was too tremendous an anticlimax to the tragedy of the play, and the house was simply convulsed."

Flowers and Poisons.

Ever since the days of that floral abomination, the green carnation, we have known that flowers are susceptible to the influence of drugs and can be made to change their colors by proper, or, rather, improper, treatment. This branch of floriculture has been pursued further by inquiring people, and it seems that plants are as liable to the effects of poisons as are human beings. If you give a flower too much chloroform, it will not agree with it. In the words of the operator, "it droops and dies." It is difficult to see what is the advantage of this particular study. Every one knows that flowers can be killed far too easily. If some scientific person would find a way of causing them to bloom all the year round in our climate, that would be something of a discovery—less scientific, perhaps, but much more acceptable.—London Tatler.

She Needed Plates.

Superstition and the belief in the incantations of witches are not entirely dead, as the following tale will prove:

One day a gypsy stopped at a house, and, pointing to a child, said, "He is sick."

"Yes, he's suffering from rheumatism," said the woman.

"Yes, and I can cure him, lady, if you will let me have six fancy plates, but you must be sure they are nice."

"Oh, anything to get him well," said the woman. "I'm willing to do anything," and she fetched a half dozen fine china plates that had been her pride.

The gypsy set them out in a row, one after the other, placed her hands on the four center ones, mumbled some words over them and said:

"Now, if you will let me take these plates away with me to destroy them your boy will be cured of rheumatism. No more aches and pains for him, lady; nothing but good health, lady. Let me take them, lady, and cure him."

And the curious part of it is the woman did give the gypsy those plates.

The Love of Mothers.

Among the lower animals the mother's love for her offspring lasts only until the offspring is able to shift for itself. The hen will fret and fight for her downy chicks, but when they become feathered and commence to do their own foraging the mother hen becomes indifferent to them and thinks only of hatching another brood. The mare loves her foal and the cow her calf only during the suckling period. Canine dams cease to show affection to their progeny after the puppy age, says the San Francisco Bulletin. So through the entire animal kingdom below the human species the maternal instinct endures only while the young ones are helpless and ceases when they have grown up.

How different is the love of a human mother for her children! That love never dies and seems to grow more intense according as the children become less and less worthy of it. The black sheep is often the best beloved.

THE RURAL ROUTE

Complete Service in U. S. Will Cost $24,000,000.

WILL TAKE 40,000 CARRIERS

Over 12,000 Petitions For the Service Filed Last Year—Demand Exceeds the Appropriation—Petitions Average 600 a Month.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The annual gross cost of a complete rural free delivery service throughout the United States will approximate $24,000,000, according to the annual report First Assistant Postmaster-General Wynne yesterday received from August W. Machen, general superintendent of the service. The remaining 700,000 square miles not now covered by rural free delivery service, according to the report, will require the employment of 26,000 or 27,000 carriers in addition to those now employed, making the entire force of carriers, when the extension of service is completed, within the next three years, 40,000.

After this extension is completed, the annual rate of increase in the appropriations is expected not to exceed 8 or 9 per cent, the rate maintained in other branches of the postal service. To extend the service 12,000 routes a year until it becomes universal, the report says, will require such largely increased appropriations that the annual postal deficits for the ensuing two or three years will probably reach $8,000,000 or $10,000,000, if not more; but once the service is completed, the additional revenue derived will soon reduce the deficits to present figures, if not entirely wipe them out.

During the year 1902 12,403 petitions for the service were filed, making a total on July 1 last of 22,646, which exceeded by over 2,000 the total number during the preceding four years. Since July, petitions received have averaged over 600 a month. With the amount required for routes to begin Dec. 1 the entire appropriation has been absorbed, leaving on Dec. 1, fully 1,700 routes for which there is no appropriation available. This number probably will be increased by Jan. 1 to at least 2,500.

Mr. Wynne and Mr. Machen say that to comply with the demands of the people and of members of congress the department will require an additional appropriation, otherwise further establishment of the service will be deferred until July 1 next. If these additional funds are granted 15,000 rural free delivery letter carriers will be in active service by May 1. The estimates call for ten division superintendents, an increase of three in number.

Election Riots in Vienna.

Vienna, Nov. 8.—Riotous disturbances marked the election in the Favoriten district of Vienna yesterday of members to the landtag (or provincial assembly). Anti-Semites stormed the headquarters of the committee of the Socialists and a fierce fight ensued. The rioters were charged by mounted police and forty of them were arrested. Many received saber wounds. The anti-Semites carried the election by a majority of 39 out of a total of 13,000. The Clericals now hold the entire representation of Vienna in the landtag.

A Fatal Explosion.

St. Louis, Nov. 8.—August Rapps and L. Bennock were killed and Patrick Doyle, Harry Cronin and William Sanders were badly injured yesterday by the premature explosion of a blast in a cut, which the St. Louis, Kansas City & Colorado road is building west of Union, Mo., sixty miles west of St. Louis. The five men were buried under a mass of stones and dirt. Rapps and Bennock were dead when taken out, while the others were unconscious and mangled, but alive.

NATIONAL GRANGE

Subjects of National Importance to Be Taken Up.

MANY NOTABLES TO BE THERE

Great Meeting Opens Next Wednesday at Lansing—Two Big Tents Will Accommodate the Gathering—Two Trips Scheduled.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 8.—C. J. Trimble, secretary of the National Grange, will arrive here today and will open his headquarters at the Dowling house.

A notable figure at the meeting next week will be Colonel Bingham of Ohio, member of the executive committee, pastmaster of the National Grange and now assistant secretary of agriculture.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Bell of Vermont are two other grangers of national reputation in the order who will be present.

The newly elected governor of New Hampshire, N. J. Bachelder, is master of the New Hampshire grange, and will attend the national meeting with his wife.

One of the distinguished features of the grange as an order is the fact that women have exactly the same privileges as the men. They hold all the offices in the order. In consequence of this, Mrs. Sarah G. Baird is master of the Minnesota state grange, and her husband comes as a delegate, just as she would come if he were the master instead of herself.

E. B. Norris of Sodus, N. Y., chairman of the executive committee, is another well-known granger and one of the old members of the order.

Among the best known Michigan grangers who will be in Lansing are J. J. Woodman, secretary of the national organization, and ex-Governor Cyrus G. Luce.

Many other distinguished guests and members of the order will be present at the great meeting that begins next Wednesday. The wives of the masters are delegates, and many of the grange women have been as prominent in the work of the order as their husbands, and have equally as wide reputations.

While it is impossible to forecast the proceedings of the meeting, there is no doubt that the ship subsidy, the government management of the irrigation of western lands and Cuban reciprocity will be the leading topics discussed. Among the speakers will be Governor Bliss, Master Aaron Jones of the National Grange; Master Geo. B. Horton of the State Grange; Mayor Hammell, National Secretary Bachelder, Mrs. Olivia J. Carpenter of Paw Paw, and others. The degree work will be exemplified, and there will be receptions at the executive parlors, Agricultural college and visits to the various local industries. On Sunday, Nov. 16, there will be services in memory of prominent members who have died during the year. A trip to Grand Rapids will be made on Nov. 19 and to Detroit on the following day.

Two tents, each 250 feet in length and 30 feet wide, will be erected on Capitol avenue, one north and the other south of Michigan avenue, and in these canvas structures the exhibition of the Lansing manufacturers will be made during the meeting. The manufacturers are now preparing their exhibits, several of which will be quite extensive.

Fall Resulted in Death.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 8.—Frank Brown, a laborer employed on the construction work of the Ryerson public library building, fell a distance of eighty feet yesterday forenoon and sustained injuries which resulted in his death. Brown was working on a roof truss, which turned over and precipitated him to the basement floor. His spine was fractured in three places.

Child Drank Lye and Died.

St. Johns, Mich., Nov. 8.—A week ago Thursday the two-year-old son of Samuel Criner, living near Eureka, got hold of a cup of concentrated lye, which his mother was using for scrubbing the floor. Before he could be prevented, the child had swallowed a quantity of the stuff. No physician could be procured for three hours, and the little fellow suffered intense agony for a week before death relieved him.

His Remains Found on Track.

Coloma, Mich., Nov. 8.—The mangled remains of Frank S. Marvin, son of Dr. H. M. Marvin, were found on the Pere Marquette track near Riverside early yesterday morning by the crew of a freight train which ran over the body. When picked up the body of the dead man was cold, leading to the suspicion that Marvin had been killed and placed on the track. He leaves a widow and one child.

'Twas a Narrow Squeak.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 8.—The official canvass was finished by the city canvassing board Friday morning, and no protest being filed, Albert A. Graves was declared elected mayor by a majority of 34. Henry A. Rose declares he will demand a recount on sheriff when the commission meets on Tuesday next.

Experts Crack a Cemetery Safe.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 8.—Two burglars broke into the office building of Oak Hills cemetery and opened the safe in a manner that stamps them as experts. One drill hole was located in the lock tumblers, and the intruders went away with $150 and without leaving any clue to their identity.

Dog Guarded His Body.

Flint, Mich., Nov. 8.—While hunting near Otter lake, Fred Toraschenski shot himself, severing an artery and bleeding to death. When found his dog was watching by the dead body.

A Clerical Conundrum.

Archbishop Whately once asked the question: "Why can a man never starve in the great desert?" and answered it himself as follows: "Because he can eat the sand which is there. But what brought the sandwiches there? Why, Noah sent Ham, and his descendants mustered and bred."

Taking Pains.

"Genius," quoted Smuthers, "is an infinite capacity for taking pains."

"Then," remarked Smithers, "old [illegible] must be a genius. He gets every ailment he hears any one else has."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

HUNTERS KILLED

Number of Sad Accidents Happened on Sunday.

TWO BOYS WERE DROWNED

Were Enroute to Hunt Birds—Boy Killed Companion at Three Rivers—Farmer at Standish Shot Himself and Bled to Death.

Alpena, Mich., Nov. 10.—George Millard, aged forty; Alex. Cyr, aged sixteen, and Paul Monsor, aged sixteen, were drowned in Whitefish bay, Thunder Bay harbor, at 5 o'clock Sundaly morning.

In company with Anthony Monsor, aged seventeen, and Chester Bryan, aged six, they left Alpena at 3 o'clock heading for North Point to go bird hunting. The wind shifted and their sailboat was driven toward Whitefish point, where it capsized on a sandbar about a half mile from the shore.

All five came up all right and attempted to shove the boat toward shore. They had gone only a few feet when they got into deep water, and immediately put back to the sandbar. Millard, Cyr and Paul Monsor attempted to swim ashore, but disappeared from view when about half way across.

The other two remained on the bar for nearly two hours, when a couple of hunters came along on shore and, sighting their boat, which had drifted ashore, put out and took them in. Millard leaves a widow and child. The parties are all members of prominent families.

Three Rivers, Mich., Nov. 10.—The hunting season claimed its first victim for this locality Sunday, when John Alcott, fourteen-year-old son of George Alcott, was accidentally shot and killed by Perry Bunn, a lad of about the same age, and son of City Clerk Bunn.

The boys were quail hunting on the Henry Ruggles farm, three miles west of town. A flock of birds was started up, and just as Bunn got ready to shoot, Alcott became confused and stepped in front of him. Alcott received the entire charge of shot at close range in the right side. He fell to the ground without even a groan and expired almost instantly.

Dearborn, Mich., Nov. 10.—Thomas Rogulfsky, the eighteen-year-old son of Steven Rogulfsky, living on Central avenue, Springwells, was probably fatally wounded by his own gun at 1:30 Sunday afternoon. While hunting in the Ten Eyck woods, about one and a half miles from this place. The young man had occasion to climb a fence and shoved the gun, which was cocked, through first. It is thought the trigger was snapped by the fence. The charge struck Rogulfsky just below the heart, taking a slighly upward course. The chances of recovery are very slim.

Standish, Mich., Nov. 10.—Matthew Cole, a farmer residing near town, accidentally discharged his gun while hunting partridges Sunday. The charge struck him in the right leg, severing an artery and tearing the limb in a shocking manner. Mr. Cole bled to death before help came.

He fell into the water, the skiff righted, but when the man went out in another boat he could not find Baum.

KING'S BIRTHDAY

Emperor William Attends Church With His Majesty.

AN APPROPRIATE SERMON

Bishop Ripon Pointed Out Rapid Disappearance of Race Distinction of Two Nations—King Received Many Gifts and Congratulations.

Sandringham, Eng., Nov. 10.—The weather here Sunday was perfect and mild and the bright sunshine brought crowds of visitors to Sandringham on the chance of seeing Emperor William.

The approaches to the church were lined with spectators. Queen Alexandra, the Prince of Wales and Mrs. Chamberlain arrived at the church together. Half an hour later King Edward, Emperor William, Prime Minister Balfour, Colonial Secretary Chamberlain and other distinguished persons arrived and stood chatting outside. King Edward talked with Mr. Chamberlain for a few minues; then the emperor of Germany approached, and for a quarter of an hour the emperor and Mr. Chamberlain stood apart and conversed earnestly. The service had begun and the anthem had been reached before the royal party entered the church, the king taking the emperor's arm.

The bishop of Ripon preached, referring to the disappearance of race distinctions and the attaining of the grand brotherhood of man. He referred to King Edward's recovery from his illness; to the visit of his kinsman monarch, and to the ties which have long united Germany and Great Britain. The bishop said, however, these countries were divided by the German ocean, a race blended of both peoples was continuing to grow on the other side of the Atlantic, where Germans and Englishmen were becoming one nationality. The service was closed by the singing of the national anthem. Afterward the two monarchs walked together through the gardens.

After dinner at the palace the royal party heard Jan Kubelik, the Austrian violinist.

Smothered to Death.

New York, Nov. 10.—Two men lost their lives and two boys narrowly escaped a similar fate during a fire which communicated from the subway to the mailing and press rooms in the basement in the New York Times Saturday. The dead are: John Daly and William McCormack. The boys, who were partially suffocated and are now in the hospital, are John Powers and Myer Fishbone. The men and boys were overcome by smoke in a small room used for mailing purposes in the front of the cellar close to where the fire started.

Strangled an Elephant.

New York, Nov. 10.—Mandarin, an elephant of the Barnum & Bailey circus, was executed by strangulation Saturday night in the Atlantic Transport line. A two-inch hawser was placed in a loop around Mandarin's neck and each end of the hawser was fastened to the drum of a "wench" engine. The engines were started at the same time and ran slowly at first until the hawser was taut about the animal's neck. The elephant had recently become unmanageable, rendering his destruction necessary.

Mascagni Under Arrest.

Boston, Nov. 10.—The financial troubles existing for some time between the Mascagni Opera company and its managers reached a climax Saturday night when Mascagni, the composer-leader, was arrested upon a civil suit for alleged failure to fulfill his contract, brought by Mittenthal Brothers, who with Samuel Kronberg, were his original managers. Mr. Kronberg washed his hands of the whole affair, as he asserted, several days ago and left for New York. Mascagni furnished bail and trial was set for today.

Man Killed in Collision.

Cleveland, Nov. 10.—A special to the Plaindealer from Marysville, O., says that the Big Four special train, carrying 125 bankers from this city and all points in northern Ohio enroute to New Orleans, collided head-on with a freight five miles south of Marysville, late Saturday afternoon. But one man was killed, a railroad man, and was known by the name of "Ducky" and is said to have lived in Lorain, O.

Shipped Baby in Telescope.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Carefully tucked into a new "telescope" bag and dressed in expensive clothing, a baby only a few days old, was found at the Dearborn station in a pile of baggage taken from a Monon train. No claimant appearing for the baggage, it was opened and a handsome baby, sound asleep, was discovered.

Norwegian Polar Expedition.

Christiania, Nov. 10.—Fridtjof Nansen, the Arctic explorer, announces that a polar expedition under command of Captain Amundsden, will start in 1903 for King Williamsland (east coast of Greenland), and will proceed thence for Bering strait.

A Delicate Compliment.

To be able to compliment without seeming to flatter is a rare gift, and probably no race of men is endowed with that gift more extensively than the French.

An example of the Frenchman's rare tact in matters of this sort is shown in that sweet little story of a man who had ventured to compliment a white haired old lady upon her beauty.

"Ah," said she, "I fear you flatter me. You call me pretty? Why, I am an old woman, my hair is white, and see here is a wrinkle."

"A wrinkle?" he replied. "Never, madame; that is not a wrinkle. It is but a smile that has drifted from its moorings."

PROFESSIONAL BRETHREN

CHAPTER I.

I HAVE a partiality for balls and receptions and invariably try to make it a practice to be in the vicinity when one is in progress. There are always so many people coming and going that a stranger on the premises seldom attracts attention. It is an excellent time for inspecting basement windows, cellar doors and outbuildings.

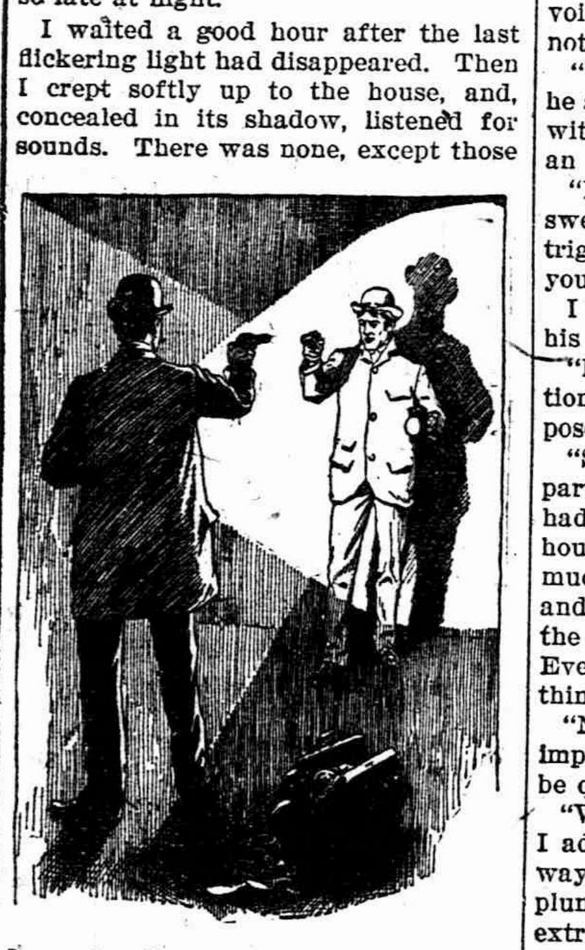
In a general way servants are more careless on such nights about locking up, and the hostess and her guests always bring out their best jewels and leave them loose on bureaus and mantelpieces after retiring. It may not have struck the casual observer that people sleep much more soundly after a ball than ordinarily. They are a longer time in retiring, but when everything is finally quiet about the house it would take nothing less than a pistol shot to rouse them. I suppose they are completely exhausted and after the excitement of the evening do not dream of burglars.

One March night I waited until after 3 o'clock for one of these festivities to draw to a close. It was cold and raw outside in the shrubbery, and I grew impatient at the lateness of the guests in taking their departure. The house was a large, old fashioned mansion just outside of the city limits, and from its general air and appearance I knew that considerable wealth in the shape of solid silverware and family heirlooms was contained in it. Following the custom of the day, the hostess would, I thought, bring all these relics from their hiding places and show them to her guests.

It was anticipation of a rich haul that kept me from giving up the job in disgust, for I was tired and exhausted with several nights' unlucky ventures, and my patience seemed sorely tried.

When the lights finally went out, I breathed easier and felt my courage returning. Everything promised to run smoothly. I had succeeded in disposing of the watchdog earlier in the evening and had discovered an unfastened window opening into the coalroom in the cellar, which I believed the servants would not think to lock so late at night.

I waited a good hour after the last flickering light had disappeared. Then I crept softly up to the house, and, concealed in its shadow, listened for sounds. There was none, except those strange, almost inexpressible voices which seem to come from nowhere in the dead of night. I do not know that anybody has ever noticed them, but I have always fancied that they were like the breathing of the earth—if such a thing were possible—for they come in regular, rhythmic pulsations.



I saw that I was looking into the mouth of a revolver.

I crept along the side of the house until I reached the basement window, and, finding it unlocked, as I expected, I softly opened it and looked in. I was not positive that the window opened into the coalroom, but from the general appearance of things I felt reasonably sure I was right. Not to make any mistake or misstep in the darkness, I lowered my bag of tools until it struck something which gave forth a metallic sound. Swinging the bag back and forth, I succeeded in identifying the object as a tin pan.

As I was afraid to use my dark lantern outside, I lowered myself cautiously into the basement. Instead of the coal bin I found myself in the dairy room of the house. The odor from newly made butter, fresh milk and cream cheese gave me such an overpowering appetite that I had to satisfy it before I could go any farther. By groping around on the shelves I succeeded in getting a pretty fair supply of food—milk and cream in abundance, good cheese, several mince pies, some cake and cold meat.

The night was early yet for my work, and I did not regret the time I spent in eating of that cold but tempting repast. I would have felt better had I discovered a bottle of good wine, but in its absence the fresh milk was a fair substitute.

The door leading from the dairy room to the basement laundry was not locked, and I quietly entered the latter place. I now ventured to open a little the slide of my dark lantern, and by means of it I found the stairs leading to the ground floor. The servants' quarters were above me, and to avoid arousing any one I removed my shoes.

The house was spacious and roomy, and I had to take note of my surroundings as I proceeded, so that I might find my way back again without blundering. It is a poor general, I have always thought, who burns his bridges behind him. More than once this careful habit of mine has saved me from unpleasant complications.

When I passed from the kitchen into the dining room, I was greatly surprised not to find any solid pieces of silver. Even many of the expensive pieces of bric-a-brac that are usual to such houses were gone. It looked as if the hostess had anticipated robbery and had stripped the tables and mantelpieces of every small article of special value.

Although disappointed, I made my way upstairs, hoping to find some loose jewelry at least on the bureaus. There were signs of the feast and entertainment all about the hall and rooms, but I was unable to find anything that appealed to my tastes. I passed from one bedroom to another, with about the same result. I could hear the regular breathing of the occupants of the house, and a distant noise in the rear told me that one man was a good snorer. So long as that rhythmic sound continued I felt that I was safe from all alarms.

After making a detour of the rooms I finally entered a small chamber that was used for storing linen and trunks. It occurred to me that possibly the missing things were packed away in this room. I closed the door gently behind me and turned on the slide from my lantern.

As I did so I was suddenly startled by the bright ray of some light shooting out of the darkness. Instantly I grasped my revolver and directed my light toward the spot. The result of this movement was to produce a queer combination.

I saw that I was looking into the mouth of a revolver held in the hands of a man who was inspecting me by the aid of a dark lantern similar to my own. My own revolver was covering the place where his heart should be.

The discovery must have been simultaneous, for we both flashed the light of our lanterns into each other's face and gazed long and silently. Neither wore a mask, and in the uncovered eyes there was cool, deadly resolve written. It would have been foolhardy for either to shoot, for the life of the other would have been instantly sacrificed. I waited a full minute or two for the man to speak.

"Well," I said finally, unwilling to bear the strain of silence longer, "you seem to be ahead of me tonight, and I must congratulate you upon the neatness of your work. I haven't found a thing behind you."

The man was not inclined to answer at first, but I continued in a reassuring voice:

"We may as well call a truce. It would be folly for either of us to shoot. I don't want to get you in trouble any more than myself."

I had been struck by the fine, handsome features of the man, but when he spoke in a well modulated, musical voice I was further puzzled. He did not look like one of my set.

"What kind of a truce do you want?" he asked. "You see I have you covered with my revolver and could kill you in an instant."

"But you fail to notice mine," I answered. "A very slight pressure of the trigger would send a bullet through your heart."

I thought he turned a trifle paler, but his voice was steady and unquavering.

"I admit that and accept the situation. But tell me what terms you propose for your truce."

"Simply these: We should go into partnership at least for tonight. I have had as much trouble in getting into the house as you, and I have run just as much risk, but you got ahead of me and made a complete job. I admire the way you have done the work. Even I couldn't do it better, and I don't think you belong to the class I"—

"Never mind that," he interrupted impatiently. "Stick to your terms and be quick."

"Well, to come straight to the point," I added, a little nettled at his abrupt ways, "I propose that we divide the plunder you have collected. For your extra trouble you take two-thirds and I one-third. Is that fair?"

He remained silent a moment and then said:

"If I agree to such a bargain, nothing further will ever be said of tonight's work?"

"Not a word."

"And you will never recognize me if you should happen to meet me on the street or anywhere else?"

I did not like this part of the bargain, for I believe that every one should be placed on the same level in such a business and that one man should not set himself up to being better than another, but I finally assented, with the exception of one slight qualification:

"Not unless we happen to meet under similar circumstances again. Then I might recall to you this meeting."

"I don't think that is likely to occur," he replied firmly.

Then in a firm, measured voice he added:

"Well, I'll trust you. I will give you one-third of all I have collected. I believe that you will keep your part of the agreement if I keep mine."

There was honesty written in his face, and I would have trusted him to the extent of pocketing my revolver, but again he got ahead of me. I stood there covering him with my weapon half a minute after he had put his pistol in his pocket. A temptation to make him give everything to me under penalty of death seized me for an instant when I realized that he had placed himself in my power. But that same rich, musical voice suddenly recalled me to my bargain.

"Here, take this bag outside with you, and we will divide the thing where there is less chance of detection."

"Have you been all over the house?" I asked in a little confusion.

"Yes, all over. There is nothing worth taking left."

He moved toward the door and started to open it. He turned an instant and asked:

"How did you come in?"

"Through a cellar window," I replied.

"A clumsy way when you could have entered by the front door."

"Do you mean to say"— I began.

"S-s-s-h, don't speak now. I'm opening the door. Follow me."

I never felt the power of a man so strangely before. I attributed it to the fact that I was in the presence of a master who put my feeble accomplishments entirely into the background, and yet I had prided myself upon my successes!

We walked stealthily down the stairs and out of the front door to the lawn. He carried a pack larger than mine. When we reached the shelter of a clump of trees, we both stopped.

"It is getting late, and it will be light soon," my strange companion said. "We must make our division quickly."

In the same quick, masterful and, if I say it, honest way he made a division of the spoils, giving me more than one-third.

"Now, if you are satisfied, we will part," he said. "I think we have no further need of each other."

I made a motion as if to follow him, but he waved me back, saying:

"Good night. I must be going."

He turned and walked rapidly through the gloom, leaving me standing there as nonplused as any man engaged in such a hazardous business as mine could ever afford to be.

LITERARY NOTES

THE DESIGNER.

The Christmas number of The Designer is unusually attractive. Its fashion department illustrates and describes the latest in winter wearing apparel and millinery, and under "Points on Dressmaking" is furnished most useful instruction for the making of juvenile garments. A Christmas Cantata by Frederic Van Rensselaer Dey, entitled "Santa Claus' Busy Day," is given prominent place among the literary features, and Christmas poems are supplied by Cora A. Matson Dolson, Francis A. Tabor, Frank Farrington and Florence Gertrude Ruthven.

THE CRITIC.

Contemporaneousness of interest is the note struck by the November issue of The Critic. There is hardly a page from cover to cover which does not touch upon some topic of the day, whether literary or artistic. Among illustrated papers the most notable is Mr. Walter Littlefield's "Eleonora Duse," which consists of a short biographical account of the celebrated Italian tragedienne now on her way to these shores, together with an appreciation and interpretation of her art and her various impersonations.

The November number of Lippincott's Magazine is filled with fiction, long and short, varied enough to suit readers of all sorts and sizes. The Monthly Novelette, "The Other Man," by Frederic Reddale, is a modern romance with the spice of mystery. From the diamond fields in South Africa the story quickly shifts to high life in England. A tragedy happily averted makes a good end to a tale which shows those desirable gifts, marked originality and spirit style.

⁂

THE OUTLOOK.

Notable in interest among the illustrated articles which appear in the current Magazine Number of The Outlook are: the first instalment of a series of twelve papers by the Hon. John D. Long, Ex-Secretary of the navy, under the general title, "The New American Navy;" "The Russian and Polish Jew in New York," by Edward A Steiner, with original photographs—one of a series of articles in which the author is tracing the life and career of immigrants of different races after they are settled in America.

McCLURE.

It looks now as though Miss Tarbell's "History of the Standard Oil Company," which begins in in the November number of McClure's Magazine, would make the biggest kind of a hit. The idea was a great one to start with, and and Miss Tarbell—with the record her "Life of Lincoln" made in McClure's—is unquestionably the right person to carry it out.

⁂

SCRIBNER.

Miss Margaret Sherwood's story of the Princess Pourquci, the woman who was cursed with the gift of a mind, is a fanciful and amusingly satirical commentary on the question of the modern "higher education." In the November Scribner the illustrations by Sarah S. Stillwell have been made the chief color feature of the number and are beautifully reproduced in six printings.

⁂

TABLE TALK.

Again Thanksgiving Day is close upon us. Again will the table groan under its load of dainties, and the royal turkey mount his throne at the head, the observed of all observers, dictator-in-general to the myriads of expectant stomachs, and

"A monarch of all he surveys,
Whose right there is none to dispute.'

How to prepare the turkey and other accessories for the Thanksgiving dinner is fully told, with illustrations, in the November number of Table Talk, which is the American authority on all culinary topics and all matters pertaining to the table and its service. Free sample copies of recent numbers will be sent to our readers on request to Table Talk, Philadelphia, or the November number ten cents.

⁂

ATLANTIC MONTHLY

The present deep and widespread interest in President Roosevelt's arbitration of the coal strike attaches peculiar importance to two papers in the November Atlantic. Mr. Ambrose P. Winston, the well-known authority, writes upon "A Quarter Century of Labor Strikes," pointing out the cause and results of all considerable strikes during that period. Henry D. Lloyd, the author of "Wealth versus Commonwealth' and other successful books, discusses "Australasian Cures for Coal Wars," showing with force and timeliness the efficient and conclusive operation in in that country of compulsory arbitration.

To terminate a lawsuit speedily is the next best thing to never having commenced it.

REVIEW OF REVIEWS.

Mr. Charles A. Conant, an authority on the subject, writes in the Review of Reviews for November on "The Growth of Trust Companies," giving the very latest statistics of the business done by these great corpotations, and showing how their methods differ from ordinary banking methods.

Condensed, Accurate, Helpful.

The busiest people read The Youth's Companion because it is condensed, accurate and helpful.

Its weekly summary of important news is complete and trustworthy.

Its editorial comment on political and domestic questions is non-partizan; it aims to state facts in such a way that the busiest person can use them as the basis of an intelligent opinion.

It reflects on every page the wholesome, industrious, home-loving, homemaking side of American life, the life of noble aims and honorable ambitions.

A full announcement of the new volume will be sent to any address on request. THE YOUTH'S COMPANION, 144 Berkeley street, Boston, Mass.

A freight train coming down the grade about four miles west of town Monday broke in two, and the front section was signaled to stop by some tramps who were on board and the result was that the second half crashed into the other throwing several cars down the high embankment. There were a couple of carloads of oats which were in the wreck, and a number of farmers in the neigborhood clubbed togather and purchased the whole pile, about 1,200 bushels for $70. Traffic was stopped for some time, as both tracks were covered with wreckage.—Chelsea Standard.

An Ann Arbor tobacconist says that the University boys consume annually over 20 tons of smoking tobacco; cigars and cigarettes are not counted in this estimate.

An English Author Wrote:

"No shade, no shine, no fruit, no flowers, no leaves.—November!" Many Americans would add no freedom from catarrh, which is so aggravated during this month that it becomes constantly troublesome. There is abundant proof that catarrh is a constitutional disease. It is related to scrofula and consumption, being one of the wasting diseases. Hood's Sarsaparilla has shown that what is capable of eradicating scrofula, completely cures catarrh and taken in time prevents consumption. We cannot see how any sufferer can put off taking this medicine, in view of the widely published record of its radical and permanent cures. It is undoubtedly America's Greatest Medicine for America's Greatest Disease—Catarrh

"The Eleventh Hour."

A good house greeted the presentation of "The Eleventh Hour" at the New Bradley Friday night. The company was a first class one and carried an extensive line of scenery with which to stage the play. The feature of the program was given in the last act, representing the drawing room of a millionaire, in which bric-a-brac, furniture, etc., was broken in a manner never before shown upon a Tecumseh stage. Wit, humor and tragedy interspersed throughout the program, kept the spectators' interest at a high tension.

"When We Were Twenty One"

Is a love story pure and simple and is fold in a straight-forward, homely way. It is a story of how Dick Carewe and his comrades rear and guide the only son of a deceased chum; how they guard and save him from the pitfalls and snares that lie in the path of life at twenty one. It is a story of hearts bound together by ties of friendship that nothing can break, and of how the comrades save their ward from the results of his foolish impetuosity. It also tells how a great self-sacrificing for the girl he loves and who, he thinks, loves his ward. This play is undoubtedly the greatest of modern times and will be presented by a superb company of artists at The New Bradley Monday, Nov. 17.

THE SCHOOLS.

Geometry class have begun constructions.

Frank Camburn was absent part of last week.

Floyd Bryan is an absent pupil from Miss Hurrey's room.

There is but one vacant seat in the A room; 41 pupils now answer at roll call.

English III are reading Emerson's Essays on the American Scholar and Compensation.

Algebra I are having as much difficulty in finding their way through the mazes of long division in that subject, as the average tenderfoot does in chasing a Texas steer through a cane brake.

The young ideas in Miss Lamb's room were learning a new song last week, two lines of which are,

"Columbus came across the sea
To find this land for you and me."

One little miss in recounting her acquisitions of the day to her mother insisted that she had learned that,

"Columbus came across the sea
To find Miss Lamb for you and me."

Evidently Miss Lamb is an important personage in that room.

Defective Seed Next Year.

Orange Judd Farmer: Corn with large quantities of moisture means defective seed next year. The only way to be perfectly sure of good seed corn is to gather it without delay, and dry it, using stove heat, if need be. A great many farmers are using high grade seed. The loss of corn from this means more than to the old time farmer who could get a supply from his neighbor if his own would not germinate. But to the grower of pedigreed corn a partial or complete failure of his seed crop is a severe blow. It is almost analogous to the wiping out of a herd of pure-bred cattle. The breeder must start all over again. Give this matter attention without delay.

GUS DASHIER,

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Dashier,

TOOK CARBOLIC ACID

By Mistake Friday Morning. He will Probably Recover.

Gus Dashier, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Dashier, who live near Ridgeway, came near losing his life Friday morning by taking a drink of carbolic acid, mistaking it for whiskey. The young man had just recovered from a severe attack of typhoid fever and had been in the habit of taking a drink of whiskey the first thing in the morning, but that morning got the wrong bottle. He immediately discovered the mistake and notified his parents. Dr. Loree was at once summoned and administered the proper remedies. The young man will recover although it was a close call.

CLUB NOTES.

Program for Monday Club Nov. 17:
Leader—Mrs. G. R. Gillespie.
Harvard College, its Early Presidents—Mrs. Holdridge.
Cotton Mather, His Magnalia Christi—Miss Garlinghouse.
Early Quakers of New England—Mrs. Howland.
Salem Witchcraft—Mrs. Zimmerman.
Old North Church—Miss Stacy.
Jonathan Edwards—Mrs. Hicks.

The Monday Club gave a little social afternoon at their new rooms yesterday, the occasion being the report of their delegate to the State Federation. Mrs. W. J. Ingersoll represented the club at the Muskegon meeting and gave a very interesting report of the sessions of club women in that city. The rooms were prettily decorated with plants and cut flowers. A dainty lunch was served under the direction of Mrs. Eugene Harris, Mrs. B. J. Garlinghouse and Mrs. O. F. Tefft. Mrs. M. E. Corey presided at the coffee urn and a very social hour was spent during which several new members were welcomed.

The Twentieth Century Club of Detroit are about beginning a crusade against the crowding of street cars. They are following the lead of the New York club women in this matter, who entered a protest to the city council against this evil saying, "We are tired of holding the public on our lap and will not do it any longer." The Detroit Journal says: "If the members of the Twentieth Century club begin a fight against the car-crowding evil, the women of Detroit will feel that their interests are in safe hands, for this same club has a reputation for doing things. It was they who, after a hard campaign, succeeded in having put up the street signs, 'Please do not spit on the sidewalk,' and their work among the Woodward avenue merchants and the public schools in the anti-cigarette cause is still fresh in the memory of all who read the papers."

Traverse-Libs.

At 7 o'clock this morning, at St. Mary's chapel, occurred the marriage of Miss Maria Louise Traverse, only daughter of Mrs. Emma Traverse, to William Charles Libs, Father Sullivan officiating. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Kaiser, Mrs Kaiser being a sister of the groom. Hymenial mass was celebrated. The ceremonies were attended only by relatives. A wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home in conclusion. At 8:42 Mr. and Mrs. Libs departed for a little sojourn at Toledo Cleveland, and Lorain, Ohio, the groom's sister, Mrs. N. C. Alten, residing at the latter place. The bride was attired in a handsome brocaded satin and wore a white picture hat. She carried a white prayer book. Mr. and Mrs. Libs have a large circle of friends in our city who have for them only the kindest of wishes for a happy and prosperous future. Mr. Libs is the youngest son of Mrs. Caroline Libs, a valued attache at Wm. Sheldon's jewelry store. They will reside at 66 North Main street. —Adrian Telegram.

The happy couple are well known in Tecumseh and have the best wishes of their many friends here. The bride is a niece of Miss Julia Hough, of this place.

Aching Joints

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, are joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

Sufferers dread to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and their condition is commonly worse in wet weather.

"It has been a long time since we have been without Hood's Sarsaparilla. My father thinks he could not do without it. He has been troubled with rheumatism since he was a boy, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine he can take that will enable him to take his place in the field." MISS ADA DOTY, Sidney, Iowa.

ROUND ABOUT US.

Though the weather was somewhat cooler and overcoats and wraps were necessary to comfort, on Tuesday, ye editor had sweet corn from his own garden, for dinner, and on leaving home picked a bouquet of nasturtiums, pansies and a dandelion.—Manchester Enterprize.

The Otsego hotel, which collapsed at Jackson a few weeks since, is to be reinforced and built as was originally planned. The contractors do not intend to take any chances in its construction this time and when it is completed no earthquake will be able to faze it, so they say.—Saline Observer.

An up-state young man smoked enough cigarettes to get a rifle free with the tickets from the packages, and now his nerves are so ruined by his indulgence that he can't shoot straight and the gun is a dead loss to him.—Chelsea Standard. Let this be a warning to young men who are not edicted to the habit, and those who are may well profit by his experience.

Peter Knisel, of Ogden, is lying at the home of W. I. Ford in a critical condition as the result of a kick in the lungs by a horse. He was hauling stone to the site of the old canning factory, which he has purchased for a building site and was alone at the time; he came unexpectedly around the corner of a shed and was rendered unconscious by the blow.—Blissfield Advance.

A week ago last Friday, while Frank Arnold was working on a corn shredder on N. G. Strong's farm, three miles north of Hudson, he reached into the machine to loosen an ear of corn. His hand caught among the spikes and was torn to shreds. Amputation at the wrist was necessary. Several years ago a horse ran away at a Fourth of July celebration at Rollin and killed a brother of this boy.

A stranger put in an appearance at Morenci a few days ago, and offered to purchase a cow and calf of J. James. The latter placed a value of $80 on the stock and was promptly taken up, the stranger counting out a fifty, twenty and ten dollar bills. The next day James went to Toledo to purchase goods and found the money was counterfeit. Then there was wailing and gnashing of teeth.—Hudson Post.

In a neighboring town a man had a setter dog upon which his heart was set. The dog set on the electric line and the motorman failed to set the brake soon enough, with the result that the car settled the setter. The company refused to settle for the loss of the setter, whereupon the owner set the law on it and recovered $100 and costs, which the company settled for the dear little setter. The man better setter again.

A successful farmer—Mart Moyer, of London township, leads in being one of the best farmers in this county. This year he had seven acres of corn from which he husked 1,101 bushels of as fine quality of corn as ever grown in the county. From 20 acres of wheat he obtained 600 bushels, and six acres of oats yielded him 57 bushels per acre. Mr. Moyer has a farm of 91 acres of land that is second in quality to no other land in the county.—Dundee Reporter.

A public writer thinks that much might be gained if speakers would observe the miller's method—always to shut the gate when the grist is out.

THEY ALL SAY SO.

Not Only in Tecumseh, but in Every City and Town in the Union.

If the reader took the time and trouble to ask his fellow residents of Tecumseh, the simple question given below, he would obtain the answer. If he would read the statments now being published in Tecumseh, which refer to this answer, it would surprise him to note that they number so many. As many more could be, and may be, published, but in the meantime ask the first person you meet what cures backache? The answer will be, Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a citizen who endorses our claim:

Mr. C. Patterson, the well known sexton residing in the southeastern section of Tecumseh, says: "For over a year I had a soreness and pain in the back at times quite severe more especially if I did a hard day's work or took cold, for it always settled in my kidneys. The kidney secretions were also discolored and irregular and I had all the symptoms of aggravated kidney complaint. I heard several people praising Doan's Kidney Pills so concluding to try them I got a box at C. A. Wright's drug store and commenced the treatment. I found it just suited my case for it helped me right from the start. It stopped the pain in my back and regulated and cleared up the kidney secretions. I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone having any difficulty with their kidneys.

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cent per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

If you wish to pay your debts, you have paid them. Your creditors can not deny that there has been pay-meant.

"Little Colds" neglected—thousands of lives sacrificed every year. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup cures little colds—cures big colds too, down to the very verge of consumption.

A Primitive Postoffice.

Until a short time ago a very peculiar postoffice was used in Argyllshire, England. It was situated in the lonely hills between Drimmin and Barr, three miles from any habitation, and consisted of a simple slit in a rock, closed up by a nicely fitting stone.

When any letters arrived at Drimmin for the district of Barr, they were conveyed to the rock by the first shepherd or crofter going so far. Having been dropped in and the slit reclosed, they were left until a shepherd or crofter from the other side happened to come along, when they were taken up and delivered at their destination. No letter was ever known to be lost at this primitive postoffice

A Department Story.

It was during the Spanish-American war. A wealthy merchant, who had left his business to offer his services to his country, was pacing up and down on picket duty one dark night. Suddenly he detected sounds of approaching footsteps and, quickly bringing his gun in position, commanded in a sonorous voice:

"Give the countersign!"

The person challenged proved to be an enlisted dry goods clerk formerly employed by the merchant before the war broke out. As their eyes met a smile played around the corners of the clerk's mouth, and he answered in a low whisper:

"Cash!"

Then the merchant, bringing his piece to a right shoulder, let him pass and resumed his pacing.—Lippincott's.

The Blue of Sapphires.

Star sapphires are generally of a grayish blue tint, and the star is exhibited in its greatest perfection when looked at by the light of the sun or a candle. The sapphire is found of all tints and shades of blue, but the color which approximates to the shade formerly called "bleu do roi" is the most valuable. A really fine sapphire should appear blue by artificial light as well as by day. This stone is found in crystals generally of much larger size than the ruby. The name "sapphire" is perhaps the only one which runs through all languages with very slight alteration—the Hebrew name sapphir, the Chalda sapirinon, the Greek zaffiros, the Latin sapphirus, etc.

A Startling Surprise.

Very few could believe in looking at A. T. Hoadley, a healthy, robust blacksmith of Tilden, Ind., that for ten years he suffered such tortures from rheumatism as few could endure and live. But a wonderful change followed his taking Electric Bitters. "Two bottles wholly cured me," he writes, "and I have not felt a twinge in over a year." They regulate the kidneys, purify the blood and cure rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness, improve digestion and give perfect health. Try them. Only 50 cts. at C. A. Wright's drug store.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist of Filley, Mo. BISHOP POTTER IN DETROIT.

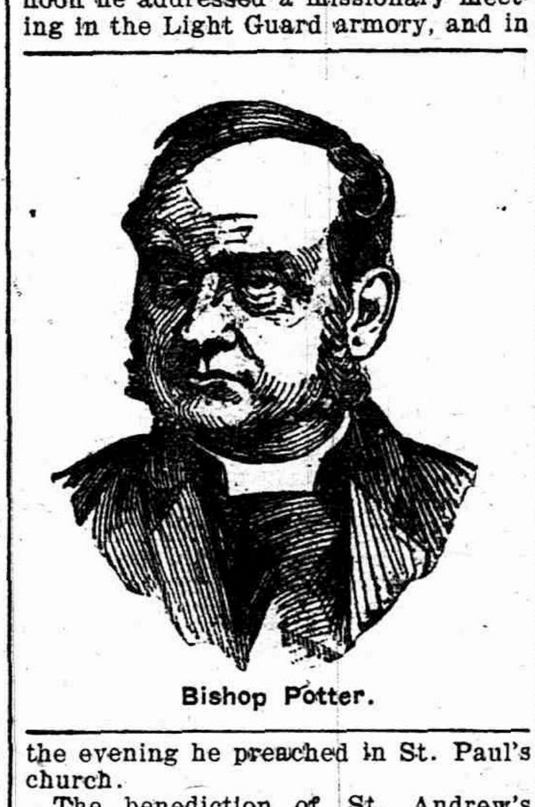
Assisted in Dedication of the New St. Andrews Church.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 10.—Bishop Potter of New York has hardly time to call his soul his own since he came to Detroit Saturday. His engagements have been just as numerous as those of our strenuous president when he was here recently. Yesterday Bishop Potter started with the benediction of the new St. Andrew's church, at Putnam and Fourth avenues, in the afternoon he addressed a missionary meeting in the Light Guard armory, and in the evening he preached in St. Paul's church.



Bishop Potter.

The benediction of St. Andrew's Memorial church in the morning was a most beautiful ceremony, and the magnificent house of worship erected to the memory of the late Bishop Samuel Smith Harris, was filled with a throng of worshipers.

Bishop Potter's sermon was a eulogy on Bishop Harris, who he characterized as one of God's noblemen. He congratulated the rector, Rev. William O. Waters, the congregation and their friends on their efforts in bringing into the world the noble edifice, which, he said, will stand as a monument to the man who was beloved by all.

Largest Apportionment in History.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 10.—The thirty-fifth semiannual apportionment of primary school interest money among the counties of the state will be made today. The apportionment of last May was on a basis of 52 cents for each child between the ages of 5 and 20 years in the state. The apportionment will be on the basis of $2 11 per capita, making the total rate for the year $2 62, the largest in the history of the state.

Thieves Made a Haul.

Greenville, Mich., Nov. 10.—The residence of Cass T. Wright, a wealthy stock raiser and proprietor of the Greenville implement works, was entered about 3 o'clock in the morning, while the family was sleeping, by sneak thieves, who carried off Mr. Wright's clothes containing $400 in currency, $100 in checks and a watch valued at $200.

She Is Now In Jail—Gertrude White, a colored girl at Ann Arbor, twenty years of age, was apprehended in one of the city's stores with a valuable fur boa concealed under her cloak. She had "lifted" it and is now in jail.

Said He Was 116 Years Old.—Johnathan McGee, the old colored man of Ypsilanti, who passed for 116 years of age, died Sunday of old age after a gradual decline in strength for the past month. McGee insisted that he was 116 years of age.

Owosso Merchant Dead.—Michael Schulein, a prominent merchant of Owosso and proprietor of the Boston clothing house there, died Sunday in New York city after a long illness. He was forty-five years of age and leaves a widow and one child.

A Teacher Famine.—There is a teacher famine in Shiawassee county. The Sayre district school in Vernon township has not been opened this fall, and County Commissioner of Schools O. L. Bristol, when waited on by a committee from the district, gave no encouragement, as the complaint is but one of many received, and no teachers are in sight.

Hanged and Buried and Lived.

It is not given to many men to be hanged and buried and yet be able to tell the tale, but such was the experience of one John Bartendale, who was executed at York in 1634 for felony. After his body had hung for nearly an hour it was buried. A gentleman passing by the grave, which had not been filled up, thought he saw the earth move, and with the help of his servant he disinterred the convict, who was still alive.

It was the custom in those days to bury suicides and executed criminals without any coffin. The man was carefully treated and entirely recovered. He became hostler at the coaching house in York and lived a most exemplary life. When asked what he could tell in relation to hanging, as having experienced it, he replied, "That when I was turned off flashes of fire seemed to dart from my eyes, from which I fell into a state of darkness and insensibility."

PREPARING FOR OUTBREAKS.

French Troops Will Prevent Riots Among Striking Miners.

Paris, Nov. 10.—The government is taking precautions to handle another outbreak on the part of the striking miners in case the decision reached Saturday night to continue the strike is followed by violence. Troops were active in the mining regions throughout the day, but no serious disorders have as yet been reported. The authorities believe that the crisis is near and the next few hours will settle the question whether the men will hold to their decision to continue the movement or straggle back to the mines.

Following the decision of the miners' congress to continue the strike, there were disorderly occurrences in Lens (Pas de Calais) Saturday night. The cavalry charged repeatedly a crowd of 14,000 rioters and succeeded in preventing them from advancing. Considerable minor damage was done.

At Courrieres (Pas de Calais) houses of non-strikers were sacked and a number of coal wagons were burned. A clash between strikers and gendarmes and cavalry is reported from Clermont Ferrand (Puy de Dome); it was not attended with serious results.

From some mining centers it is reported that the miners are likely to return to work today in spite of the decision of the congress to the contrary.

FOG CAUSED COLLISION.

Trains on West Virginia Road in Mixup—Express Messenger Killed.

Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 10.—The Norfolk & Western fast express, bound from Columbus to Norfolk, Va., had a head-end collision with an extra freight near Williamson Sunday. Owing to a heavy fog, the engineer of the passenger train failed to see the signal, and when the collision occurred his train was running fifty miles an hour.

John Snyder of Plattsburg, Va., express messenger, was instantly killed. The injured are: Abe Jackson, engineer, and J. C. Sakins, fireman. Each is in a serious condition. The baggage and mail cars caught fire and Snyder's remains were burned to a crisp.

Killed Her Husband.

Binghamton, N. Y., Nov. 10.—Mrs. Enoch Hink shot and killed her husband at their home, about three miles above Port Dickinson Sunday morning about 4 o'clock. Hink was fifty-three years old and his wife forty. They have been married twenty-three years. For some time Hink has been jealous of a nephew, Frank Hink, who has boarded at the Hink home. Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Hink and Frank Hink same to Binghampton. Mrs. Hink and Frank drove home alone. About 2 in the morning Hink, who had arrived home some time previously in an intoxicated condition, quarreled with his wife and made an assault on her. The woman took up a shotgun and pointed it at her husband. It was discharged, the charge entering Hink's breast just above the heart. He died in a few minutes. The coroner says that he looks on it as a case of justifiable homicide.

Horrible Example of Witchcraft.

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 10.—Dispatches from Skagway and Juneau give brief details of a horrible example of witchcraft and superstition in the Hoonah Indian village forty miles from Juneau. Though quiet and peaceable, the Hoonah Indians are very superstitious, and nearly every year one or more members suffer violent death. Several days ago the Indians took a man who was believed to be possessed of a devil and made him the victim of frightful atrocities. His ears were cut off and his body frightfully hacked in an unsuccessful effort to drive out the demon. The victim was troubled with epileptic fits, which continued. He was buried alive in the earth and his scalp cut off, inch by inch. Officers have hurried to the scene from Juneau on a special steamer.

Tried to Lynch the Car Crew.

St. Louis, Nov. 10.—A wagon containing twelve persons was run into by a street car on Jefferson avenue and eight persons were injured. The crowd attracted made an unsuccessful attempt to lynch the motorman and car conductor, but the police interfered. The wagon was overturned by the collision and a ten-year-old girl was injured internally and was taken to a hospital. The others received severe bruises, but were able to go to their homes.

Best Milk Cow.

The milkman was treating himself to a holiday. Before starting he said to the hired man: "Be sure and feed the best milk cow well. Give her all the roots she can eat." Coming into the yard on his return, he saw piled up against the pump a good supply of carrots, turnips and parsnips. "What's this for?" he inquired angrily. "Sure, and isn't the old pump the best milk cow after all?" answered Pat.—Farm Journal.

If you have any of these symptoms you certainly have a weak heart, and should immediately take Bulldog Kinder Than Child.

An incident related by George Eliot proves that kindness and devotion are characteristic of the bulldog breed. The distinguished author was on a visit to the house of a friend where a bulldog and a child, each of the age of six, were among the household possessions. During dessert after dinner, while all were absorbed in conversation, they were startled by a loud howl of pain from the dog, evidently proceeding from under the table. An investigation immediately made discovered that the child, equipped with a pair of scissors, was under the table also and trying to cut the dog's ears with them. From one ear of the bull the blood was running, and yet the dog was making not the slightest effort to escape or defend himself. The host and father, outraged by the evidence of such cruelty on the part of the child, determined on immediate punishment. But when he undertook to carry the punishment into effect the dog interfered, pushing himself between the master and the child and licking the face of the latter.

What a Convict Does In Prison.

If I had little work to do in prison, how did I spend the time? At Auburn, where I lived the greater part of my first term, the routine of my life was as follows: After rising in the morning I would sweep out my cell, turn up my bed and blankets and clean up. Then to breakfast; then, if there was no work to do, I would go back to my cell and eat a small portion of opium. Then I would exercise with dumbbells and take a sponge bath with cold water. Next would come a nap till dinner time. After dinner I would read and think in my cell until 3 o'clock, when I would go to the bucket ground or exercise in the yard in the lock step with the others for half an hour; then back to the cell, taking with me bread and a cup of coffee made out of burned bread crust for my supper. The count was made at 6 o'clock to see that all was right for the night. After that I read in my cell as long as the oil lasted.—"Autobiography of a Thief" in Leslie's Monthly.

The Penalty of Progress.

Is it anybody's business to keep count of the number of persons who are killed by accidents from day to day in this country? The number must be enormous, and most of the victims die of modern improvements of one kind and another, says Life. Fatal trolley car accidents are more common and comprehensive this year than ever before; railroads kill and maim about as usual, automobiles do their share, and mines, factories, fires, drowning accidents, gas accidents, explosions and the like contribute with extraordinary steadiness to our mortuary statistics. In the industrial world especially the sacrifice of human life seems prodigious. Human life is cheap, but, cheap as it is, American civilization seems unduly lavish in expending it.

An Attentive Daughter.

He (after marriage)—I don't see why you are not as considerate of my comfort as you used to be of your father's.

She—Why, my dear, I am.

He—How do you make that out? When I come into the house, I have to hunt around for my slippers and everything else I happen to want, but when I used to court you and your father would come in from town you would rush about gathering up his things, wheel his easy chair up to the fire, warm his slippers and get him both a head rest and a foot rest, so that all he had to do was to drop right down and be comfortable.

She—Oh, that was only so he'd go to sleep sooner.

A Puzzled Youngster.

Harry is the youngest of the family, the only boy among several girls, and sometimes the superior advantages of girls seem to weigh heavily on his youthful mind. The other day we heard him say thoughtfully to himself: "Women always first. I wonder why God didn't make 'em first, but he didn't. He made Adam first."

Life and Death.

Life, after all, is a masquerade, says a writer in the Pittsburg Press. We fear to show our tenderness and our love. We habitually hide our best feelings lest we be judged weak and emotional. Sometimes it needs death to show us ourselves and to teach our friends our deep and unsuspected kindness.

Passion.

Passion warps and interrupts the judgment. He that can reply calmly to an angry man is too hard for him. Plato, speaking of passionate persons, says they are like men who stand on their heads—they see all things the wrong way.

The Barber—Did you hear about the bad scrape Jaggsby got into yesterday?

The Victim—No. Did you shave him?

A citizen was overheard to make a ungallant remark on the street the other day. He said his neighbor was speaking to him about the heavy expens connected with keeping a family, and asked: "Don't you find it so?" "No. use my wife's temper for a furnace, he feet for a refrigerator, her company manners for sugar, and then we hav tongue all the year round, so you se expenses are very light."

NATIONAL GRANGE

Annual Session of Order Began at Lansing Wednesday.

ADDRESSED BY MASTER JONES

He Reports the Order Has Enjoyed Wonderful Degree of Prosperity—Encourages Weekly Meetings and Circulation of Literature.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 13.—The great leading feature of the opening session Wednesday of the National Grange was the annual address of the master, Hon, Aaron Jones of Indiana. He said in part:

"The order has enjoyed a wonderful degree of prosperity during the past year. This is true from whatever view you take of it. More new granges organized, more granges reorganized, more members initiated in existing granges, better ritual and literary work done, meetings held oftener and better attended, and greater interest taken and more inquiry by those outside our gates. The financial condition solvent and satisfactory, more grange halls have been built and tastefully furnished and equipped for the uses and purposes of the order. In securing legislation, state and national, the order has been measurably successful. The work of the order more generally commended by all the people of our country.

"I, therefore, congratulate the order on the efficient work of the membership throughout the country, with its gratifying and splendid results.

"A constantly increasing demand for information of the objects, purposes and benefits of the order of Patrons of Husbandry indicate that the National Grange should provide literature fully explaining the organization, that all farmers may be fully advised of its benefits and advantages, and how they can secure membership, either in existing grances or new organizations.

"I recommend that the extension and lecture fund be continued and that the Uational Grange Quarterly Bulletin, the official organ of the order be also continued, and the issue increased and a copy sent to each officer of subordinate pomona, state and national, granges; and that the subscription price to all others be fixed at cost.

"To increase the interest and benefits of the order, I fraternally suggest that all subordinate granges should meet one each week and that all members who possibly can be prompt in their attendance, and assist in all the wor kof the grange, and should strive to give, as well as receive, information that will increase the profits of agriculture, lessen the labors on the farm or in the home, or add to its attractiveness.

"The farmers of the United States furnish food and clothing to its 80,000,000 inhabitants, and annually send abroad from $600,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 agricultural products. The wealth produced each year by the farmers of the United States is greater than any nation of the world, and the amount of our productions is annually increasing to a degree not realized by our people.

"The brief recital of the annual productions of the farms of the United States ought to impress us with the vast responsibility resting on our order, as it is the only national organization representing this most important industry. It is a part, and an important part, of the work of our order, to make this industry more important and profitable.

"The work of the national lecturer has been of great value to the order. Wherever he has spoken a higher appreciation of the order obtains. The literature prepared and the Quarterly Bulletin edited by him, have furnished food for thought to all classes of American citizens, and has been of such character as to inspire our order and impress all others that the Order of Patrons of Husbandry is doing a grand work in bettering agricultural conditions and improving the citizenship of our country.

"The department of agriculture in the several states and at Washington, and all the agricultural colleges, without exception, are all in full sympathy with and are aiding the order to better agricultural conditions."

John Trimble of Washington, where the home office of the National Grange is located, has been national secretary for twenty years and is versed in all that appertains to the history and aspirations of the order. Dr. Trimble is a gray-bearded, soldierly-looking gentleman with something of the southern air about him. Speaking of the growth of the grange, he said:

"Michigan leg all the states in the number of new lodges organized in recent years. The outlook, the nation over, was never brighter. We have two measures in which as a national body we are interested, and which will, doubtless, be thoroughly discussed—the ship subsidy and the irrigation of western lands."

E. B. Norris of Sodus, N. Y., chairman of the national executive committee, stated that the rural mail system would come up for discussion. The grange was the prime mover in the matter.

One of the most notable figures in the convention is Mrs. Sarah G. Baird of Minnesota, who claims the distinction of being the only woman ever elected to the office of master of a state grange. She is here now representing her state in that capacity.

Senator Burrows presided at the evening meeting and made a short ad dres sof congratulation. Former State Senator Helme of Adrian, who is an active grange worker, was among those present.

Governor Bliss delivered the address of welcome and Worthy Master Jones responded with an eloquent review of the part taken in the creation of the grange of today by Michigan.

George B. Horton, worthy master of the state grange, followed in an address.

AN AMERICAN CREW

Colombian Warship Manned By Them Engaged the Enemy.

A BIG FIGHT THEN ENSUED

Two Men Killed—Revolutionary Provision Schooners Cornered—One Captured, Another Burned—Heavy Casualties Among the Enemy.

Panama, Nov. 13.—The first American casualties as a result of the revolution occurred Wednesday. The Colombian fleet captured a boat having on board correspondence showing the whereabouts of two revolutionary schooners loaded with provisions. The government war ships headed for the place, and on arriving there the Bogota, manned by an American crew, commanded by Captain Marmaduke, lowered two boats with armed men, but as the schooners were aground they waited until high tide to attack them. In the meantime the revolutionists were discovered in ambush close to the beach, and when the Bogota's boats pulled ahead the second time the rebels opened fire on them, killing the ship's armorer, Richard Kane of Washington, and wounding George Walker, who was shot through the legs. A seaman named Clark and Lieutenant Vasquez were also wounded, but not seriously. The Bogota and Chucuito then opened fire on the enemy and killed every man in sight. One shot fired at a group of ten rebels who were most actively engaged in shooting at the boats' crews, killed every one of them.

Gunner Cross of the Bogota thinks that from forty to fifty rebels were killed.

One of the schooners, the Helvetia, loaded with rice, was captured, but the first shot at the second schooner set her on fire, and she was completely destroyed with her cargo.

The body of Kane will be buried here with military honors.

A man named "R. Kain" has been mentioned in press dispatches as being one of the crew of the Bogota. It was also asserted that Kain fought under Dewey at the battle of Manila.

Gunner J. Cross of the Bogota hails from Cedar Rapids, Ia. He is only seventeen years of age.

One Boy's Worth.

When Horace Mann made a famous speech for the dedication of a building that had cost many thousand dollars devoted to the reformation of bad boys, he said, "If all this which has been spent upon this building results in the reformation of one boy, it is money well spent." Somebody said to him, "Mr. Mann, do you think one boy is worth all that money?" He replied, "Yes, if it is my boy or your boy."—Primary Education.

ANDRFWS IN PRISON.

Detroit's Bankwrecker Unable to Furnish the Enormous Bail.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 13.—Frank C. Andrews, convicted bankwrecker, was taken to Jackson on the 12:40 Michigan Central train this morning and is now occupying a cell in the state's prison.

Sheriff Dickson decided yesterday that he would not delay removing the famous prisoner longer, now that Andrews and his attorneys had thrown up their hands and admitted that they were unable to furnish the $200,000 bail demanded.

The prisoner left the county jail at about 12:30 o'clock standard time in a closed carriage, accompanied by Sheriff Dickson and a pair of deputies.

A number of Andrews' friends called at the jail yesterday to bid him farewell. Attorney James McNamara was one of them, and Attorneys Beaumont, Kirchner and Baker were all closeted with him late in the evening. Arthur Miller, Andrews' secretary, was also on hand.

One of the most interesting scenes was that when the bankwrecker's wife came at about 8 o'clock to bid farewell to her husband for the last time before he should wear the stripes of a felon. Andrews did not seem to feel downcast at the parting or at his wife's tears. He gave her his valuable jewelry and at a jesting remark of Attorney McNamara laughed in seeming good spirits.

MOLINEUX IS A FREE MAN.

Jury Brought in a Verdict of Not Guilty.

New York, Nov. 12.—Roland B. Molineux was yesterday acquitted of the murder of Mrs. Katherine J. Adams.

The jury retired at 3:10, and remained out just 25 minutes.

Whne the foreman announced the verdict of acquittal, there was much applause, and the cheering extended to the crowd waiting outside in the corridors and on the street.

Although the jury was out about 25 minutes they agreed on their verdict within 10 minutes after leaving the courtroom.

Molineux stood while the jury was being polled and apparently he was not affected. His attitude indicated that he had prepared himself for any verdict that might be given.

When the large crowd outside the court heard what the verdict was a great shout went up and three cheers for Molineux were given.

Molineux was formally discharged a few minutes after the jury returned their verdict.

Dec. 24, 1898, Harry S. Cornish, physical director of the Knickerbocker Athletic club, received by mail a silver holder containing a bottle, the contents of which were supposed to be bromo seltzer. Cornish took the little present to the home of Mrs. Katherine J. Adams, a relative, with whom he boarded. Dec. 28 Mrs. Adams complained of a headache and Cornish gave her a dose from the bottle. She immediately became ill and died in agony in 20 minutes.

Roland B. Molineux and Harry C. Barnet were members of the Knickerbocker club. Barnet received a sample bottle of bromo seltzer by mail, the same as Cornish, and died after taking a dose. Autopsy on the bodies showed cyanide of mercury poisoning. By throwing suspicion on Cornish the authorities got Molineux to make admissions at the inquest which corroborated damaging evidence the police had secured against Molineux, and he was arrested. Largely through letters written in the names of Cornish and Barnet to chemical firms, replies to which were sent to private letter boxes at news stands, where Molineux was identified as the one who rented the boxes, and through expert evidence that Molineux wrote the addresses on the packages sent Cornish and Barnet. Molineux was convicted of murder after fifty-five days' trial and was sentenced to death. After eighteen months in Sing Sing he was granted a new trial.

Kimberlin, a pioneer citizen and a prominent oculist, was shot and killed in his office in this city yesterday afternoon by John Scanlon, formerly a policeman, who then shot and killed himself. The bodies of both men were found in the doctor's office. Dr. Kimberlin was shot three times and both men must have died almost instantly. Scanlon, who is the brother of a prominent local politician, asserted, it is said, that Kimberlin had caused him to lose his eyesight.

Had Terrible Voyage.

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 12.—The steamer Empress of China, which arrived last night from the Orient, brought advices of the terrible voyages of liners Tacoma and Indrapura, the former from Victoria and the latter from Portland. The Tacoma spent twenty-three days in reaching Yokohama, nine days longer than usual, and the Indrapura was twenty-four days from Astoria to Yokohama in consequence of the storms. Both vessels were badly damaged. Members of the crews were injured, but none fatally.

French Miners Resume Work.

Paris, Nov. 12.—At a council of ministers yesterday Premier Combes communicated the contents of dispatches he had received from the strike regions showing that the movement to resume work, which began Monday, was greatly accentuated. At some places, such as Bruay, work has been entirely resumed, and M. Combes gave his colleagues too understand that the movement on the part of miners to take up their work would soon extend to the department Du Nord and other districts.

Stabbed Her Lover.

London, Nov. 12.—A sensational love tragedy has been enacted in this city in full view of hundreds of people. A young woman named Kitty Byron stabbed to death her lover, Arthur Reginald Baker, a well-known member of the stock exchange. Before the woman could move she was seized by several witnesses of the deed and given into custody. The affair happened in front of the main postoffice building of the city. Baker was married and leaves a family.

Many Persons Injured.

New York, Nov. 12.—An explosion of illuminating gas in the cellar of the seven-story double tenement on Avenue C yesterday afternoon, wrecked a store on the ground floor and injured thirty-nine persons, several being severely hurt. Among the injured were fourteen firemen and one policeman. The explosion followed a slight fire caused, it is said, by a plumber who was working in the cellar.

Indiana Man Appointed.

Washington, Nov. 12.—A cable dispatch received at the war department from Governor Taft announces that he has appointed Elmer Bryan, formerly of Bloomington, Ind., superintendent of education for the Philippines. Mr. Bryan has been identified with the schools of the Philippines for some time and superintendent in the city of Manila.

Cremated in Sight of Hundreds.

Ottumwa, Ia., Nov. 12.—Hundreds of horrified spectators saw Thomas Baxter, an aged resident of Charlton, cremated in a fire which destroyed his dwelling. The burning body could be seen through the windows of the blazing house. There is much mystery surrounding the case, and it is thought Baxter was murdered and the house set on fire to conceal the crime.

What to Do With Old Hats.

If you want to make the best use of any old hats that you may have, you should take them to the Nicobar islands. There you will be received with enthusiasm, for the people who live in these islands have quite a passion for them. Every one likes them, and every one tries to get as many as he can. On a fine morning the sea roundabout these islands may be seen dotted with canoes in each of which is a savage, with nothing at all on but a strip of cloth round his waist and a tall hat, and the funny part of it is that old hats are very much more sought after than new ones. The Nicobar natives regard new hats with suspicion and dislike.

PROFESSIONAL BRETHREN

CHAPTER II.

GENERALLY I do not tarry long in the vicinity of a house that I have looted, for the police have an unpleasant way of arresting suspicious characters simply to cover up their inability to find a clew otherwise. It gives the impression that they are really doing something to capture the burglar. They are always so close mouthed, too, that people imagine they are working diligently on the track and that the arrested characters form a part of their deeply laid plan.

But in this case I overruled my better sense and decided to hang around the scene of my last engagement just to satisfy a feeling that I was in some way to meet again the man who had so generously shared his spoils with me. True, he had found himself in such a position that something had to be done to buy me off; but, as I thought afterward, he could easily have outwitted me and escaped with all the plunder.

On the following afternoon I dressed myself in a spare suit of clothes which I always keep for an emergency and wandered out of the city limits toward the old fashioned mansion. As I approached it I caught a glimpse of an active little man who seemed to be inspecting the premises with great concern. Without hesitation I put him down as a detective, one of those half policemen whose shrewdness consists chiefly in following a trail that is as clear as daylight.

I felt no fear of him, for I knew that he was not the kind of man to capture a professional. I knew that a bold front would disarm him of all suspicion quicker than anything else. If he caught me sneaking about the neighborhood, he would very likely arrest me.

Passing near the front of the house where he seemed busily engaged in studying the broken shrubbery, I accosted him.

"Is this the house that was robbed last night?" I asked innocently, looking with great curiosity at the place.

"Is it? Why, who said any house was robbed?"

He gave me a hard stare, which I returned without seeming bold.

"The papers are full of it," I replied. "And, being out this way, I thought I'd look around a bit and see the house."

"Oh, you did, eh? Well, it isn't a safe place just now for strangers."

"Why not? There are no burglars here now, I hope. If there are, I'd like to get a look at 'em."

He seemed to smile inwardly at my ignorance.

"Well, nobody is allowed on the place," he answered rather brusquely. "And so, if you haven't any business here, you can march on."

"But there is no harm looking at the house from the street, is there?"

"No, but the people don't want to be stared at by every Tom, Dick and Harry in the country, so please move on."

I hardly noticed his last remark, so interested was I by the appearance of two people on the piazza. One was a beautiful young woman with a figure and face that would attract attention anywhere. She walked down the front steps and turned an instant to speak to her companion.

But, handsome as she was, the man who followed her attracted me more, and for an instant I felt myself growing dizzy. Fortunately for me the detective had turned to greet the young couple, and he did not see my sudden consternation.

I never forget faces that I have once particularly noticed. It is a part of my discipline to remember them. This one I had every reason to remember very well. Although I had only seen it by the aid of my dark lantern at night, I knew instantly that it belonged to my companion in crime.

He was handsomely dressed, and his clear cut features gave him an aristocratic appearance that must have been born in him. A slight pallor of the face suggested the possibility of some inherited disease that he was unable to control. As he walked alongside the beautiful woman I had to think what a noble couple they made. Each seemed made for the other.

"Well, Mr. Jenkins, have you any clew yet?" I heard him say in his rich voice as he passed the detective.

"Only a slight one," was the ready reply. "It is difficult to find any traces that may point to anything particular, but by putting this and that together I think I will be able to have a clew before night."

I saw the gentleman smile, and I admired him for his coolness. He evidently had no more confidence in the detective's shrewdness than I, and he was not courting fear unnecessarily.

"How smart these detectives are, Charles!" his companion said in all seriousness. "They accomplish such wonders that I should think a robber would be in mortal terror of them all the time."

"Yes, Belle, they are sometimes shrewd, and again they are not. It all depends upon the man. This Mr. Jenkins seems to me like a very persistent and determined person, a sort of human hound, but I doubt very much if he has much capacity for solving a profound mystery."

"You haven't much confidence in him, then?"

"Yes and no," he answered, shrugging his shoulders.

They were walking down the pavement toward the gate as they talked, and so eager was I to hear their words that I very foolishly exposed myself to their view.

As they came around a clump of shrubbery they suddenly stumbled upon me. I had just a moment in which to pull myself together and to doff my hat.

"Excuse me, ma'am," I said without thinking.

Politeness is a second nature to me, for I have associated with gentlemen enough to know their ways and have unconsciously absorbed some of their manners.

"Why, you frightened me," the lady said. "I did not know anybody was there."

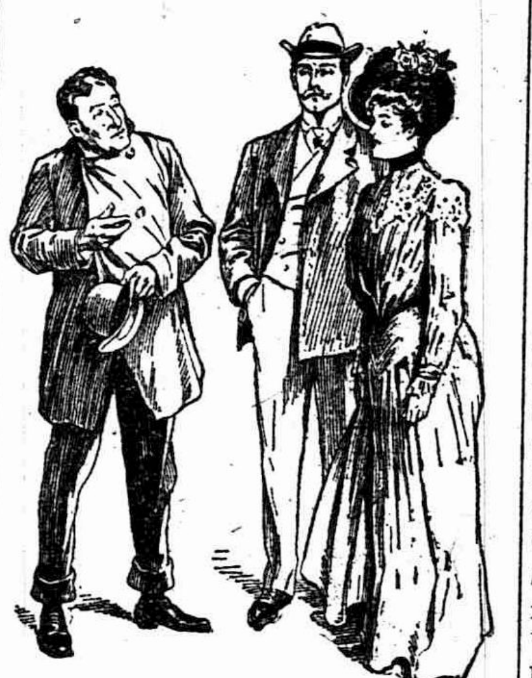
"I beg your pardon again then, ma'am. I was passing by, and I did not see you either."

While I was speaking to the lady I was furtively watching the face of the one she called Charles. I was a little concerned to see how he would take the meeting. He was looking at me so impassively that I wondered if he recognized me. Such self control did not seem possible even in the most experienced.

"I judge you're another one of the curiosity seekers," he said pleasantly. "We've had scores of them here this morning, staring at the house as if it were a dime museum. There's nothing like a robbery to attract the attention of the country people."

His failure to show any signs of concern over our meeting piqued me a little, and on the spur of the moment I determined to pursue a course that would arouse him.

"I confess that curiosity brought me here first," I answered, "but then I had to come out into the country for my bread and butter. I couldn't get any work in the city, and I thought the country people couldn't treat me any worse."



"Excuse me, ma'am."

"Have you been out of work long?" the lady asked.

"Yes, for nearly a month now, and I am at the end of my rope," I replied glibly.

"Poor fellow!"

Her eyes and words made me ashamed of myself. Only the night before I had robbed her house, and here I was eliciting sympathy from her. But I thought if I was a scoundrel her companion was a worse one.

"Is there nothing we can do for him, Charles?" she asked, turning to him.

This was a shot that I expected would make itself felt. But the pale, handsome face did not change.

"I don't know," he said slowly. Then to me:

"Do you know anything about horses?"

"Yes, sir," I replied quickly. "I've had a good deal of experience as a groom and coachman."

This was partly true and partly false.

"Well, my groom has left me, and if you want to apply for the position call around at my house tonight. I live in the first house on the left down this street."

He pointed out his residence, but I was so taken aback by his affability and readiness to engage me that I nearly lost his words of instruction. I recovered sufficiently, however, to recognize the place before they moved on.

I heard their "good day" as one in a dream, and probably for the first time in my life politeness failed me. I actually forgot to thank either of them.

Throughout the interview he had been playing a part with wonderful success or he had failed to recognize me. I was inclined to accept the latter as true, and he fell somewhat in my estimation. To forget a face so soon was something that no one of our profession could well afford.

Boiled Down.

An amusing story is told of the editor of a go-ahead London evening newspaper, who, in the eternal rushing to press to get ahead of the opposition, was constantly impressing upon his reporters the necessity for condensing all news.

A terrific boiler explosion had taken place on board a big ship lying at Portsmouth.

"Get down there as hard as you can," he said to one of his men. "If you catch the 11:40 from London bridge, you'll be there soon after 2 and can just wire us something for the fifth edition, but boil it down."

And the reporter went.

Soon after 3 o'clock that afternoon they got a wire from him:

"Terrific explosion. Man-o'-war. Boiler empty. Engineer full. Funeral tomorrow. No flowers."—London Tit-Bits.

Character In the Feet.

In the form of the foot the sexes differ as much or even more than in that of the hand. A woman's foot is usually narrower in proportion than a man's, while his will be considerably stronger in the ankle and more powerful in the formation of the toes, especially of the ball of the great toe. When a woman owns a strong, firm, wide foot, many of us experience perhaps no sensation of surprise at finding her "strong minded." When a man trips along upon a delicate little foot, people instinctively believe him to be lacking in power and often put him down as effeminate.—Exchange.

Fooled the Other Fellows.

An old showman says that one summer he traveled with a circus side show. An admission of 10 cents was charged, and all he had was a pig with one ear off. When people came in, he said to them: "Don't say a word. Let us fool the other fellows." The victims went out, saying it was a great show and encouraged others to go in. Americans are always willing to fool each other.—Atchison Globe.

More Than He Could Stand.

"After you have taken this medicine," said the physician, "give yourself a hot water bath and go to bed at once."

"Gosh, doc!" exclaimed the shaggy haired patient. "Can't you make it a mustard plaster or something like that? I always kitch cold when I take a bath!"—Chicago Tribune.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, Nov. 10, 1902.

The winter political population is gathering in Washington. Familiar faces are once more seen in the hotel lobbies, in the government offices and about the White House, or rather about the president's office building, and the newspaper correspondents are hurrying hither and yon getting "tips" and getting them denied, vigilantly watching for "news" in regard to the great congressional "derby" which, probably will not be run for a year, but which has for its prize the speakership of the house of representatives and for which there will be many entries though but one contestant can get the place.

As a result of the unquestionable election of a republican majority in the lower chamber, numerous candidacies have been announced. The first actual contestant to come to Washington and proclaim his ambition was Representative Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, the apostle of protection in its highest form. With an almost solid delegation back of him and many high protectionists favorable to his cause, Mr. Dalzell will make a vigorous fight and believes that he will have the moral support of Senator Hanna. It will be no easy race, however. Advices from Mr. Cannon of Illinois, state that he has established headquarters in Chicago and that he "proposes to win." His long service as chairman of the committee on appropriations he believes entitles him to recognition, but that very office has made for him many enemies whose cherished appropriation bills have fallen before his merciless ax.

Although New York already has the presidency and the secretaryship of war, she is not content and will put two contestonts in the field, Representative Payne, now chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and Representative Sherman of Utica. A handsome well dressed man appeared at the White House recently and had a long talk with the president. It was Representative Overstreet, secretary of the Congressional Campaign Committee. He refused to state positively his mission in Washington but it is understood that he is here to present the claims of Representative Babcock who has a record of five successful campaigns which he has managed. Up in Maine there is a gentleman, regarded as typical of the new dispensation, who has serious hopes of presiding over the house. It is Mr. Littlefield, who was heralded last summer as the young David who would destroy the trust Goliath. Mr. Babcock has also come to Washington and is on the watch for every new arrival who holds a congressional vote.

As if to add interest to the situation, an unconfirmed rumor has reached Washington to the effect that Speaker Henderson would resign the speakership this winter and thus precipitate the fight. There is little ground for accepting the report but it makes things more interesting.

A report has been received from Iowa to the effect that Mr. Henderson would contest the gubernatorial nomination with Governor Cummins' next spring and that he would have the support of Secretary Shaw who is himself credited with aspirations for the vice-presidency. Mr. Shaw, when seen after the cabinet meeting at the White House, denied that he had formed any alliance with Gen. Henderson and professed no knowledge of the Speaker's intentions. It is not likely that the Secretary of the Treasury will form any such alliance while he is still in the cabinet, but that is not saying that he would not favor Speaker Henderson's ambitation to be "vindicated" and to remove Mr. Cummins from an active share in Iowa politics.

The members of the Cabinet are now hurrying back to Washington to prepare their annual reports and to render all the assistance possible to the President in the preparation of his message. The first Cabinet meeting to be held in the new Cabinet room took place last Friday and lasted two and a half hours. It is understood that the President briefly outlined the features of his message to his advisors. In most instances the Cabinet officers are bringing their families with them and the social season will doubtless open in the near future. Numerous members of the diplomatic corps have returned to Washington or are on their way, and Secretary Hay is busily engaged with the Colombian and Cuban treaties on both of which it is said progress is being made.

General Corbin, adjutant general of the army, has made public his annual report the most significant feature of which is, perhaps, his urgent recommendation that the "canteen" or post exchange at which the sale of beer was permitted be restored. He states that the cases of desertion and the infractions of discipline have greatly increased since the sale of beer was forbidden by the act of Feb. 3, 1901 and alleges that none are more anxious to see the exchange restored in its previous form than those officers "of pronounced temperance views."

Senator Beveridge has returned to Washington and will make arrangements for a brief tour of Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico, which are so loudly knocking at the door for statehood. It will be remembered that the Senator promised Senator Quay that his committe would report to to the Senate the bill of admission already passed by the House before the Christmas adjournment.

The President leaves Washington tonight for New York. He will attend the dedication of the Commerce building there and will then go south. He will be present at the reception of Luke E. Wright, vice-governor of the Philippines, at Memphis on Nov. 19, and will attend the Union League dinner at Philadelphia Nov. 22, after which he will return to Washington.

A little girl had been looking at some pictures of angels and she turned to her mother and asked, "Mamma, why are there no men in heaven?" "But there are men in heaven," replied the mother. "Then why is it," asked the child, "that we never see any pictures of angels with whiskers or mustache?" "True, but there are men in heaven," was the reply, "only they get in by a close shave."

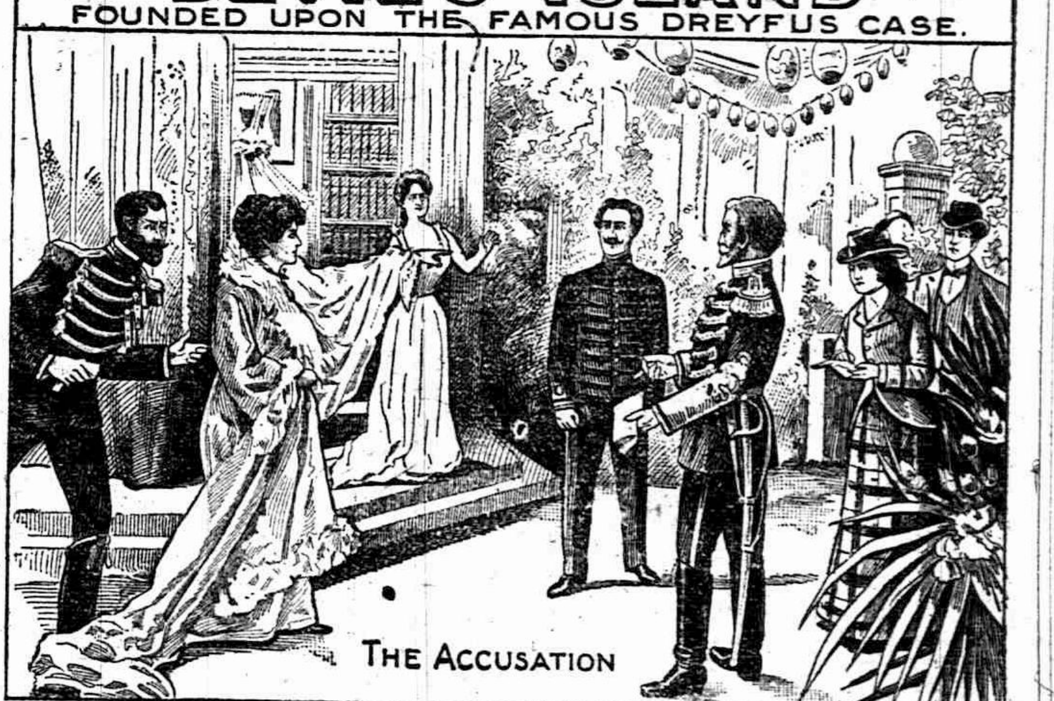
DEVIL'S ISLAND
FOUNDED UPON THE FAMOUS DREYFUS CASE.



THE ACCUSATION

The emphatic success of "Devil's Island" still continues, owing to the splendid work of the adapters of this incident, Messrs. DeNoie and Hall, whose construction of the play on the Dreyfus case has been highly complimented by press and public throughout the country. The extraordinary scenes and incidents of this famous case, made into play form, has necessitated the engaging of a company of players whose especial style fit them for the different parts in the piece. So much attention has been given to this matter and so well have the artists been selected, that a performance of the highest merit has been the result. The appreciation shown by theatre-goers has been commented upon by the press. This has been the means of stirring the members of the organization to further efforts. Miss Adelaide Warren, who portrays the difficult role of the Countess Nina Petrovski, is to be especially complimented upon her good work in this part.

The many scenes and incidents of this well known case are ably portrayed both in a scenic and literary sense and the strict regard to all matters pertaining to this event, has been the means of making the production the success it is.

"Devil's Island," with its carload of scenery and effects, will be presented at the New Bradley theatre on Wednesday evening, Nov. 19, and a successful engagement is assured.

Some of the farmers have been boiling up for their hogs potatoes that were slightly or partially decayed, and the practice has not proved profitable—the hogs have many of them died from the effects of the poison which the potatoes contain. A NOVEL PARTY

Given at the Home of Miss Bessie Bates

BY J. P. C'S.

A Good Time was Enjoyed by all.

A new and original idea in the shape of a trade party was given by the J. P. C's. at the home of Miss Bessie Bates Tuesday evening. When the guests had assembled the hostess asked the girls to pass behind a curtain, which had been drawn across the room. The auctioneer then announced that she was ready to begin the sale, a bell sounded and the curtain raised just far enough to disclose a row of feminine feet. The auctioneer then declared she would auction off the feet, one pair at a time.

The bidding then began, and was of course very spirited, as each pair of feet was bought the girl to whom they were attached came from behind the curtain carrying in her arm a box filled with good things to eat. Each girl sat beside the man who had bought and shared her fortune. Another feature of the evening was unwrapping of the packages, brought by the guests and hid in different parts of the house. They caused much merriment as they contained a great variety of amusing articlers.

"When We were Twenty-one."

"Gentlemen, what is your verdict on Esmond's play? Most admirable! New, pure, fresh and invigorating, with a thorough Thackeray tone in it that takes our thoughts back to "Colonel Newcome" and "Pendennis" and another "Harry Esmond." The second act is the very best that any dramatist, old or young, has put forth in many a day. Better than any act in any play by Robertson. Better than any act in Pinero's master-piece, "Sweet Lavender." Better than the whole of "Trilby" put together. And that, gentlemen, is the verdict of you all! Without one dissenting voice, unanimous!" This is what Clement Scott, the famous London critic, wrote of "When we were 21" for the New York Herald.

This great comedy will be presented in Tecumseh at the New Bradley theatre Monday evening, Nov. 17, by a magnificent company under the direction of William Morris and John T. Hall.

"The Devil's Island.

Mittenthal Bros., the theatrical managers, who are noted for the costly manner in which they mount all their productions, are the producers of the famous "Devil's Island" which comes to Tecumseh Wednesday, Nov. 19.

The story of the play is written around the facts of the Dreyfus case, and demands the most magnificent of stage settings. Chief among the principal scenes called for is that of the act of degradation also "Devil's Island," showing the famous prisoner in his iron cage. Criticisms from the prominent dailies throughout the country show that all these have been provided, and the production is a most notable one.

50TH ANNIVERSARY.

The Brother and Sister-in-law of Mrs. S. P. Hosmer.

MR. AND MRS. J. R. ROSEBRUGH

Of Freeport, Ill., Celebrate Their Golden Wedding. Fifty Years of Life, What is it?

Is it only trials endured, conflicts waged and obstacles overcome, now and then calm places, like oasis, in between? Look back. See the other lives coming in contact with your own, till at the last we find the chisel of out side influence has been a loyal artist, helping to shape the character we possess.

But fifty years of married life, beginning in the time of glossy locks, bright eyes, erect forms, buoyant steps and loving hearts, and along the way enduring trials in each other, waging conflicts for each other, overcoming obstacles with each other, till having attained the ascendant in the arc, what remains? Locks grown white, eyes dim, forms stooped, buoyant step feeble, but hearts welded.

On the 9th of November, 1852, at St. Peter's Episcopal church in the little town of Tecumseh, Mich., John Ralston Rosebrugh and Julia Elizabeth Taylor began a pilgrimage which rounded its fiftieth anniversary Saturday.

They thought to let the day pass unnoticed, only in their own hearts, but their sisters on Grove street invited the survivors of a Thanksgiving party of more than ten years standing, and these with the only living bridesmaid, of that faraway day, Mrs. Robert O. Selfridge, of Chicago, Mrs. Otto Hopkins, of Evanston, Ill., Miss Sarah Goheen, of Geneseo, N. Y., Mrs. C. H. Stocking, of Chicago, met around the festal board renewing old friendships, cementing those of the present and forming new ones. In the evening some friends of the family came in to offer congratulations, and joined with delight in the impromptu charades going on, and left with wishes that many more anniversaries might come to the pair in whose honor they met.—Freeport Journal.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Rosebrugh were residents of Tecumseh about forty years ago and will be well remembered by the older citizens. Mrs. Rosebrugh is a sister of Mrs. S. P. Hosmer.

A public writer thinks that much might be gained if speakers would observe the miller's method—always to shut the gate when the grist is out.

THEY ALL SAY SO.

Not Only in Tecumseh, but in Every City and Town in the Union.

If the reader took the time and trouble to ask his fellow residents of Tecumseh, the simple question given below, he would obtain the answer. If he would read the statments now being published in Tecumseh, which refer to this answer, it would surprise him to note that they number so many. As many more could be, and may be, published, but in the meantime ask the first person you meet what cures backache? The answer will be, Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a citizen who endorses our claim:

Mr. C. Patterson, the well known sexton residing in the southeastern section of Tecumseh, says: "For over a year I had a soreness and pain in the back at times quite severe more especially if I did a hard day's work or took cold, for it always settled in my kidneys. The kidney secretions were also discolored and irregular and I had all the symptoms of aggravated kidney complaint. I heard several people praising Doan's Kidney Pills so concluding to try them I got a box at C. A. Wright's drug store and commenced the treatment. I found it just suited my case for it helped me right from the start. It stopped the pain in my back and regulated and cleared up the kidney secretions. I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone having any difficulty with their kidneys.

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cent per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

If you wish to pay your debts, you have paid them. Your creditors can not deny that there has been pay-meant.

"Little Colds" neglected—thousands of lives sacrificed every year. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup cures little colds—cures big colds too, down to the very verge of consumption.

What's the secret of happy, vigorous health? Simply keeping the bowels, the stomach, the liver and kidneys strong and active. Burdock Blood Bitters does it.

He who forgets his own friends meanly to follow after those of a higher degree is a snob.

Every body likes a hot steak, but when it comes up covered with cinders, you can justly complain of it as coaled meat.

W. A. Herren of Finch, Ark., writes, "I want to report that Foley's Kidney Cure has cured a terrible case of kidney and bladder trouble that two doctors had given up." J. J. Orr.

He Saw Them.

"Did you see any sharks when you crossed the ocean, Mr. Spifkins?" asked Miss Purling.

"Yes," replied Spifkins sadly; "I played cards with a couple."

Promotions in the Army.

Washington, Nov. 13.—The slate for the promotion to major-generals to fill vacancies caused by retirements which will take place next year has been arranged. There will be three vacancies, General Hughes retiring April 11, General Davis July 26, and General Miles Aug. 8. The latter is lieutenant-general, and will be succeeded by Major-General Young. The brigadiers to be promoted to be major-generals are James F. Wade, Samuel S. Sumner and Leonard Wood. These men are now the three ranking brigadier-generals in the order named. General Wade has been a brigadier-general since May, 1897, and has seen many men advanced to the higher grade while he has remained stationary. It is presumed that he will succeed General Davis in command of the Philippines when the latter retires next July.

New Ships For Streel Trust.

Duluth, Nov. 13.—In line with its expressed hope to increase the steel ore carrying fleet of the Pittsburg Steamship company, that company has called for bids for the building of twenty steel steamships, to be fifty-two feet longer than anything at present on the lakes. The ships will be 550 feet long, 58 feet beam and 30 feet deep, and will carry 9,000 tons each. They will be capable of moving from Duluth to Buffalo 129,000,000 bushels of wheat in a lake season. It is expected that when built these ships will use up about $10,000,000 of the $50,000,000 laid aside by the United States Steel Corporation for improvements. The steel corporation owns the Pittsburg Steamship company. These ships will sail from Duluth.

Want Molineux on the Stage.

New York, Nov. 13.—Robert Grau has offered Roland B. Molineux, acquitted of the charge of murdering Mrs. Katherine J. Adams, $2,000 a week for ten weeks, to relate in vaudeville the incidents of his trials and imprisonment. Clay Vance has offered Molineux $1,800 a week for three weeks, to appear in Blaney's stock company. It is understood, however, that Molineux has decided to go into business with his father, and he and his wife Blanche will make a home for themselves in Brooklyn.

Keeper Lourim Resigns.

Jackson, Mich., Nov. 13.—William Lourim, keeper at the prison, who saved the life of Foreman Hugh Brennan in the shirt factory trouble at the state prison Saturday; and who was discharged for leaving the shirt shop, at the request of some peacemaking convicts, being reinstated by the prison board of control, resigned his position yesterday, saying that he desires to quit the prison business.

The Use of the Right Foot.

That the right foot is, like the right hand, ordinarily more mobile and at the same time stronger than the left might be attributed to the more frequent exertion of this side were it not that the peculiarity is said to extend itself even to the constitution, and the left extremities are asserted to be more liable to disease than the right. The more difficult movements in stage dancing are usually executed upon the right foot, and it is generally considered that unless double practice be accorded to the left leg an ungraceful preference for the right will be shown by the dancers in their public performances.

Most people tread more firmly with the right than with the left foot. There seems to be a greater capacity for propelling the body with the right foot. From this the horseman springs, with his left in the stirrup, and unless left handed no boy in his play hops naturally upon the left foot.—Pall Mall Gazette.

One Misery of Anglo-Indian Life.

Every night at dinner the Anglo-Indian holds a kind of levee. The insects which attend dance gayly round the lamp, and one has to watch one's plate and glass carefully lest some of the insects should dance into them. There is one insect—a little, flat, brown, shining creature—which emits the worst odor in the world. If one of these touches your food, the whole is tainted and rendered inedible. You dare not kill these pests, for if one be squashed the whole room becomes filled with its disgusting smell and is uninhabitable for the next half hour. So these abominable insects fly about with impunity while the poor Anglo-Indian must perforce look helplessly on and inwardly sigh "Spero meliora."—London Saturday Review.

A Startling Surprise.

Very few could believe in looking at A. T. Hoadley, a healthy, robust blacksmith of Tilden, Ind., that for ten years he suffered such tortures from rheumatism as few could endure and live. Onsted News: Life is miserable to a certain gentleman who lives close by and it is because his friends are joshing him about a little mistake he made last Sunday when preparing for church. He donned his wife's underwear by mistake and as he is somewhat larger than she he couldn't account for the tightness of the garments. Like the father of Peck's bad boy he became scared and resolved he'd never touch another drop. As he couldn't get out of the shirt his son came to the rescue.

MORE TROUBLE IN CHINA.

Boxers Plunder Villages and Massacre Catholic Converts.

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 13.—Mail advices from South China report a recrudescence of the rebellion in Kwangsi, some time ago reported to have been suppressed. The rebels captured Hochinchok in Chinwanfu, secured the subprefect and placed him in his own prison. After pillaging this place they attacked and took Linchinfu, a prefectural city. Large numbers of the Kotishui, a new secret society, which is both antiforeign and antidynastic, haved the rebel movement. The rebels are singularly supplied by caravans, which cross the adjacent French and Portuguese territory with arms and war munitions. Two Chinese cruisers, the Whangai and King Ching, left Canton shortly prior to the departure of the steamer Empress of China from Hongkong with over a thousand men to reinforce the imperial forces.

In Szechuen the boxer movement still progresses. The boxers have plundered all the villages between Szechuen and Chenglu, and in one place massacred 1,700 Catholic converts. When the last advices were received at Shanghai from Chengtu Yanghse it was besieged by boxers and gates of several cities nearby were kept closed. On Oct. 1 two parties of boxers entered Chengtu, flourished knives and waved boxer flags. The people were panic-stricken and fled in confusion, but the prompt arrival of the garrison resulted in the boxers being driven from the city with heavy loss, and eleven, including a woman, looked upon as a prophetess, were captured and beheaded in front of one of the yamens.

A proclamation has been posted at Chengtu offering 100 taels for the head of each boxer captured within the city.

WANTS ITALY'S HELP.

Mascagni Thinks Himself Vexatiously Treated in America.

Rome, Nov. 13.—According to the Tribuna, Italy purposes to make an international matter of the arrest in Boston of Mascagni. The Tribuna yesterday said:

"Mascagni has telegraphed Premier Zanardelli, requesting the intervention of the Italian government to protect him from the vexatious treatment of which he says he has been a victim in America. Signor Zarnadelli assures Mascagni interest has been taken in his case and informing him that he will request Signor Prinetti to take up the matter. Signor Prinetti will immediately take up the case."

The charge of apathy brought by Mascagni against the Italian consul at Boston is regarded here as without justification and an outcome of the musician's ignorance of the fact that an Italian in the United States is entirely subject to American laws.

Leaves Her $300,000.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Nov. 12.—The death of Miles Beebe, a former Kalamazoo man, at Paw Paw Saturday night, is the denouement of a romance which began about a year ago. Mr. Beebe was a wealthy farmer, living two miles east of Paw Paw. He was seventy years of age, a widower, and anxious to spend his last years in domestic happiness. He married a young lady from Indiana, whose acquaintance he made through a matrimonial bureau. But they had their troubles, and at one time she departed to Chicago with $3,000 of the old man's money. Subsequently she returned and last Saturday the old gentleman died, leaving her some $300,000. Three beautiful daughters, all married, survive the old man, but it is said the young wife will receive all his property despite the threats of the daughters to begin legal proceedings.

McGurrin Becomes a General.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 12.—Colonel McGurrin received notice Tuesday morning of the issuance of his commission as the new commander of brigade state troops to succeed General Boynton of Port Huron. He announces that Adjutant Hardy and Quartermaster Kinney go up with him, but the other appointments will not be ready for some time. Under the new law, no brigade surgeon is provided for, and both Surgeon Knowles and Chaplain Fr. Kelly will retire with their colonel. It is not expected a special election by the regiment will be called, as it costs about $500, and the regular election comes next spring. It is assured, however, that Lieutenant-Colonel Abbey of Kalamazoo will become colonel, Major Whitney of Muskegon lieutenant-colonel, and Captain Falardeau of Big Rapids major.

St. Cuthbert's Comb.

It was formerly the custom to bury combs with the dead, which clearly shows that these articles of the toilet had sacred significance in the eyes of the people of the old world. The comb buried with St. Cuthbert and now preserved at Durham, England, is of ivory and measures 6¼ inches in length and 4½ inches in width. It is ascribed to the eleventh century and has a double row of teeth, divided by a broad, plain band, perforated in the middle with a round hole for the finger.

Familiar Proverbs.

Mr. Churton Collins, in the New Liberal Review, traces the ancestry of some of our most familiar proverbs. "It is a wise child that knows his own father" is from the Odyssey; "Familiarity breeds contempt" is a saying of Plutarch; "Set a thief to catch a thief" is of Cato's coinage; "One swallow doesn't make a summer" is cited by Plato as already proverbial, as was "His bark is worse than his bite" when Quintus Curtius wrote it down.

The Reason.

Wife—I think these new women who affect masculine attire are ridiculous.

Husband—I'm sure there's no danger of your wearing men's clothes.

Wife—Well, I should say not.

Husband—No; men's clothes couldn't possibly be made expensive enough to suit you.—Philadelphia Press.

Invisible.

Maud—I think that it is just too horrid for anything. Here I've been standing over the side of the vessel for half an hour and can't see it.

Ruby—Can't see what, my dear?

Maud—Why, the equator. The captain said we were crossing it.

Unreasonable Question.

"What happened 400 years ago this year?" asked Freddie's teacher.

"Don't know, please, sir," answered Freddie. "I am only seven years old."

AGIN' BANK TRUSTS

Master Aaron Jones a Vigorous Opposer to the Scheme.

WORST OF ALL MONOPOLIES

Other Prominent Grangers Are With Him—Reciprocity With Canada Advocated — Chinese Exclusion Act Given a Rap.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 17.—Departing from the more general tone of his annual address, Aaron Jones, master of the National Grange, in session here yesterday launched a phillipic against what he terms the most gigantic of all monopolies, the proposed bankers' trust. He sees in the program advocated at New Orleans last week by some members of the bankers' association for the creation of a system of branch banking an encroachment upon the functions of rural communities of vast and serious import. His note of warning may be crystalized into action on the part of the national body.

Under a system of branch banks, with a central sinkhole in Wall street, Worthy Master Jones sees the surplus of the farmers' wealth thrown into the hands of eastern manipulators, he sees the local banking agencies gobbled up by this money trust, the money rates directed from Wall street and the farmers' produce sacrificed because of artificial stringencies created for the purpose of controlling food supplies in the interest of the eastern bankers.

To remedy the threatening evil, Jones advocates the establishment of rural loan and trust companies, the growth of which in Indiana, he says, has been phenomenal in the past two years. Jones is a student of banking and has followed with some consternation the proceedings of the bankers' association the past week.

Speaking on the same theme, P. L. Holman of Springfield, O., gave the opinion that the establishment of branch banks from the New York money center would be ruinous to local institutions. He was opposed to the idea, he said, and believed that the farmer was foolish not to combine to control prices by co-operating to this end.

"The declaration of principles of the order," said Past Master Thomas Mars of Berrien county, "is against combines or interference with the law of supply and demand, and I look with disfavor on any attempt to abridge the rights of the farmer on optional selling of his produce."

Master Westgate of Kansas characterized the proposed branch banking system as a gigantic monopoly, under which the farmers' hands would be tied, as they are by the oppressing trusts today. He said the farmers of Kansas were opposed to congress authorizing any scheme similar to the one proposed by the bankers' association.

Reciprocity with Canada is the clamor from some of the states represented here. From west to east the leaders declare that reciprocity with Cuba is coming and that reciprocity with Canada must come.

"It is inevitable," declared P. L. Holman of Springfield, O. "The barriers between this country and Canada must be thrown down. There is no room on this continent for trade barriers. The trade boundaries of this country should be the north pole on one hand and the Panama canal on the other. Between those points there should be no tariff walls."

"We believe in reciprocity with Cuba for many motives," said Master Westgate of Kansas. "It is not only our duty to the island, but it will be for our own national prosperity to have reciprocity with Cuba."

A significant conversation was heard in the corridors of the Downey house yesterday between ex-Senator William Johnson of California and Thomas Mars of Berrien county, Mich. Senator Johnson declared openly for Chinese labor, and Past Master Mars agreed with him emphatically.

"The Chinese make excellent farm hands," said Johnson. "You start a dozen of them to work and they perform their work well. They turn up on Monday morning without the marks of drinking on them, and you don't need a club to keep them from fighting, as you would were they Irish laborers," said the Californian.

"The exclusion act was a great piece of folly and a shame for the nation. As the supply was cut off ten years ago, the present laborers are getting old and the farmers simply cannot get laborers at all. We want the Chinese labor in California rural districts."

"The Chinese exclusion act was certainly a piece of folly," assented Mr. Mars. "In Michigan we cannot get farm labor for love nor money. I believe the Chinese would make good sturdy farm help. Neither can we get women help, no matter what price we offer, on the farm. It is becoming a serious problem with us."

SEND OVER LOUBET

Deputy Deloncle, of France, in Favor of the Plan.

DURING ST. LOUIS EXPOSITION

Would Follow Emperor William's Example—Opportune Time, Since Louisiana Was Purchased From France During First Republic.

Paris, Nov. 17.—Deputy Deloncle has been interviewed with regard to his statement at the banquet of the Industrial, Commercial and Economical society Friday that he had received information that the St. Louis exposition commission had decided to invite President Loubet to visit America. He says the matter was not intended to be made public yet. Two years ago he mentioned to the exposition officials the possibility of a visit from President Loubet. It was a mere after-dinner remark to which he did not attach much importance. He was surprised, he says, when he received information from St. Louis that the idea might materialize and that a proposal to extend a formal invitation to President Loubet to visit the exposition was being seriously considered.

"I attribute this action," M. Deloncle continued, "to a warm and profound liking on the part of Americans for France, especially since the Rochambeau fetes. The journey of Prince Henry of Prussia to the United States has also made many American friends of France think that if the German emperor thought proper to send his brother to the launching of a yacht President Loubet might not be indifferent to the Louisiana Purchase centenary.

"There are few events in the history of France more glorious than the cession of Louisiana by Napoleon Bonaparte when he was first consul. The St. Louis exposition commission doubtless believes the best way of showing America's gratitude to France would be to invite the president of the third French republic to the centenary celebration of this act of the first republic. The journey would be quite constitutional, for precedents exist in the visits to Russia of the late President Faure and of President Loubet himself. It has been said," concludes M. Deloncle, "that King Edward may go to St. Louis, and it is probable that the king of the Belgians will pay the exposition a visit. If President Loubet goes he would certainly make a more triumphant trip than did Prince Henry of Prussia."

Grand Trunk to Buy It.

Toledo, O., Nov. 17.—Inside of two weeks the title to the Detroit and Toledo Shore Line Railway will be vested in the Grand Trunk railway. The Grand Trunk railway will pay $1,500,000 for the property, which consists, for the most part, of a double track line extending from Toledo to Trenton, Mich. To cover the extension of its lines into Ohio territory, the Grand Trunk will issue $2,000,000 in bonds, paying for the completed portion of the Shore Line the amount stated and utilizing the remaining $500,000 to extend the road north from Trenton to Detroit and to re-ballast the completed portions.

Sad News From Manila.

Manila, Nov. 17.—The number of cholera cases is increasing in this city and the spread of the disease is causing some alarm. There are on an average thirty cases daily. The Funst Reserve hospital, the casual camp at Santa Mesa and Bilibid prison are now included among the places infected. The disease is spreading in the Marquina valley, where the danger of an infection of the water supply is regarded as grave. Should the water supply become infected a general epidemic is feared inevitable. The cholera reports from the provinces show a decrease in the number of cases.

Killed by a Bull.

St. Ignace, Mich., Nov. 17.—While crossing a strip of pasture land John Stewart, residing in Portage township, was attacked by a bull owned by Walter Smith and was gored to death. Stewart was a well-to-do farmer and had resided in Portage for the past twenty years.

ADRIFT ON A RAFT.

Terrible Suffering Endured by Survivors of Wrecked Steamer.

London, Nov. 17.—The Daily Mail correspondent at Wellington, N. Z., telegraphs that the eight survivors from the wreck of the British steamer Elangamite, who were rescued on a raft by the British survey steamer Penguin, went through a dreadful experience. The raft from which they were taken measured only twelve feet long by seven feet wide, and had sixteen persons on it when it left the wreck. The only food on board was two apples. The first apple was consumed on Tuesday and the second on Wednesday, each being divided into sixteen portions.

From Sunday, the day they were wrecked, until Thursday, when they were rescued, the survivors drifted fifty miles in the half-submerged raft. Several attempts were made to land on Three Kings island, but without success. Three men died Monday night from drinking salt water. All the survivors suffered the tortures of thirst, and four other men and the stewardess died of exhaustion before they were picked up by the Penguin. They had a cruel disappointment on Tuesday night. A steamer was sighted in the distance and frantic shouts were raised by those on the raft to attract attention. The steamer lowered a boat, which passed within fifty yards of them, but the boat's crew apparently did not see the raft and returned to their vessel.

When the Penguin was sighted only one of the survivors was able to stand and all were terribly emaciated.

A TRUE ANARCHIST.

One Who Shot at King Leopold Would Have Killed Edward.

Brussels, Nov. 17.—Three shots were fired at the king of the Belgians Saturday morning as he was proceeding to the cathedral to attend a Te Deum in memory of the late Queen Marie Henriette. No one was hurt. The man who fired the shots is an Italian, giving the name of Rubino. He stood in front of the Bank of Brussels, on the Rue Royale. The man was immediately arrested and the police had some difficulty in rescuing him from the hands of the crowd. A search of the prisoner revealed a package of ball cartridges. That Rubino intended to assassinate King Leopold seemed fully established by the prisoner's confession to the police. He admitted that he intended to shoot King Leopold and that he held anarchistic beliefs.

According to some reports Rubino in the course of his examination before the magistrate, declared that he selected King Leopold on account of his majesty's inhuman conduct towards his daughter, the Princess Stephanie, at the time of her mother's death, and he also wished to show to the anarchists in London who doubted his loyalty that, while they only talked, he acted. He would have killed King Edward, he added, but for the strong feeling of the English people in favor of the monarchy.

Stole on His Wedding Eve.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 17.—Fred Buck of this city was to have been married to Miss Elsie M. George of Muskegon in Muskegon Sunday, but instead he is in the county jail charged with stealing $40 from the proprietor of his boarding house. He is a young man and had his home already furnished for his bride. He says he stole the money not because he needed it, but on an irresistible impulse, and he has made restitution.

Skeleton Hanging to a Tree.

Marquette, Mich., Nov. 17.—Authorities were notified of a gruesome discovery in the woods near Big Bay, some twenty miles north of this city. The find, which was made by a deer hunter, was that of a human skeleton hanging by a rope from the limb of a tree. It is thought the remains are those of Lightkeeper Pryor, who disappeared a year and a half ago from the Big Bay station.

Preferred Death to Reprimand.

New York, Nov. 17.—Dread of being summoned to answer a charge of roughly treating one of the children of her class is supposed to have been the cause of the suicide of Miss Celia Ettleson, a public school teacher here, who died yesterday after drinking carbolic acid. Miss Ettleson, who was twenty-two years of age, was the daughter of a Chicago merchant.

MITCHELL ON STAND.

Was Star Witness at Opening of Court at Scranton.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 15.—The anthracite coal strike commission appointed by President Roosevelt to arbitrate the differences existing between the mineworkers of the hard coal fields of Pennsylvania and their employers, yesterday began the hearing of testimony by which it will determine whether or not the workmen are receiving fair and just wages for their labor and whether their conditions can be improved. The star witness of the miners—President John Mitchell—took the stand in the forenoon and when the commission adjourned at 4 o'clock in the afternoon he was still under the fire of cross-examination by David W. Willcox, general counsel of the Delaware & Hudson Co. It was a trying day for the miners' leader, but he seemed to stand the test well.

The opening of the sessions was a notable day in the annals of the law in the upper anthracite region. Such an array of lawyers has never been seen in this part of the state, and it is doubtful whether attorneys have ever been so numerous on one side of a case in this state as were present in the interests of the coal companies.

The commission's sessions are being held in the beautiful room of the Pennsylvania superior court, which is now sitting in Philadelphia. Ranged around three tables in front of the seven commissioners, who occupied the judges' bench, were no less than thirty lawyers, twenty-four of whom were looking after the interests of the mine owners.

Judge Gray as chairman of the commission, being versed in court proceedings and in the law, was the only spokesman for the commission. He at times asked questions, and at the very close of the afternoon session directed a query at Mr. Mitchell which Mr. Willcox had been leading up to for some time. The chairman asked Mr. Mitchell whether his organization approved the act of withdrawing from or denying the necessaries of life to those who had offended the organization, and he replied: "I should say, emphatically, no."

During the day Mr. Willcox asked Mr. Mitchell many questions as to the policies of the union, the method of calling strikes, the ability of the union to maintain discipline and prevent the members of the union from violating the law, and also as to the liability of the union breaking contracts. It was apparent to many of those present who understood the situation that Willcox's attempt was to prove by Mr. Mitchell's own testimony that the contention of the companies that miners' union was an irresponsible organization and that their attempts therefore could not be safely entered into was well founded.

During the argument a statement was brought out for the first time since the late strike was inaugurated, that the union had dispersed $1,500,000 among the union and non-union men who were on strike.

Mr. Mitchell, before taking the witness stand in the forenoon, presented the miners' side of the case in a 6,000-word statement. It took him forty minutes to read his address, and he was listened to by the commissioners and the operators with the closest attention.

SAGASTA SECURES CABINET.

Spain's Cabinet Crisis at Last Brought to an End.

Madrid, Nov. 15.—On leaving the royal palace yesterday afternoon Senor Sagasta convened a meeting of all the members of the late cabinet and the liberal leaders. Those present at the assembly numbered twenty-two, and, after a deliberation lasting two hours a unanimous vote of confidence in Senor Sagasta was given, and the former ministers and the chiefs of the Liberal party offered to accept any posts the premier should choose to assign them. Upon this decision a cabinet was formed as follows:

It is expected that the king will approve the ministry today. The chamber will assemble Monday, when a stormy debate on the recent cabinet crisis will probably take place, Senor Robledo raising several personal questions.

Dr. Lorenz at Work in New York.

New York, Nov. 15.—The dispensary room of the Cornell University Medical college was crowded yesterday with crippled children applying for treatment by Dr. Adolph Lorenz, the specialist of the University of Vienna, whose operations for congenital diseases of the hip are now of international fame. Dr. Newton M. Schaffer of the Cornell medical college personally examined the children. The total number of applications here for treatment by Dr. Lorenz, who will be in this city early in December, is 250. Dr. Schaffer said that number meant disappointment for many.

Each volume of the $3,300 sets, of which there will be twenty-six, will be signed by the president.

Fatal Quarrel Over Board Bill.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

CHAPTER III.

THAT night I spent on the place of Charles Goddard and made myself as familiar with his family history as systematic pumping of the coachman would permit.

"An easy man he is to get along with," my informant volunteered. "There ain't the likes of him anywhere else in the country. An' the sweet missus is jest as good. She's an angel, my wife says, if there ever was one."

"You mean the lady he's engaged to," I replied, "the one who lives over in the mansion that was robbed the other night?"

"Exactly! Miss Belle Stetson, the only lady that's worthy such a man as my master."

"How long have they been engaged and when are they to be married?"

"Now ye're goin' too fast. I didn't say they was engaged, did I? And if they ain't engaged I couldn't say when they're goin' to be married, could I? Some say they're engaged, an' others say they ain't. How do I know who's right?"

The man was only waiting to reveal more of the relationship between the two young people, and I catered to his natural weakness by encouraging him to proceed.

"Ye must be a stranger around these parts indeed if ye don't know what ye ask me," he continued, with a shrug of the shoulder in reply to my questions.

"I wouldn't be a-tellin' it to every one, but seein' ye're goin' to be one of the family I don't mind speakin' plain-like to ye."

He puffed noisily upon his black pipe, sending the smoke upward in dense clouds. His name was John, and he claimed to be an Irish American; but, while he had lost much of his brogue, he still retained all the loquacity of his first ancestors.

"Mr. Goddard comes from one of the oldest families of this country, an' old Dr. Stetson—God bless him, he was a good man in his day—wasn't a bit behind the Goddards. I've often heerd the old folks arguin' about their ancestors. The doctor always said he came over in the Mayflower. I don't know much about the Mayflower, except what I've heerd the old doctor say, but she must have been a pretty fine ship. She brought the doctor over—no, the doctor's grandfather or great-grandfather, I don't just remember which—an' he always said that was enough glory for any man. But old Mr. Goddard would rile the doctor by sayin' that he thought bein' a gentleman of France under King Louis was a greater honor an' that his ancestors descended direct from kings an' emperors. They couldn't agree noway, an' they just made up long enough to pick a new quarrel. I've heerd tell how they'd talk peaceful-like about the politics of the country till they got to goin' about ancestors, an' then in five minutes they'd be shakin' their sticks in each other's faces an' callin' one another liars.

"But this didn't seem to make no difference with their children. They jest played together like brothers an' sisters. When they was no bigger'n up to my knee they'd talk about lovin' one another an' about gettin' married. The old doctor and Mr. Goddard laughed at this an' forgot to quarrel sometimes about their ancestors jest to see the little ones makin' love.

"They seemed to be born fur each other, an' everybody said they'd get married some day. But when Mr. Goddard died somebody said his son had inherited his disease an' that he wasn't long fur this world. Nobody seemed to know jest what the disease was, but they said it was incurable an' something not to be spoken lightly of.

"But about that disease of Mr. Charles Goddard I ain't so sure. Old Dr. Stetson was quite riled about it, an' he said he wouldn't let his daughter marry any man that had it in his system. Mr. Charles got angry an' went away. He was gone for five years, an' folks hereabouts said the match was broken off. It did look that way fur a time.

"But when the doctor died Mr. Charles turned up ag'in an' lived in the old house jest as if nothin' had ever happened. He made up with the doctor's daughter, an' they've been comin' an' goin' together ever since. There was hopes for a time that they'd make a match after all. But there ain't no tellin' jest what may happen. He never seemed to be quite the same after comin' home. He was pale an' quiet-like, jest as if that disease was a-developin' an' takin' hold of him.

"He brought a doctor back with him to look after his health. He'd met the man somewhere when he was travelin'—in Paris, I think—an' this fellow jest watches Mr. Charles all the time. He lives over there in that old brown house. It's haunted, people round here say, an' spirits come an' go every night. But young Dr. Squires don't mind that. He laughs at spirits an' says he ain't afraid of 'em. Besides, he likes such a place, fur then people won't be botherin' him in his studies. He don't like to have folks runnin' after him. He's been studyin' Mr. Charles' disease an' is writin' a book that will astonish the world. Then he always said he was poor an' couldn't afford to rent a good house. He got that house fur nothin', an' I guess Mr. Charles pays him well enough to live without starvin'.

"I ain't makin' no criticism of Dr. Squires, fur he's a smart man an' does Mr. Charles plenty of good, but he shouldn't have gone on so with Miss Stetson. He's good lookin', an' he ain't good lookin'. He's too dark an' furrin lookin' to suit my tastes, but he makes an impression on the ladies. I suppose they likes a man that don't look like other men.

"I ain't certain but Miss Stetson likes him better now than she does Mr. Charles. He's always so polite an' attentive to her, an' he's got an air of mystery 'bout him that seems to charm her. Mr. Charles ain't blind to things either. He knows which way the wind is a-blowin', but he don't do nothin'. If he'd go in an' try to get her, I think he'd win. But he don't, an' the doctor does. Mr. Charles seems to be standin' aside while this furrin friend of his gets the girl an' all her money. Mebbe it's because of that old disease. He's waitin' fur the doctor to cure him of it afore he asks her to marry him.

"But there ain't no harm of expressin' an opinion between us. Dr. Squires won't cure him until he's married Miss Stetson, an' then it will be too late."

With this wise conclusion my new friend the coachman finished his story and puffed away full ten minutes in agitated silence.

Caprice and Luck.

In gambling one thing is certain, and that is the very large percentage in favor of the bank or the game. Caprice is the only law of chance, and the results are as fanciful as they are unanticipated.

One summer, the last of John Morrissey's life, a party from Washington were making merry in the wineroom of the clubhouse in Saratoga, among whom was a youthful attache of the French embassy, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Without remark this attache suddenly rose, entered the playroom and, going to a roulette table, tossed a hundred dollar bill on ten, black. The dealer politely informed him that he had exceeded the limit. The attache was insistent. Morrissey, sauntering up, nodded to the dealer to let it go. It won. Refusing to accept chips, the attache gathered in his winnings and rejoined his friends. Half an hour later he did the same thing and was again successful. At frequent intervals he repeated his trips, invariably winning, never once losing until he had won $17,500, when his friends carried him off.

As he left Morrissey remarked to a friend, "I never take the limit off that the bank doesn't lose." Nevertheless there was a profit on the night's play for the bank.

Music Writing Made Easy.

Mlle. Salle was in the eighteenth century the most accomplished and fascinating balleteuse at the famous French Opera. In addition to her other qualifications, she played and sang with extraordinary artistic skill and depth of expression. She once confided to Rameau, the noted musician, that her ardent wish was to be able to compose and asked him to give her a few lessons in the art. "Nothing easier in the world," Rameau gallantly replied. He handed her a sheet of paper ruled for music and asked her to take her valuable breastpin and prick holes in the lines wherever she thought proper.

After the lady had completed her task Rameau took the sheet of paper, turned each puncture into a note, determined its length, selected a suitable key, and the thing was done. This remarkable composition turned out a lively piece of dance music, which was afterward entitled "Les Sauvages Dans les Indes Galantes" and was popular in France for a great number of years.

Siam's Sacred Elephants.

Few persons visit Bangkok without having a look at those parts of the royal palace open to the public. Here are situate the treasury, foreign office, department of the interior, royal library and the sacred white elephants. These last number four and can be seen by any one willing to pay a small amount of baksheesh to their keepers. They are rather a miserable looking lot of beasts, their mottled gray color reminding one of a highly leprous Chinaman, while, sad to say, they appear to the casual spectator to be only half fed. Each has a separate house to himself, where he remains chained all day to a gilded post. Formerly political offenders of noble rank were sentenced to cut grass for the sacred animals, but this custom has now been abolished.—Straits Budget.

Eating Mushrooms.

In the light of modern inquiry there seems to be no reason for believing that mushrooms possess any greater food value than other ordinary fresh vegetable foods, and in many respects they compare unfavorably with them, says the London Lancet. Still, the fresh, tender mushroom is undoubtedly easily digestible, as it contains carbohydrates, in addition to some dietetic value. This value is not comparable with that possessed by essential foods such as meat, milk and eggs. The mushroom, however, contains an unusual proportion of potassium salts. Few will deny that the mushroom is an excellent adjunct to many dishes. It has an appetizing flavor, and this quality alone makes it dietetically valuable.

Where Women May Not Pray.

There is a practically universal prohibition against women praying in Mohammedan countries. They are not admitted beyond the thresholds of the mosques; but, on the other hand, the Koran distinctly encourages women to pray in private. Some Hindoo congregations deny the privilege of prayer to their women altogether. Among the Ainu, a race supposed to be the aborigines of Japan, women are not permitted to pray or offer sacrifice except in rare cases as the deputies of their husbands. The reason for this practice is that the Ainu women are not supposed to possess souls, and therefore their prayers would be quite unavailing. Among the natives of Madagascar women are permitted to pray, but only to the powers of evil, a kind of intercessory prayer. Only men are permitted to address prayers directly to the Supreme Being.

Resisting Power.

Doctors tell us in these days of germ and toxins that the thing that counts most in a case is the "resisting power" of the patient. Some men and women can pass through an epidemic or even be inoculated with its peculiar poison germs and yet shake off infection, unharmed. Others apparently just as healthy succumb to the first contact with disease and sink under it in spite of the best nursing. "Resisting power" is an individual affair, and many surprises come to doctor and nurses as the frail looking patient pulls through and the robust seeming one dies. Medicines can only aid the "resisting power." They can never take its place. It determines in the end life or death in every case.—Scottish American.

[illegible] Hand Made Him Money.

When Lord Curzon was at Oxford, he wrote an abominable hand. One day he penned two letters, one of them to a relative and one to a chum with whom he always discussed the faults of their respective relations, and accidentally put these letters into the wrong envelopes. He was about to write a profound apology to his relative when he received the following note from him: "Can't read a word of your four pages, but guess you want some money, you young rascal." Inclosed was a Bank of England note for a good amount.

Korean Washerwomen.

The hardest worked washerwomen in the world are the Koreans. They have to wash about a dozen dresses for their husbands, and they have plenty to do. The washing is usually done in cold water and often in running streams. The clothes are pounded with paddles until they shine like a shirt front fresh from a laundry.

Deer Shooting.

The prospects for deer shooting in Northern Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan the coming season are exceptionally good, and fine sport is assured. Reduced rates will be made for excursion tickets from Chicago and Milwaukee to points on and via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. A synopsis of the game laws now in effect may be obtained on application to Robt. C. Jones, Michigan Passenger Agent, Detroit, Mich.

A clergyman was recently called upon to hold services in the state prison at Sing Sing prefaced his remarks to the prisoners by saying that he was "glad to see so large a number present."

Last Sunday, at the Clinton Congregational church, the morning topic was "A disastrous election." We sympathize with the elder, fully. It was due to the 1,600 Bryan men in this county, who stayed at home and let the republican disaster happen.—Adrian Press.

Sam First, of Deerfield, has a fine new automobile and it cost him 30 cents. He drew it on a lottery ticket bought for 10c at the Wauseon Fair. That's all right for Sam but the auto was paid for just the same and out of other people's pockets to the sum of $500.—Onsted News.

The meanest man in Lexington hypnotizes his wife, places the handle of the lawn mower in her hands and makes her believe she is riding a bicycle. He sits on the porch and smokes a cigar while she prances up and down the yard until the grass is cut.—Lexington News.

Jonathan McGee of Ypsilanti, the old colored man who claimed to be 116 years of age, died Saturday. He had been rugged and well up to a few months ago, when his health began to fail. He was an ex-slave and claimed to have lived in Maryland towards the close of the 18th century.—Manchester Herald.

Following is a copy of a notice which is pasted on a pole in the village of Metamora: "TAKE NOTIS—if the gosapers and liars of Metamora Keep their own hides out of the work houses and jails they wount hav time to Lie about Frank Musser every time he leavs home from his wife."—Ex.

In the shirt factory at the Jackson prison a week ago, about 75 convicts started a riot because they didn't like one of the keepers. Before peace was restored several of the convicts were so badly smashed up that they had to be taken to the hospital and two keepers were also some disfigured in the melee.

While at work in a city sewer at Adrian Thursday, Frederick Salzwedel was instantly killed by the walls of the sewer caving in upon him and burying him about fifteen feet below the surface. The body was recovered after several hours' hard work. The unfortunate man leaves a wife and several children.

The new state prison warden at Jackson is doing some remarkable things never heard of before in prison life. The convicts can now talk with each other at all times. Are allowed a certain amount of smoking tobacco. During the summer they frequently played base ball and on one occasion were treated to a circus performance given especially to them. The latest step is the arrangment for a lecture course at the prisen, This cannot help but be beneficial and we believe this the wisest thing done so far.—Onsted News.

The Monroe Canning and Packing company closed the season last Saturday with a run on pumpkins. While weather conditions all during the fall have been rather discouraging the company will at least break even on the year. Last week the factory run three days on pumpkins and between nine and ten thousand cans were filled. The other product includes 350,000 cans of tomatoes, 35,000 cans of beans and 9,600 of beets. The labor pay roll for the season amounted to $4,000 and the growers were paid over $6,000.—Democrat.

The Delineator.

To do justice to this number, which for beauty and utility touches the highest mark, it would be necessary to print the entire list of contents. It is sufficent to state that in it the best modern writers and artists are generously represented. The book contains over 230 pages, with 34 full page illustrations, of which 20 are in two or more colors. The magnitude of this December number, for which 728 tons of paper and six tons of ink have been used may be understood from the fact that 91 presses running 14 hours a day, have been required to print it; the binding alone of the edition of 915,000 copies representing over 20,000,000 sections which had to be gathered individually by human hands

Mrs. John Heaney.

On December 18, 1844, Mary McCook Heaney was born at Crankill, County Antrim, Ireland. When she was about four years of age, her parents emigrated to the United States and settled in Clinton township, Lenawee county, Mich. There the years of her youth were spent. At twenty-one she and Mr. John Heaney, of the same neighborhood, were united in marriage in the village of Clinton, Dec. 20, 1865. Two years afterward they moved to Raisin township, which was destined to be their home for 35 years. Two sons were born to them: John, now of Columbus, Ohio; and Robert, of Adrian, Mich.

On Feb. 11, 1877, Mrs. Heaney joined the Raisin Presbyterian church, of which she remained a consistent and worthy member until her recent transference to the Church Triumphant. During the years of her residence in Raisin, the Presbyterian church was the object of her fond regard. Its Aid Society bears witness to her self-denying work. Its Sunday-school and Sabbath services have long testified to her faithful attendance. Its pastor was always sure of her hearty co-operation. Its pulpit is adorned with a costly Bible placed there by her thoughtfulness and effort, and detined to be her memorial in future years.

In her home life she proved no less exemplary. Tender, considerate, faithful, her influence in her family was most kindly, and her memory will be gratefully cherished.

After a lingering and painful illness, which did not mar her serenity and cheerfulness, she fell "asleep in Jesus," Nov. 5, 1902.

Fred Uhr don't intend to try going over the falls. As his boat neared the upper dam on Sunday he jumped out and let the boat go alone. He had been looking for a silver half dollar he had dropped into the water and the current carried the boat too near the dam.—Manchester Enterprise.

HORRIBLE DEATH.

Michael Hammel, who Lived Alone in Franklin,

WAS BURNED TO A CRISP

Sunday Night. Coroner Henry Stevens Went to the Scene and Summoned a Jury.

The house of Michael Hammel, who lives four miles west and one-half mile south of this place was burned to the ground Sunday evening and Mr. Hammel was burned to death in the ruins.

The fire was discovered by the neighbors about 10 o'clock and they hastened to the scene. They could see Mr. Hammel lying on the floor in a helpless condition, but were unable to reach him.

It is reported that Mr. Hammel was intoxicated and went home and started a big fire, then lighted his pipe and went to sleep. It is not known whether the flames started from the fire in the stove or a spark from his pipe.

Mr. Hammel was 55 years of age and has lived alone for the past twelve years. He had been married twice but both wives are dead. He was the father of five children, one of them being a soldier in the Philippines. Mr. Hammel was a hard working man and his only fault was his fondness for liquor.

"When We Were Twenty-one."

The production at the New Bradley last evening was one of the good plays of the season. The cast was strong and the program one of exciting interest. A fair sized crowd showed their appreciation by much applause. The plot of the play centered around a character called the "Imp," at the age of 21, how he was led astray and at last rescued from his dangers by the untiring efforts of his friends.

He is at present the secretary and has been since the organization of the Consolidated Sportsman's Association of that city. A PRETTY WEDDING

Miss Maud Krischke and Roscoe Hall United in Marriage at the Bride's Home in

IN CANTON, ILL.,

And are now Cosily Situated in their own Home with the Brightest Prospects for Success in Life.

A very pretty home wedding was that of Miss Maud Krischke and Roscoe Hall, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Krischke, Wednesday evening. The parlor was made beautiful with ferns and chrysanthemums. Promptly at half past eight o'clock the couple entered the parlor unattended and took their places before a pyramid of palms and chrysanthemums, while the Rev. A. R. Mathes pronounced the solemn words that made them husband and wife The bride was lovely in a dress of cream silk mull trimmed with chiffon and ribbons and carried bride's roses. The groom, looking very proud and handsome, wore a suit of conventional black.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of 30 guests, and most hearty congratulations followed. Then the guests repaired to the dining room. Here the decorations were pink and white carnations and autumn leaves, arranged with charming effect. A delicious supper, consisting of five courses, was served.

The bride is a young woman whose friends pay the highest tribute as to her worth and lovable qualities, and the groom is a young man of rare integrity and sterling character and a trusted employ in the office of the Parlin & Orendorff company. The bride was the recipient of many presents, among them being a handsome buffet presented by the office force at the plow factory office. During the evening a party of young ladies, who had chartered the automobile for the occasion, gave them a serenade.

When the festivities were over the couple went to their own home, on Robinson court, between Walnut and Pine streets; which they have already cosily furnished. Some of the friends were there in advance to receive them and give them a warm welcome "home" where they begin life together with the brightest prospects and the hearty good wishes of many friends.—Canton Daily Register.

Roscoe Hall is the youngest son of Mrs. Jennie Hall of this place and spent his childhood in Tecumseh He and his bride have the best wishes of his many friends here.

Death of Mrs. Martin King.

Mrs. Martin King, of Rosalind Place, died late Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. King had been in poor health for some time but, nevertheless, her death was a shock to a large circle of friends She was 32 years old and leaves a husband and little daughter. Mrs. King's maiden name was Aldrich and her home was in Detroit. Her sister, Miss Edessa Aldrich, and her brother, G. Clayton Aldrich, arrived this morning from Detroit. The funeral services were held at the house Thursday afternoon, Dr. Hyde officiating. Interment at Woodlawn.—Toledo Daily Blade.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin King were residents of Tecumseh a few years ago when Mr. King was a partner of Wm. Mobbs in the grocery business. He has the heartfelt sympathy of his Tecumseh friends.

CLUB NOTES.

The Monday Club will give one of their social afternoons next Monday, Nov. 24, at the home of Miss Lizzie Smith in Brownville. Program will begin at 2 standard time.

If all ladies interested in forming a chapter of Daughters American Revolution will leave their names at the library, it may be possible to form such a society here. To be eligible for membership one must be a lineal descendant of some ancestor who rendered service to the country at the Revolutionary period.

Mrs. Bob Burdette gives out a creed for women's clubs which is worth consideration:

I believe in nine-tenths of the club members doing the work and one-tenth the criticising, instead of the reverse.

I believe in individual responsibility for every interest of the club, mutual sympathy and appreciation of results.

I believe no woman has a right to accept a place on any committee unless she serves faithfully, promptly, intelligently and is willing to stand by the results of her individual action.

I believe that women should have a moral responsibility regarding financial matters in the prompt payment of dues and pledges, and a comprehension that as no other phase of life can be carried on without money, neither can the enlarged club life.

I believe in the value of a minute and that thievery of time on the part of one late member from those in waiting is reprehensible. Railroad trains do not wait; why should immortal souls?

I believe, out of consideration for others, in removing the hat in all public assemblies.

I believe in occupying the seat farthest from the aisle when there are others to come, and, for the same reason occupying front seats first.

I believe that club members should restrain themselves from whispering or the rustling of skirts or paper during club sessions.

I believe the golden rule for club women should be: Do right unto others regardless of what others do unto you. —Milwaukee Sentinel.

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is a healthy action of these organs.

They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency.

"I had pains in my back, could not sleep and when I got up in the morning felt worse than the night before. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and now I can sleep and get up feeling rested and able to do my work. I attribute my cure entirely to Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. J. N. PERRY, care H. S. Writes an Interesting Letter from

SOUTH AFRICA

The Herald is Pleased to Print It.

We had a fine trip out from London arriving here Sept. 30th. Our ship being a fast one made about 17 knots per hour bringing us here in 17 days.

At this time of the year Cape Town is a very windy city, but the climate is simply grand. It has come on warm now, not hot, and is very pleasant indeed.

South Africa will not be anything but a mining country for years to come no agriculture to speak of yet. The country is rough and broken and very mountainous and during the dry season in summer, all up through the continent, in fact the whole country dries up. It will take years of work and millions of dollars to make a good beginning on a system of irrigation which is necessary to make the country valuable for agricultural purposes.

Table mountain rises straight up 3500 feet back of Cape Town. It is all solid rock with perpendicular sides and a flat top.

The city has large reservoirs on top made in the solid rock, and these basins are caught full of water during the rainy season, and this lasts the city over the dry time which is now on.

Was out fishing last Saturday, Oct. 11, with an American from New York, we went south to what is known as Kalb Bay, about 18 miles from here just by the Cape of Good Hope. We were out in a very large fishing boat managed by Norwegian sailors and were well on out way when two immense whales came along, not more than 10 or 20 rods away. They looked to me about 60 feet long at least. They do not bother you unless attacked.

I got hold of a Detroit Tribune of Sept. 3rd which told me the news politically speaking of Fred Wood, Helm and Townsend.

The troops are going fast now and ere long none but garrisons will be left.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW.

What a Heap of Happiness It Would Bring to Tecumseh Homes.

Hard to do housework with an aching back.

Hours of misery at leisure or at work.

If women only knew the cause;

Backache pains come from sick kidneys,

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure it.

Tecumseh people endorse this.

Mrs. J. W. Owen, wife of the well-known carpenter, living in the south eastern section of Tecumseh, says: "I am very well pleased with Doan's Kidney Pills. I procured a box at C. A. Wright's drug store and they did me a lot of good. I had heart trouble and my kidneys did not perform their proper duties. This condition existed for some time. I tried different remedies which were recommended to me but received little if any benefit from them. I will cheerfully say this for Doan's Kidney Pills. I received more permanent relief from their use than from any other medicines I ever used. I am pleased to testify in their value."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Some Nonsense.

"The bow of a ship," says a humorous handbook of nautical terms, "is not evidence of politeness. It reminds us of a line in 'Flotsam From the Isis:'"

And the hands went up to the nose of the boat, displaying a lack of good taste,
And first began to pull at her stays and then to scrub at her waist.

This, it may be remembered, occurred off the Isle of Rudeness, where—

A spit ran down to the bay,
And a tongue of land projected in a most unmannerly way.

Dexterity In Handling Marionettes.

"The ingenuity of some of the handlers of marionettes," said a showman, "is incredible. I know a man who conducts a marionette theater wherein an orchestra of eight pieces plays under marionette leadership while in the boxes a dozen marionette spectators laugh and applaud and on the stage a marionette drama briskly enacts itself. The conductor of all this stands exposed to the waist at the back of the stage, and apparently he is motionless, though really each finger of both hands and the majority of the toes of both feet are working with unexampled rapidity, for each marionette is connected by a string with a toe or a finger of the operator, and this string sometimes has as many as ten or fifteen branches, joined to the manikin's face, body, arms, legs, etc., so that it may dance, smile, wave its arms and do a number of other lifelike things. One of these figures, indeed, is connected by thirty-two strings to the operator. It is bewildering to think of the number of strings there must be altogether, and really it is impossible to conceive of the dexterity and the thought required in the artistic manipulation of a band of marionettes.—Philadelphia Record.

Tricks of Physicians.

"The best thing a physician or surgeon can do is to go off about six months every two or three years and give patients a chance to miss him and then come back and resume practice. They will flock back to him in swarms, provided, of course, he has established a reputation and gained their complete confidence." So says a leading and eminently successful surgeon.

Here is a physician living in a city of 56,000 inhabitants, with a practice of $20,000 a year, of which he collects $12,000. "The most successful practitioners in my town," he says, "are two young men who spent a year each in Vienna and Paris, apparently studying the latest methods and cures. All that they know they learned right in New York, but the mere fact of their having taken a course or two in Europe, or having pretended to, has given them a vogue which no one who has never been abroad can appreciate. A foreign reputation is worth $10,000 a year to a five thousand dollar doctor."—Detroit Free Press.

Russians Take Very Little Exercise

What exercise Russians take is usually more of a gentle promenade than anything else. They will stroll up and down the principal street in the town or in some small public square or garden for hours quite contentedly. Thus, in spite of the unique opportunity for skating which their long winter gives them, it is rare to find any Russian who can skate well. If you do find two or three good skaters, you will probably learn on inquiry that they are Englishmen or Germans. I was, however, surprised to find most of the Englishmen who are in the country on duty (as I was, for the purpose of learning the language) anything but pleased or contented with the life they are obliged to lead.—Cornhill Magazine.

The Worm In the Chestnut.

A physician explains how the worm gets into the chestnut. When the nut is still green, an insect comes along and, hunting a warm place in which to have its eggs hatched, lights upon the green chestnut and stings it. At the same time it deposits some of its eggs in the opening thus made. The chestnut begins to ripen, and at the same time the eggs are hatching. The insect selects chestnuts as a place for depositing its eggs as being the best adapted place by instinct. The floury matter in the nut turns to sugar, and sugar contains carbon, which produces heat.

Where He Missed It.

"Ah," he said as they were exploring among the rocks back of the hotel, 'here is 'Lovers' lane.' Let's go through."

"That deep place there, where it is so dark, with the steep, rocky sides?"

"Yes. Come on."

"I'm afraid you would kiss me if we were down there alone together."

"No, honest!"

"Well, then we may as well remain up here."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Startling Surprise.

Very few could believe in looking at A. T. Hoadley, a healthy, robust blacksmith of Tilden, Ind., that for ten years he suffered such tortures from rheumatism as few could endure and live. But a wonderful change followed his taking Electric Bitters. "Two bottles wholly cured me," he writes, "and I have not felt a twinge in over a year." They regulate the kidneys, purify the blood and cure rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness, improve digestion and give perfect health. Try them. Only 50 cts. at C. A. Wright's drug store.

MODERN SCHOOL SYSTEM.

Education Committee of Grangers May Criticize It Today.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 15.—An attack on our system of education, as carried on in the public schools of the nation, and particularly on education as specialized in the agricultural colleges, is expected to be the burden of the report of the committee on education, one of the most important committees of the National Grange. Though Chairman Wolcott of Kentucky will not admit, for obvious reasons, that such is the import of the paper completed yesterday, it is said on good authority that the report will be in some degree remarkable as scoring severely what most people have considered to be more or less perfect —the modern school curriculum.

Many reports of officers were considered yesterday, those of the treasurer and of the secretary showing the splendid growth and financial prosperity of the order.

More of the spectacular and less of the deliberative was the order of the day. Business here was practically suspended while the 800 applicants were initiated into the mysteries of the seventh, or degree of ceres. The afternoon and evening were given over to the higher rites of husbandry and the working of the degree of demeter.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by J. J. Orr.

In the latter contest Mesdames Bennett and Waldo, the former holders, were defeated by only two-fifths of a trick. In open contests pins were awarded as follows: Highest plus score for entire meet, Harwood and Robinson, their aggregate being +23 67-182.

Sad Case at Lapeer.

Lapeer, Mich., Nov. 15.—Mrs. Geo. Smith, who mysteriously left her home Thursday night, clad only in a wrapper and without shoes on, was found yesterday morning on the Grand Trunk railroad tracks, near the home for the feeble-minded, where she was taken and cared for temporarily. When found she was chilled to the bone and her clothing was in shreds. An application had been made for her admission to the asylum at Pontiac. It was after being notified that she was to be taken to Pontiac that she eluded those in charge of her.

WILL ATTACK DRUGGIST.

Temperance Congress to Work For Stringent Laws.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Nov. 17.—Arrangements for the temperance congress of representatives from the various church of the state are practically completed. The congress will convene in Lansing Wednesday, Nov. 19. The state organizations of the leading denominations have all named delegates and a united effort will be made along temperance lines.

The fight against alcoholic beverages will be taken up along new lines, with an effort to bring the legislation desired directly before the next session of the legislature. These temperance workers consider the growing trade of drug stores in the liquor line as even more menacing to their cause than the open sale of intoxicants by the saloons. They will direct a good share of the hot shot at the druggists and will ask for an amendment of the present law governing the drug stores. The features of the legislation to be asked for have already been decided upon, and if such a law or amendment is passed druggists will not be allowed to sell more than four ounces of distilled spirits and not over one quart of wine or malt drink to a customer. In all cases, prescriptions must be presented bearing the signatures of regular practicing physicians on blanks furnished by the state and bearing a state tax stamp. These prescriptions must be taken up by the druggist, thus preventing the same prescription being used on all the drug stores of a city by a confirmed boozer.

Michigan Defeated Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—The Michigan football team asserted its supremacy over the Chicago team Saturday in a telling manner. The final score was Michigan, 21; Chicago, 0. It was a clean, fast and hard game from start to finish. The field was in such condition that both teams showed their best work. While Chicago was clearly outclassed by the whirlwind Ann Arbor eleven, at no time during the struggle was there any sign of the Maroons losing their courage or spirits. Michigan's star kicker, Sweeley, kicked two good goals from field, one a hard one from the twenty-five yard line and another somewhat easier, seventeen yards from the Chicago goal.

A Mediæval Megaphone.

A curiosity of great antiquity is still to be seen within St. Andrew's church at Willoughton, near Gainsborough, says an English magazine. This is a quaint speaking trumpet with an obscure early history, dating back to the times of the Knights Templars. In shape it resembles a French horn and is more than five feet long, having a bell at the end of the graduated tube. It was formerly six feet in length, but is now telescoped at the joints, where the metal has apparently decayed. Tradition declares it was formerly sounded from the tower to summon aid in case of need, as, when blown at a height, the weird, deep notes the trumpet produced could be heard a great distance away in bygone days. It is believed that this curious instrument has often been used to call together the villagers, thus dispensing with the usual bell, and to give additional power and strength to the choir, being then probably used by the chief singer, as the trumpet intensifies vocal sound to a marked degree.

Henpecked For a Day.

In the little hamlet of Nordhastedt, near Meldorf, a singular custom is observed annually. According to tradition, it dates back to the thirteenth century. During that era the hamlet was on one occasion attacked by a band of robbers, and the men of the village were soon compelled to beat a retreat.

Thereupon the women boldly attacked the robbers and not only vanquished them, but also took the leader and several of the band prisoners. As a token of their gratitude the men have ever since allowed the women to celebrate this great event by holding a festival at stated intervals, and on such occasions they exercise no authority themselves, but submit in all things to the will of the women.

The latter greatly enjoy their temporary supremacy and, as a symbol thereof, never fail to fasten a large wooden slipper to every lamp and chandelier in the hamlet.

A Great Stickler For Etiquette.

Dr. Thompson, master of Trinity college, Cambridge, was an exceedingly cold and austere man, never taking much notice of the undergraduates under his care. On one occasion a Trinity man happened to be out walking and was caught in a storm. He ran across a field and took shelter beneath a large tree. When he arrived there, he found, to his horror, that Dr. Thompson was beneath it seeking protection from the rain. For some time both stood silent, watching the clouds, till at last the undergraduate, growing desperate, ventured to remark that he thought it was clearing up a little.

"Sir," said the doctor haughtily, frowning upon the wretched youth, "all communications to the master of Trinity must be made through the tutors."—Exchange.

A Story of Henry Clay Dean.

A good story is related of Henry Clay Dean, the famous orator of a generation or so ago. Mr. Dean was generally referred to as "Henry Clay Dean of Iowa" even long after he had established a home in Missouri. He explained his change of habitation in this way: "You see, they passed a nefarious prohibition law in Iowa, and there's your whisky gone. Then they abolished capital punishment, and there's your hanging gone, and now the whole population seems to be drifting toward Universalism, and there's your hades gone. I can't live in a state that has neither hades, hanging nor whisky."—Argonaut.

TERRIBLE RECORD

Series of Fatalities at Sault Ste. Marie.

THREE DEAD--ONE MISSING

Remains of Unknown Person Found in Garret—Dead Man Found in Woods—Hunter Mistood Another Nimrod For a Deer and Killed Him.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 19.—Two unknown bodies found, one hunter shot, and one man reported missing, is the record of Sault Ste. Marie for the first two days of this week.

Monday morning it was reported to the police that Lee Johnson, a young man employed by the Algoma Central railroad, had been missing since Monday night of the week before.

About 1:30 Monday afternoon E. D. Cumberworth, a plumber in the employ of the Ferguson Hardware company, went to the new residence of Dr. E. H. Webster on Chandler Heights for some tools which he had left there the week before while plumbing the house, which is not yet finished. He went into the garret and there found the dead body of an unknown man, who had evidently gained admission through one of the windows, which were covered with canvas, the canvas in one of them being torn out. On his person was found a hypodermic syring and one arm was well pitted with marks by the use of the needle. Memoranda found on his person make it seem probable that his name is Dr. Murdock. An employment agency had the name Mike McGraw on its books, and the keeper said that this was the same man who had given it, and whom he had sent to Eckerman to work in the camps there. At Eckerman it was stated that the man did not appear to be accustomed to hard work and had said that he was a doctor and had treated several of the men there.

Early Tuesday morning Thomas Lindsay of the "Soo" was in the woods near Welsh when he came across the dead body of an unknown man, with no marks of violence about him and nothing to show who he was. The man had evidently not been dead long, but who he is and how he met such a fate is still a mystery.

Tuesday afternoon word was received at the Soo that one of a party of hunters had been shot and killed near Trout lake. A lone hunter, finally coming upon two others, mistook them for deer and fired, killing one instantly and missing the other by a matter of inches.

Elevator Crushed Out His Life.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 19.—Henry Braasch was instantly killed about 11 o'clock yesterday in the plant of the Williams Bros.' company, picklers and preservers, at Grand River and Humboldt avenues. Braasch was coming down in the elevator with a truck on which were a couple of barrels. When about four feet above the ground floor the elevator stopped and could not be dislodged. Braasch stepped off the car and discovered that a projecting piece of iron had caused the elevator to catch. He procured a stout piece of scantling and carelessly stepped in underneath the car and gave the iron several smart blows. Suddenly the obstruction slid out of the way and the elevator immediately dropped on Braasch, crushing out his life.

Judge Carpenter Takes His Seat.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 19.—Judge Carpenter took his seat on the supreme bench Tuesday morning in the presence of an unusually large number of attorneys from various sections of the state. Henry A. Mandell's commission as judge of the Wayne circuit court to succeed Judge Carpenter was also mailed to Detroit by Governor Bliss. A majority of the supreme court joined in an opinion yesterday sustaining the constitutionality of the law enacted by the last legislature incorporating a school district in the village of Jerome, Hillsdale county. There was a bitter fight over this measure before the legislature, and it was attacked in the court principally on the ground that it violated the principle of local self-government.

Sheep Robbers Jailed.

Adrian, Mich., Nov. 19.—Ed Capp and Jim Gasscoll, alleged sheep robbers, were landed in jail here by Sheriff Shepherd. The pair were under arrest for several days in Ohio, but the alleged wholesale stealings were greater in Michigan than in Ohio, so the latter authorities delivered the prisoners to Shepherd. The plan of the men seems to have been to drive along and take two or three sheep out of different flocks. They had a farm in Medina, where the plunder was rounded up, then shipped to Toledo after being butchered.

Supreme Court Opinions Filed.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 19.—The following opinions were filed by the supreme court Tuesday:

Affirmed: Toombs vs. Stockwell; Wolff vs. Alpena National bank; Hunt vs. Township of Lincoln.

Reversed: Bellows vs. Crane Lumber Co.; Plant vs. Weadock; Township of Richland vs. Cliffs; Trotter vs. Tousey.

In attorney-general ex. rel. Hies vs. Lowrey, affirmed in part and reversed in part. Mandamus was denied in McLaughlin vs. Donovan, circuit judge.

Literally Ground to Pieces.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 19.—An unknown man was literally ground to pieces under the wheels of a street car last evening near the corner of Columbia and Hastings street. The head was cut off, as was the left arm, the right arm and right leg crushed, and the left leg almost cut off, the bones projecting through the flesh, and probably every bone in his body broken. No one actually saw the accident, and particulars as to how it happened are meager.

Literally Cooked Alive.

Menominee, Mich., Nov. 20.—John Schreidel fell into a vat of boiling water at the plant of the Wisconsin Chair company and when pulled out by fellow workmen his flesh was partially cooked. He cannot live.

MEMPHIS' BIG DAY

President Aided in According Gen. Wright a Welcome.

TWO BIG RECEPTIONS HELD

Colored People Had One All to Themselves — Became Almost Frantic When President Entered — Sang "God Be With You" at the Close.

Memphis, Nov. 20.—Although the festivities Wednesday celebrated the home-coming of General Luke E. Wright, vice-governor of the Philippines, it is no reflection on the warmth of the welcome extended to him to say that President Roosevelt's presence was the overshadowing feature of the day. Excursion trains were run into the city and a number of distinguished people were present to participate in the celebration. Among them were Governor Benton McMillin and General Joseph Wheeler. The program was a long one.

Immediately after the president's arrival there was a parade through the streets to the Gayoso hotel, where a breakfast was tendered the president and General Wright jointly by the ladies of Memphis. In the afternoon the president attended and spoke at two receptions given in honor of General Wright, one at the Auditorium by white citizens, the other at a hall in the black section of the city, by the colored people. Later there was a colonial dames' tea at the Gayoso, and the festivities closed last night with an elaborate banquet, at which the president delivered a speech. Including some brief remarks at the breakfast, the president spoke four times during the day.

Altogether, it was a splendid tribute to the affection and esteem in which General Wright is held at home; that Mrs. Wright is also exceedingly popular was made apparent by the applause which greeted every reference to her. This was especially marked at the Auditorium, when the president referred to the fact that his mother's brother served in the confederate navy under her father, who was Admiral Semmes.

Mayor Williams and Governor McMillin made addresses of welcome and the audience was very enthusiastic when General Wright delivered his response. He was greatly touched by the compliment paid him by the president's presence and with the demonstration in his honor.

General Wright did not go deeply into the situation in the Philippines in his remarks, but he emphasized the fact that the administration of the islands, under both President McKinley and Roosevelt, had been of an absolutely non-partisan character. President Roosevelt had not intended to speak at this reception, but the assemblage would not be denied, and he spoke for a few moments.

The reception tendered by the colored people was truly remarkable. General Wright earned their undying gratitude during the two yellow fever epidemics twenty years ago, by remaining here when most of the whites had fled and seeing that the sick were cared for. The hall was packed, galleries and pit, to the point of suffocation, and the whole spirit of the proceedings breathed admiration for their friend.

General Wright, in addressing the colored audience, talked chiefly of their future, telling them of the difficult problems before them. He said that it would perhaps have been better for both races had the change from slavery to citizenship not come so suddenly.

The president's reception beggars description. The colored people became almost frantic, jumping up and down in their enthusiasm, and yelling themselves hoarse.

At the conclusion of the president's remarks the entire audience of more than 3,000 united in singing "God be with you till we meet again."

At midnight the presidential party left for Washington over the Southern railway. Colonel L. S. Brown general agent of the Southern, was in charge of the train. The train reached Washington at 6 o'clock this morning.

They Oppose Governor Durbin.

Indianapolis, Nov. 20.—At a conference at the capitol Wednesday between Governor Durbin and John S. McDonald, member of the board of managers of the Jeffersonville reformatory, the governor demanded Mr. McDonald's resignation. McDonald refused to resign. It is reported that the governor will demand the resignation of the entire board and that the members of the board will defy the chief executive. The trouble grew out of the selection of Joseph P. Byers of Columbus, O., as successor to Superintendent A. L. Hart. The governor was not consulted, and he was much displeased when he learned that an Ohio man had been selected.

National Day of Penitence.

Berlin, Nov. 20.—Wednesday was the national day of penitence and prayer here. The Germans who are liberal every other day in the year, closed all their theaters and forbid any kind of public amusement. Opinion even prohibits playing any music, except sacred music, in private houses. The Royal Opera last night rendered Cherubini's Requiem, "The Last Supper," and the music of "Parsifal." The morning papers, which ceased typesetting at midnight, publish serious articles adapted to the day. No evening paper was issued and no morning papers will be published today.

Famous Dr. Parker Ill.

London, Nov. 20.—The condition of Dr. Parker, minister of the City Temple, is now considered hopeless. Dropsy set in Friday, since when oxygen has been administered to the sufferer. Dr. Parker himself wrote a bulletin which was read in the City Temple Sunday, remarking that it was the last he would ever write.

Took Carbolic Acid.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 20.—Despondent because he had lost his position at the American Car & Foundry works, Frederick Steiner, living with his nephew in the rear of the second floor of the Rath's block, 1431 Michigan avenue, drank a quantity of carbolic acid and in a short time died in great agony.

Coldwater Soldier Robbed.

Coldwater, Mich., Nov. 20.—Stephen Misner, a discharged soldier, on his way home from the Philippines, wrote his people from San Francisco that the first night he arrived there he was robbed of all his baggage and $638, leaving him penniless.

VOLCANO REFUGEES

From Devasted Guatemala Reach San Francisco.

MANY INDIANS PERISHED

Arrivals Report Thousands of Them Were Asphyxiated or Burned to Death—Robbers Are Looting—Survivors Are in Danger of Starving.

San Francisco, Nov. 20.—The first of the refugees from the devastated lands of Guatemala arrived Wednesday on the Pacific Mail steamer City of Para. They came from the districts from the inland sea and traveled over a country laid waste by sand, ashes and pumice before reaching a railway station. From the latter places they made the journey by rail to Champerico and took the steamer to San Francisco. They sailed on Nov. 7, when the volcano was still smoking and rumbling of thunder and flashes of lightning gave evidence of more eruptions to come. These people fled from their plantations in fear for their lives. The yescaped to the seaside with little more than the clothing they wore transportation being so difficult as to preclude of carrying of baggage.

The refugees confirm stories of the loss of life. They say that the victims, for the most part, are Indians. They had not heard of any white people being lost. Thousands of Indians were asphyxiated or buried in the sand. Miles of plantations are under ashes and absolute ruin is the lot of many planters whose all was invested in the Fincas. One refugee comes from within a half an hour's ride of General Barillos and brings information that the general and his family are safe.

A cablegram received here when the first eruption occurred stated that General Barillos had been asphyxiated. The refugees say that it is not the crater of Santa Maria that is in action, but a smaller mountain, rising from one of the western slopes of Santa Maria, called El Fosaio.

Bands of robbers are now swarming the desolated sections, robbing and murdering refugees on the road and looting the abandoned and desolated plantations.

The people left behind on the plantations, it is said, are in danger of death from starvation, for the food supply has been cut off and there is no way to send in supplies to the afflicted districts.

Those who came on the City of Para were the Bardwell family and Miss Florissa Mero. Some of the Bardwells owned the Magnolia plantation near L'Argentina and about thirty miles south of Quezalteuaugo.

Schley at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Nov. 20.—Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley was the guest of honor last night at the annual banquet of the Commercial club, held in commemoration of the signing of the John Jay treaty. The affair was a notable one, and Admiral Schley was given an ovation, the climax of a day of enthusiastic greeting to the naval hero. The banquet was most elaborate. Plates were laid for 500 guests. Preceding the banquet an informal reception was held in the Midland hotel parlors, Admiral Schley shaking hands with the half thousand banqueters.

Brakeman Captured by Indians.

Butte, Mont., Nov. 20.—Advices from Crow Wing agency say the death of a squaw there nearly caused an uprising. The Indian, on her cayuse, was struck by a freight train and instantly killed. A brave who accompanied the woman summoned a number of his followers and they captured the brakeman. The Indian police were summoned and when they reached the tepees the excited braves were holding a war dance about their victim, who was bound to a tree, while the Indians were preparing to torture and burn him. The bucks objected to interference for a time and a clash was threatened, but the police succeeded in rescuing the man.

Grange Educational Report Hit Colleges too Hard.

DIDN'T APPLY TO M. A. C.

Horton Wants State Institution Vindicated From the Charges—New York Next Year—Michigan Grance Has Increased 6,000 the Past Year.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 20.—With but today in which to work, the National Grange has settled down to business. Committee reports are being churned out, but not one has nor is expected to rival that of the committee on education for feeling aroused. The whack at agricultural colleges is still the largest theme in conversation, and the members, fearful of having incited antagonism, are hastening to smooth things over. Thep point out that, after all, it was but a committee report, and that it was not intended for publication.

The fateful report was yesterday shoved back to the committee, not to have a change of heart, for the body is nearly unanimous on the sentiments expressed, but to have the rough edges lopped off its uncompromising language.

Master Horton of Michigan wishes to see the agricultural college of this state vindicated from the sweeping charges made by the report. "The condemnation of agricultural colleges does not in any degree apply to the M. A. C.," he declared.

The furore created by the introduction and publication of the drastic report on education by the National Grange committee, headed by Chairman Walcott, having reached the high tide mark, Chairman Obadiah Gardner of the committee on foreign affairs struck a note against militarism and spread-eagleism that caught the fancy of the national body in the session yesterday afternoon.

Gardner's report is strong, as coming from a conservative body, and covers all the international problems of the day in a forceful manner. The shipping merger is denounced and the Rooseveltian Monroeism is lauded, as is John Hay's philippic on the trans-Carpathian Jew.

The next fight came on the choice of a place of meeting next year. Connecticut, Missouri and New York wanted to act as hostess for the next meeting, and New York was finally chosen.

A resolution was adopted providing for an adjournment of the present meeting not later than 11 a. m., Friday.

Michigan has added 6,000 new members of the grange during the past year, according to the comprehensive report made yesterday afternoon by State Master George B. Horton. During the past year 104 new granges were organized, Michigan being far in the lead. Conclusive proof was furnished by the report that the Patrons of Husbandry are growing in popularity in this state by leaps and strides. The report further shows that the receipts for the year will exceed $16,000. The percentage of trade contracts will bring these resources up to $18,000.

"Our grange work and its promotion we have striven to consider and establish as a business firm would advertise its wares as fast as new markets are secured," reads Master Horton's report. "It will give us increased courage and enthusiasm to have the National Grange with us. To show the people of the state the general personal and character of the National Grange can but arrest the attention of thoughtful people and secure a favorable decision from the best men and women in whatever calling. Godspeed the work of the National Grange, is the benediction of the 30,000 patrons who are so highly honored by your presence."

Beck Given a Life Sentence.

Menominee, Mich., Nov. 20.—Joseph Beck, the self-confessed murderer of ten-year-old Julia Wozniak on Sept. 28, pleaded guilty in the circuit court yesterday morning and was sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor and solitary confinement in the branch state prison at Marquette by Judge Stone. The prisoner showed no emotion during the trial, which only took twenty minutes. The testimony of Chief of Police English, Drs. Hicks and Grignon was taken. When asked if he had anything to say, Beck replied: "No." Judge Stone then pronounced him guilty of murder in the first degree.

Powder Explosion Kills Two Men.

Ishpeming, Mich., Nov. 20.—The premature explosion of a box of giant powder in the Lake Superior Hematite mine Wednesday morning caused the death of Nels and Matt Makki, Finnish miners, working in the sublevel below where the powder was being warmed. The explosion caused the timbers to fall, shutting off the workmen's avenue of escape. Tony Walala, a timberman, was overcome with smoke, but he will recover.

Got Ninety Days For His Fun.

Vassar, Mich., Nov. 20.—Deputy Sheriff Burgess took C. Johnson to the Detroit house of correction for ninety days. He is one of the gang of beet men who raised a disturbance on a train enroute from the north. Six others are still in jail awaiting trial.

Little Girl Fatally Burned.

Ypsilanti, Mich., Nov. 20.—An attempt to start a fire with what she supposed was kerosene resulted in the fatal burning of Florence Preston, the nine-year-old daughter of Josiah Preston, Wednesday afternoon. The girl poured a quantity of gasoline upon some kindling in a stove and struck a match to light it, when the gas exploded, setting her clothing on fire. The terrified child rushed shrieking out of doors only to fall exhausted upon the ground, with her body burned from head to foot and her clothing so charred that it fell completely away when she was tenderly raised and carried to a neighboring house. The sufferer has been made as comfortable as possible, but she is still in frightful pain and cannot possible live.

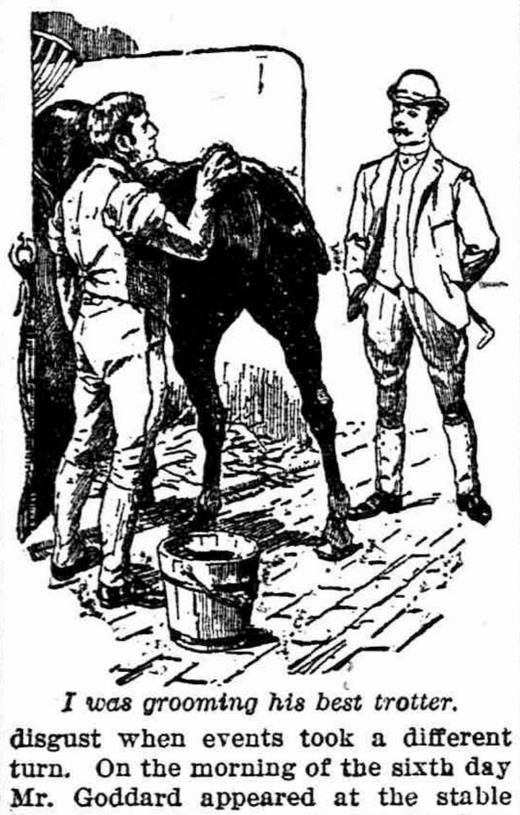
CHAPTER IV.

My new master was indulgent to a degree, and my duties were not at all irksome. I showed some ignorance in grooming the horses, but John took pleasure in exhibiting his superior knowledge by showing me just what to do. I must have been an apt pupil, for he nodded approval every time I attempted to do the work according to his directions. But I was not cut out for menial labor. It was the anticipation of finding out more about Charles Goddard, my new master and companion in crime, that had first tempted me to accept such a position as groom.

I soon found out, however, that he had skillfully banished me from his presence. He never appeared around the barn, and so far as seeing him was concerned I might as well have been a hundred miles away. He went out riding every day, but John hitched up the horses and drove up to the front of the house, where shrubbery and trees hid them from view.

I stayed in my place five days without catching a glimpse of my master or of Miss Stetson, and I was on the verge of throwing up the position in disgust when events took a different turn. On the morning of the sixth day Mr. Goddard appeared at the stable door where I was grooming his best trotter and took me by surprise.



I was grooming his best trotter.

"William, are you accustomed to driving?" he asked me before I had a chance to greet him with a good morning.

It was the first time we had met alone since that eventful night when we had robbed the Stetson mansion, and I was a little concerned to see if he would show any sign of recognition. His parting injunction had been that we should not know each other again unless we met under conditions similar to our first encounter. A glance at his face showed that he was still determined upon pursuing the same course even when we were alone.

I would not be outdone in keeping an honorable agreement, and I answered him accordingly.

"Yes, sir; I have driven good horses a little."

"Well, John is going to take the gray stallion to the city, and I want you to hitch up the team and drive me over to Miss Stetson's at 10 o'clock sharp."

"Yes, sir. I'll be there on time."

He hesitated a moment, looking straight at my clothes. I divined his meaning.

"I can put on John's clothes," I said. "We're about the same size, and they will fit."

"All right. That will solve the problem. I will depend on you to be there in time."

He walked hurriedly out of the barn, flecking the dust from his neatly fitting trousers with a riding whip. His figure was almost as perfect as the setting of his face, and I unintentionally fell to admiring it. He was every inch a gentleman, and the mystery of his strange double life was intensified. What reason had he to rob a house in the dead of night and that house belonging to a woman he loved?

Then it occurred to me that he had been searching for some papers or articles that concerned his welfare and that the robbery of the silverware was only an incidental feature of the night's work. The goods were probably taken out to cover up his tracks, to give the impression that some ordinary burglar had done the work. Satisfied with this solution of the mystery, I determined to stay in my position as groom for some time longer, hoping that events might reveal more to me and give me a chance in time of assisting Mr. Goddard in his trouble, for the truth was I had taken a strong liking to him and wished to be near him.

Promptly at 10 o'clock I rattled up to the house with the team and waited for my master (I did not consider it lowering to call him that), who soon appeared on the piazza dressed with immaculate taste. His face was a trifle paler than I had ever seen it before, but otherwise he was unchanged.

I liked the new duties assigned to me and looked forward with considerable interest to the outcome of the ride. I would at least have an opportunity to study the two together.

He dismounted at the front door of the Stetson house and lightly ran up the steps, taking two at a time. He was gone about fifteen minutes, during which time I studied the house and the various windows which opened upon rooms in which I must have been.

Miss Stetson appeared more beautiful than ever that morning, confirming my first impression. She noticed me with a slight inclination of the head. Then the two took their seats, and I drove them down the old country road in the opposite direction from the city.

For a time they remained silent, but after we had covered a mile they began to converse in monosyllables. This in time yielded to more animated conversation, conducted in an undertone that made hearing very difficult. I have always prided myself upon my good hearing, and it is due to the acuteness of this sense that I caught any of the conversation. As they became wrapped up in their talk they unconsciously raised their voices a trifle. As near as I could hear the important part of their conversation was as follows:

"I wish Dr. Squires would leave that old haunted house," Miss Stetson was saying. "It makes me feel cold and clammy every time I pass it, and what must it be to live in it all the time!"

"Probably very disagreeable, especially to one of your temperament," Mr. Goddard replied quietly.

"Or to one of your nature," she answered, with a rising intonation of her voice.

"But Dr. Squires does not seem to mind it," he added, unmoved. "I have offered to let him have a room in my house, but he prefers to stay where he is. He says he cannot pursue his investigations so well anywhere else."

"What are his studies and investigations? He is so mysterious about them that my curiosity is excited."

"Ask him, and he will probably tell you."

"I have, but he always puts me off—tells me to wait until some day when he is ready to announce his discovery to the world. Then he will tell me the first one."

"A great honor to you, I am sure, but I should demand to be let into the secret now."

There was a little irony in his voice which no one could mistake.

"Why do you not aspire to the same honor?" she asked in sharp, piqued tones. "I understand that you are just as ignorant of his secrets as I am."

"Yes, I am. I know nothing about his studies. He never lets me go beyond his office, which is on the ground floor in front, but then there is no special reason why he should take me into his secrets."

"Isn't he a friend of yours, and didn't you bring him here?"

"I brought him here, but not as a friend. I understood that he was skilled in certain lines, and I brought him here as a medical adviser. I am responsible for nothing more than that."

"You talk very differently from what you did six months ago. There was nothing too good for you to say about him."

"I'm saying nothing against him now. I merely disclaim responsibility for him except as a medical adviser."

"I do not think he needs you as a sponsor for his character," was the sharp rejoinder.

"Probably not."

The quietness of the reply added fuel to the fire, and the silence which followed was no indication of their feelings. I dropped the whip purposely on the seat back of me, and in turning to pick it up I caught a momentary glimpse of their faces. They were both pale, and they were gazing intently at the scenery on opposite sides of the carriage.

During the rest of the ride very little conversation was carried on between them, and I had ample time to think and reflect. The result of my cogitations was that I determined to pay Dr. Squires a visit and see what I could discover of his secret studies and investigations. Following the natural bent of my mind, I of course decided to make the visit in the dead of night and unannounced. Something more than ghosts and spirits would be required to keep me off the premises where there was any chance of making a good haul or of discovering any secrets that might be turned to good account later.

CHAPTER V.

It was nearly a week after this ride before I could decide upon a night favorable for a visit to Dr. Squires. It is a poor burglar who fails to make careful preparations before attempting to enter a house, and long experience in my business has made me extremely cautious. I never undertake a job without due consideration of all details. A sneak thief may go around from house to house in an aimless sort of manner and enter the first one that is not properly barred, but not so with a professional.

John always sent me off to exercise the horses on the few days when Mr. Goddard did not use them, and I employed these spare moments to acquaint myself with the surrounding country. I passed Dr. Squires' house several times in the course of the next few days, examining the premises with a critical eye.

I found that the house was located some distance back from the main highway and that it was nearly concealed from view by shade and fruit trees. A small grove of woods backed up to it on one side and an open pasture field bordered it on two other sides. The easiest and safest approach to it, I conceived, was from the wood side.

The house itself was an old fashioned flat roofed mansion sadly in need of paint and general repairs. It was gloomy enough to drive almost anybody away from it after dusk, and I did not wonder that strange stories of ghosts and spirits had been gossiped around by the country people. If I had been a superstitious person, I should have selected the house as the last one to rob. It was probably this idea that had influenced the doctor in taking it for his workshop. He was pretty safe in assuming that nobody would disturb him in that lonely retreat.

I obtained leave to go to the city on Friday afternoon, and I told John not to worry if I did not appear until the following morning. I had friends in the city who might detain me over night.

About 4 o'clock I left the barn and started presumably to walk to the city. John offered to drive me half way down if I would wait until after supper, but the afternoon was so fine I preferred the walk.

Two miles down the road I found that I was perfectly concealed from view of every house, and I quietly slipped over the fence into the woods. This piece of woods I knew backed up to Dr. Squires' house. I concealed the bundle, which I pretended that I wanted to take to the city with me, taking enough tools from it first to answer all my present purposes.

As I approached the edge of the woods I moved with great caution. I did not know how many servants the doctor had, although John had assured me that he had only one, a copper colored Indian who was more foreign looking than his master. This servant never associated with anybody else and was either deaf and dumb or unable to speak English.

He was a sort of faithful watchdog, I judged, whom the doctor had befriended and who would in consequence give up his life for him if necessary. I had met such zealous manservants before, and my experience had always been that they are exceedingly troublesome. I therefore used extra precaution.

While yet some distance from the house I climbed up into the leafy branches of one of the large trees and, pulling the foliage to one side, scanned the house intently through a pair of strong fieldglasses. By their aid I could note everything that was going on outside the house and could almost see objects inside the windows.

The only advantage I obtained from this was a clearer idea of the most vulnerable points of the house and also the way to escape from the premises in the event of an alarm. I saw the servant go about his duties, and later I secured my first glimpse of the doctor. He was a dark bearded, thickset, well proportioned man, and one who would prove a bold and powerful antagonist. More than this I could not say until I found myself at closer quarters with him.

I remained in my treetop position until well after dark, watching everything that occurred around the house. Then I descended to the ground, ate a few pieces of cold meat and bread, drank a little wine and threw myself on the dry leaves to sleep. There was no danger of being discovered in the woods, and I needed the rest and sleep to prepare me for the night's work.

It was shortly after midnight when I opened my eyes again. Habit had made it a second nature with me to awaken at this hour, and I had no fear of over sleeping myself when I first closed my eyes. I crawled through the underbrush toward the fence which divided the doctor's land from the grove, and then waited and listened. The house was perfectly dark, and everything was calm and peaceful.

I had thought of dogs, but had failed to see any around in the afternoon through my glasses. However, to make sure of it I imitated the cry and snarl of a cat—a noise that always brings watchdogs away from their post of duty. If the dogs were inside the house, I would find that out later. But I really saw no reason why dogs should be kept on the place.

Satisfied that the coast was clear, I made my way toward the house, keeping well in the shadow of the trees. Then I made a close examination of the windows and doors. They were locked with old fashioned catches and re-enforced with nails. I selected the doctor's study as the place least likely to be occupied.

With a diamond cutter I took a piece of the glass pane out, making an open-

Keeping Friends.

There is nothing so very difficult in making friends; the trouble is to keep them. Pleasing manners and a taking way will always win admirers, but a lasting friendship must be built upon a firmer foundation than a transitory smile, an hour of high spirits or even great physical beauty. Of course it is a pleasure to feel that one is favored by some radically beautiful woman, but unless there be genuine congeniality between the two concerned the time will come when passive loveliness will cease to be attractive. To retain friendship one must be continually on the watch and not let the familiarity that comes from a lengthy knowledge of the other's life breed the contempt that so often follows a close intimacy.

To retain either friendship or love the illusions must not be dispelled. Do not, because you feel sure of your ground, let the commonplace enter in and monopolize the everyday affairs. Let the halo of sentiment hover over even the prosaic affairs of daily life, for, once dispelled, they can never form again, and in the one glimpse of the material side of the intimacy may be utterly destroyed a relation at one time thought to be eternal.

A Snug Fit.

An English tourist in the highlands tells the following amusing story: He was traveling one day last summer by rail in the north of Scotland, and at one of the stations four farmers entered the train. They were all big, burly men and completely filled up the seat on the one side of the compartment.

At the next station the carriage door opened to admit a tall, cadaverous individual with about the girth of a lamp post. He endeavored to wedge himself in between two of the farmers, and finding it a difficult operation he said to one of them: "Excuse me, sir; you must move up a bit. Each seat is intended to accommodate five persons, and according to act of parliament you are only entitled to eighteen inches of space."

"Aye, aye, my friend," replied the farmer; "that's a' very guid for you that's been built that way, but ye canna blame me if I ha'na been construckit according to act of parliament!"

Scots In American History.

It is a noteworthy fact in American history that of the four members of Washington's cabinet Knox of Massachusetts, the only New Englander, was a Scotch-Irishman; Alexander Hamilton of New York was a Scotch-Frenchman, Thomas Jefferson was of Welsh descent, and the fourth, Edmund Randolph, claimed among his ancestors the Scotch earls of Murray. New York also furnished the first chief justice of the United States, John Jay, who was a descendant of French Huguenots, while the second chief justice, John Rutledge, was Scotch-Irish, as were also Wilson and Iredell, two of the original associate justices; a third, Blair, was of Scottish origin. John Marshall, the great chief justice, was, like Jefferson, of Scotch and Welsh descent.—Charles R. Hanna's "Celt In America."

Willing to Help.

"You have wounded me," he sadly said as he rose from his knees—"wounded me so deeply that I shall never"—

"Wait," she said, picking a book off the table. "Let me see what 'First Aid to the Injured' says to do in such a case as yours."

Last Tuesday Ernest Carr was 23 years of age and, of course, such an event must not go by unnoticed, so thought his friends. Accordingly invitations were given out, and upon the appointed evening, guests began to arrive, "two" numerous to mention: suffice to say that there were enough present to make it merry for Mr. Carr, who views the many presents brought with great pride and wonder. Among the gifts to receive special notice are the following, small set of garden tools, horn, Jack-in-the-box; rubber doll, little whip, etc. Twenty-three is a critical age to attain and from the list of presents, the guests were well aware of the fact. A jolly time was reported by all. Earnestly speaking, the guests were in earnest in wishing Ernest a bright and earnest future.

MR. AND MRS. J. W. AYERS

Former Residents of Tecumseh, Celebrate Their

50th ANNIVERSARY

At Their Home in Shepardsville.

We are in receipt of a St. Johns, Mich., News in which we find a fine cut of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ayers who celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary last July. Mr. and Mrs. Ayers are old friends of the HERALD, having lived here many years. Mr. Ayers is a brother of Lester B. Ayers, of this village, and Mrs. Ayers is a sister of Lester Coller, of Macon, and an aunt of Jesse Coller. Following is the sketch of their lives as given in that paper:

"Mr. and Mrs. Ayers are 78 and 76 years old respectively and were born in Livingston county, near Sparta, N. Y. Mr. Ayers was born July 25, 1824, and Mrs. Ayers, who was Miss Catherine Coller, May 1, 1826. In 1838 their families moved to Lenawee county, Michigan, where Mr. and Mrs. Ayers were married July 29, 1852. Thirteen years ago they bought the place owned by Edward Potter near Shepardsville and moved there from Tecumseh. They have been members of the M. E. church since childhood. Mr. Ayers is a carpenter and joiner by trade and worked in the blind and sash factory of S. W. Temple while in Tecumseh. He served in the Civil War as a mechanic, going from Lenawee county."

Pleasing Concert.

The third annual organ and song recital by the vested choir of Christ church, under the direction of Prof. Charles Nicholson, the new musical director, was given Wednesday evening at the church before a small but appreciative audience.

The principal musical treat of the evening was the fine soprano solos given by Miss Raye McKenna, of Tecumseh, who sang her way into the hearts of all her hearers. Miss McKenna possesses a pure, rich soprano voice of great range and power, which she knows how to use to good advantage.—Adrian Telegram.

A Grand Son.

Frank Davidson is now about seven feet tall. At George Davidson's house last Wednesday appeared the first grandson of the family. Since that day one can't touch "Frank" with a ten foot pole and if he has anything to say about it the boy's name will be Simeon.

Devil's Island.

A large and enthusiastic audience greeted the presentation of "Devils Island," at the New Bradley Wednesday night. The play was well interpreted by a strong cast, each actor being an artist in his separate part. Each act held a leading feature of its own, and the climax was reached in the "Rescue" scene in the 4th act. Priestly Morrison, as Maurice DeLaTour, and Pascalina DeVoe, as Pauline DeLaTour, his wife, interpreted the leading parts in a truly artistic manner; the costumes, scenery and play as a whole were undoubtedly the best of the season.

A Pleasant Surprise.

Mrs. Alvira Cairns gave a very enjoyable party for her niece, Mrs. Eusebia Burtless, Thursday afternoon it being the latter's birthday.

Just before sitting down to the bountiful repast prepared for them, Mrs. Burtless was presented with a beautiful pearl and diamond ring.

The guests present were Mrs. Rosilla Bradley, Mrs. Erenah Keeney, Mrs. Almeda Rundell, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wilson and Miss Edith, Mr. Frank Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Abner Wilson and Misses Pauline and Christine.

The James Boys.

A new romantic love story has been dramatized and called "The James Boys in Missouri". It is said the play is far above the average melodrama and its exploiters have introduced many new scenic ideas which are a little short of wonderful, particularly the reproduction of the famous Blue-Cut train robbery, which is spoken of as "the acme of stage mounting." We will have an opportunity of witnessing this performance at the New Bradley Friday evening, Nov. 28th, 1902.

MRS. KINGSLEY

Died at her Home in Flint Tuesday.

DID NOT RECOVER

From Serious Operation. Leaves a Large Circle of Mourning Friends Here.

Mrs. Harry T. Kingsley died Tuesday evening at 6:30 at her home, 808 Ann Arbor street, the deceased being unable to rally from the effects of an operation for appendicitis and floating kidney, undergone last Friday. Mrs. Kingsley's maiden name was Mabel Wood, her birth occurring at Morrison, Ill., November 10, 1872. On June 10, 1893, she was united in marriage to Mr. Kingsley, who with two children, Powell and Eva, survive her. Two brothers and a sister are also left, Orley C. Wood, of Tecumseh; Harry Wood, of Duluth; and Mrs. Hattie McIlvenna, of Wheatley. Mr. and Mrs Kingsley moved to this city in the spring from Tecumseh where she was a member of the L. O. T. M., Rathbone Sisters and the Methodist church. The remains will be taken to West Bay City Friday morning, the funeral being held from the Methodist church in that city, Rev. W. B. Pope officiating.—Flint News.

The community was shocked Tuesday evening to learn of Mrs. Kingsley's death as her sunny disposition had won for her many friends who sincerely mourn with Mr. Kingsley and Mr. Wood in their great sorrow.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Council Chamber. Regular meeting held Nov. 17, 1902.

Present, President Smith, Clerk Moore, Trustees Belding, James, Heck and Stretch. Absent, Trustees Smith and Hunt.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

The following petition signed by eleven business men was presented:—"We the undersigned, tax payers and residents of the village of Tecumseh, do hereby request your honorable body to extend the water main upon the north end of Union street, in said village, so that the same will empty into Evans Creek, and that your honorable body establish and place a horse drinking trough at the end of said extension; if said extension is made and said horse drinking trough established, it is the belief of your petitioners that said water main will not freeze each winter, as it has in the past, and thus will the fire protection at the north end of Union street be increased, but the village will be saved the expense of making repairs each spring as it has done in the past."

On motion the above petition is granted. Aye—Belding, James, Heck and Stretch.

On motion A. Hyde is ordered to superintend the laying of said water pipe.

On motion the purchasing agent is instructed to purchase the necessary supplies for the laying of said water pipe on Union street.

On motion the matter of placing an arc light on Union street, between Shawnee and Bidwell streets, be placed on table until next regular meeting of council.

On motion the matter of repairing fire hose be referred to fire and fire limits committee.

On motion the clerk is instructed to notify the chairman of the Water Board to turn over rubber boots, purchased by village and used by employes in repairing well, also all iron pipeing belonging to village. The same to be returned to the council building at once.

On motion the water board is ordered to make a written report to the common council at its next meeting, the number of water taps in the village and where they are located.

The following bills were audited by finance committee and on motion the clerk was instructed to draw orders for the several amounts:

Frank E. Bowerman.

Frank E. Bowerman, eldest son of Stephen and Nancy Bowerman, was born at Raisin Center November 23, 1867. He was married April 2, 1890, to Carrie Lyon, daughter of Chaleon and Amy Lyon, of Raisin township. One son and daughter were born to them, Ross, born Jan 2, 1892, and Gladys, born May 21, 1898.

They resided in Raisin township until within the last five years, when they moved to Franklin township. From there they moved to Tecumseh township and then to Tecumseh village, where they have resided since. Mr. Bowerman was a member of the K. O. T. M. for two years.

The wife and two children, a father and mother, two brothers and one sister are left to mourn their great loss. One brother resides in California, another in Adrian township and the parents in Raisin township Besides the near relatives, he leaves a large circle of friends to miss his presence.

Mr. Bowerman was of a patient and loving disposition, and although his suffering was intense he never complained. August 31 he was taken sick with appendicitis, his sickness being very complicated, and after a period of 9 weeks, he succumbed. All that loving hands and anxious hearts could do for the suffering man was done, but our Heavenly Father saw fit to take him unto himself.

An Ancient Foe

To health and happiness is Scrofula—as ugly as ever since time immemorial.

It causes bunches in the neck, disfigures the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into consumption.

"A bunch appeared on the left side of my neck. It caused great pain, was lanced, and became a running sore. I went into a general decline. I was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and when I had taken six bottles my neck was healed, and I have never had any trouble of the kind since." MRS. K. T. SNYDER, Troy, Ohio.

THE SCHOOLS.

The physics class is having a warm time with the subject of heat this month. That may account for Novembers warm weather.

Mr. Reincke demonstrated respiration to his class in physiology by dissecting a pair of lungs before them last Wednesday.

S. W. Anderson and J. H. Smith visited the East Branch school Wednesday.

Fifty-six pupils in the fifth grade this term is realy a bakers dozen too many for Miss King to do justice to.

The high school boys evidently intend to give their competitors a chance to do some work to win the foot ball game on Thanksgiving day by the loud time they are having in the park after school hours.

Lizzie Murphy, class of 1900, visited the high school last Monday.

We will not be surprised if we should find the names of some in the seventh grade enrolled among the eminent historians of the next half century. They are digging in earnest for rock bottom facts.

A Wonderful Cure.

The guests of the Physicians' Auxiliary Retreat enjoyed an elaborate dinner at Hotel Gregg Sunday, in honor of Mrs. M. A. Gregory and daughter, Clifford, of Zionsville, Ind., tendered by Prof. Wallace and wife. The ladies present were Misses Rosa, Myrtie and Clara Beebe, of Denson, O.; Mrs. B. E. Gregory, of Zionsville, Ind., and Miss Beulah Gregory, of Adrian college. They regretted very much Miss Mable Jobes, of Lima, N. Y., and others were unable to be present. Mrs. M. A. Gregory and daughter, Clifford, left for their home this morning in Zionsville, Ind., very happy over the result of the work done by Prof. Wallace at the Retreat during their stay of five months. Miss Clifford had been troubled with double curvature of the spine and had tried every known method before coming here for the last two or three years. Myo-Pathist treatment accomplished the work in five months. They came here for treatment through the recommendation of Mr. Robert Darnton, at one time representative of the Adrian Daily Times, and now representative of the Page fence. Mrs. Gregory said before leaving this morning she had been relieved of one of the greatest burdens of her life.

Backache pains come from sick kidneys,

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure it.

Tecumseh people endorse this.

Mrs. J. W. Owen, wife of the well-known carpenter, living in the south eastern section of Tecumseh, says: "I am very well pleased with Doan's Kidney Pills. I procured a box at C. A. Wright's drug store and they did me a lot of good. I had heart trouble and my kidneys did not perform their proper duties. This condition existed for some time. I tried different remedies which were recommended to me but received little if any benefit from them. I will cheerfully say this for Doan's Kidney Pills. I received more permanent relief from their use than from any other medicines I ever used. I am pleased to testify in their value."

DIDN'T GET A BEAR.

President Leaves Camp Without Bringing Down a Grizzly.

Smedes, Miss., Nov. 19.—President Roosevelt's bear hunt in Mississippi is ended and he has not had even a shot at a bear. Tuesday, the last day of the chase, was simply a repetition of the three preceding days, so far as his luck was concerned. Try as the hunters would, they could not get a bear within range of the president's rifle.

The dogs got a fresh trail early in the morning, and the president and Holt Collier followed it half a dozen miles to the Big Sunflower river. The bear crossed a mile below the ford, they went to this point and believing he was making for the canebrake on the other side, they endeavored to head it off. When they got into the brake, however, they were disgusted to find that the bear had doubled on his tracks and crossed the river still further down. It was then 1 o'clock, and as arrangements had been made to break camp at 2:30 o'clock, the president was reluctantly compelled to abandon further pursuit of the elusive quarry.

Although the president has failed to kill a bear on this expedition, he has enjoyed his outing and speaks in high praise of the hospitality that has been accorded him. He philosophically attributed his ill-fortune to the traditional hunter's luck and says the next time he goes after bear he will arrange to stay long enough for the luck to change.

Upon the president's arrival here he found fully 500 people, practically all the negroes from the surrounding plantations, assembled to greet him. He thanked them for their demonstrations, but made no remarks. They waited around his car on the siding until dark, hoping he would make a speech.

At 9:30 the special train started for Memphis, having added the record of a presidential bear hunt to the fame of Smedes, which first became known to the outside world through the story that here the experiment of teaching monkeys to pick cotton was to be tried.

SHOT THROUGH THE HEAD.

Farmer Near Standish Victim of Deer Hunter's Rifle.

Alpena, Mich., Nov. 20.—John Watson, aged twenty-seven, a farmer of Standish, was shot through the head and instantly killed at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, on the north branch of Thunder Bay river, in Long Rapids township, this county, while hunting deer. Watson was standing on a stump about three feet high sighting for game, while his companion, Jerome Miles, stood a few yards distant Miles states that he suddenly saw a man in a small clump of bushes about twentyfive rods distant on the river bank raise his gun, and before he could shout a warning, shot Watson through the head. Without waiting to see what effect his shot had the unknown hunter quickly disappeared and, crossing the river at that point, has not been heard of since. Miles states that there was no reason to mistake the man for a deer, as there was nothing to obstruct the view between the two men.

"Two years ago my hair was falling out badly. I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and soon my hair stopped coming out." Miss Minnie Hoover, Paris, Ill.

Perhaps your mother had thin hair, but that is no reason why you must go through life with half-starved hair. If you want long, thick hair, feed it with Ayer's Hair Vigor, and make it rich, dark, and heavy.

A Startling Surprise.

Very few could believe in looking at A. T. Hoadley, a healthy, robust blacksmith of Tilden, Ind., that for ten years he suffered such tortures from rheumatism as few could endure and live. But a wonderful change followed his taking Electric Bitters. "Two bottles wholly cured me," he writes, "and I have not felt a twinge in over a year." They regulate the kidneys, purify the blood and cure rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness, improve digestion and give perfect health. Try them. Only 50 cts. at C. A. Wright's drug store.

The Union Jack.

British newspapers complain that Englishmen often hang the union jack upside down.

To ascertain which is the "top" and which the "bottom" of a union jack look at the diagonal red cross (the cross of St. Patrick), and you will note that the white "edgings" to it, which are really the diagonal white cross of St. Andrew, upon which it is placed, are much broader on one side than on the other.

The flag is right side up when both these broad white "edgings" are above the red diagonals on the side next to the pole, whereas if you get the two narrow "edgings" of white on the top, on the side next the pole, your flag is upside down.

No Time to Lose

You cannot afford to disregard the warnings of a weak and diseased heart and put off taking the prescription of the world's greatest authority on heart and nervous disorders—Dr. Miles' Heart Cure.

If your heart palpitates, flutters, or you are short of breath, have smothering spells, pain in left side, shoulder or arm, you have heart trouble and are liable to drop dead any moment.

Major J. W. Woodcook, one of the best known oil operators in the country dropped dead from heart disease recently, at his home in Portland, Ind., while mowing his lawn.—The Press.

Mrs. M. A. Birdsall, Watkins, N. Y., whose portrait heads this advertisement, says: "I write this through gratitude for benefits I received from Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I had palpitation of the heart, severe pains under the left shoulder, and my general health was miserable. A few bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure cured me entirely.

EDWARD GRIPTON

Was born June 16, 1875, in Ridgeway township, and departed this life Nov. 13, 1902, as the church bells were ringing for prayer meeting. He was united in marriage to Miss Bertha Lambkin Jan. 12, 1898, and to them was born a little girl who is now three years old.

He joined the Christian church during a revival conducted by Rev. Bullock. His life is an open book to most of you, full of joyous activity, until sickness slowly sapped it away. Frequently was he heard singing at his work and always was he sympathetic with the unfortunate. When asked as to the probability of dying, he calmly replied, "I am ready at any time." He leaves a companion, daughter, father, mother, brother and many friends.

The funeral was held at the Christian church Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Foltz, and was largely attended. Interment at Ridgeway.

CARD OF THANKS.

Slew Rival For Husband's Love.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 19.—Miss Florence McFarlin, aged twenty-one years, a music teacher, was stabbed to death in her father's house here yesterday by another woman, and an hour later Mrs. Lulu Young, wife of Frank Young, was arrested as being the supposed murderer. The woman who committed the deed rang the door bell of the McFarlin home and when Miss McFarlin answered it, attacked her with a knife. Miss McFarlin sank to the floor, dying instantly. The murderess fled. The only words she was heard to utter were: "She has come between myself and my husband, and I'm glad she is dead."

Earthshocks in Roumelia.

Vienna, Nov. 19.—A dispatch to the Neue Freie Presse from Salonica, Roumelia, yesterday, announced that three violent earthshocks, accompanied by wind of extraordinary violence, were felt there during the night. No serious damage was done, but the populace was panic-stricken.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, RALPH S. MEYERS, 64 Thirty-seventh St., Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by J. J. Orr.

Revise Ionia's Charter.—Mayor Bible of Ionia has appointed a committee of taxpayers and business men to revise Ionia's charter, and the first meeting was held Tuesday night. It is possible that the fourth-class cities' charters provided by the state law will be recommended to the people.

Crazy Woman Had an Ax.—Mrs. Nellis Cusinaw, living three miles from Columbiaville, whose mind is unbalanced, called at the home of Jesse Edwards, a neighbor, and threatened to kill Mrs. Edwards with an ax. The woman was ejected from the house and taken home. Edwards then drove to Lapeer and notified the sheriff, who has taken steps to investigate.

His Hanging Strap Broke.

Menominee, Mich., Nov. 20.—George Murray, a prisoner in the Menominee jail, attempted suicide by hanging, but was unsuccessful because of the weakness of a strap. The inmates of the jail heard a noise in Murray's cell, and on going there saw Murray lying on the floor with the strap around his neck, the broken end fastened to an iron bar of a window. The strap was removed from the man's neck and he apparently suffered no ill consequences. Murray was later adjudged insane.

Sifter Stove Polish comes in a large box with a perforated top, through which the polish is sifted just like peppering a beefsteak. PUSHING THE EXPO.

Bliss Officially Recognizes the Chicago Livestock Show.

SENDS NAMES OF FARMERS

To Be Appointed Vice-Presidents From This State—Several State Executives Have Issued Special Proclamations Urging Attendance.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 1.—Having satisfied himself by a personal visit of the value of the International Live Stock exposition at Chicago as a school of instruction in animal husbandry, Governor Bliss has entered heartily into the campaign to popularize the exposition with the farmers of Michigan. Numerous requests have been made to him to give the exposition some sort of official recognition and in line with this he has been in correspondence with representative farmers, such as George B. Horton, master of the State grange, and as a result has forwarded to General Manager Skinner of the exposition a list of names of Michigan farmers for appointment as vice-presidents for the state.

The governors of all the principal stock raising and dairy states are taking great interest in the exposition, and several have issued special proclamations urging their people to visit the great live stock show and take its lessons on the subject of stock raising, breeding and feeding, the chief purpose of the exposition being educational.

The list of names recommended by Governor Bliss is in part as follows: John Wood, Harrisville; E. D. Frost, Allegan; W. F. Anning, Defoe; Theodore Guyer, Eastport; Morris H. Burton, Hastings; George Matthews, Colden; R. B. Reynolds, Inland; Erastus Murphy, Berrien Center; A. L. Smith, Girard; F. B. Barratt, Battle Creek; D. H. Pound, Gorey; John A. Newville, Boyne; Clare D. Scott, Ronde; William Smith, Harrison; Charles Jones, St. Johns; Perry Ostrander, Grayling; Daniel Foley, Capac; A. G. Covey, Leonidas; W. D. Babcock, Elva; V. T. Barnes, Lawrence; C. C. Hallenbeck, Vermontville; John Swift, Harbor Springs; A. B. Knight, Swartz Creek; C. H. Fairchild, Dale; E. O. Ladd, Old Mission; F. G. Palmer, North Star.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—If the number of people who visited the International Live Stock exposition Sunday may be taken as a criterion, the attendance at this year's exposition will exceed that of last year by fully 100,000 persons. Notwithstanding that the day was Sunday, 20,000 people of Chicago and vicinity passed through the gates during the day and evening. Among those who viewed the exhibits were the students from the various agricultural colleges, who will participate in competitive events, commencing Tuesday. The students visited every department, taking elaborate notes and a general review of the show in order to be prepared for their work when it shall begin.

Prodigal Daughter Returns.

Battle Creek, Mich., Dec. 1.—Zelda Fletter returned home Sunday from Rock Island, Ill., where she went to meet her actor sweetheart, Wright Lorimer. Being only fifteen years of age, the girl could not get married, but she says Lorimer is going to secure a theatrical engagement for her. She still insists she is going on the stage. Miss Fletter is handsome and has histrionic talent. She fell in love with Lorimer on the occasion of his appearance at Battle Creek with the "Power Behind the Throne" company. Her parents are so rejoiced at her return that they are not inclined to chide her on her harum scarum performance.

Scuffle Resulted in Death.

Escanaba, Mich., Dec. 1.—Pat Downey, aged thirty-two years, a deck hand on the steamer Maryland, met instant death as the result of a scuffle with two other deck hands on the boat. The three men were wrestling on the deck of the boat, which was unloading coal on the St. Paul dock, when they all fell to the deck below. Downey had his neck broken and died instantly. George Beieroi of Grand Rapids, Mich., one of the trio, had his collarbone broken, and Joe Malarkey of Carnegie, Pa., the other, suffered a serious scalp wound.

Fatal Burns From Oil Explosion.

Elkhart, Ind., Dec. 1.—Arthur and Charles Lynett, eight and six years respectively, died Sunday as the result of burns received in the morning. They were the children of James Lynett, a Lake Shore fireman. Mr. and Mrs. Lynett slept late. The boys came down stairs before their parents arose. The older boy attempted to start a fire with kerosene. An explosion followed, both boys receiving burns from which they lied an hour later.

Wrestling Led to Fight.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 1.—William Allen was wrestling with Frank Gillen at Corinth, a few miles south of here, Sunday, and a dispute followed. They went out doors to settle the quarrel, when Gillen drew a jackknife and stabbed Allen several times in the arm, breast and back. It is not thought the injuries will prove fatal.

Hunting Fatalities Number 14.

Milwaukee, Dec. 1.—The season for hunting deer in the northern woods closed Sunday. Fatalities have been unusually frequent in the woods this season, fourteen men having been killed while hunting deer in the states of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. At least eleven others have been shot and seriously wounded.

Bones Came Through His Shoe.

Flint, Mich., Dec. 1.—Manning DeLong of Argentine was walking across a scaffolding in his barn when the board broke and he fell, the bones in one of his ankles being broken so badly that they protruded through his shoe.

THE SHORT SESSION

Congress Convenes Today With Much Business on Hand.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE SOON

House Is Deluged With Bills Dealing With Trust Question—Appropriation Bills Will Receive Attention—Senate Attend to Admission of New States.

Washington, Dec. 1.—When the house convenes today to enter on the final session of the Fifty-seventh congress a perfect deluge of bills dealing with the trust question, in all its phases, will be thrown into the legislative hopper. It is admitted on all hands that this will be the most important topic of discussion. Indeed, the leaders incline to the belief that beyond the appropriation bills and routine legislation, it will be the only general subject on which there is a chance of action at the short session.

Mr. Hepburn of Iowa, chairman of the interstate and foreign commerce committee, is one of those who believe that the Sherman law, if enforced, is sufficient to meet the situation, and he will introduce a bill appropriating $500,000 to be used by the department of justice in prosecutions under the present law. It is not improbable when the leaders ascertain exactly what can be done that a caucus of the Republicans will be called to agree on a measure. Meantime the trust bills introduced will be probably referred to judiciary committee. There is some question of jurisdiction. If a bill invokes the interstate commerce clause of the constitution or should go to the commerce committee, and if the taxing power of the government to the ways and means committee. But to secure uniformity all bills dealing with the jubject have gone heretofore to the judiciary committee, and this practice probably will be followed unless a fight for jurisdiction is made.

The leaders already have resolved to expedite the appropriation bills as much as possible in order to allow the largest margin of time for other matters. Mr. Gannon, chairman of the appropriations committee, believes that the legislative, executive and judician and the pension appropriation bills can be disposed of before the holidays.

One of the first things the appropriation committee will be called on to do, however, is to prepare a bill to provide for the coal strike committee. Judge Gray, chairman of the committee, has written a letter to Mr. Cannon asking for an appropriation of $50,000 to defray the expenses of the commission, to pay its clerical force and to furnish such compensation for its members as the president may fix. The appropriations committee will meet today to prepare a bill which it is believed will be presented and passed this week. No opposition to it by the minority is anticipated.

The session of the house will be brief. The roll will be called and the announcement of the deaths that have occurred during the recess. The house will adjourn until Tuesday, when the president's message will be read. There is no program for the remainder of the week beyond the bill to defray the expenses of the coal strike commission. If the regular order is demanded the London dock charge bill is the unfinished business.

The admission of the territories of Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona as states of the Union probably will be the subject of general importance to receive the attention of the senate in the session which began at noon today.

After the omnibus territorial bill passed the house last session its friends in the senate were so insistent on action by the senate, and so strong in point of numbers, that in the interest of other pending legislation a unanimous agreement was reached that, in consideration of abatement by the friends of the measure during the last session, the committee on territories would report on the bill on next Wednesday, Dec. 3, and that a week later the bill should become the unfinished business of the senate, which means that unless the measure shall be displaced by vote or by unanimous consent, it will occupy the first place on the senate calendar until disposed of.

Burglars Killed the Watchman.

Valparaiso, Ind., Dec. 1.—In the little town of Westville, six miles east of this city, Wesley Reynolds, watchman of the Westville State bank, was shot and killed by burglars Saturday night while defending the bank safe from their attack. After killing Reynold the desperadoes, who were attacked by citizens who had been alarmed by the battle, fought their way to liberty and are still at large, though a posse of infuriated men is after them, and final escape seems impossible. The watchman saved the bank at the cost of his own life, for the burglars did not have time to blow open the big safe after killing him. It is thought he wounded one of the gang.

Dr. Parker's Funeral.

London, Dec. 1.—The funeral of Dr. Parker, pastor of the City Temple, has been fixed for Thursday next at Hempstead cemetery. The public will be admitted to view the coffin in the City Temple on Wednesday. Dr. Parker's death was the subject of references in almost all the London churches from St. Paul's cathedral downwards, all the preachers dwelling eloquently on "the loss of a great man."

Preferred to Be Shot.

Salt Lake, Dec. 1.—In the circuit court at Farmington, Judge Relapp prnounced the death sentence on Nathan Haworth, convicted of the murder of Thomas Sandall, an aged watchman, in Layton three years ago. As between shooting and hanging, Haworth chose the former.

Russia has three different armies. In Europe her men are five years in the active army, thirteen in the reserve and five years in the second reserve. In Asia they are seven years in actual service and six in the reserve. In Caucasia they are only three in the active army and fifteen in the reserve.

Sun and Moon.

Children's views of many common phenomena are often very entertaining. A little girl five years old, asked what happened to the sun after it set, promptly replied: "It rolls itself up in a little ball like a hedgehog. And that's the moon."—London Express.

OFFICIALLY CLOSED

No More Cattle to Be Exported From Port of Boston.

DISEASE AMONG THE ANIMALS

Government Found It Necessary to Take Action—Foot and Mouth Disease Prevalent—Radical Measures to Stamp Out Diseases to Be Taken.

Boston, Dec. 1.—With the departure of a drove of cattle on the steamer Sylvania for Liverpool, the Boston export market of cattle on hoof officially closed for an indefinite period. Permission to ship these cattle had been given by the bureau of agriculture at Washington, as they had been pronounced physically sound and free from foot and mouth disease.

The vessels in this port at present that were to have carried cattle freights to Europe will have to seek some other kind of freight. Dr. Bennett, the representative of the bureau of agriculture here, says that not another live animal will leave this port until the department is satisfied that the hoof and mouth disease has been stamped out. Dr. Salan and a corps of assistants from the department at Washington will arrive here today and immediately begin an examination with Dr. Ausin Peters and the state cattle bureau of the infected herds in this state.

It is expected that radical measures will be taken to stamp out the disease. For one thing, a vigorous quarantine is expected to be established wherever the disease is found. The cattle that already have been shipped here for export will be slaughtered immediately. There are only about 300 in the stock yards.

Halifax, Dec. 1.—Owing to the cattle embargo on New England ports, the agents of the Leyland line of Boston are making arrangements for the housing and shipment of cattle and sheep from here. There is accommodation for 3,000 cattle and 500 sheep.

Maccabees in Trouble.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 1.—The great camp of the Modern Maccabees, which recently decided on the policy of expansion, is having its troubles in other states where it has atempted to establish the order and furnish insurance. Its officers claim whenever the great camp has attempted to obtain authority to do business in any state it has been met by the paid attorneys of the supreme tent of Maccabees, who have claimed that its name is no near ly like that of the supreme tent its use leads to confusion.

Marched Across Mindanao.

Manila, Dec. 1.—Captain Pershing, with sixty men, has completed a march across the island of Mindanao from Camp Vickars to Yligan. This is possibly the first time that white men have made the journey. Captain Pershing visited the villages of Madayah Marahui. On his way to Madaya he found the Moros were surprised to learn that Americans were not monsters ten feet tall, with horns and tails. At Marahui he addressed 500 Moros, telling them of the friendly purposes of the Americans.

Open Switch Caused Collision.

Youngstown, O., Dec. 1.—A Chicago and Baltimore express train on the Baltimore & Ohio railway, eastbound, ran into an open switch at Carbon, Pa., seven miles east of here, early Sunday morning, and collided head-on with a freight train. One man was killed and three others injured, one seriously. Both engines were wrecked and the express car telescoped. The passengers were considerably shaken up, but none was injured.

A PLULKY ENGINEER.

Ditched a Pere Marquette Train to Save Lives.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 29.—A number of passengers on the Saginaw division of the Pere Marquette railroad owe their lives yesterday to the quickness and risk taken by the engineer of a double-headed freight train which was pulling into the tunnel yards at noon.

The Saginaw train was coming in and orders had been issued for the freight to take the siding. The train was too long for the siding, and as the passenger was coming in, there was but one thing to do, and the engineer ran both engines and several freight cars off the track and ditched them to allow the express train to pass. The crews on the freight jumped and not a man was hurt, although considerable wreckage resulted.

Fortune in an Old Musket.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 29.—Isaac Stoy of Sherwood, Mich., and Andrew Lockhard of Union City are two of a score of heirs to whom a legacy of millions of dollars has fallen. The village of Stoy, Pa., is part of the estate left to the heirs of John Stoy, the grand uncle. He leased several hundreds of acres of land for a term of ninety-nine years, and the lease has just expired. At the time the lease was drawn an old musket owned by the original lessee was described in the document, it being agreed that the gun should pass from one heir to another as proof of the ownership if there was any dispute when the lease should expire. The gun is now in possession of Isaac Stoy of Sherwood. The shares of each of the Michigan men in the estate will easily reach $500,000.

Hot at Inspector Whipple.

Belding, Mich., Nov. 29.—The report by Mrs. Ella M. Whipple, deputy state factory inspector, that employment in the silk mills here is injurious to the health of the women, is denounced by the owners of the mills and by local physicians as false. Mrs. Whipple's report stated that she canvassed 218 women employed in the city, two-thirds of whom were operatives in the silk industry, and that of the latter 50 per cent stated that their work injured their health. It is claimed that the statement is not borne out by facts, and the local press is exceedingly outspoken in its declaration that the report is not correct.

Sued Chinaman For Slander.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 29.—Herbert C. Titus has sued Chan Hoy, the Chinese restauranteur, for slander, claiming $5,000 damages. The basis of the case is a remark alleged to have been made to him one day when he took his wife into the restaurant. He claims the almond-eyed proprietor saluted him with the words: "I know you. You been here with other lady." Titus claims his wife was greatly shocked and that he has lost her respect and confidence, as well as his reputation, by the Chinaman's groundless remark.

Sang Songs Till Death.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 29.—Dr. Norman Ross, living with his mother at 53 High street east, committed suicide Thursday night by taking poison. Ross was only twenty-seven years old, but addicted to drink. He returned home that evening after having spent nearly two days on a spree, and after taking the deadly stuff sat down at the piano and played popular airs until the fatal drug caused him to fall to the floor unconscious. His mother discovered him in this condition and summoned medical aid, but he soon died.

PROFESSIONAL BRETHREN

BY GEORGE E. WALSH

Copyright, 1902, by F. M. Buckles & Co., New York

This time my proposition was accepted. The man shook his head affirmatively, pointed to the chair and then cautiously opened the door. I stepped in and made a move to take the seat, but I had no intention of staying in the hall after once gaining an entrance. When the man turned his back upon me, I quietly followed him to the doctor's office. He made some signs to somebody in the room, and I heard the gruff words of the doctor ask:

"Who is it that Charles has sent?"

I stepped to the doorway and replied: "I'm his butler, but this copper colored servant of yours refused to admit me. I had to force myself in."

The servant started around as if to clutch me by the throat, and the doctor smothered an exclamation that sounded very much like an oath.

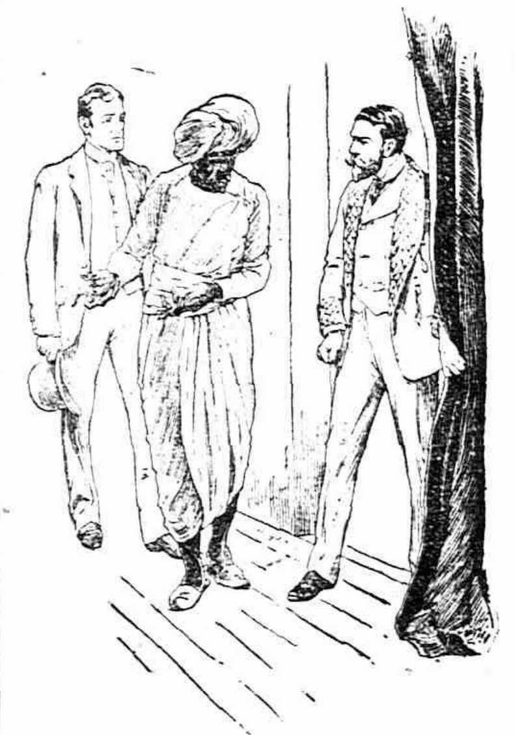
"What business have you to force yourself into anybody's house?" he demanded in a rough voice.

"None whatever except that I had a message for you, and this Indian wouldn't let me in," I answered quickly.

"Well, it's his business to keep strangers out. Those are my instructions."

"Then he was right, and I was wrong," I said, "and if that's the case I'll withdraw."

I turned my back on the two and started for the door, but the words of the doctor called me back. He had perfectly recovered himself and realized that he was making too much fuss with a servant over a trivial matter.



"What business have you to force yourself into anybody's house?"

"Come, come, don't get huffy," he said pleasantly. "Your sudden entrance annoyed me, that's all. What is the message that your master sends?"

He looked at me through a pair of eyeglasses, his dark, searching eyes taking in every part of me, and for the first time in my life I felt uncomfortable under close scrutiny.

"Let me see. You are the man who spilled the salad dressing over me, aren't you?"

He laughed heartily, as if the incident amused him.

"Well, well, this is the second time you have given me offense," he added finally. "Look out for the third time. I might not let you off so easily."

I made the delivery of the message as long as possible, for while he was studying me to no particular purpose I was critically examining everything for a definite end.

When I finally left, I had a pretty clear impression of most of the articles in the room. It was decorated and furnished in true oriental style. Skins and rugs were scattered over the floor; teakwood cabinets and desks, loaded down with miniature elephants of the same wood, were standing in corners and in the middle of the office; sandalwood ornaments, peacock feathers made into exquisite fans, Bagdad curtains and couches, Benares bronzes and spears and shields were placed in various nooks and corners to give the effect of an eastern scene. A red glow from a lamp suspended from the center of the ceiling must have added greatly to the prettiness of the room at nighttime.

But in the midst of the oriental furniture and bric-a-brac were many modern articles, which gave an incongruous effect to the room. Grinning skulls stood alongside of disentombed Egyptian mummies; a stethoscope was lying next to a spear head that must have been wielded by some Indian prince of long ago; medical books and implements were piled promiscuously upon hand carved tabourets of wonderful workmanship. In short, the room was a typical oriental scene, overlaid and topped by the necessary articles of a modern practicing physician.

The whole effect was interesting from one point of view, but for me there was little that I cared about. I could discover nothing that would give me a clew to the doctor's mysterious work. Furthermore, I could not understand why so much care should be exercised in keeping intruders out or why the servant was so insistent that I should not enter his master's office. But my failure to make any discovery intensified rather than lessened my desire to fathom the mystery which Dr. Squires had chosen to surround himself with, and as I rode homeward my mind was busy planning some way of circumventing him and his oriental slave.

CHAPTER IX.

THE indisposition of Mr. Goddard was of short duration, but the attacks became more frequent after my first visit to Dr. Squires, and I was occasionally called upon to carry notes for him which announced the breaking of engagements. There was nothing serious about his complaint except that he appeared weak and languid and unable or unwilling to attend to his social duties. He would spend the day at such times resting on the bed or couch either smoking gloomily or closing his eyes in a moody, dejected manner. He would lie in this way for hours without moving a muscle, but he was not asleep. The slightest noise would arouse him. He would merely open his eyes and ask, "What's the matter, William?" Then without even waiting for my reply he would close them wearily and relapse into his former languid condition.

By this time I was considerably attached to him, and it gave me as much anxiety as a relative to see him slowly going into a decline. The dread of the inherited disease intensified my feelings for the man. I had no faith in Dr. Squires, but I could offer no good substitute.

Left to myself a great deal, I took to reading the books which I found in Mr. Goddard's study. Many of these were medical treatises. Evidently the man had tried to make a study of his complaint and had collected all the literature possible upon the subject. These books were handsomely bound and copiously illustrated, but they were too technical for my limited understanding. Nevertheless I frequently found myself turning over their leaves and aimlessly reading paragraphs here and there.

One day I was engaged in this idle amusement when I happened to open the book at a chapter headed, "Poisons and Their Administration." I had not read many lines before I suddenly closed the book with a bang. An idea had occurred to me that fairly startled me. I was instantly positive that I had at last a clew to the sickness of my master and possibly the reason for Dr. Squires' mystery.

The doctor was slowly poisoning Mr. Goddard while pretending to help him to ward off an inherited disease.

This accounted for the peculiar languid condition of my master at certain intervals. After every dose of the insidious poison he was made weak and listless. Each attack helped to break down his naturally rugged constitution. It was merely a question of time before he would succumb to the poison instead of to any mythical disease.

Confronted by this thought, I was uncertain for a time just what to do. My first impulse was to go to my master and tell him my suspicions so he could be placed on his guard, but as my life has never been guided by impulse I soon dismissed this from mind.

Besides, I had nothing but my suspicions to reveal—not a single fact to prove anything. It was my duty to collect facts and then to confront the doctor with them and have him arrested. If he was determined to put my master out of the way and gain the hand and fortune of Miss Stetson, I was equally determined to thwart him in his little game. The stakes were high for him, and I knew that he would play a cunning, skillful hand, but as he would suspect no danger from me I had the advantage of working secretly and without much fear of discovery.

A professional burglar has a little of the detective spirit in him, and I soon found myself enjoying the scent with all the keenness of an experienced officer of the law. I had hunted detectives before, dogged their tracks, penetrated their disguises and followed up little clews that they left behind in their work, but all in the interest of crime. Now, however, I had turned reformer and was legitimately pursuing a criminal whose evil genius had been directed toward the destruction of one whom I had learned to like. It was no ordinary man that I had to fight against, and this gave more zest to my undertaking.

I discovered that my master had a night appointment with Dr. Squires about once a week. These appointments were irregular. Sometimes they were early in the week and, again, in the middle or the end. Evidently the doctor told him each time when to come again.

Upon reflection I was satisfied that there was a strange coincidence between these weekly night calls and my master's periodical attacks of languor and sickness. Almost every time after he had met the doctor at night he had been in bed a good part of the following day. This convinced me that the poison was administered at the doctor's office and was not intrusted to his patient.

This conclusion was reached one day when I was considerably dejected. I had been working up the case for nearly a week, and everything seemed to point to the fact that I had made a mistake in my reasoning. I could discover nothing to corroborate my suspicions. On that very day I had managed to secure the medicines my master was in the habit of taking, and, carrying them with me to the city, I had them analyzed by an expert chemist.

I was so confident that poison was contained in some of them that I was greatly surprised and perturbed when he told me that they were composed of harmless herbs and oils.

"You mean to say there is no poison in any of them?" I asked in astonishment.

"None whatever," he replied.

I did not believe he understood his business and probably said as much. I took them to another chemist and spent $5 more just to have a correct analysis made. The same conclusion from this man convinced me that I was mistaken.

I walked home, dejected and baffled. The doctor was too shrewd for me, and he had scored the first victory.

Nevertheless I was not discouraged. I reasoned with sense that the man would not adopt ordinary methods to poison my master. He was too shrewd for that. Then I thought of hypodermic injections, which might be administered while in his office.

It was while speculating upon the possible methods of giving him poison that I reached the conclusion that my master's night visits to the doctor's accounted for everything. It was at these meetings that the harm was done. I would be present at the next meeting or I would relinquish all claim to the possession of abilities of a certain order necessary for success in my line of work.

Sick Blood

Feed pale girls on Scott's Emulsion.

We do not need to give all the reasons why Scott's Emulsion restores the strength and flesh and color of good health to those who suffer from sick blood.

The fact that it is the best preparation of Cod Liver Oil, rich in nutrition, full of healthy stimulation is a suggestion as to why it does what it does.

Scott's Emulsion presents Cod Liver Oil at its best, fullest in strength, least in taste.

Young women in their "teens" are permanently cured of the peculiar disease of the blood which shows itself in paleness, weakness and nervousness, by regular treatment with Scott's Emulsion.

It is a true blood food and is naturally adapted to the cure of the blood sickness from which so many young women suffer.

We will be glad to send a sample to any sufferer.

THE FAMOUS OPTICIAN of Detroit,

The eye, when properly cared for, affords the keenest delight because of the pleasures we are able to enjoy through its medium. When not cared for and its warnings are unheeded, it becomes an instrument of torture. Headaches, eye pains, burning, itching sensation, strained vision, nervous troubles and many bodily ills are the results accruing from over worked eyes, eyes that need help. My examination reveals all hidden troubles, and it is my province to fit the right glasses to any and all defects of vision. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED BY

Entire new scenery, complete for every act and all the horses and necessary paraphernalia for the famous race scene in the last act, are announced in connection with the big revival of Neil Burgess' "County Fair," which will be seen here Thursday, Dec. 4, and it is also guaranteed that Mr. Burgess himself will appear with the company in his original creation of Abigail Prue.

Thursday Night.

A theatrical treat will be given the people of Tecumseh when Neil Burgess appears in "The County Fair," Thursday evening. The management has gone to great expense in having this play produced upon the Tecumseh stage, and the theatre-going people will, no doubt, show their appreciation by a hearty patronage. Prices are as low as high class companies will play to, lower prices necessarily mean lower class shows.

A GOOD JOKE.

Baggage Belonging to DR. AND MRS. BUNNELL

Artistically Decorated and Bedecked with Cards, Bunting, Smilax, etc.

The friends of Dr. Bunnell were greatly surprised when informed of his marriage, but a greater surprise awaited them, when they discovered the Doctor's trunks in the hall at the Lilley House. It seems the Doctor arrived some little time ahead of his baggage, and as he turned his checks over to the drayman, he merely asked that they be delivered at the house. Being at the hotel at the time the checks were turned over, the drayman of course thought the Doctor desired the trunks to be deposited at that place.

Well, here begins the Doctor's troubles; as soon as he entered the hotel with Mrs. Bunnell for dinner, he espied his trunks, and was greatly taken back. He at once began telling his friends the manner in which he had eluded the people at Rochester and other places along the return trip home. New orders were given the drayman and the Doctor with Mrs. Bunnell returned home.

Meanwhile his friends were not idle; with shears, card-board, tacks etc. they began to decorate the Doctor's two trunks until they presented a sight worthy of remembrance.

At last the task was completed and the respective trunks deposited upon the Lilley House corner, and this is what met the passing spectator's eye.

Two trunks each having a band of white bunting wound about it and tied in a graceful bow upon the top. Large bunches of smilax also played a prominent part in the decorations.

Upon one trunk, two large hearts of card-board, one with the word "Hubby," the other bearing the word "Ducky," was placed. Upon one side a sign reading "Just Married," added to the effect. Other pieces of card-board cut in the shape of hearts read, "We Are Spliced;" "Two hearts with but one single thought," "Me and Bridle," etc. completed the fun-makers task.

To add to the sensation a large bell was used to attract special attention to the joke.

We are unable to describe the expression that spread the face of the Doctor upon receiving his trunks, our powers of discription can not reproduce the look of amazement, let it be enough that the Doctor will ever remember how his Tecumseh friends outwitted his best efforts

McElroy-Watson.

At the bride's home, north of Tecumseh, on November 27th, occurred the marriage of Miss Elizabeth McElroy and David D. Watson, of North Adams. Rev. W. F. Jones performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families. After the happy couple had received congratulations, the party was ushered into the handsomely decorated dining room where a wedding dinner was served.

The bride was becomingly dressed in a traveling suit of brown broadcloth. Mr. and Mrs. Watson were the recipients of many beautiful presents. They left on the 3:55 train for their home at North Adams.

Fred Mull, a young farmer living in the vicinity of Lyons, Ohio, committed suicide last Friday in a manner not apt to be extensively copied. After kissing his wife, Mull went to the barn and, ascending to the hay mow, fastened one end of a rope to a beam and the other around his neck. The long jump which he took into the room below broke the rope, leaving the tightened noose about his throat. Rendered insensible by the terrific shock, Mull was unable to unfasten the noose, and when discovered by Mrs. Mull an hour later, he had strangled to death. Mull was 30 years old. He was in debt to the amount of $2500 and is supposed to have become despondent as a result of financial and family difficulties.—Hudson Post.

Aching Joints

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, are joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

Sufferers dread to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and their condition is commonly worse in wet weather.

"It has been a long time since we have been without Hood's Sarsaparilla. My father thinks he could not do without it. He has been troubled with rheumatism since he was a boy, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine he can take that will enable him to take his place in the field." MISS ADA DOTY, Sidney, Iowa.

CLUB NOTES.

The recent meeting of the County Federation of Women's Clubs at Adrian reminds one to inquire what became of the movement for a town federation of clubs here. With three large literary clubs and several small reading circles we ought to be able to form a strong federation which could influence local affairs.

THE RESEARCHERS IN ADRIAN.

The Adrian Woman's Club, of Adrian, the only federated club in the city, extended an invitation for November 18 to the Friday club and 20th Century club of Hudson and the Research Circle of Tecumseh, all federated clubs.

Owing to a death which affected two of the members of the A. W. C., the time was postponed until November 25. The occasion was Reciprocity Day and the object was to make club women better acquainted with each other and their work and to promote club interest and club unity.

The Adrian club left nothing undone, which was in their power to do to contribute to the comfort and pleasure of their guests. The meeting was called to order at 2 o'clock by the president of the A. W. C. A cordial welcome was extended to all, after which came two papers prepared by one member from each of the Hudson clubs, the first being "Our Duty to Each Other," and the second an original poem which was loudly applauded. Mrs. Andrew Wilson represented the Research Circle of Tecumseh with a paper on Brook Farm.

The meeting-place of the Adrian club is very pleasant indeed and the social time following the short literary program was enjoyed by all. An elegant supper was served at 6 o'clock consisting of escalloped oysters, fruit salad, olives, jelly, rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake.

After this a vote of thanks from the visiting clubs was given to the ladies of the Adrian club for the royal entertainment. Wraps were then donned and good-byes said with many expressed wishes to some time meet again. C.

It's a common error.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills

And are endorsed by Tecumseh citizens.

Vet. O. Austen. who lives with his son in the north eastern section of Tecumseh, says: "I am more than thankful that Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice for they did me a great deal of good, in fact they stopped a dull aching pain in my back which had annoyed me for years, and also rendered the action of the kidney secretions normal which at times were too frequent and highly colored. I tried a number of so-called kidney cures but I did not receive any benefit, before I learned about Doan's Kidney Pills and I knew people who had used them so I went to C. A. Wright's drug store and got them. To say I entertain a very favorable opinion of them as a kidney medicine is putting it in very mild terms. They are all and more than they are represented to be.

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Vanadium.

Vanadium does not melt in a heat of less than 2,000 degrees F., is not affected by any acid, and increasing, as it does, the ductility of copper, it is very valuable to the makers of electrical appliances, but the price being $600 a pound, it is almost prohibitive.

KELLY CAPTURED.

Much-Wanted Participant in St. Louis Scandal Now in Custody.

Philadelphia, Nov. 29.—After eluding arrest for several months, Charles F. Kelly, the former speaker of the St. Louis house of delegates, who is wanted in the western city in connection with the bribery cases unearthed there some time ago, was arrested in this city at 1:10 o'clock Friday afternoon. He admitted his identity and is now locked up. He will be given a hearing and will be held to await requisition papers from the state of Missouri.

St. Louis, Nov. 29.—Charles F. Kelly, former speaker of the city council, was the one most wanted of all the members of the coterie known as the "combine" indicted on charges of bribery in connection with the passage of the municipal lighting bill. Kelly was wanted because he was charged with handling the $47,000 bribe money, which, according to evidence, had been distributed among the nineteen members of the combine. It was believed Kelly could tell where this money came from. He was indicted on Sept. 8. He was at the four courts when the indictment was returned against him. A deputy sheriff told him he was wanted. Kelly asked permission to go to the council chamber to attend to an important matter, saying "If you need me before I get back, telephone me at the house of delegates." That was the last time he was seen by any officers of the law until his arrest yesterday.

SHOCKING CRUELTY.

Turks Are Subjecting Macedonian Peasants to Inhuman Treatment.

London, Nov. 29.—Mail advices received here from Constantinople under date of Nov. 24 say: "In spite of all official denials, the Porte is adopting barbarous methods in crushing the Macedonian peasants. The winter has set in, and the danger from revolutionary bands is over, yet the Turkish authorities seem to think the time has come to act. In the face of promises of free pardon to those who returned to their homes, Christian villagers have been shockingly tortured to make them betray alleged concealed depots of arms or give information regarding the working of the Macedonian committees. The bastinauo has been frequently employed until the victims were crippled for life, their feet being beaten to a pulp by Turkish soldiers. Peasants were also hung by their heels to the ceiling and boiling hot eggs were put in their armpits. Even priests were not spared, while the troops openly plunder the peasants, who are being driven to despair."

Famous Preacher Is Dead.

Londan, Nov. 29.—Dr. Joseph Parker, minister of the City Temple, who had been seriously ill for some time past, died at 6 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Rev. Joseph Parker, M. D., of whom it was at one time rumored that he would be likely to succeed the late Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, was without exception the most prominent divine of the immense body of nonconformists in Great Britain. Born in 1830, at Hexham, Northumberland, he studied theology under Dr. Cameron and at University college. In 1853 he was ordained as pastor of the Congregational church at Banbury, Oxfordshire, and subsequently at Manchester, where he founded mission stations and night schools and did much admirable work. In 1874 the City temple, which had been built by subscription, was opened near Holborn Circus, London, and had since been the center of Dr. Parker's labors. His degree of doctor of divinity was conferred upon him by the Chicago university.

Train Rolled Down Hill.

Prescott, Ark., Nov. 29.—A northbound passenger train from Texarkana to St. Louis, on the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern railroad, was wrecked near here yesterday. Engineer Asbury B. Archibald was killed. Fireman George Hays saved his life by jumping. The recent heavy rains caused the rails to spread and the engine rolled down a six-foot embankment. Engineer Archibald was pinioned under the wreckage of the engine and met death instantly. The mail and baggage car also left the track and turned over, and a mail clerk, whose name could not be ascertained, was slightly injured.

Sultan Challenges Americans.

Manila, Nov. 29.—Constabulary Inspector Hendryx, who has been stationed in Samar island, was killed last Tuesday by a band of Ladrones. The sultan of Bacolod, after professing friendship for America, has written a letter to Captain Pershing, in which he calls Americans "hogs who eat hogs" and challenges them to fight. It is probable that Captain Pershing will be ordered to take a column to Bacolod. The military men, however, doubt whether the sultan will really fight.

Raided Counterfeiting Plant.

Huntsville, Ala., Nov. 29.—Secret Service Agent Shaw raided a counterfeiting plant on Monte Sano yesterday and arrested M. V. Evans, an alleged counterfeiter. Many bogus dimes, half dollars and dollars were confiscated. They are made so well that only experts can determine their character. The full outfit of counterfeiting tools was found.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 29.—It has been officially announced at the national headquarters of mineworkers that when the miners meet in national convention here in January, to prepare a new wage scale, Secretary Wilson will report that the amount of money given by them for the strike was more than $2,000,000.

A HAUNTED CELL

Prisoners Have Intense Aversion For One Room in Owosso Jail.

Owosso, Mich., Dec. 1.—Prisoners in the county jail strenuously object to sleeping in a cell in the west corridor, known as Sullivan's cell. It is declared to be unlucky since a certain night eight years ago, when William Sullivan was dragged therefrom and hanged in the courtyard by a mob. Sullivan had brutally murdered Layton Leetch and criminally assaulted Mrs. Leetch. Those confined in the cage soon learn the cell's ghastly history and will not occupy it.

Calvin Linerd, an alleged murderer now in confinement, kicked after two nights' occupancy, declaring he heard noises in the night and that his sleep was broken. Other prisoners then told him its history and the cold sweat of superstitious fear broke out on the forehead of the farm hand, who is charged with one of the most cold-blooded crimes in the county's history.

Since learning the story Linerd's health has been poor, and he has grown pale and thin. The fatal cell is now unoccupied. Linerd will not talk much about it, but is firm in the belief that the cell is haunted by the murderer's ghost.

Linerd has been bound over to the circuit court. Owing to the pressure of public opinion, he will be tried this term for the murder of Solomon Stevens.

Provides For Dog in Will.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 1.—In the will of John M. Mathewson, the oldest member of the Kent county bar, who died a few days ago at his home in Lowell, provision is made for the care and maintenance of "my true and ever faithful dog friend John M.," by willing the canine "to my daughter, Ivie M. Rhodes, who I believe will see that he is properly cared for." The dog and his master were inseparable friends for years, and one was never seen without the other. The dog has been a familiar figure in the court rooms of this county.

Found Dead by the Track.

Ypsilanti, Mich., Dec. 1.—The dead body of John Steffins, an employe of the Superior pulp mills, was found beside the Michigan Central tracks half a mile above the Peninsular mill Sunday morning. The remains were mutilated in a way to show that Steffins had been struck by a train, and it is supposed that he met death from the westbound passenger that goes through Ypsilanti about midnight. Steffins was a man of middle age and was unmarried.

Old Soldier Killed.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 1.—Frank Wiertz, an inmate of the Soldiers' Home, was struck by a northbound car Saturday night near the home and was instantly killed. Wiertz was walking on the path between the tracks and in stepping aside to avoid one car he got directly in front of another that was moving in the opposite direction.

His Great Pressure.

The German officer is nothing if not practical, so there may be an element of truth in the following amusing incident, which comes from Berlin, says the London Express:

A sergeant was perplexed how to deal with a bowlegged recruit. At last he bethought himself of a plan. Taking a one mark piece, about the size of a shilling, he ordered the recruit to put it between his knees and said, "Woe betide you if you let the money fall before I come back in five minutes!"

The unhappy recruit, with knees pressed together, remained in that uncomfortable position for a minute, and at last, struck by a happy idea, he took the coin from between his knees and put it in his pocket.

When the sergeant hove in sight, he hurriedly replaced what he thought to be the same coin. It was, however, a two mark piece, about as large as a florin. The sergeant smiled as he complimented the bowlegged recruit on the great pressure he must have exerted on the coin between his knees.

The Young Partridges.

All summer long while berries are plenty the flocks hold together, finding ten pair of quiet eyes much better protection against surprises than one frightened pair. Each flock is then under the absolute authority of the mother bird, and one who follows them then gets some curious and intensely interesting glimpses of a partridge's education. If the mother bird is killed by owl or hawk or weasel, the flock still holds together while berries last under the leadership of one of its own number more bold or cunning than the others. But with the ripening autumn, when the birds have learned, or think they have learned, all the sights and sounds and dangers of the wilderness, the covey scatters, partly to cover a wider range in feeding, partly in natural revolt at maternal authority, which no bird or animal likes to endure after he has once learned to take care of himself.—W. J. Long in Outing.

From Frying Pan to Fire.

A Loudonville man was dancing a quadrille when he heard his pants seams ripping, at which he rushed into a dressing room, where his wife—good soul—was soon busy with needle and thread, he having first divested himself from his leg covering. Presently he heard the rustle of skirts and realized that he was up against the horrible proposition of being discovered in the ladies' dressing room, which he had entered by mistake. Appealing to his wife again, the excellent creature shoved him through what she supposed to be a closet door and turned the key. "Let me back! Let me back!" he screamed as he began pounding on the door. "I'm in the ballroom!" And he was.—Ravenna (O.) Republican.

Brilliant prospects—The diamond fields.

Sprigg's wife woke him up at three o'clock in the morning to say that she had decided, on the whole, to have a dark green suit and a green velvet bonnet this winter.

Smells of Cities.

A famous English artist insists that each city has its own peculiar odor; that a stranger can smell a city—"the great, blended odor of the entire city." There is truth in his remarks. When a stranger enters Munich, there is a smell as of many breweries—a peculiar, sweetish, yet pungent odor of malt, not at all unpleasant to a beer drinker. After a day or two the smell is not remarked, but after the stranger leaves the city the smell is distinct in his memory; it exerts a spell; it urges him to drop his work, to take the next steamship. We have not been in Munich for seventeen years, but that sweet smell haunts us still. Paris has a peculiarly individual odor; so has London, so has Berlin, so has Dresden. Boston no doubt has its own smell, which is highly respectable, rather musty, with a suspicion of old family cockroaches.

How Coal Resembles Ice.

The Electrical Review calls attention to an interesting explanation of the burning of coal. Coal petroleum and illuminating gas are related to one another much as are ice, water and steam. For this reason perfect combustion of liquid fuel is already advanced a long step toward vaporization, just as ice is advanced toward steam when turned into water. The volatile elements of coal are locked up in solid form, or virtually frozen solid. Professor Dewar demonstrated how great an amount of heat must be taken from the so called permanent gases to make them liquid and how much more to make them solid. Yet nature has solidified gas into the form of coal, and solid coal, like solid ice, will only dissolve into vapor through the expenditure of heat.

Crab Eating Monkeys.

People are so much in the habit of thinking that monkeys are found only in forests that it comes as a surprise to learn of one that bears the name of the crab eating macaque. It is found through Burma, Siam and Malay land, living among the trees that line the tidal creeks. The chief food of these animals consists of seeds, insects and crabs. In pursuit of crabs they must take to the water. Use has become second nature with them, as with other animals, and they are said to be able to swim uncommonly well.

A Good Hearted Man,

or in other words, men with good sound hearts, are not very numerous. The increasing number of sudden deaths from heart disease daily chronicled by the press, is proof of the alarming prevalence of this dangerous complaint, and as no one can foretell just when a fatal collapse will occur, the danger of neglecting treatment is certainly a very risky matter. If you are short of breath, have pain in left side, smothering spells, palpitation, unable to lie on side, especially the left, you should begin taking

By Peter McKinnon.

The following letters are quite like Peter McKinnon who is down at Salem, Mass., and it simply shows that no matter where a man may be, even in that city where it is said there are at least three women to one man, the old sense of humor will crop out.

Floorwalking.

Head Floorwalker (severely)—I heard you tell the lady she would find the ribbons at the third counter to the left.

New Floorwalker—That's where they are.

Head Floorwalker—Yes; but you should have told her to go to the right past the necktie bargain counter, turn to the left past the stocking bargain counter, then three counters to the right past the silk skirt bargain counter, and so on. You'll never make a floorwalker.—Judge.

One Definition of It.

"What do you consider domesticity in man?"

"And what is domesticity in woman?"

Fond of Books.

H.—Is your boy fond of books?

D.—Very. I gave him a copy of "Robinson Crusoe" the other day, and he got lots of fun out of it.

H.—I didn't know he could read.

D.—He can't read, but he tears the pages out and makes boats of them. Oh, yes; he's fond of books!

Saving His Father's Hair.

Lord Charles was often troubled by importunate acquaintances, who begged for some of his father's (the Duke of Wellington) hair. On such occasions he said to an old servant whose hair was like the duke's: "Sit down, John. I must cut off another lock!"

Unsatisfactory.—What an unsatisfactory world this is! It no sooner gets cool enough for a fellow to wear the same paper collar all day, than the women begin to talk about getting that parlor stove up.

FOUL BREATH?

DID YOU EVER MEET A PERSON WITH A FOUL BREATH?

and have them get close to you while relating some good joke? and although you wanted to escape the breath, you could not?

THE CAUSE

Is is a disordered stomach and a general bad condition of the blood, possibly a torpid liver was the primary cause. Would you not advise them to do something to get rid

OF THAT BREATH?

Reader, if you are one of those unfortunates with a foul breath, why do you not take action? why do you not see that your stomach is put in order? There is no excuse for it when there is a remedy at hand.

Kinyon's Blood AND Kidney Remedy

Strengthens the kidneys, enabling these important organs to carry off the impurities. Regulates the liver so that it may aid in the digestive operation and keep the bowels active. Tones up the stomach and enables it to properly digest the food so that the body may be nourished and become strong. With these organs all active and strong the system becomes cleansed and the foul breath will leave as if by magic. Do not delay. Act at once.

Crew of Steamer Hebard Are Safe On Shore.

SUFFERED AWFUL HARDSHIPS

Men Succeeded in Anchoring Lifeline on Shore, Over Which All Were Saved—Timely Aid of an Explorer Prevented Them Freezing to Death.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Dec. 3.—Like men arisen from the dead, the crew of the ill-fated steamer Charles Hebard, wrecked at Point Mamainse Sunday morning, reached Sault Ste. Marie on the tug General Tuesday afternoon. They brought with them a thrilling story of their long battle with the icy waters of Lake Superior, a fight in which death seemed for a long time likely to win the victory.

The men tell a story of the most awful hardship, which is graphically worded by Captain George D. Ryan of Detroit and Second Mate Arthur Jackson of Buffalo, as follows:

"We were bound from Duluth to Buffalo with three tows of the following order, Francomb, Aloha, Warmington. All went well until while running from Manitou to Whitefish the wind shifted to west-northwest, and it came on to snow. We could not see the length of the boat and our log was frozen up, so that we soon lost all idea of our whereabouts.

Lost the Tows.

"At 11:30 Saturday night the Aloha's line parted and an hour and a half later we lost the Francomb. What became of them we could not tell, for we were in trouble ourselves. We had little sea-room and at 3:30 Sunday morning, in a blinding snow storm, we ran on to a bold, rocky shore about three miles above Mamainse Point and 200 yards from shore.

"Fifteen minutes from the time we struck the Hebard broke in two and keeled far over, throwing her lee rail high out of the water. As soon as she struck she commenced going to pieces, for the seas broke over her. We tried to lower the yawl boat but the vessel was listed too much and the attempt failed. Then we tried the "dinky" and succeeded in launching her with the first and second mates on board. To reach the shore was a difficult matter, for the surf was running high between the vessel and the shore and the water was full of floating lumber.

"After several unsuccessful attempts we reached shore and made fast the end of the lifeline we had with us, to a boulder. The other end was fast to the rail of the Hebard, for by this time masts, smokestack and cabin were gone. Every wave hove her out so that it was necessary to keep the line slack. They rigged a bor'n's chair and one at a time we hauled them ashore. For the most of the distance the men were under water, and everybody's clothes were frozen stiff as soon as landed.

A Brave Woman.

"We got two men ashore and then Mrs. Barnes was put in the chair and with great difficulty landed. She acted like a heroine all through, keeping cool and helping the men to the best of her ability. All the men were badly used up by knocking against the floating lumber.

"We never would have succeeded in landing all, for we were benumbed with the ice, had it not been for Oscar Carlson and his son. Carlson is in charge of an exploring company and lives in a hut out there in the wilderness, three miles from the nearest habitation. He saw the steamer ashore and came down to the beach with his son and a lot of whisky, which we poured into each man as he came ashore, to revive him. He and his son also worked on the ropes with us, and after all were ashore took us to his hut and clothed and fed us until the arrival of the General. Had it not been for him our getting ashore would have been useless, for we would have frozen to death right there on the beach, for not one of us could walk, and of course had nothing to build a fire with."

Praise For Captain Ryan.

The men all speak highly of Captain Ryan, who was the last man to leave the vessel. He was exhausted and as slid down the line he lost his hold and fell into the sea. Second Mate Jackson went in after him and succeeded in bringing him ashore. The men all fear that there is no hope for the Aloha, although they will not give up yet, remembering their own experience.

Carelessness Caused Shooting.

Alpena, Mich., Dec. 3.—The careless handling of a revolver in the hands of Fred Buchanan was the cause of the accidental shooting of Frank Rousseau, a well-known and popular young man, last night. The ball, a 32-caliber, entered through the nose and lodged somewhere in the back of the head. It is believed the accident will result fatally.

HIS MESSAGE READ

Congeess Listened to President's Epistle Tuesday.

GEN. ALGER TOOK THE OATH

Number of Bills Introduced in Senate—Adjournment in Both Houses Out of Respect to Deceased Members—Strike Commission Bill Today.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Interest in the session of the senate Tuesday was heightened by the fact that the president's message to congress would be read and also that General Russell A. Alger of Michigan, former secretary of war under President McKinley, would be sworn in to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator McMillan. His desk and chair were hidden beneath a mass of flowers, and as he took his seat he was surrounded by a number of his colleagues, who extended hearty congratulations. In the gallery were a number of General Alger's friends and members of his family.

One hour and fifteen minutes were consumed in reading the president's message. Almost the entire Republican representation was in their seats, but not more than half the seats on the Democratic side were occupied. The closest attention was paid to the message as it was being read, and frequently senators would confer regarding some special portion of it which had attracted their particular attention.

A number of bills and resolutions were introduced, following a brief executive session. The resignation of the Rev. W. H. Milburn, the blind chaplain of the senate, was received with genuine regret. He had become a familiar figure in the body and was personally acquainted with every senator. No action was taken on the resignation.

At 1:50 p. m. the senate adjourned out of respect to the memory of the late Charles H. Russell, representative from Connecticut.

Washington, Dec. 3.—The house was in session an hour and forty minutes yesterday. One hour of that time was consumed in reading the president's message. The reading was listened to with attention by members, without regard to party, but without demonstration except at the conclusion of the reading, when the Republicans applauded generously. Mr. Cannon, chairman of the committee on appropriations, gave notice that the bill to defray the expenses of the coal strike commission would be called up today. The deaths of the late Representatives De Graffenreid and Sheppard of Texas, which occurred during the recess, were announced, and after adopting the customary resolutions of regret the house adjourned as a further mark of respect to their memories.

Attorney General's Report.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Attorney-General Knox, in his annual report, submitted to congress Tuesday, renews his recommendation for an increase of the salaries of judicial officers throughout the country. The report shows that the number of cases remaining undisposed of in the United States supreme court at the close of the October 1902, term, was 344 on the appellate and 11 on the original docket. At the close of the previous term there were 336 cases undisposed of. The number of cases docketed at the term was 383, number disposed of, 375. The statement of criminal prosecutions in the United States court shows that 16,350 prosecutions terminated during the last year.

Big Day at Live Stock Show.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—Despite the inclement weather, Tuesday proved one of the biggest days in point of attendance in the history of the International Live Stock Exposition, 40,000 people passing through the gates during the day and evening. The judges were kept busy on the host of important entries that gathered in the respective rings. The Iowa agricultural college came off with flying colors, capturing the principal prizes in cattle and hogs. Shamrock, the grand champion of the show, entered in the fat Angus grade classes, won everything and aggregated more than $500 in cash prizes.

Philippine Soldiers Given a Brace.

Washington, Dec. 3.—The relaxing effects of tropical climate in the matter of military discipline are becoming more and more evident in the Philippines, and for the second time in a little over a year the commanding general has been obliged to call attention to this fact in general orders. In the last order he scores the men and officers indiscriminately for carelessness in their observance of regulations and standing orders in respect to dress, courtesies and discipline.

Relieved Cashier of $2,000.

Billings, Mont., Dec. 3.—The bank at Bridger, in Carbon, was entered by three masked men Tuesday and Cashier Trumbow was relieved of $2,000. Immediately after the robbery the men left on horseback for the Crow reservation. A pursuing party has been organized. The scene of the robbery is in the vicinity of the famous Hole-in-the-wall country, for years the hiding place of thieves and desperadoes.

Brookville, Ind., Dec. 3.—The plant of the Brookville Manufacturing company was totally destroyed by fire Tuesday. Loss, $100,000, with insurance of $52,000. Three carloads of candy, two carloads of canned goods and $40,000 worth of glucose and sugar were destroyed.

A DOZEN KILLED

Frightful Accident in San Francisco Harbor.

BIG STEAMSHIP BLOWN UP

Eighty Men Were in the Vessel—A Score Injured—Ship Was Being Tranformed to Oil-Burning Oil-Carrier—Torn Asunder Amidships.

San Francisco, Dec. 4.—The steel steamer Progreso, which has been lying at the wharf of the Fulton Iron Works, at Harbor View, blew up Wednesday morning, causing great loss of property, the death of a dozen men and the serious injury of a score of others.

The missing: First Assistant Engineer Sparks, Joseph Rex, Charles Glenn, Howard Dowe, James Cavatt, Dan Gallagher, Joseph Maguire, F. Nelson, C. C. McGregor, Jack Strand, Harry Small, Jack Ashton.

There were eighty men on the ship when the explosion occurred. Of these sixty were employes of the iron works and twenty comprised the crew.

The sailors were scraping the side of the vessel, and from their positions little hope is entertained that they escaped.

The first explosion is accounted for by the authorities at the iron works as having resulted in the generation of gas in one of the oil chambers. The vessel was loaded with oil. The force of the explosion tore her asunder amidships and the fuel poured out on the water and beneath the pier of the works, which immediately took fire and was consumed. The vessel did not sink, but little expectation is felt that there will be any salvage on her.

The Progreso has been undergoing reconstruction in order to fit her for the carrying of oil. She was to have had her trial trip on Saturday.

Below the decks the mechanics were busy completing the work of changing the vessel from a coal-burning coal-carrier to an oil-burning oil-carrier, when suddenly one of the oil tanks blew up. Men were hurled against the steel wall and a sheet of flame came sweeping into their faces. On the upper deck men were hurled into the air or thrown into the water. Three sailors engaged in washing paint outside the pilothouse disappeared as the cloud of black smoke came up from the ship, and were seen no more. In the office of the works, twenty feet away, every window was shattered and flying glass cut the faces and hands of many of the officials and clerks.

As the ship was built of steel, the fire was nearly all below deck. There were fourteen oil tanks containing about 400 barrels of oil in all, and despite the efforts of the fire department this continued to burn fiercely for hours after the explosion.

Several minor explosions, due to the flames going from tank to tank, occurred at short intervals, but all the injury and loss of life was caused by the first one.

Eighteen of the injured men were removed to the Presidio hospital. The remainder were taken to the Emergency hospital.

The Fulton works estimate their loss at $30,000. The loss on the steamer is not known accurately, but it is estimated that it will reach into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Oklahoma Will Be a State.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The committee on territories has agreed to report a bill for the admission of Oklahoma and Indian Territory as one state, under the name of Oklahoma. New Mexico and Arizona are not in the bill. The bill authorizes the inhabitants of the two territories to adopt a state constitution, defining the status of the Indians as follows: "Nothing contained in the said constitution shall be construed to limit or impair the rights of person or property pertaining to the Indians of said territories so long as such rights shall remain unextinguished, or to limit or affect the authority of the government of the United States to make any law or regulation respecting such Indians, their lands, property, or other rights which it would have been competent to make if this act had never passed."

"Buried" In the White House.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Tuesday evening, without the least ceremony, a pretty function occurred in the main corridor of the White House. A copy of the message sent to congress Tuesday by the president, autographs of the Roosevelt children, specimens of United States coins and the chisel with which the mason did the work, were sealed in a marble casket which then was deposited in a bed of cement beneath the floor of the main hallway. Covering the little treasure box was placed a marble slab bearing the inscription "1792-1902" in a ellipse of stars, one for each state of the Union.

ALOHA MEN SAFE

Crew of the Schooner Had a Terrible Experience.

ABANDONED THEIR CRAFT

Made Perilous Trip to Shore in a boat—Steamer Ossifrage Picked Up the Bark and Men at Montreal Island—Hope Entertained For Celtic.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Dec. 4.—News that the Aloha was safe in harbor, followed closely upon the announcement that the crew of the Hebard had escaped death, added to the rejoicing in marine circles and raised hopes for the missing Celtic, though nothing has been heard of her.

The Aloha was found by the steamer Ossifrage near Montreal island, deserted but still afloat. The steamer kept a sharp lookout and soon discovered the schooner's crew, which had gained a nearby shore. They had deserted the schooner, preferring to take their chances on making a landing rather than run the risk of having the vessel go to pieces beneath them. They had seen the rocks rising mountains high along the coast and realized their case was hopeless should the schooner go ashore.

A point where a landing looked possible was hailed with rejoicing and the sailors welcomed the forlorn hope as they lowered a boat. In spite of the terrific seas, all were finally seated, and after an awful struggle the boat was beeched. Rushing through spray, one assisting another, all finally reached shore nearly dead from exhaustion and exposure. Their rescue by the Ossifrage was most timely and probably saved their lives.

They were placed aboard their own craft, which was towed to Gaarguanta to await the arrival of tugs. The harbor is a safe one and the schooner will undoubtedly float there until she can be repaired. Hope for the Celtic centers in the belief that the missing boat may be discovered in shelter about the Manitouin island.

PROFESSIONAL BRETHREN

BY GEORGE E. WALSH

CHAPTER X.

But in the meantime, by mere accident, I discovered the secret of my master's fatal illness. It happened in this wise:

One afternoon when I was free for a few hours I strolled down the road toward Dr. Squires' house, habit generally drawing my footsteps in that direction. I was intent upon no particular purpose. I was merely walking along for the change. I frequently like to get off by myself and lie down in the woods or on the green grass and think. I am a great lover of nature. The birds and grass and flowers always appeal to me.

When alone in the woods, I will watch the birds by the hour, finding more enjoyment therein than in the company of man, or an army of busy ants will amuse me for half a day. I would not hurt one of these insects for anything or permit them to be disturbed in their work, and yet I have raised my hand against my fellow creatures, partly in self defense, it is true, to wound them or to take their lives if necessary.

On this particular afternoon I walked down the country highway for some distance, and then, attracted by the song of a wood thrush, I concealed myself in a thick clump of bushes and listened. The bird could not see me, and for a long time I lay there with my eyes half closed listening to the sweet music of the dainty singer. I do not know how long I remained there entranced by this private concert, but suddenly the bird hushed its song and flew away.

The noise that had frightened her came from the hoofs of two horses, which were cantering down the road at a rapid pace. I peered through the leaves of the bushes at the riders, and instantly all my gentle thoughts fled. The spell of the bird was no longer upon me. All my evil, crafty nature returned. The approaching riders were Dr. Squires and Miss Stetson.

Not a dozen paces from me a small stream bubbled up from an underground spring, and it was quite customary for riders to give their horses a drink at this place. A wooden trough had been sunk into the ground to receive the water and to form a drinking vessel for the beasts.

I was consequently not surprised when the two drew up their horses just in front of me and led them to the spring. The doctor dismounted and held the horses while they drank in the cooling draft. The two had been engaged in conversation, and I judged that she had been trying to extract his secret from him.

"I do not consider it an honor to keep your work so secret until you have completed your discovery," she was saying. "Then all the world will know it, and there is no special interest in it for me."

"But I have promised to tell it to you before any one else hears of it," the doctor answered.

"How long before—one day or one hour?"

There was a look of annoyance in his face at her reply.

"Any number of days beforehand you wish," he answered.

"Well, then, I wish to hear it now," she replied quickly, a bright smile reenforcing her words.

"Woman's impatience," he muttered. "It has caused half the trouble in the world."

"That is unkind. I don't like such reflections upon my sex."

"Nothing personal was intended, Miss Belle. I was merely uttering my reflections aloud."

"Well, please don't do so any more."

The doctor watched the horses drinking for a few moments and then, leaning against the saddle of his black steed, he said:

"Can you keep the secret if I divulge it to you?"

"Can I? I don't think that question is necessary."

"No, probably not. But I want your promise that you will never reveal it to anybody," he persisted.

"Well, you have it. I will never mention it until you give me permission."

"All right, then. I will tell you all. When I was a young man, I went to India as a surgeon in the English army. There I met so many lepers that my attention was called particularly to this disease. At first they disgusted and alarmed me. Their rotting fingers and toe joints, their running sores and their emaciated bodies were so loathsome that I could hardly stay in their presence, but in time I got used to them, as we do to everything. I even found myself pitying them and wondering if something couldn't be done to alleviate their sufferings and even to cure and stamp out the horrible disease. This was the beginning of a career that I have studiously pursued ever since. I spent all my time in studying leprosy in its worst forms. I determined to find some remedy for it. I was limited in funds, but managed to get along by living near them. I could not exist in the same house with them. The thought of it nearly stifled me. But I could live near them and help them and in time perfect my discovery.

"My secret is already out, Miss Belle," he added after a pause. "I am devoting my time and life to the discovery of a positive cure for leprosy, that most dreaded of all diseases that ever scourged a wicked world. I am on the right track. In fact, I have about perfected it, so that I will be ready to announce the results to the world in a year. There is only one thing that bothers me. I am experimenting with this continually."

"Experimenting with whom?"

The words were so hollow and unnatural that I turned my eyes from the doctor's face to that of Miss Stetson. I was startled at the sight. Her face was livid—paler than that of any corpse. A look of horror shone from her eyes.

"Whom are you experimenting with, Dr. Squires?" she repeated in the same strange voice.

"With—why—my dear Miss Belle, have I divulged any family secret?" stammered the doctor. "Did you not know? I thought your father knew that you knew that"—

"That Charles had leprosy in his system—that he was a leper?" she said slowly.

"Your father knew it; his father knew it; Charles knew it when he met me. I understood that both families made no secret of it among themselves."

"No, I never knew what the disease was. Father never told me. Oh, can it be possible!"

She swayed in her saddle, and if the doctor had not caught her she would have fallen to the ground. I could hardly contain myself. The news nearly made me desperate. This accounted for everything. I was all wrong in my conclusions. The doctor was, after all, a good man, holding the secret of my master's life in his possession and trying hard to help him.

"You must let me give you some water, Miss Belle," the doctor said as he steadied her in the saddle. "Dismount a moment, and let me bathe your forehead."

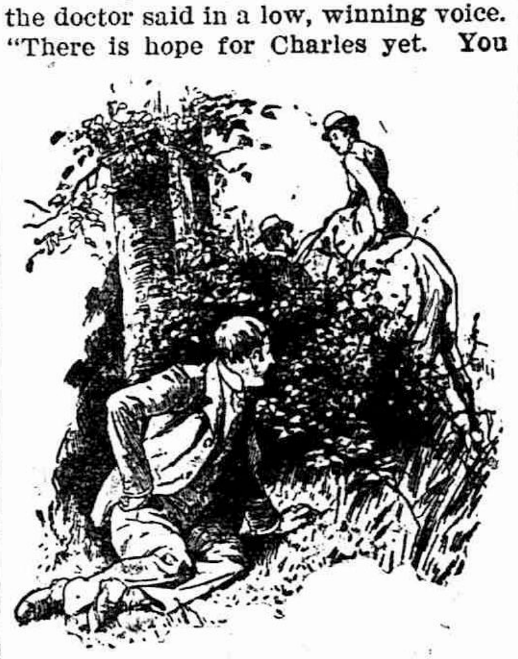
"No, thank you, doctor. I will be all right in a moment. The suddenness of the news startled me."

"I know it, I know it, and I was a brute to tell you. I should have been more thoughtful. I shall never forgive myself. But, Miss Belle, believe me, I thought you knew it all. He should have told you."

"No, no; I am glad he didn't. How could I have been the same to him? How can I in the future?"

She shuddered and covered her face with her hands.

"Don't go on so, my dear Miss Belle," the doctor said in a low, winning voice. "There is hope for Charles yet. You forget that I am close upon the greatest discovery of the age. If it succeeds, Charles will be a new man, free from all taint of leprosy."



The two had been engaged in conversation.

"But you could not eradicate the germs of the disease from his body; they might not show themselves in him, but in future generations they would come out."

"We can only hope for the best," he replied. "Who can tell what medicine may not accomplish? It has done wonders in the world already, and there are new worlds that it is conquering every day. We must look forward hopefully for results that it would be daring to predict now."

His words were intended to be encouraging, but she did not raise her head. From the slight shuddering of her delicate body I knew that she was sobbing.

"Do not yield to this weakness, Miss Belle," he added a moment later. "I tell you I will cure Charles. I can do it, and I will do it. If not for his sake, I will do it for yours."

A faint smile was visible through her tears as she looked at him and answered slowly:

"You are good, doctor, to sacrifice so much for either or both of us. Cure him by all means for his sake, not for mine. I could—no, I could never marry him; I would be afraid."

Again she covered her face and sobbed.

"Not if I cured him entirely?" he asked in a voice that had a curious tension to it. "Not if I assured you positively that the disease would never show itself while either of you lived?"

"No, no; I could not. It would be a sin, a crime. And yet I loved him so—I loved him, loved him!"

There was an awkward silence. The tears stood in my own eyes, but those of the doctor were dry and exultant. The confession, I knew, pleased him. These words from her lips would give him the clear field. He could honorably try to win her love. With Charles no longer a possible rival, what was there to prevent him from winning a beautiful bride and a princely fortune?

A few moments later they gathered up their reins and rode away. She was pale and beautiful; he was strong and robust—and exultant.

Heredity and Genius.

Expositions of the laws of heredity fail in affording no clew to the understanding of genius. As these laws of inheritance are now expounded it would seem that no offspring could ever rise above the average level of preceding generations, and we have all had thousands of commonplace ancestors. In animals excellence is, as a rule, easily accounted for; in man it is not so. How comes it that in the same family one member rises not merely above all the rest, but above the bulk of mankind? One only of the Bonapartes was a Napoleon; one only of the Shakespeares could write "Hamlet." And why should the son of an ordinary Lincolnshire farmer and his probably ordinary wife have turned out not merely the greatest natural philosopher of his time, but of all time? We are still waiting for a second Isaac Newton. To say that such men are "sports" is to give us a word for a thing and merely to cover ignorance. The sport must be caused, and what was the cause? The excellent work being done in tracing the influence of heredity only makes more astounding these prodigies of genius.—Baltimore Sun.

Wm. Smith, an L. S. & M. S. Ry. brakeman living in Hillsdale, was killed at Albion Thursday night. He is supposed to have fallen down between two cars while the train was in motion.

"Matchless misery" has been defined to be, having a cigar and nothing to light it with.

Sick Blood

Feed pale girls on Scott's Emulsion.

We do not need to give all the reasons why Scott's Emulsion restores the strength and flesh and color of good health to those who suffer from sick blood.

The fact that it is the best preparation of Cod Liver Oil, rich in nutrition, full of healthy stimulation is a suggestion as to why it does what it does.

Scott's Emulsion presents Cod Liver Oil at its best, fullest in strength, least in taste.

Young women in their "teens" are permanently cured of the peculiar disease of the blood which shows itself in paleness, weakness and nervousness, by regular treatment with Scott's Emulsion.

It is a true blood food and is naturally adapted to the cure of the blood sickness from which so many young women suffer.

We will be glad to send a sample to any sufferer.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

ROUND ABOUT US.

Manchester has a band of 22 pieces.

The remains of Earl Conklin arrived in Brooklyn Wednesday from San Francisco where on November 16th he died at the Presedio army hospital He enlisted February 14, 1900, when 19 years of age, going to the Philippines shortly afterward. He was a private in Co. D, 50th U. S. Infantry. The funeral was held Thursday from All Saints church at 1:30, Rev. W. R. Blachford officiating.

E. E. Cole has sold his fine carriage horse to a gentleman in Blairsville, Pa., for $200. Of course Elmer feels badly to think he parted with his horse, but he feels worse because he neglected to place a higher price on the animal, as he could just as well have got at least $100 more, as the price he did receive. He simply offered the horse for $300 and the horse fancier accepted the proposition without a moment's delay.—Hudson Gazette.

She was also the means of the erection at Ypsilanti of the log cabin at the fair grounds. Any one interested in Michigan pioneer pottery should write to her at once.

The Dunbars.

A crowded house greeted the Dunbar Royal Hand Bell Ringers Wednesday night. The entertainment was one of the best Tecumseh has had the pleasure of attending.

The quartette work, Ralph Dunbar with violoncello, Harry Dunbar with flute, the bells and Lulu Tyler Gates as reader, were all equally applauded. Ralph Dunbar in his 'cello renditions gave us music the like of which has not been heard before in this village.

Not one number on the program but was applauded and the company were unusually good natured and kind in returning. This entertainment alone was worth the price of the entire course, and if there is anyone who was present and did not enjoy the entertainment, their musical comprehensiveness is beyond all hope of rescue.

A Hard Kind of Joke.

Last Wednesday the Adrian Times clipped a quarter column article from the HERALD headed "A Good Joke," and credited it to the Tecumseh News. Now the HERALD always tries to be good natured, but as this is quite a frequent trick of the Adrian Times it is time to say "quit." If there is anything in the HERALD any of our neighbors wish, take it and either say nothing or give credit to whom it belongs.

32 INITIATED

At their Hall Monday Evening by the MACCABEES.

They Indulge in a Lively Time.

Last Monday night was the climax in the history of local fraternal lodges when thirty-two men were dubbed "Knight of the Chivalrous Order of Maccabees." The lodge room was well filled with members of our own Tent and visitors from Clinton, Tipton and Holloway Tents. The sight of 32 stalwart men, taking the step which will protect their families and dependents, was one which makes us think that life is something more than feeding our bodies and a mad rush for gain. Fraternal orders have demonstrated in our community within the last few weeks that they are ready to protect the widow and orphan, and that they are solid, reliable organizations.

Following the initiation, which was superbly done by the local degree team, came a sumptuous banquet, served by the ladies of Tecumseh Hive, to which all did ful justice. It was feared that Tecumseh could not furnish enough oysters, but all were satisfied.

Then came the "feast of reason and flow of soul," which was begun by the genial Dr. Nixon, commander of Holloway Tent. Mr. Rice, the deputy who successfully gathered in the large class, gave one of his characteristic and stirring speeches and Mr. Davis, of Clinton Tent, sang of his experiences with the Maccabee goat of the Clinton brand.

Speeches by Joseph Marsh, Dr. Maddox and a recitation by Floyd Waring completed the program and an evening of rare enjoyment and profit. The clock struck 12 when time came to disperse, and all voted the Maccabees the great and only.

The candidates were Earl Updike, F. J. Steinhoff, C. W. Witherell, Frank G. Welch, C. W. Hall, Albert Clark, Will Coller, Robt. Orr, Edward and Albert L. Marks, Fred Holmes, Lafayette Stevenson, Oscar Lydke, John and Thos. Riley, Frank Kennedy, Roy Ellis, Wm. C. Witherell, Joe Titherington, Clarence Zibble, Fritz Gygi, O. G. Hunt, Fred Bierman, Wesley Handy, Chas. Aecersold, E. M. Ayers, J. K. Lowe, C. M. Spencer, Andrew Kempf, Chas. Bird, Will A. Lowry, P. E. Jones.

K. O. T. M. ELECTION.

At the election of officers of K. O. T. M. M. Monday evening the following were elected:

Commander—Comfort Chase.
Lieut. Commander—W. P. McAdam.
Sergeant—F. S. Waring.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, the Great Commander has removed from our midst to the Great Tent above our beloved Sir Knight, Frank E. Bowerman, whom to know was to respect and honor for his many sterling qualities and manly principles.

Therefore be it resolved, that while we bow in humble submission to the will of the Supreme Being, we deeply lament our brother's sad death and extend to his widow and orphaned children our most sincere and tenderest sympathy; assuring them that their welfare will ever lie close to the Maccabee heart.

Resolved, that as an expression of our bereavement the charter of Tecumseh tent No. 142, K. O. T. M. M. be draped in mourning for a period of 60 days and that a copy of these resolutions be placed upon the records of this tent.

O. E. HAWKINS,
MICHAEL ECKERT,
JOSEPH MARSH.

John Fisher.

Tuesday about 3 p. m. occurred the sudden death of John Fisher, residing north of Tecumseh. Mr. Fisher left the house in the best of spirits to go out into the field where his help were working, and when returning, the men in the field noticed the horse that Mr. Fisher was driving was taking a very irregular course. They at once investigated and found the gentleman lying dead in his carriage. Heart disease was given as the cause of his death.

Mr. Fisher was a prosperous farmer and stock-raiser of Lenawee county and a prominent citizen of Clinton township, where he has one of the finest residences in the county.

He was born in Franklin county, Mass. August 4, 1829. In May 1836, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fisher Sr., with nine children, left their Massachusetts home and started on the then long journey to Michigan, and after twenty days of weary travel they settled in what is now Clinton Township.

John Fisher Jr. was the youngest but one of his parents' family and received an education in the select schools of the time.

He was first married in Tecumseh village Feb. 14, 1854, to Miss Rachel Hampton, daughter of Isaac and Almera Hampton, early settlers from New York. His second marriage occurred at Kalamazoo, Mich. July 31, 1868, when he was wedded to Mrs. Zoraida A. Hood, daughter of Dr. R. H. and Betsy (Foster) Henderson.

Mr. Fisher has always occupied a high social position in the township, and his sudden death is greatly felt by his large circle of friends. The funeral was held from his late residence at 1:30 today, Rev. Bower officiating.

Itching Skin

Distress by day and night—

That's the complaint of those who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with Eczema or Salt Rheum—and outward applications do not cure. They can't.

The source of the trouble is in the blood—make that pure and this scaling, burning, itching skin disease will disappear.

"I was taken with an itching on my arms which proved very disagreeable. I concluded it was salt rheum and bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. In two days after I began taking it I felt better and it was not long before I was cured. Have never had any skin disease since." MRS. IDA E. WARD, Cove Point, Md.

The County Fair.

The Nei. Burgess company played a good entertainment to a crowded house at The New Bradley last evening. It does not seem a hard thing for the Tecumseh people to find out which are the good companies that come here, and to these companies there is always a good house. In fact, Tecumseh is proud of its tasty little opera house and has given every good company this season good patronage.

Those attending the show from out-of town were as follows: From Macon: Messrs. and Mesdames Frank Day, Ross Biddle, Vern Sage and David McHaney, Miss Rose Chambers, Dr. Morden, Bradley Scudder, Walter Cotton, Ezra Day, Fred Ganough, Wm. McLain, Jerry, Floyd and Lawrence Burleson. From Clinton: Dr. and Mrs. Tuttle Jr., Messrs. and Mesdames L. B. Hittle, H. J. Kemp, J. Gillen, Chas. Matteson, Geo. Lancaster and Chas. Silvers, J. Marsteller and mother, Miss Ella Tuttle, Mesdames Frank and Chas. Johnson, Messrs. Richard Hittle, Frank Sage, Thomas Kirk, Richard Tantlar, Harry McClure, Ed and S. Lancaster, Prof. Wriedt, Fred VanDeMark, E. W. May, Peter Jacobs, J. Gibson and Marvin Pardee. From Manchester: Art Freeman and Miss Jessie Kimble.

John Clarkson.

John Clarkson, a wealthy and prominent farmer living in Macon township, died Saturday of kidney trouble, aged 77 years. Mr. Clarkson was born in Seneca county, New York, Dec. 26, 1824. He came to Michigan with his parents in 1831.

Mr. Clarkson is survived by two brothers, James and William, of Macon, and one sister, Nettie Bailey, who resides in Tecumseh. He leaves three married sons to mourn him, Sidney W., of Ann Arbor, Eugene, of Detroit, and Frank, of Tecumseh.

The funeral was held from his home in Macon, Monday at one o'clock p. m. conducted by Rev. Scarlett, of the South Macon church of which he was an active and generous member. His remains were interred in the Ridgeway cemetery.

Mr. Clarkson was one man of a thousand; generous, noble, kind and upright, and his many friends, near and far, will greatly miss him.

A COMMON ERROR.

The Same Mistake Is Made by Many Tecmseh People.

It's a common error.

To plaster the aching back.

To rub with liniment rheumatic joints.

When the trouble comes from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills

And are endorsed by Tecumseh citizens.

Vet. O. Austen, who lives with his son in the north eastern section of Tecumseh, says: "I am more than thankful that Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice for they did me a great deal of good, in fact they stopped a dull aching pain in my back which had annoyed me for years, and also rendered the action of the kidney secretions normal which at times were too frequent and highly colored. I tried a number of so-called kidney cures but I did not receive any benefit, before I learned about Doan's Kidney Pills and I knew people who had used them so I went to C. A. Wright's drug store and got them. To say I entertain a very favorable opinion of them as a kidney medicine is putting it in very mild terms. They are all and more than they are represented to be.

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

TREASURY REPORT.

Revenues From All Sources Total $684,326,280 47.

Washington, Dec. 4,—The annual report of Secretary of the Treasury Shaw for the fiscal year ending June 30, gives the revenues of the government for 1902 from all sources as $684,326,280 47.

The expenditures for the same period were: For the civil establishment, including foreign intercourse, public buildings, collecting the revenues, District of Columbia and other miscellaneous expenses, $111,067,171 39; for the military establishment, including rivers and harbors, forts, arsenals, seacoast defenses and expenses of the war with Spain and in the Philippines, $112,272,216 08; for the naval establishment, including [illegible] of vessels, machinery, armament, equipment, improvement at navy yards, and expenses of the war with Spain and in the Philippines, $67,8[illegible]; for Indian service, $10,049,584 86; for pensions, $138,488,559 73; for interest on the public debt, $29,108,044 82; for deficiency in postal revenues, $2,402,152 52; for postal service, $121,848,047 26; total expenditures, $593,038,904 90; showing a surplus of $91,287,375 57.

Compared with the fiscal year 1901, the receipts for 1902 decreased $14,990,250 45, occasioned principally by the falling off in the internal revenue department.

There was a decrease of $38,776,495 51 in expenditures, $33,854,519 of which was in the military establishment.

The treasury of the United States distinguishes, as the striking features of the condition of the treasruy, the magnitude of the available cash balance and the unprecedented holdings of gold. Among the notable events of the last fiscal year are the diminution of revenues due to the repeal of war taxes, the reduction of expenditures, and the changes in the composition of the paper currency.

GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS.

Short Sessions in Congress Wednesday, but Much Accomplished.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The senate Wednesday began the real work of disposing of the business before it, although the session lasted only an hour and a half. When an adjournment was taken at 1:30 o'clock out of respect to the memory of Representative De Graffenreid and Sheppard of Texas, the bill to amend the immigration laws was under discussion. Early in the day Mr. Nelson, from the committee on territories, reported a substitute for the omnibus statehood bill, with the recommendation that Oklahoma and Indian Territory be admitted into the Union as one state under the name of Oklahoma. When the immigration bill was brought up Mr. Quay precipitated a discussion over the status of the statehood bill, which was terminated by a ruling from the chair that, beginning on Dec. 10, it would be the unfinished business and that at the close of the morning hour each day it would be laid before the senate unless displaced by a vote of that body.

The house yesterday passed the bill to appropriate $50,000 to defray the expenses of the anthracite coal strike commission and then adjourned until Friday, when the London dock charge bill will be considered. There were two hours of discussion on the commission bill, during which the president's course in creating the commission was highly commended, except by Mr. Benton, a Missouri Democrat, who contended that the commission was created without authority of law or constitution.

Bursting Flywheel Killed Him.

East Liverpool, O., Dec. 4.—One man was killed and the Wellsville plant of the United Power company was destroyed yesterday by the bursting of a large flywheel. A piece, weighing more than a ton, crashed through the roof and struck the pottery of Burgess & Co., a block away, and killed John Miller, a carpenter, at work there.

Sagasta Quits Spanish Cabinet.

Madrid, Dec. 4.—Premier Sagasta has resigned. Sagasta had an audience with King Alfonso Wednesday morning, at which he intimated that the step was irrevocable. He informed the king that the opposition had treated him with distrust and discourtesy, which he did not deserve.

State Threshers Organize.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 4.—Thirty delegates from county associations of the Threshers' National Protective association met here yesterday and perfected a state organization. The members resent the statement frequently made that the organization is a threshers' trust. The threshers assert that while they want a fair price for their work they are not engaged in any conspiracy to charge exorbitant prices to farmers, but that the organization will be mutually helpful.

Saving His Father's Hair.

Lord Charles was often troubled by importunate acquaintances, who begged for some of his father's (the Duke of Wellington) hair. On such occasions he said to an old servant whose hair was like the duke's: "Sit down, John. I must cut off another lock!"

Asthma

"One of my daughters had a terrible case of asthma. We tried almost everything, but without relief. We then tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and three and one-half bottles cured her."—Emma Jane Entsminger, Langsville, O.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral certainly cures many cases of asthma.

FOUL BREATH?

DID YOU EVER MEET A PERSON WITH A FOUL BREATH?

and have them get close to you while relating some good joke? and although you wanted to escape the breath, you could not?

THE CAUSE

Is is a disordered stomach and a general bad condition of the blood, possibly a torpid liver was the primary cause. Would you not advise them to do something to get rid

OF THAT BREATH?

Reader, if you are one of those unfortunates with a foul breath, why do you not take action? why do you not see that your stomach is put in order? There is no excuse for it when there is a remedy at hand.

Kinyon's Blood and Kidney Remedy

Strengthens the kidneys, enabling these important organs to carry off the impurities. Regulates the liver so that it may aid in the digestive operation and keep the bowels active. Tones up the stomach and enables it to properly digest the food so that the body may be nourished and become strong. With these organs all active and strong the system becomes cleansed and the foul breath will leave as if by magic. Do not delay. Act at once.

A Bird That's Hard to Kill.

Penguins have an extraordinary amount of vitality and are harder to kill than any ordinary cat. I once had occasion to kill a large bird aboard our ship, the Southern Cross, and, making use of the weapon next my hand, I drove a large spike squarely through the creature's head and finished the operation by nailing it fast to the deck. That seemed to make the job very complete, and I went below decks for dinner. Coming up an hour later, my astonishment was prodigious on beholding the penguin, head erect, flippers out, waddling about, apparently without thought of the spike, which still remained transfixed in his cranium.—C. TEACHERS TO MEET

State Association to Convene in Saginaw.

MARKS ITS SEMI-CENTENNIAL

December 29-31 Inclusive—Numerous Subjects Relative to School Work to Be Taken Up—Many Prominent Educators Will Be in Attendance.

Saginaw, Mich., Dec. 6.—What promises to be the most important meeting in the history of the State Teachers' association will be the annual convention to be held in this city Dec. 29-31, at which indications point to an attendance of upward of 1,000 members.

An interesting feature of this year's meeting will be the observance on the opening day of the semi-centennial of the association, for which a special program has been prepared. In the evening the members will be entertained by the Polyhymnia club with a concert and an address on "Education and efficiency" by Professor George E. Vincent of Chicago university. After the address a reception will be tendered the teachers by the City Federation of Women's clubs.

The morning session of the second day will be devoted to papers on "The school and the citizen," "The fundamentals of an education," and "County school problems," by Sarah Louise Arnold of Boston, Superintendent P. J. Wilson of Adrian, and Superintendent Orville T. Bright of Chicago. In the afternoon the association will divide into ten sections for the discussion of kindergarten, primary, high school, grammar school, college, school boards, county commissioners, music, mathematics, manual training and kindred topics. The evening will be devoted to an address, probably by Professor Schurman of Cornell university, following a concert by the Schumann club.

The third and closing day will be given over to addresses by prominent educators, among them President Jones of the Michigan Normal college and Professor Clark of Chicago university. President Jones will have for his subject "My pedagogical creed."

Among the problems to be discussed are the centralization of rural schools; whether the "new" arithmetic is an improvement on the old; practical manual training in village and country schools; to what degree college entrance requirements should control high school courses; how to select and keep good teachers; the place of natural study in schools; the use of examinations; the manner of training for citizenship, and how to take care of truants.

One 'Phone Exchange Enough.

Jackson, Mich., Dec. 6.—A new phase of the row between the rival telephone companies here is the active participation of the business men. The associated coal dealers have agreed to order out their Bell telephones and the boss paperhangers, or most of them, have taken similar action. The Bell company is in a fight with the Trades council in regard to the employment of union linemen, and there is a strong sentiment favoring a single telephone system.

Two Killed by Falling Trees.

Alpena, Mich., Dec. 6.—Andrew Hoppe, a homesteader residing eight miles south of Metz, was killed by a falling tree. A widow and three children are left in poor circumstances.

Cadillac, Mich., Dec. 6.—Oscar Stran, aged 25, was killed at the Cummer & Diggins Co.'s camp at Woodward lake yesterday by being struck on the head by a falling tree. He came from Sweden one month ago, and had no relatives in the United States.

Battle to the Death.

Marquette, Mich., Dec. 6.—A Marquette man has received from a friend at Ontonagon two deer heads, the antlers of which are so firmly fastened together it is impossible to pull them apart. They tell the story of a fierce combat between two large bucks and are being mounted for preservation. The deer were killed by Frank Walger, a resident of Ontonagon county, who came upon the two deer engaged in a deadly struggle.

Unknown Man Drowned.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 6.—An unknown man attempted to board the steamer Frank E. Kirby at the foot of First street. He slipped and fell into the foot and a half space between the boat and dock, screaming as he went into the water. Patrolman Campbell fished around for the man with a pike pole and in twenty minutes recovered the body.

Went Insane at His Trial.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 6.—Warren Laurie, a former city official, who was recently brought back from Washington state on complaint of a young girl, went insane during his trial. He attempted to strike the prosecutor and threatened his own counsel. Laurie is 40 years of age. He belted the world the world while a fugitive from justice.

Murder in First Degree.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., Dec. 6.—The examination of Charles Allan on the charge of killing Reed Cornell at Romeo on the night of Nov. 21 was finished Friday morning, and the prisoner was bound over to the circuit court to stand trial for murder in the first degree at the December term, which commences next week.

Detroit Man Slugged and Robbed.

Buffalo, Dec. 6.—Under pretense that he was to aid a poverty-stricken widow, Paul Preston, said to be of Detroit, was lured into a shanty on the Abbott road by two men, who knocked him down and robbed him of $40. The assailants escaped.

Witnessed Lincoln's Assassination.

Owego, N. Y., Dec. 6.—B. W. Loring, first lieutenant, U. N. N., retired, died yesterday at his home. He witnessed the assassination of President Lincoln and was one of the first to reach the stricken man and help carry him to the house where he died.

Foils a Deadly Attack.

"My wife was so ill that good physicians were unable to help her," writes M. M. Austin, of Winchester, Ind., "but was completely cured by Dr. King's New Life Pills." They work wonders in stomach and liver troubles. Cure constipation, sick headache. 25c at C. A. Wright's drug store.

Remains of Ex-Speaker Reed Removed to His Home.

MANY EXTEND SYMPATHY

President and Mrs. Roosevelt Among Them—No Ceremony in Washington—Deceased Was 63 Years of Age—Short Sketch of His Public Career.

Washington, Dec. 8.—The remains of Hon. Thomas Brackett Reed, formerly speaker of the house of representatives, who died Saturday night, left here Sunday for Portland Me., his former home, where the interment will take place Tuesday afternoon. Accompanying the body were Mrs. Reed, the widow; Miss Catherine Reed, the former speaker's daughter; Hon. Amos L. Allen, Mr. Reed's successor in the house of representatives; Mrs. Asher C. Hinds, Mr. Reed's parliamentary clerk while speaker, and Mr. Augustus G. Payne of New York, a lifelong friend. At Mrs. Reed's request, there were no ceremonies of any kind here and at Portland they will be of a simple character.

During the entire day there was a stream of sympathetic callers at the Arlington hotel, where the body of Mr. Reed lay, awaiting removal to the railroad station. They included President and Mrs. Roosevelt, members of the cabinet and of the senate and house of representatives and of the diplomatic corps. Many persons in private life also called. Neither Mrs. Reed nor her daughter saw any of the visitors, who simply left their cards.

The body was enclosed in a casket with heavy oxydized extension handles, and on the top was a solid silver plate, on which had been engraved the following inscription: "Thomas Brackett Reed, Oct. 18, 1839—Dec. 7, 1902." On the casket rested two floral offerings, one of them from the widow, and the other, enclosed in a long pasteboard box, from Mrs. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Reed's offering was a large wreath of violets, American Beauty roses and orchids sprinkled with lilies of the valley, while in the box which came from the White House were an assortment of white and pink roses, with maiden hair fern loosely thrown together, for use on the casket when the interment is made.

The arrangement for the obsequies at Portland have been left in the hands of Hon. Joseph W. Symonds and John C. Small, an old neighbor of Mr. Reed. As far as tentatively arranged here, the funeral will take place some time Tuesday afternoon from the First Parish Unitarian church, of which the Rev. John Carroll Perkins is pastor. Interment will be at Evergreen cemetery.

THOMAS B. REED.

Thomas Brackett Reed was born in Portland, Me., on Oct. 18, 1839. The common schools of the city gave him his early education and it was finished at Bowdoin college. Here he graduated in 1860, among the first in his class, and taking the highest honors open to a Bowdoin student—the prize for excellence in English composition.

His college days ended, he began to teach in a Portland high school, studying law meantime. In 1863 he went to California, intending to make his home in that far off state. Then he taught school, too, and began the practice of law, but family reasons called him back to Portland before he had been a year on the Pacific slope. In April, 1864, he was appointed acting assistant paymaster in the United States navy and assigned to duty on the gunboat Sybil.

Mr. Reed was discharged from the United States service and returned to Portland in 1865. There he was admitted to the bar of his native county of Cumberland, and his civil career began in earnest. He forged ahead from the very start, and, like most young lawyers of proper spirit, mingled politics with business. He soon became active as a Republican, so active and so favorably regarded was he that, in 1868, without his knowledge of their intentions, his party nominated him for the Maine house of representatives. He was elected.

Those Maine Republicans saw that they had found the right sort of a representative and promtply re-elected him in 1869 and promoted him to the senate in 1870. In 1876 he became a candidate for congress in the district composed of Cumberland and York counties.

The new congressman took his seat in the house, whose potent leader he was destined to be, on Oct. 15, 1877.

The memorable Fifty-first congress met on Dec. 2, 1889. Thomas B. Reed was elected speaker, receiving 166 votes to 154 for John G. Carlisle, and one for Amos J. Cummings.

In the twenty-one years Mr. Reed sat in congress the part he played would take too long to tell in detail. His great powers of leadership were pre-eminently manifested. In the minority in every congress except those of 1881 and 1889, he learned in opposition how to exercise power when in the majority.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—Thomas Brackett Reed, former speaker of the house of representatives, and for many years prominent in public life, died here Saturday night at 12:10 o'clock in his apartments in the Arlington hotel. The immediate cause of his death was uraemia.

Crushed Under Car Wheels.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 8.—While Miss Carroll was crossing the railroad tracks on the way from her home, at 529 Wesson avenue, to attend mass at Holy Redeemer church on Junction and Dix avenues, she was literally crushed to death by the trucks of a freight car passing over her. Coming to the railway crossing, she found it blocked by a train of freight cars attached to a switch engine. Not wishing to wait until the train moved, she tried to pass between two of the cars. As she was in the act of doing so the train started and the unfortunate young woman was thrown down, falling across one of the rails, where she was crushed beneath one of the wheels of the heavy car. The train was brought to a stop again before any of the other cars had passed over the poor girl.

Stick to Decide His Fate.

Owosso, Mich., Dec. 8.—The defense of Calvin Linerd of Shaftsburg, the man who is alleged to have killed Solomon Stevens with a stick of stove wood during a quarrel over Mrs. George Snyder, has been outlined. When Linerd comes into court this week his attorney will offer in evidence the stick with which he is alleged to have struck Stevens. The stick is fourteen inches long, dry and rotten. The defense claims it will be a very credulous jury that will believe any man was fatally injured by it, especially as Linerd weighs but 125 pounds and Stevens weighed 170. Linerd has heretofore stoutly declared he did not know where the stick with which he struck Stevens went to. Some believed he burned it.

New Masonic Quarters.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Dec. 8.—The Masonic bodies in this city are the proudest in Michigan, because they are now at home in elegant new quarters of their own, and the formal dedication of the new Masonic temple will be a feature of interest to all Masons in southwestern Michigan. The new quarters occupy the entire second and third floors of a modern, new, fireproof, steam-heated building, just erected at a cost of $30,000 without the furnishings. Over $5,000 has been expended so far in furniture for the rooms and at least $7,000 more will be spent for Masonic paraphernalia. It is expected that the formal opening will take place in about ten days.

Michigan Pensioners.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Michigan pensions were granted Saturday as follows: Increase, reissue, etc.—Henry Zagers, Crystal Valley, $17; David Remmington, Menominee, $8; Delora Hunt, Litchfield, $12; David H. Long, Eaton Rapids, $24; Albert Zimmer, West Branch, $6; James Hall, Hope, $8; Henry Still, Soldiers' Home, Kent, $8; John S. Willard, Hollywood, $12. Widows—Sarah J. Baughton, Springville, $8; Louisa E. Lansing, Niles, $8; Sarah A. Hutchings, Brighton, $8.

Sought Death In the River.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 8.—The body of a man was taken from the Kalamazoo river near Augusta Saturday morning, search having been caused by the finding of clothing on the bank. The body had floated down the stream several miles, and had evidently been in the water two or three days. From a letter found in the pocket of the coat it is thought his name was James A. Crane and his home Detroit.

Fever-Stricken Soldiers Arrive.

Newport News, Va., Dec. 8.—The U. S. Panther reached Hampton Roads from Colon Sunday, bringing the fever-stricken marines who have been protecting the railroad property on the isthmus for more than a month. Aboard the vessel were 380 men. Thirty-four of them, of whom two were officers, were taken to the naval hospital at Portsmouth. These cases are understood to be serious. The other stricken marines are not very ill, and will be granted shore leave until they can recuperate. The Panther had an extremely rough voyage from San Juan, whence she sailed last Monday.

Terrible R. R. Crossing Accident.

Havelock, Ont., Dec. 8.—James Rogers of Belmont was driving across the Canadian Pacific tracks with his family when a train struck the sleigh. Mrs. Rogers and a 12-year-old son were killed. Mr. Rogers and his daughter, aged 9, were fatally injured, and another 14-year-old lad was badly hurt.

Never Recovered From Shock.

Eaton Rapids, Mich., Dec. 6.—Herman Bateman, the young man whose arm was caught in a carding machine at Horner's woolen mills and nearly severed from his body ten days ago, died Friday afternoon.

ALLEGED BLACKLISTING.

Miners Continue to Testify That the Coal Companies Practiced It.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 6.—The lawyers for the mineworkers continued to call witnesses Friday before the strike commission to testify to the alleged blacklisting methods pursued by several coal companies in refusing to reemploy strikers who took a more or less prominent part in the affairs of the mineworkers' union during the recent suspension. All of them said they had been employed before the strike, but were refused their old places after the strike was ended.

In most cases, according to the testimony, no satisfactory reason was given why they were not taken back. Two blind men, who were also otherwise badly injured by underground explosions, were presented as living evidence of the dangers in the mines. When the commission adjourned for the day the Rev. J. J. Curran, the Roman Catholic clergyman of Wilkesbarre, who took a prominent part in the miners' cause during the recent strike, was on the witness stand. Only one session will be held today.

Nothing could be learned here yesterday with reference to the reported efforts at settlement outside the commission. None of the attorneys for either side professed to know anything about any contemplated move in that direction.

MAY RECEIVE HONORS.

Bill Permitting Acceptance of Foreign Decorations by Certain Americans.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The house devoted Friday to bills on the private calendar. The most important bill passed was one to adjudicate in the court of claims the claims of certain importers of steel blooms who, between 1879 to 1882, paid custom duties equivalent to 45 per cent ad valorem, when it is claimed the correct rate should have been 30 per cent. About $350,000 is involved. A bill to pay Smithmeyer and Pelz(architects of the congressional library, $50,000 additional compensation was defeated.

A bill was passed authorizing the following persons to accept presents and decorations from foreign governments: Captain B. H. McCalla, U. S. N.; Drs. Eugene Wasdin and H. B. Geddings, U. S. M. H. S.; Henry E. Alford, W. A. Taylor, H. W. Wiley, M. A. Carleton and John I. Shulte of the department of agriculture; John A. Okerman of the Mississippi river commission; Casper S. Crowninshield, U. S. commercial agent; Miss Anna Tolman Smith and Lieutenant-Colonel F. H. Phipps.

Representative Bromwell of Ohio, with a view to securing a minimum of a nine-foot stage of water in the Ohio river, Friday introduced a bill appropriating $200,000 for the survey of the river from the mouth of Big Miami to the mouth of the Ohio.

A bill was introduced in the house authorizing the president and the authorities of the state of Texas to run and mark the boundary lines between Oklahoma and New Mexico and the state of Texas.

At 4:05 p. m. the house adjourned.

Women as Rural Deliverers.

Washington, Dec. 6.—It has recently been brought to the attention of Postmaster-General Payne that about twenty-five women are holding positions as carriers in the rural free delivery service, and a call has been made upon Superintendent Machen of that branch for information about them. An investigation will be made to learn whether they are performing their duties in a satisfactory manner. It appears the appointments were made without knowledge of the sex of the appointees. Mr. Payne is said to be opposed to the appointment of women to such service.

Stone Raised Yates' Quarantine.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 6.—Governor Stone has taken prompt action to raise the quarantine which has been ordered by Governor Yates of Illinois against Pennsylvania cattle on account of the foot and mouth disease which exists among cattle in the New England states. Governor Stone wrote a letter to Governor Yates protesting against his action and advising him that there has been no such disease in this state since 1882, that there has been none in New York, and there is none and has been none in New Jersey.

Don't Eat Cherries.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Twelve million bacteria inhabit the skins of a half pound of cherries, according to Dr. Ehrlich, a German scientist, who has made extensive experiments in regard to the infection of fruit with bacteria. Currants come next with 11,000,000 to every half pound, and grapes next with 8,000,000. An account of these experiments has been transmitted to the state department by United States Consular Clerk Murphy at Frankfort. Dr. Ehrlich urges that all fruit be cleaned, by each peeling or washing, before it is eaten.

Big Concern Failed.

Boston, Dec. 6.—Serious delay to municipal and government work is likely to occur by the failure here Friday of the contracting firm of F. G. Coburn & Co., one of the largest firms of its kind in the east. The liabilities are estimated at $150,000, one-half of which is due to the Ceneral National bank. The assets are about $62,000. The company is building two hospitals for the city of Boston, and two great shops at the Charlestown navy yard for the United States government.

To Put Mexico on Gold Standard.

Mexico City, Dec. 6.—It is reiterated that a powerful New York syndicate is disposed to furnish the government with sufficient gold to establish firmly a gold standard here. The sum named is $50,000,000. Some local bankers think half of that amount would be ample. There is a strong sentiment in favor of retaining the silver dollars, although giving them a nominal value.

Boat Went Over Dam.

Rice's Landing, Pa., Dec. 6.—A skiff containing Charles Love, aged 32 years, and John Rock, aged 16 years, went over dam No. 6 on the Monongahela river last night and the occupants were drowned.

PROFESSIONAL BRETHREN

CHAPTER XI.

It is not often that conflicting emotions trouble me. But on that afternoon as I walked back to Mr. Goddard's house I experienced the strangest contradiction of feelings. One moment I thought I would pursue the tragedy no further, but decamp immediately and let my master work out his own fate. After all, he was nothing to me, and he probably cared less for me than I did for him.

But the next moment I would have a revulsion of feelings. I would fall to pitying and sympathizing with both my master and Miss Stetson. Her love for him was genuine, and it must be a terrific blow to receive such intelligence. Was she not to be pitied more than Mr. Goddard? On the other hand he was conscious of the terrible doom that awaited him and was buoyed up only by the thought that possibly Dr. Squires could cure him. But now he could never gain his prize. Would she marry him even though pronounced cured?

What would be the result? Mr. Goddard would go away to some foreign country, and after grieving over him for a time Miss Stetson would yield to the importunities of Dr. Squires and marry him. I saw the climax of the tragedy, which, after all, would prove a tragedy only to my master, and it made me more faithful in my devotion to the unfortunate man. This decided me to stay by him until the time should come when my expectations would be fulfilled. Then I would return to my old ways. Meanwhile I was leading an honest life and making the money which I spent.

I had become quite efficient in my duties, and was trusted in many ways that never fell to the lot of my predecessor. I was more than butler—I was my master's confidential secretary in many respects. But there were some secrets that he would not reveal to me, and one was the dread disease which brought him so much care and sorrow.

After hearing the truth from Dr. Squires' own lips my attention was drawn more closely to Mr. Goddard's appearance. I watched his languid manners, his pale face and all the symptoms of disease that he showed during his periodical fits of sickness. More than this, I read up all the medical books about leprosy and then watched for the signs. To an excited imagination these were readily visible.

About this time Miss Stetson and the doctor took lunch at the house again, and my attention was called to the matter by an incident that greatly affected all of us. I had not seen Miss Stetson since that afternoon when I watched her from my hiding place at the wayside brook. She was paler than usual, and her manner was nervous and excited, especially when Charles was near her.

During the progress of the lunch I caught her studying the hands and face of her host on every occasion when his eyes were turned away from her. I could not at first understand the reason for this secret scrutiny, but it suddenly dawned upon me that she, too, had been reading on the subject and was looking for symptoms of the disease.

The doctor, as usual, was the life of the party and kept the conversation flowing freely from one to the other, never being at a loss for words. Nevertheless there was an uneasiness in his manner which seemed very unnatural. My master alone appeared to be perfectly at his ease and normal.

When the conversation lagged a moment, he suddenly rubbed the back of one of his hands with the palm of the other and said:

"Doctor, I think I must have run up against some poison ivy or sumac in the woods, for I'm sure that my hands and face are poisoned."

"Very likely, very likely," the doctor replied quickly, but with a little tremor in his voice. "There is a great deal of it around, and one of your nature would be very susceptible to it."

"My hands and face itch terribly, and blotches are breaking out on my face and forehead," Mr. Goddard continued.

I looked at Miss Stetson. She was staring at my master with horror written all over her face. The hand that held her fork trembled so that she had to put it down.

My master displayed his hands and added:

"See these red spots on the back of my hand. Are they not the result of poison? And over my eyes and forehead. They seem to be breaking out all over."

"Probably, Charles. I will investigate after lunch," the doctor said hurriedly, glancing toward Miss Stetson.

For the first time Mr. Goddard turned his eyes toward her. Feeling that she was attracting attention, her overwrought nerves could stand the strain no longer. She had been thinking as I had—that the brown spots were the first and earliest symptoms of leprosy. We both knew just enough to be carried away by any symptoms that resembled those which indicate the beginning of the dread disease.

"Belle, what is the matter? Are you ill?"

Mr. Goddard had hardly spoken these words before she dropped her hands and fainted. She would have fallen to the floor had I not caught her in time.

They deposited her on a couch and rubbed her hands and moistened her brow with water. She slowly recovered consciousness.

"You should not have mentioned being poisoned to her," the doctor said admonishingly to my master. "To one of her sensitive disposition the mere mention of a thing like that might cause her to faint."

"How careless and brutal of me," my master said in tones of repentance.

Then as she opened her eyes he knelt down by her side and, drawing one of her hands into his, said:

"Did I frighten you? I was a brute to do it. Look at me, Belle, and tell me that you forgive me."

For reply she turned her head away from him with a shudder and withdrew her hand from his clasp.

"What is it, dear?" he continued. "Do not draw away so. Tell me what it is that I have done. I will do anything to repair it. Speak, Belle."

"Leave me, please; leave me," she gasped. "I'm nervous and excited. Let me alone for a few minutes, and then I'll be better. But I must go home. Doctor, will you help me to get on my things?"

"Belle, you're not going to leave me like this," pleaded my master, approaching her again.

But she moved aside and said in a wavering voice:

"Let me go now, Charles. Maybe I can explain some day. I'm not myself now. Goodby!"

She did not extend her hand or offer to take his, but walked quickly out of the room.

Mr. Goddard stood quite still for some time, puzzled, perplexed, discouraged.

Aged Man Killed by Trolley.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 6.—George Sowden, aged over 76 years, of 485 Holbrook avenue, was killed Friday while attempting to drive in front of a northbound Woodward avenue car, near Rosedale court and Woodward avenue. The accident was peculiar in the fact that he was not thrown from his carriage, though it was nearly demolished. Those who saw the accident say Sowden evidently thought he could pass in front of the car, but miscalculated, and was struck squarely. The running gear of the carriage was torn away and the body fell back partially under the seat. Sowden breathed several times as he law on the carriage floor, but was soon dead.

Testimony Was Too Filthy.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 6.—An epidemic of filth is now passing the circuit court. The trial of Warren Laurie, disposed of Thursday by finding the prisoner insane, was followed yesterday by a case against William Ely, a local barber, for statutory assault, the complaint being based upon the testimony of a young daughter and four other girls. The evidence was so vile that the judge ordered the witness box reversed, that the girls might testify to the court and jury without unnecessary exhibition to the audience, which packed the courtroom. Many women attended.

Michigan Pensioners.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Michigan pensions were granted Friday as follows: Original—James N. Wallace, Ypsilanti, $6. Increase, reissue, etc.—Barnard A. Moss, Millington, $10; Eugene A. Belden, Trenton, $10; Orlando G. Crandall, Stanwood, $10; John Biddle, Oden, $10; Henry Rodesilar (dead), Blissfield, $12; James H. Eustic, Bay City, $12. Widows—Martha Jones, Palo, $12; Emily Gillett, Cadillac, $12; Sophia Martin, Sherman City, $6; Effa Rathburn, Muir, $8; Magdalena Robillar, Blissfield, $8.

Drowned in Green Bay.

Menominee, Mich., Dec. 6.—The body of Thomas McCurdy, aged 60, was found in the river at the Diamond Match company's mill at Green Bay Friday morning. McCurdy's home was in Marinette, where he leaves a widow and two daughters. He was a watchman for the Diamond Match company, and disappeared last Wednesday. It was then thought he might have slipped off the dock at night into the river.

Burglars Busy at Ionia.

Ionia, Mich., Dec. 6.—Officers ascribe to local talent three burglaries committed here Thursday night. At the grocery of Haight & Jepson a quantity of goods was taken, but the richest haul was at Engleman's saloon, where $400 in cash, as well as cigars and liquors, is missing. The third place visited was Comstock's saloon, but the plunder secured was of small value.

Unloaded Car to Release Man.

Howard City, Mich., Dec. 6.—H. Hamilton, a brakeman on the Grand Rapids & Indiana road, had his leg badly crushed here early Friday morning. He was sidetracking a car of lumber which shifted, catching him between the cars. The lumber had to be unloaded before he was released.

The Last Resort.

A near relation of the late Baron Munchausen on the maternal side, lineally descended from Ananias and Sapphira, was telling a party of friends about treeing a bull buffalo in one of the great trees of California.

"That story lacks likelihood," remarked the man who knows everything, like so many other men. "The buffalo belongs to the ruminant family, has four or five stomachs and walks on hoofs. It has no claws at all and could no more climb a tree than a Jersey cow."

"As a general proposition you are right," said the story teller, with perfectly unruffled mien, "but this case was quite exceptional. We were after the buffalo with four of the most vicious dogs that I ever knew. One was a boar hound, one a great dane, one a psovie, or wolfhound, and the other a registered bulldog, with jaws like wrought iron. Well, they brought the buffalo to bay at the foot of the big tree and pressed him so blamed hard that he just had to climb. That was his only salvation."—New York Times.

For a Pinch of Snuff.

Louis XVIII. of France, while reciting an ode of Horace to his chamberlain one day, suddenly stopped to take a pinch of snuff and was annoyed to find that he had left the box in his bedroom.

With a low bow the chamberlain handed him his own box, and the monarch took a good pinch from it, after which he recited the long ode to the end. He then said to the chamberlain:

"You have a poor niece, I believe. Well, I like your snuff so well that I propose, as a token of gratitude to you, to give her the right to open a toy store in the Tuileries. I will sign the necessary papers this evening."

Thanks to this royal grant, the chamberlain's niece conducted a small but profitable business until her death, in 1859. Her little store then became the property of the state, and ever since it has been rented for about 400 francs a year.

Thus the French republic of today owes a portion of its income to the fact that Louis XVIII. appreciated good snuff.

PROFIT

The matter of feed is of tremendous importance to the farmer. Wrong feeding is loss. Right feeding is profit.

The up-to-date farmer knows what to feed his cows to get the most milk, his pigs to get the most pork, his hens to get the most eggs. Science.

But how about the children? Are they fed according to science, a bone food if bones are soft and undeveloped, a flesh and muscle food if they are thin and weak and a blood food if there is anemia?

Scott's Emulsion is a mixed food; the Cod Liver Oil in it makes flesh, blood and muscle, the Lime and Soda make bone and brain. It is the standard scientific food for delicate children.

Mark Twain, who is always doing something unique and frequently humorous is again to the front with a novel proposition. A Grand Rapids chap named Titus, sues a Chinese resturanter named Hoy for slander. It is an amusing case too. As the man entered the restaurant, the smart Chinee remarked, "I know you You been here with other lady." The husband had all kinds of trouble to explain the matter, for the wife seemed willing to take the heathen's joke as a serious charge, and the love of years was knocked out in the first round. Titus now wishes $5,000 of the pigtail's wealth. When he gets it, his wife will probably believe that Hoy was simply jollying. Titus is in almost as hard luck as the traveling man who was fond of honey, and at one town always was supplied with a choice bit at the hotel. He used to be so enthusiastic over the matter, that he induced his wife to go with him on one of his trips and made it a point to visit his honey hotel. At the table he did not notice his favorite dish and calling one of the girls, inquired, "Where is my honey?" "Oh she don't work here any more," was the reply, and had not the wife understood the situation it is likely that an intermission of half an hour at least, would have been necessary.

BIG SUCCESS.

The Fair Given Friday Afternoon and Evening by

THE MACCABEES

Was Well Attended, and the Elaborate Appearance of the Booths was a Very Pretty Sight.

The Lady Maccabees gave a very pretty and entertaining fair at their hall Friday afternoon and evening. Tickets had been sold for a quilt drawing and, of course, local interest was at a high tension. The hall was filled from the time the fair commenced until the many pretty things on exhibition there were disposed of.

Upon entering the hall the first thing to attract the gaze of the visitor was the Japanese booth, over which Mrs. Chas. Heck and Mrs. Robt McClelland, dressed to represent Japanese ladies, in robes of Oriental splendor, presided. Wafers and dainty cups of tea were served at this booth. A large Japanese umbrella afforded a covering while screens and lanterns, peculiar to that nation, further carried out the elaborate effect.

Passing on, one next came to the "Refreshment" booth, at which Mrs. Geo. Van Atta and Mrs. Wm. Chiverall served the public with those dainties that tempt the hungry. The booth was artistically set off by lace and green drop curtains.

Next of note came the "Fortune Telling" booth, here for the small sum of five cents, one could become acquainted with events yet to happen, one's discerning powers failed to ascertain the identity of the young ladies presiding over this booth, but, from the pleased look upon the face of all coming from this attraction, much credit must be given that secret art.

Next came the "Candy" booth, where under a canopy of red, white and blue bunting, Mrs. Al Titus and Mrs. Thos. McCann sold the choicest of candies.

Last but not least, we are brought before the "Fancy Work," booth, work displayed at this booth was indeed very pretty and, taken all together it afforded one of the chief attractions of the fair. Mrs. C. E. Colson and Mrs. Joseph VanNess displayed to the public those things on sale at this booth, which visitors were desirous of purchasing.

The quilt drawing was held in the evening, the tenth and lucky number being held by Miss Ella Titus, who is now the proud possessor of a very handsome quilt.

This brought to an end the fair which had been very successfully carried through. About $50 were cleared.

Surprise Party.

A pleasant surprise was given Mr. and Mrs. Adam Mull Friday evening. They are preparing to move to Blissfield and had been down there Friday.

Upon returning home at night they found the house occupied by over thirty friends, each one bent on having a good time.

The good people, of course, were surprised but entertained the guests hospitably. At the wee sma' hour the guests departed wishing the host and hostess a happy future in their new home and leaving many useful and beautiful presents and mementos of the happy hours spent together.

A GOOD LETTER.

Mrs. Robt. Stretch Received Such a One from Her Cousin,

LYSTER H. DEWEY,

Written while Enroute from Lexington to Washington.

Pullman car "Emir," Train No. 4, Chesapeake & Ohio Ry., near White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Thanksgiving morning, Nov. 27 '02.

MY DEAR MRS. STRETCH:

I am on my way back to Washington after a trip to the Blue Grass region of Kentucky to secure information about hemp. I left Washington Monday afternoon and spent Tuesday and yesterday at Lexington and Nicholasville in Kentucky.

It rained most of the time I was there and you may be sure it was not quite pleasant tramping around in the mud in the hemp fields, and the country—a most charming and lovely farming region with most delightfully hospitable people—does not look so beautiful under leaden skies as when the hemp shocks, the blue grass, and all the trees and fences are lightened up with the golden glow of sunshine.

The roads throughout all that region are of broken stone and are kept in such good repair that deep mud seems never to be known on the "pikes." These pikes seem to be well appreciated for this is the region even more famous for its horses than it is for its blue grass or its hemp fiber. The good roads have made a demand for good driving horses and the supply of good horses has doubtless aided in the growth of public sentiment demanding good roads.

It is a most beautiful country, with its fine old farm houses, built in a very substantial way, largely of brick, often of a modified colonial style with the tall porch pillars of ante bellum days.

The men are chivalrous and the women beautiful—I would not dare say more so than the women of Michigan—but they are the descendants of people whom our novelists have long enjoyed choosing as subjects for their romantic tales. There is less of the foreign element than one usually finds in the cities and towns of our northern states or even in many of our farming communities, and to this in large degree may doubtless be ascribed their chivalrous character and genuine politeness.

I enjoy these trips immensely as a change from the routine of office work, although the work at my desk could scarcely be called monotonous as there are never two days quite alike. I like getting out where I can learn new facts at first hand and where I can see the country with the horizon not bounded by brick walls and smoky chimneys.

Since I awoke early this morning, we have been winding in and out among the mountains, along the banks of turbulent streams and darting through the black tunnels in the high Alleghanies. The scenery along this line is the most beautiful that I have ever feasted my eyes upon in the eastern United States.

In early morning, as our train was late, we came along the New River as far as Hinton, West Virginia, then on up the Green Brier and over, or rather through, the crest of one of the ridges at Alleghaney Station, then down Dunlap Creek and along the Upper James to Clifton Forge, and now we are going along up in the higher foot hills on the western side of the Shenandoah Range to Panther Gap where we will break through and coast down the other side into the famous Shenandoah valley.

Coasting reminds me of the old Thanksgiving days when I was a boy and, after we had done full justice to chicken pie and mince pie and cookies with a raisin in the center of each and several other things to tickle the palate. We would go out on the hill and Father, with a sled full of children and grandchildren, would coast down toward the barn where the scales were kept and we were all weighed. Sufficient snow for coasting on Thanksgiving day made great sport for us youngsters.

Coasting on the train gives one a somewhat different sensation. At Clifton Forge two heavy 6-drive-wheel engines were attached to our train. Both of them have to work hard to pull the train up the grades to the summit of the ridge; then the fires are banked, the firemen take a rest after their hard work and the engineer controls the train chiefly by the brake as it coasts at an increased speed along the down grade toward the valley. The labored throb and puffing of the engines as they pull the heavy train up the grade, is changed to a smooth gliding motion as we swing along at a more rapid rate down the mountain.

One of the engines was disabled a few miles back and, while we were waiting for another to be brought up from Clifton Forge, I climbed up the mountain side near the track and gathered some Christmas fern and some branches of rhododendron, which grows in abundance through here, and near the tracks I found some belated ox-eye daisies.

This delay, together with the time lost before, will make us at least two hours late in Washington and I will reach home only in time for a 6 o'clock supper. I hope, however, to get some stuffed turkey and cranberry sauce and perhaps pumpkin pie in the dining car this afternoon, and I am sure that I have a great deal to be truly thankful for, whether I am on the train or carving a turkey at my own fireside.

Father Conkling is probably with Etta and the children today. He expected to reach Washington yesterday. Etta and the girls were all well when I left Monday. Genevieve had about recovered from six weeks of whooping cough.

Please accept my thanks for the papers you kindly sent, containing the account of the death and funeral of Will Hayden. Although I had for some time expected it, it was none the less with real sorrow that I heard of the final end. For a dozen years and more our lives had been widely separated, but time could not efface the memory of an intimate friendship with such a noble, honest fellow as was Will Hayden, my most intimate chum and classmate in the Tecumseh schools nearly twenty years ago. With best wishes,

Yours sincerely,
LYSTER H DEWEY.

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is a healthy action of these organs.

They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency.

"I had pains in my back, could not sleep and when I got up in the morning felt worse than the night before. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and now I can sleep and get up feeling rested and able to do my work. I attribute my cure entirely to Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. J. N. PERRY, care H. S. Copeland, Pike Road, Ala.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Morenci Observer: Several weeks ago a couple of sanctified females made a tour of the town in the interest of a so called foundlings' institution at Toledo. Their method was to secure subscriptions for a publication, and they were quite successful in their efforts. As yet no one has received any copy of the paper. Perhaps the enterprise has been "foundered." If they keep long enough at it with the same success they had here, they will be able to "found" some kind of a home The victims here would like to find them and get back their coin. Ah, those smooth "wimmin!"

Why do recriminations of married couples resemble the sound of waves on the shore?—Because they are murmurs of the tied.

Postmaster J. W. Wightman, well-known to every reader of this statement, says: "I have no hesitation in endorsing Doan's Kidney Pills procured at C. A. Wright's drug store. They have been used in my family and the most satisfactory results followed the treatment. They proved to be a remedy of merit. You can use my name to that effect if you think proper.

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

It is alleged in some of the state papers that a Dowagiac lady, finding that she had not her visiting cards with her, sent the coachman in for them and then when she called and no one was home the coachman left the card as directed. "I will make but three more calls, Tim,' she said apologetically. "Be gorra, missus, yez must shtop wid one. Oi've only the jack uv spades left."—Adrian Press.

Nebraska City Without Water.

Nebraska City, Neb., Dec. 8.—The sudden shifting of the main channel of the Missouri river to the Iowa side has left this city without a water supply. The waterworks mains are drained today and every basin is empty. The electric light plant is shut down and the streets are dark. The breaking out of a fire of any consequence would cause disaster. It may be weeks before pipes can be extended to the main channel, and in the meantime every manufactory in the city dependent on steam or electricity must shut down.

Special attention will be given to the lessons to be learned from the recent coal strike. The English workmen brought to this country by Alfred Moseley will take part in the deliberations, together with Senator Marcus A. Hanna, former President Grover Cleveland, Bishop Henry C. Choctaws Are Emigrating.

Ardmore, I. T., Dec. 6.—Emigration of hundreds of Choctaw Indians from Mississippi to Indian Territory has commenced. Many families reached the city today to appear before the Dawes commission for enrollment. Under the law, these Indians must reside in the Indian country for a certain period and must prove they are Choctaw Indians before they are entitled to allotment. It is expected that several thousands will reach the territory before Feb. 1, the date of the beginning of the allotments. Very few can speak English.

Six Lives Blotted Out.

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 8.—The worst train wreck in the history of the Intercoloniol, the Canadian government railway, happened at noon Saturday at Belmont station, seventy miles from Halifax, when the Canadian Pacific express for Montreal rolled down an embankment, killing at least six persons, injuring a score of others and completely wrecking the locomotive, postal, express and baggage cars and several passenger coaches. The accident occurred at 1 o'clock, and was caused by the pilot becoming loose and falling in front of the engine, which was thrown from the rails. The train plowed ahead for fifty feet and then turned over and rolled down an embankment.

Going Home For Christmas.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—The annual exodus from the northwest and the middle west of Scandinavians, who return to the motherland for the Christmas holidays, is unusually heavy this year. A special train leaving Chicago for New York yesterday carried 600 of these excursionists for Norway and Sweden. The train was elaborately decorated with the flags of the United States and of Norway and Sweden. Practically all the excursionists will return to the United States, and many of them have arranged to bring kinsmen with them on the return trip.

The deepest, most stubborn and most intense pain can be reached and routed by the use of this good old time-tried liniment.

If your horse has a stiff joint, a harness sore, a cut or bruise Mexican Mustang Liniment will cure it.

If your cow has a hurt or a caked udder it will cure it and restore her to health and usefulness.

If your poultry has roup, frozen combs, rheumatism, leg weakness or any disease of the flesh or bones Mexican Mustang Liniment will cure them if anything on earth can cure and save them. What it has done in thousands upon thousands of instances justifies these claims.

If your Weak Point is a Weak Back

rub Mexican Mustang Liniment over the sore spot after a hard day's work and your back will soon feel rested and free from pain. It is just what is needed when one is afflicted with lame back or lumbago or any other deep-seated muscular misery. Just as soon as Mexican Mustang Liniment permeates the affected parts the lameness disappears and the pain departs.

Inflammation is the Root of all Pain.

Wherever there's a painful hurt, sore or sprain, there is inflammation. Mexican Mustang Liniment quickly cools and cures the inflamed parts where the real cause of pain is imbedded. The penetrating, soothing and healing powers of this liniment are really wonderful.

THE ARMY CANTEEN

Anti-Saloon League Takes Vigorous Stand Against It.

BLOW AT ARMY OFFICERS

Declare Their Reports Relative to the Army Saloon Were Misleading——Statistics Showing Its Ill Effects Given—Will Fight to the Last.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The most important action Wednesday of the National Anti-Saloon league, now holding its annual session here, was the unanimous adoption of an address to the public on the army canteen question, in which the charge is made that high army officials have persistently pursued a course extremely unfavorable to the anti-canteen law of congress, and pledging the association to do its utomast to defeat any attempt to repeal the law until it has had a full and fair trial, says:

"What is popularly known as the anti-canteen law has been in force less than two years immediately following many years' trial of the canteen law and after a lamentably large number of soldiers had contracted the drink habit—accordingto the official report just published of the inspector-general of the division of the Philippines in seventy-one companies investigated, between 10 and 33 per cent of the men drink to excess habitually.

"High army officials have most persistently pursued a course extremely unfriendly to this law, and pursued it in a way that has thrown the whole influence of the war department with the soldiers, on the side of distrust of and dissatisfaction with the law, and have persistently published misleading reports in regard to the effects of the law.

"Notwithstanding the shortness of the time the law has been in force, the frightful demoralization of the army through the drink habit under the canteen law, the utter unfriendliness to the anti-canteen law of the war department and the non-test of the substitutions possible through the wise use of the appropriations by congress—notwithstanding all this the official reports of courtmartials show that the trials per 1,000 men more than doubled during the last three years of the canteen liquor selling law, increasing from 42 per 1,000 men in 1898 to 100 in 1900, and that since the year 1900 (in which is included six months of the canteen liquor selling and eighteen months of non-selling) the courts-martial have decreased to 61., that is, have decreased 39. per 1,000 men. The reports of the surgeon-general of the army show a marked decrease of disease. The admissions to the hospitals covering the whole army, in the calendar year 1900, the last year of the canteen, was 2,311 per 1,000 strength, while during the calendar year 1902 the admissions to the hospitals dropped to 1,791—a decrease in a single year of about 25 per cent. The same reports show a startling decrease in insanity of about 33 per cent.

"In view of all these considerations and facts the anti-saloon league, assembled in national convention in Washington, declares itself unalterably opposed to the repeal of the anti-canteen law, and pledges to do its utmost, by petition, by agitation and by ballot, to defeat any attempt to repeal this law until it has had a full and fair trial."

Crew Was Lashed to Rigging.

Atlantic City, Dec. 11.—The two-masted schooner A. W. Lee, Haverstraw, N. Y., for Atlantic City, was wrecked yesterday off this city. The crew was rescued by the Atlantic City life savers. The Lee experienced rough weather all of Tuesday and when in sight of her destination yesterday she was struck by a monster sea and capsized. The crew were lashed to the rigging and after being almost frozen were finally rescued by the life savers. The vessel will be a total loss.

LAID TO REST.

Remains of Thomas B. Reed Placed in a Tomb.

Portland, Me., Dec. 10.—While the bells of the city tolled sixty-three strokes, one for each year of Mr. Reed's life, his remains were taken from First Parish Unitarian church to Evergreen cemetery, where the body was placed in a tomb to await burial in the spring.

The services at the church were simple but impressive, consisting of music, scripture reading, prayer and a brief eulogy.

The edifice was thronged with a distinguished assemblage, which included the governors of Maine and Massachusetts, the congressional delegation representing the house and senate, the Loyal Legion, several Grand Army posts, members of the bar, city officials and delegates from nearly every political organization in the state of Maine.

The day was one of mourning throughout the city. Many places of business were closed during the afternoon. Public buildings also were closed during the day.

HORTON RETAINED

Re-elected to Office of Master of State Grange.

OTHER OFFICERS RETAINED

Secretary's Report Shows an Increase of Over 9,000 in Membership—J. R. Waterbury Elected President of Association of Farmers' Clubs.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 11.—The re-election of the old officers, including Master George B. Horton of Fruit Ridge, and Secretary Miss Jennie Buell of Ann Arbor, was the surprise of Wednesday afternoon's proceedings of the State grange. Overseer N. P. Hull, lecturer; Mrs. Frank Saunders, treasurer; E. A. Strong and Steward T. E. Niles are among the re-elected officers.

The afternoon session included also a lecturer's hour, the conference being addressed by Kenyon L. Butterfield. Many suggestions were offered for the advancement of local grange work.

Resolutions have already been introduced on the rural school question, as precipitated by Master Horton. It is believed that an attempt will be made to head off the centralization idea.

Secretary Buell reported the following conditions:

"The total number of granges in the state is 545, with a membership of 33,476, and a gain over all loss of 9,761 during the grange fiscal year. Lenawee county leads in number of granges, having 36, with a membership of 3,659. Kent county has 25 granges, with a membership of 1,966. Hillsdale county has 20 granges, with a membership of 1,009. Ingham has 14 granges, with 1,292 members, a gain of 227 over all loss during the year. Eaton county has 11 granges and 684 members.

"The State grange offered during the year a secretary's desk to every grange securing twenty members. In this contest 139 desks were awarded, and by it 3,371 new members were brought into the grange."

The report of the treasurer, E. A. Strong, showed that $18,178 61 had been received during the year, including fees, dues, interest and percentages in co-operative advertising, and that the state body was never in a stronger financial condition.

Yesterday's sessions of the State Association of Farmers' Clubs were the most successful ever held and were largely devoted to legislative measures. The report of the committee on state affairs was provocative of much argument in the afternoon and in the evening. State Senator Helme started in, as he said, "to stir up the animals," which he did. The farmers disclaimed having complete knowledge of the primary election idea, but resolutions were gotten through indorsing it in a general way.

The farmers' clubs have asked for the election of United States senators by direct vote, the adoption of the Torrens land bill and the county salaries bill, as at former meetings. They have gone further. Resolutions were adopted deploring the use of money at elections and recommending the passage of a bill to facilitate the exchange of freight cars over steam and trolley roads.

The farmers do not care to have their eardrums worked unnecessarily on Sunday, and ask legislation to this end. The association is also opposed to bonding of townships for the building of macadamized roads.

The fight over the secretaryship was continued in the afternoon. After five ballots were taken Miss Julia Bell was declared re-elected.

Miss Anna Edwards of Jackson was elected treasurer to succeed Mrs. Marshall, the present treasurer. A. L. Chandler of Corunna and E. H. Ritchie of Tuscola were chosen directors to succeed C. E. Hadsell of Troy and J. Sessions of Fowler.

I. R. Waterbury of Highland was elected president of the association for the ensuing year in a spirited contest with N. Clapp of Oakland. Waterbury is state senator-elect from the second district of Oakland county and has served his constituency for two terms in the lower house. He is a young man and succeeds A. B. Cook of Owosso, the still younger retiring president, who, too, has been elected to the state senate.

After a most profitable meeting the association adjourned to meet on a corresponding date next year.

Detroit's Reciprocity Convention.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 10.—A memorial to congress urging that the joint high commission be asked to reconvene with the hope of obtaining a reciprocity treaty with Canada as speedily as possible, and the organization of the northern tier of states with that object in view, will be the feature of the convention of the National Reciprocity league, which is to open in Detroit to-day. The advantages of reciprocity treaties with Germany, France, Cuba, Brazil and other countries will be another part of the program, though trade with Cuba and the east will be the subject of special investigation at other reciprocity meetings to be held at New Orleans and San Francisco at a later date.

RECIPROCITY WITH CANADA.

Notable Gathering in Detroit Discusses Its Pros and Cons.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 11.—A banquet in the halls of the Fellowcraft club last evening, at which over 400 millionaires, manufacturers, parliamentarians, statesmen and students sat, was the closing event yesterday of the great reciprocity convention, now in session in Detroit. These men include notables from many states of the Union and provinces of Canada, zealously working to bring about this equalization of trade relations between these two adjoining countries.

The day was one spent in listening to addresses on reciprocity and its advantages to the two nations.

How much the National Reciprocity league will accomplish remains to be seen, but its members go about their work with no uncertain step and evince a confidence of ultimate victory born of the most deep-seated convictions.

"We must win," said Governor Cummin sof Iowa yesterday, after he had delivered himself of a classic on reciprocity which leading men in the league say is sure to be one of the greatest acquisitions to reciprocity literature.

"What thou doest, do quickly," was the Hon. John Charlton's admonition to his American brethren. "Get out of this miserable rut you are in and quit your nonsense." And his words tod as plainly as the language would admit, though couched in the most friendly terms, that the time was at hand when the United States must take some steps to retain the trade it now has with Canada, not to say enlarge it.

That some kind of a tacit understanding, however indefinite, exists with the Canadian government, seems to be taken for granted by American reciprocity men, for they hope that, despite the cry of the Canadian manufacturers that they will be able to get the same treatment in Canada as far as their finished products are concerned as other nations receive, Great Britain included. Some of them even believe that they can ultimately obtain an abrogation of the British preferential tariff by agreeing to free trade in natural and raw products. The attitude of Canada, as voiced at yesterday's conference, is not that of the petitioner. It is that of a young nation, which demands that the bigger brother shall meet him on even terms.

Kidney, Marcellus, $12; John Storey, Adrian, $24; Virgil G. Conner, Ionia, $14; Hiram Gardner, Muir, $10; Charles Keyes, Coldwater, $12; Mortimer N. Park, Flushing, $17; Benjamin F. Child Developed Hydrophobia.

Saginaw, Mich., Dec. 11.—Frances Wirth, aged 3 years, who was one of the children bitten by a mad dog when it terrorized the city Nov. 13 last, has developed symptoms of hydrophobia and the attending doctor was obliged to put the child under the influence of chloroform during the evening. The little one was severely bitten over the cheek and was the first child attacked by the supposedly mad dog. Five other children were bitten by the dog. Doctors in this city have come out openly advocating that all the children be at once sent to an institute in Chicago for treatment. No other cases of hydrophobia have yet developed.

Jury Was Influenced.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 11.—A sensation was sprung in circuit court late yesterday afternoon, when, at the conclusion of the trial of William Malloy, a saloonkeeper, on a charge of violation of the liquor law, his attorney, Claude S. Carney, moved for a new trial on the ground that the jury had been subjected to undue influence. The trial resulted in conviction. Carney and Judge Adams held a private consultation immediately after this charge, with the result that the court ordered a new trial.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 11.—Charles H. Thompson, the Chicago representative of the Hammond Packing company, who attempted to bribe Food Commissioner Snow last January by offering him half a cent a pound on all colored oleo sold by his firm, and was neatly led into a trap and arrested in the rooms of Mr. Snow at Kalamazoo, quietly entered court, pleaded guilty to attempted bribery and was immediately fined $1,000.

PROCEEDINGS IN CONGRESS.

Statehood Bill in Senate—Venerable G. A. Grow Addresses House.

Washington, Dec. 11.—Almost the entire session of the senate Wednesday was devoted to consideration of the omnibus statehood bill. The bill came over as the unfinished business from the last session, and by agreement yesterday was fixed for calling it up. Early in the morning hour Mr. Quay submitted a report of his own and its reading occupied the time of the senate until 2 o'clock, when the statehood bill was laid before the senate.

In the course of the reading of the several reports and the statehood bill the senate passed a bill refunding certain revenue taxes to owners of private dies, and also a bill relieving certain porters from the duty on tea placed in bonded warehouses.

The feature of the house proceedings Wednesday was a thoughtful speech by the venerable Galusha A. Grow of Pennsylvania, on the relations between labor and capital. At the end of the present session he retires at the age of 79, after a career in public life extending over half a century. His speech was regarded as his valedictory to public life and was listened to with close attention by his colleagues.

A bill was passed in general terms designed to relieve the tea importers from the effect of the recent decision of the circuit court in New York, imposing the 10 per cent war duty on tea imported in bond prior to the time when tea is restored to the free list Jan. 1, 1903. Another bill, to refund the duties collected on merchandise from Porto Rico and the Philippines during the period between the ratification of the treaty of Paris and the congressional revenue acts for those islands, also was passed. The pure food bill was made a continuing order not to interfere with appropriation bills until it is disposed of.

PHILANTHROPIC UNDERTAKING.

Wealthy Men Will Aid Existing Educational Institutions.

Washington, Dec. 11.—It became known yesterday that the bill for "the incorporation of a general educational board," which recently passed the house of representatives, is intended to pave the way for the establishment of an educational center of extensive proportions in this city.

The measure was introduced at the instance of John D. Rockefeller and other persons of wealth who, it now develops, intend to create a fund to aid existing schools and colleges, without any restriction as to the age, sex or color of attendants. The measure also is without limitation as to the section of country in which the schools shall be located, but it is known that it is the especial desire of the promoters of the undertaking to improve educational facilities of the south, including those for the improvement of colored youth.

There is no intention of building up an educational institution at any place. The headquarters and offices of the corporation will be located in Washington. No definite figures can be given by anyone here as to the amount to be invested, but those who know anything of the plans believe the volume of money will be sufficient to meet all real needs of deserving institutions in the southern states.

The understanding here is that the institution will be put into shape for business soon after the bill receives the president's signature.

Says Fitzgerald Was Murdered.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The state department has received a dispatch from Consul-General McNally of Guatemala City in which he declares the shooting of William A. Fitzgerald of Grand Rapids by the son of United States Minister Hunter was a cold-blooded assassination. This dispatch will be forwarded to the house in response to William Alden Smith's resolution calling for information of the killing of Fitzgerald.

Mustard, Scottville, W. Harrington, East Jordan; C. H. Pulver, Dundee; E. E. Becker, Fenton, T. Smith, Howell; M. N. Johnson, Northville; L. M. Sellers, Cedar Springs; E. C. Reid, Allegan.

Winter Wheat Estimates.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The statistician of the department of agriculture estimates the newly seeded area of winter wheat at about 34,000,000 acres, an increase of 5.1 per cent upon the area estimated to have been sown in the fall of 1901. The condition of winter wheat on Dec. 1 was 99.7, as compared with 86.7 in 1901, 97.1 in 1900, and a nine-year average of 91.4.

A good local newspaper beats the world as an advertising medium. A handbill will attract attention by accident. The newspaper carries your message to a waiting audience. The fence rail "ad" is a corpse that can only be looked upon by a few neighbors who have to go near it. The newspaper "ad" goes into the home, takes a place in the family circle and talks right to the hearts of thousands of people who pay their money for just that kind of entertainment.

CHAPTER XII.

I WAS probably as much troubled as my master over this sad state of affairs. Miss Stetson's treatment hurt him more than he cared to confess. He seemed so perplexed and worried over the matter that I was several times on the point of telling him the reason for her sudden aversion for him.

There was but little doubt that he had noticed her dislike for him, but he was too proud and sensitive to mention the matter to any one. He was not a kind to speak of such personal questions even to Dr. Squires. For several days he remained away from the Stetson mansion, sending me over twice a day to inquire after Miss Stetson's health. I never saw her myself in any of these visits except the last. Then, instead of sending the message down to me by one of the servants, she called me up to her library.

The first thing I noticed about her was a peculiar careworn, suffering expression on her face. Under the dark eyes and around the lips there were delicate lines and tints which revealed more than words. She had suffered and was doomed to suffer more. Pathetic acceptance of her lot was apparent on every lineament of her face. She had evidently battled successfully with herself and had become resigned to her fate.

The room in which she ushered me was an old fashioned library where her father, the doctor, had gathered together many rare books and curios. The heavy woodwork, the dark paper and furnishings of the library cast a gloomy aspect over the sole occupant, and her white face gleamed out of the darkness like an old fashioned picture in a somber setting. In spite of her surroundings she was still beautiful—more beautiful it seemed to me than when fully exposed to broad daylight. Hers was a beauty that did not fade in light or shade.

"You come from Mr. Goddard with a message for me?" she said interrogatively as I entered the room.

"Yes, ma'am. He sent to inquire after your health," I replied, bowing respectfully.

"And he trusts you without a written message?" she continued.

"In this matter he does, for he considered you too ill to write, and he did not wish to put you to any unnecessary trouble."

"That is the true reason," she said quietly. "He is always very considerate to me."

"He is to every one," I added, wishing to show my devotion to him.

"Yes, yes; he is kind to all. He is a good man."

"I have never met a better, ma'am, if you will permit me to say it, and I've seen many kinds of men in the world. He is always thinking of other people, and if he does wrong I believe he has some good reason for it."

She looked at me as if she liked to hear me praise him, and when I stopped her expression seemed to say, "Go on, go on; it's music to me." But I knew my position and would say no more.

"Is Mr. Goddard well himself?" she asked when she found that I was mute.

"Yes. Except for an attack of poison, which has now gone away entirely, he has been very well."

She turned a shade paler and then flushed a little as she remembered that I had been present on the day when she fainted.

"Oh, yes; I remember he spoke of the poison the last time I saw him," she said in a moment, recovering her mental poise. "Have the spots or eruption entirely disappeared?"

"Entirely, ma'am. There are no signs of any left."

"I suppose Dr. Squires gave him something to cure them."

I knew that she was thinking of the doctor's cure for leprosy and that she imagined he had given my master something which would drive away the first symptoms of the disease, at least temporarily. But I knew differently, and I courted the opportunity to disabuse her mind of the mistake.

"No, ma'am; the doctor did nothing for my master," I answered. "I gave him something which cured the eruption."

"You? What did you know about the matter?"

"Not very much, ma'am, except that I had been poisoned once, and I remembered what helped me. I asked my master to let me get him a bottle."

"A bottle of what?"

"Witch hazel. It was one of my mother's cures for poison from ivy or sumac."

"And that cured him?"

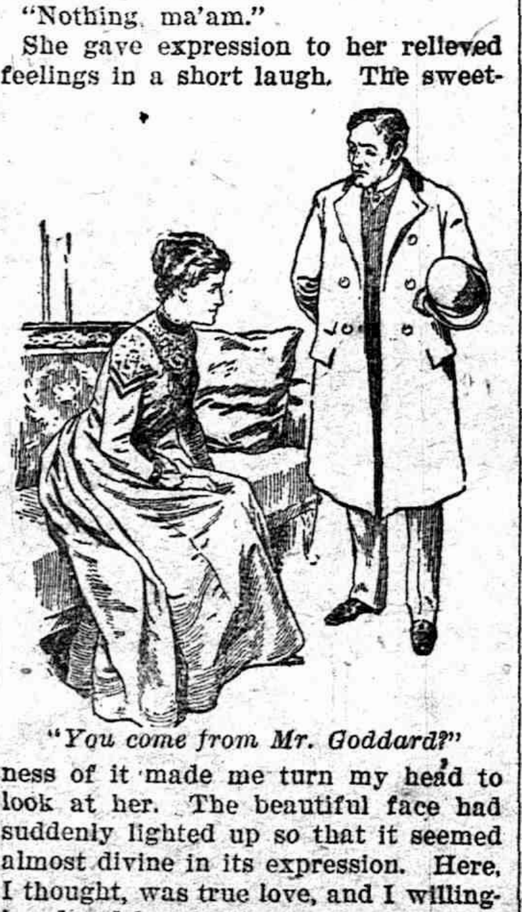
Her face brightened wonderfully. She began to realize that she had been a victim of her imagination.

"Completely," I answered.

"Then it was not—nothing more serious than ordinary poison," she added, with a sigh of relief.

"Nothing, ma'am."

She gave expression to her relieved feelings in a short laugh. The sweetness of it made me turn my head to look at her. The beautiful face had suddenly lighted up so that it seemed almost divine in its expression. Here, I thought, was true love, and I willingly adored her for it.



"You come from Mr. Goddard?"

"Pardon me," she said after a moment of silence. "I was thinking of something else which amused me. You must take a message to your master."

She walked toward the library table and drew pen and paper from a drawer. She hesitated a moment and then added:

"No; I won't write. I will send a verbal message by you. Charles has trusted you to bring one, and I will return it in the same way."

"Thank you, ma'am. I shall endeavor to prove worthy of the trust."

"Well, tell Mr. Goddard that I am quite recovered and that I expect to have him call on me today. Be sure to tell him that I must see him at once. He must give up every other engagement to come to me. Now, do you understand? Can you put it so he can't say no?"

"I can, ma'am, and I'll venture to give you my word of honor that he will be here before the sun sets."

"Go, then, and prove your words."

As I left her presence I felt that my mission had been one of mercy that morning, for I had, apparently unconsciously, been the means of lifting a burden temporarily from one heavy heart. I knew also that I carried a message that would bring a ray of sunlight into the life of another.

I might have stretched the importance of this interview to my master or I might have given him the literal truth. I know not which now. However, I delivered the message. It was sufficient to make him obey it.

The result of their meeting was manifest at once. Both of them appeared happy and normal again, and the old relationship seemed to be re-established. How much Miss Stetson explained to him about her fears and knowledge of his case I never knew, but for a time at least she was determined to put down all feelings of aversion for my master because of her knowledge that he was a doomed leper. Or perhaps—like another self sacrificing virgin that I have read about—she had decided to consecrate her life to him, to live by him and nurse him through the coming years of pain and suffering and mental agony which must ever be the lot of a leper.

PIRACY IN PHILIPPINES.

Chinese Merchants Robbed of $17,000 by Bandits of the Sea.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 10.—The steamer Shawmut, from Manila, brought news of piracy in the Philippines, the desperadoes being led by an American. The brig Maricia, bound from Catanuan, Tayabas province, for Manila, had beaten up the coast and was becalmed off Cavite bay. She had as passengers five Chinese merchants, who were on their way to Manila to purchase goods. During the night a sloop came alongside and six men climbed over the rail and immediately overpowered the Chinese crew, binding all hands with ropes. One of these men was an American dressed in a garb of an inspector of constabulary. Two of his followers also wore constabulary uniforms and carried revolvers, as did the American. The remaining three Filipinos were armed with bolos. Upon the pirates reaching the deck of the Maricia the leader claimed he was a board of health inspector and intended to search the vessel for arms and ammunition. After the crew had been overpowered the Chinese were brought forth and at the point of drawn revolvers were made to give over their money, about $17,000. The pirates embarked in their boat again and, heading toward Cavite, threatened to kill all hands on the brig if they did not keep quiet. When the vessel arrived at Manila the customs officers were informed, but no clew was found to the robbers.

CHOPPED ITS HEAD OFF

London Dock Bill Killed in House After Spirited Debate.

Washington, Dec. 10.—The senate devoted most of Tuesday to the immigration bill and adopted a number of amendments. There was considerable discussion of an amendment offered by Mr. Burton (Kan.), to admit Chinese laborers to Hawaii. It was met with considerable opposition and finally was laid on the table. The provision in the bill prohibiting the sale of liquor in the capitol building caused some criticism of the house for putting it in the bill, but the provision was not stricken out. During the day the militia bill was discussed. It will be taken up again Thursday.

After debating the London dock charge bill for almost four hours, the house yesterday chopped its head off by striking out the enacting clause. This killed the bill. The debate was spirited on both sides and all day the members were flooded with telegrams respecting the bill. The withdrawal of the support of the lumber and meat packing interests, which originally had joined with the flour milling interests in pressing the measure, brought about its defeat. The final vote was 138 to 129 in favor of the motion to strike out the enacting clause.

Michigan Patents.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Michigan patents were granted Tuesday as follows: Lewis M. Curry, Brighton, plane; Hans Hansson, Shingleton, tool for peeling poles; William J. Keep, Detroit, hot water reservoir for stoves; Edgar Kidwell, Houghton, brace for structures; Harry C. Laflamboy, Detroit, watchmaking machine; Franklin Lenzner, Cass City, carpet stretcher; Emory M. Paine, Grand Ledge, stand for liquid receptacles; Austin F. Phillips, Corunna, apparatus for carbonating and dispensing ginger ale; Harvey Sawyer, Muskegon, load brake mechanism for hoisting, or other machines; Thomas S. Simpson, Detroit, railway brake beam; Henry D. Streator, Galesburg, artificial stone post; Lewis W. Tinkham, Traverse City, dish cutting machine.

Big Suit Went to Defendant.

Flint, Mich., Dec. 10.—Judge Wisner in the circuit court last evening, just before adjournment, directed a verdict for defendant in the case of the administrators of the estate of Major George W. Buckingham and his daughter Anna vs. the Pere Marquette Railroad company. The case was taken up a week ago and was for $50,000 damages. The Buckinghams and Mrs. Tom Applegate and Mrs. Humphrey of Adrian were killed by a train at the Hamilton avenue crossing on the morning of June 14, 1901. The court held that the surviving children, on whose behalf suit was brought, had sustained no injury, and that Major Buckingham was guilty of contributory negligence.

PROFIT

The matter of feed is of tremendous importance to the farmer. Wrong feeding is loss. Right feeding is profit.

The up-to-date farmer knows what to feed his cows to get the most milk, his pigs to get the most pork, his hens to get the most eggs. Science.

But how about the children? Are they fed according to science, a bone food if bones are soft and undeveloped, a flesh and muscle food if they are thin and weak and a blood food if there is anemia?

Scott's Emulsion is a mixed food; the Cod Liver Oil in it makes flesh, blood and muscle, the Lime and Soda make bone and brain. It is the standard scientific food for delicate children.

Send for free sample.

THREE MEN KILLED.

Fatal Boiler Explosion in an Upper Peninsula Sawmill.

Bruce's Crossing, Mich., Dec. 10.—News of the explosion of a boiler at Schmitt & Steinbecker's sawmill, three and a half miles west of this place, in Ontonagon county, has reached here. Henry Steinbecker, a member of the firm; Henry Hawes, the engineer, and Fireman William Kind were killed. Lack of sufficient water in the boiler caused the explosion. Five other workmen narrowly escaped death. They had moved away from the mill a few minutes before to do some work at a lumber pile.

The building was completely wrecked and the bodies of the victims were picked up twenty-five rods from where the boiler stood. Remnants of the boiler were blown into the river, ten rods away.

The remains of the dead men will be sent to Cooperstown, Wis., for interment.

Mother and Three Children Killed.—Mrs. J. C. Nealy, her two daughters, aged 11 and 9, and a son, aged 7, were run down and killed by an eastbound Baltimore & Ohio passenger train one mile west of North Baltimore, O., at 4:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

A Peculiar Strike.—Druggists in the provinces of Galicia, Austria, are at present in a curious predicament as the result of a strike on the part of their assistants. The druggists were forced to install unqualified persons to dispense drugs to an extent which is alarming.

The Telegram on Monday made mention of the postoffice fight over in Tecumseh, between J. W. Wightman, the present incumbent, and Chas. Bidwell. It now appears that Congressman H. C. Smith has decided to send in Mr. Bidwell's name for appointment. Mr. Wightman's time expires February 19. He said when here last Monday that he understood that Congressman Smith was favorable to Mr. Bidwell, but he thought he could find something to do if he should not be reappointed. This is about the last of the postmasters alleged to have been opposed to Henry C. whose heads have dropped into the basket.—Adrian Telegram.

Borrowing Trouble.

The Adrian Times seems to feel badly about the Tecumseh vote at the last election. Of course, it does not know that the machine of the east precinct of Tecumseh was tampered with, nor does it know of anyone who does know that such a thing happened, nor indeed does it really know anything about the Tecumseh election except that the votes of Fred Wood and Don Bowen were larger than some republicans would like them. The people of Tecumseh would be glad to know if any mistake had occurred in Tecumseh, but is not the Adrian Times borrowing trouble without really knowing a thing about what it is talking?

Hudson, Mich., Dec. 9.—Special.—George P. Hannon, of Medina township, who was supposed to have been murdered by a man now serving a life sentence in the Marquette prison, has been heard from.

Hannon returned from the United States service in the Philippines with several comrades about two years ago and the last heard from him unti a letter was received from him by his mother last night, was at Denver, Col., when Hannon and the upper peninsula convict were about that city together.

He then disappeared, and his friends here could get no track of him.

In the letter Hannon says he went from Denver to the Klondike, and has just landed in Seattle, Wash., on his return trip. He will reach Hudson in time to spend Christmas with his parent.—Detroit Journal.

The idea of teaching the children to save their pennies and nickels was introduced in the Adrian public schools, September 1, 1900, and the amount since collected by the teachers and deposited in bank amounts to $4,857.77. Deducting amounts withdraw at different times, the amount at present credited to 620 depositors is $3,130.65. State Superintendent of Public Instruction Delos Fall is collecting statistics concerning the merits of the system, with the idea of recommending its general adoption throughout the state.—Ex.

A tale of woe.—I clasped her tiny hand in mine; I clasped her beauteous form: I vowed to shield her from the wind, and from the world's cold storm. She set her beauteous eyes on me; the tears did wildly flow; and with her little lips she said, "Confound you, let me go!"

John Beland.

The subject of this sketch was born in Bavaria, Germany, Nov. 7, 1823, and dropped peacefully asleep, of paralysis, Dec. 2, 1902, aged 79 years and 25 days.

Mr. Beland was one of the early settlers of this part of the country. In 1853 he and his faithful wife and companion left their native home and country to seek and make a home in America. They arrived in New York after a stormy voyage on the ocean, lasting six weeks.

Their trials and hardships had but just begun. Michigan was their destination and it took many weeks more of travel, such traveling as only the old pioneers can tell about. They finally arrived safely in Pennsylvania, and after sojourning there a short time, started once more for Michigan.

Arriving in Michigan he bought and settled on the farm he has called home for nearly half a century, then a thick and dense wilderness, but by perseverance and faithful industry, he and his ambitious helpmate made the wilderness to bloom like the rose, clearing and adding more as their means and strength would permit. Until at the time of his death he enjoyed beautiful farms and a home second to none.

To this union eight children were born, four sons and four daughters, all living but one, who preceded her father to the spirit world some 18 years ago.

Through all the trials and hardships Mr. Beland did not lose sight of the all important things, his soul's welfare. His heart and hand were ever ready, his church was his recreation and delight, and never until failing health and strength would not permit him to attend divine services, was his pew ever empty.

He has been a faithful member of the German Luthearn church ever since the country was new, from whence the funeral was held Thursday, Dec. 4, where a large number of relatives, neighbors and friends had gathered, showing the high esteem in which he was held.

He leaves to mourn his loss a widow, seven children, seven grandchildren and many other relatives, but most of all he will be mourned in the home, where, by failing health and strength he had been confined so long scarcely ever murmuring, only praying that he might be released and go home to the Father he had so faithfully hoped and trusted in so many years.

He was laid to rest in the beautiful little cemetery at Lake Ridge in sight of the home that had known him for nearly fifty years.

—Try Brown's cough syrup and you will have no other.

An Ancient Foe

To health and happiness is Scrofula—as ugly as ever since time immemorial.

It causes bunches in the neck, disfigures the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into consumption.

"A bunch appeared on the left side of my neck. It caused great pain, was lanced, and became a running sore. I went into a general decline. I was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and when I had taken six bottles my neck was healed, and I have never had any trouble of the kind since." MRS. K. T. SNYDER, Troy, Ohio.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure:

"I suffered agonizing pain in the left breast and between my shoulders from heart trouble. My heart would palpitate, flutter, then skip beats, until I could no longer lie in bed. Night after night I walked the floor, for to lie down would have meant sudden death. My condition seemed almost hopeless when I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, but it helped me from the first. AGAINST SHIP SUBSIDIES.

Committee of House of Commons Finds Many Objections.

London, Dec. 10.—The report of the select committee of the house of commons on steamship subsidies was issued last evening. Its general tenor is distinctly against the principle of granting subsidies. The committee finds that British ship owners have not suffered much from the fostering effects of subsidies paid by foreign governments, that subsidies are merely minor factors, and that commercial skill and industry were the major factors in the recent development of the shipping and trade of certain foreign countries, notably Germany.

It is also found by the committee that subsidies restrict free competition and facilitate the establishment of federations and shipping rings, and that therefore a general system of subsidies, except for services rendered and without government control of the maximum rates on freights, is costly and inexpedient.

The committee discusses at some length the effect on British trade of the transfer of merchant vessels to foreign ownership and enumerates the British lines sold to Americans, including the Morgan syndicate, and to Germans. Dealing with the Morgan transfer the report says:

"If the American railway management unites with the steamship management a very influential undertaking may perhaps be formed, but too many interests are often involved to make such combinations quite as powerful as they might be supposed to be. It remains, however, quite certain that the transfer of British ships to foreign flags, whether owning foreign subsidies or otherwise, may cause serious results, such as developing new trades in which British shipowners, without government backing, cannot engage, and the substitution of foreign officers and crews for British."

MISFORTUNE OF MONEY

Rich People go to Hot Springs, Germany, and Have Special Treatment, but Still Have Their Rheumatism.

We poor people feel sorry for the rich,—they won't get something because it's cheap or advertised.

It's high-toned to spend small fortunes, and a luxury to be sick. It's "improper" to be cured at a dollar a bottle, although we have many rich clients, who are sensible and wouldn't be without Athlophoros.

In fact, Athlophoros was originated for a rich man by one of the most famous physicians. It gets at the Uric acid and dispels it. When that is done the Rheumatism is gone. It works every time.

The Uric acid clogs and poisons the blood, disables the body more or less. Athlophoros is as soothing as "oil to a burn," and especially in acute attacks will allow the breadwinner to get back to his work. It saves lots of needless suffering, and makes life worth living. All druggists sell it, or The Athlophoros Co., New Haven, Conn., will send a bottle for one dollar. It is within the reach of everyone and makes health possible to all.

A RADICAL STAND

Taken by State Grange on Two Important Measures.

PRIMARY ELECTION LAW

And Government Ownership of Public Utilities—Hot Shot Made at Hunters—Co-operation Buying and Selling Idea Is Being Revived.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 13.—The grange, as the voice of agriculture, speaks with increasing force every year. Its demands become more specific and its direction is being more keenly pointed toward legislation. The grist for the mill was delivered Friday in no uncertain tone.

The State grange yesterday put itself on record in advocacy of several radical measures—radical as coming from conservative agriculturists. It has declared for a direct primary election law and for the government ownership of public utilities, specifically of lines of communication.

This latter was the surprise of the session, but the resolution went through without a dissenting vote.

Although the government ownership of the railways, telephones and telegraphs has strong advocates in the order, it is believed that the resolution passed while many were unaware of its full import. The grange has swallowed public ownership, but it strained at compulsory arbitration between labor and capital, and the proposition was rejected. The reports were paeons of rejoicing over the extension of electric roads, rural mail delivery and telephones, and the grange wants every farmhouse attached.

An awful slap at hunters was made in the report on public utilities. It contained a hope that hunting will be prohibited until the rural live stock recovered from their wounds.

The good roads cry is taken up with a vengeance, and a new idea of state maintenance is advanced. The electric roads and freight abuses on steam roads come in for large discussion.

The buying and selling idea, long since partially dormant, is being revived and co-operative selling is urged upon the farmers. The rural school problem met less than a compromise. The grange advocates centralization, in spite of Horton's opposition, but the M. A. C. is given an illuminated address, metaphorically speaking.

The report of the committee on resolutions, offered yesterday afternoon, contained, among complimentary references to Master Horton and his fellow officers and to the people of Lansing, the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That the state grange earnestly recommends that the legislative committee be instructed to use all endeavors to examine and report favorably on an increased appropriation of at least $5,000 to carry on the work of the Michigan Pioneer and Historical society in its attempt to collect and preserve the history of the state and make it compare more favorably with those of our sister states, and be more commensurate with the dignity and importance of our grand old Michigan."

MICHIGAN BANKS.

Comptroller's Statement Shows Big Increase in Loans and Discount.

Washington, Dec. 13.—The comptroller of the currency Friday gave out abstract reports of the condition of the seventy-nine national banks in Michigan, exclusive of Detroit, on Nov. 25. Compared with the returns of Sept. 15, total resources are decreased from $71,250,931 to $71,145,583. Loans and discounts are increased from $43,497,062 to $44,107,462, and the cash reserve is increased from $3,740,147 to $3,789,381, of which gold holdings are increased from $1,838,054 to $1,856,629.

Individual deposits fell from $50,588,029 to $50,261,287, and the average reserve held advanced from 16.39 to 16.71 per cent.

Barbers Want Specialists.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 13.—The executive committee of the State Association of Barbers met here and approved amendments to the barber's examining law, which will increase the membership of the board from three to five and require that members pass an examination before the state board of registration in medicine on the treatment of skin and scalp diseases. The barbers complain that there have been members of the board who knew nothing whatever of these subjects.

Smith Wants Inquiry Pressed.

Washington, Dec. 13.—William Alden Smith, representative of the Grand Rapids district in Michigan, where reside the parents of William Fitzgerald, who was killed in Guatemala City by Godfrey Hunter, Jr., called at the state department Friday to press the inquiry into that tragedy. Being cabinet day, he was unable to see Secretary Hay, but said he intends to follow the case to the end, and will call again.

Officer Shot Him.

Owosso, Mich., Dec. 13.—Henry Clark, 26 years old, is in hiding somewhere in this city, probably seriously wounded a sthe result of a struggle with Officer Frank J. Mack at midnight. Mack attempted to arrest Clark, but the latter broke away and ran. Mack fired three shots after him and Clark went down, but got up in time to elude the officer.

Three Lucky Convicts.

Jackson, Mich., Dec. 13.—The pardon board has recommended paroles for Henry Abbott, sentenced in 1891 to eighteen years from Cass county for manslaughter; Arthur Frost, sentenced in 1899 to five years from Saginaw for larceny, and William Schmitt, sentenced in 1900 for five years from Oakland county for burglary.

Chile's Exposition Opens.

Santiago de Chile, Dec. 15.—The International exposition was opened here Sunday. A great many people, including President Riesco and other officials, were present.

Foils a Deadly Attack.

"My wife was so ill that good physicians were unable to help her," writes M. M. Austin, of Winchester, Ind., [illegible] was completely cured by Dr. King's New Life Pills." They work wonders in stomach and liver troubles. Cure constipation, sick headache. 25c at C. A. Wright's drug store.

IT CONCERNS MANY

Albion Man Starts Suit on an Unusual Point.

AGAINST A FOOD CONCERN

Demands Return of His Money Paid For Stock on Grounds That Their Charter Is Void—Many Institutions in Country Similarly Situated.

Albion, Mich., Dec. 15.—J. G. Anderson of this city is the attorney in a case against the Sanitary My-Food company of Battle Creek, which bids fair to attract no little attention. Upon its settlement hinges the legality of the organization of multitudes of limited partnership companies, not only in Michigan but throughout the country. The suit involves a point which has never before been raised, and should Mr. Anderson's contention prove correct he will gain a widespread notoriety.

Thomas G. Shepard of Marshall is the complainant, by whom Mr. Anderson is retained. Shepard bought a large block of stock in the above named company and now seeks to recover the purchase price, obtained of him, as he alleges, illegally.

The company is said to be organized under chapter 160, compiled laws of 1897, relating to partnership associations. Mr. Anderson contents that the organization is not made strictly in conformity to that chapter, because:

First—The articles of association do not state that the whole amount of capital stock of the association was subscribed for at the time of recording the articles.

Second—They do not state when and how the capital stock which was unsubscribed for should be paid.

Third—They do not set forth a description of the property and value of the same contributed by each of the subscribers.

Fourth—They have sold treasury stock at less than par value.

He claims the law provides that each of the above shall appear in the articles of association, and that the whole amount of capital stock shall be subscribed before the filing of the articles. Mr. Anderson says these defects are common in organizations of this kind, but the point has never been taken up in court, and attorneys are watching the outcome with interest, while some of the food companies have already taken steps to reorganize in order to get under cover. Other states have similar laws that have been disregarded, so that the matter is of widespread interest.

Several companies are said to be interested in fighting the case, and a strong effort is being made to settle it. The hearing in the case will be held Tuesday in Marshall.

From Poverty to Plenty.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 15.—Mrs. Sarah Morley of Albion, who with her four children has been in almost destitute circumstances for several years, while at her daily task over the washtub received a letter from Dublin, Canada, conveying the information that her father, who disappeared suddenly thirty-two years ago, when she was but seven years of age, was alive and the possessor of a fortune of $375,000, which he amassed in the west. Mrs. Morley had long believed her father dead. She and her children will go at once to Dublin to join him. He wrote that he would provide munificently for them.

Killed at a Grade Crossing.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 15.—While driving across the G. R. & I. track at Indiana Fields crossing shortly before 8 o'clock Saturday evening, Mr. Pearl Wright and Miss Nellie Snyder, both of Scott's Station, were struck by the passenger train from the south, which arrives here at 8:02. The man was killed outright and the woman sustained injuries which almost preclude the possibility of her recovery. The train stopped, picked up the victims of the terrible accident and brought them to this city. Wright's body was horribly mangled.

Not Guilty of Murder.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 15.—The killing of Edward T. Hawley by his brother, James Hawley, April 17 last, was in self-defense. This was the conclusion of the recorder's court jury which Saturday, after two and a half hour's deliberation, brought in a verdict of not guilty. The verdict makes James Hawley a free man. The affair occurred in a saloon near the docks and was one of the many shooting affrays which happened during the month of the above date.

Fire in Big Office Building.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Dec. 15.—Fire broke out on Saturday in the big Graham & Morton office building, and before it could be quenched $20,000 damage had been done to the various firms occupying the building. Several persons had narrow escapes from death. Only by hard work on the past of the firemen were the five big boats of the transportation company saved.

Fell Thirty Feet and Lives.

Calumet, Mich., Dec. 15.—Frank Albrecht of Saginaw fell from the third story of the new Walz building and escaped without serious injury. He was working on the cornice of the building when he slipped and fell headlong to the ground, thirty feet below. Not a bone in his body was broken, but he is likely to be unfit for work for some time.

Ten Buildings Burned.

Reed City, Mich., Dec. 15.—Fire broke out in the Martz blacksmith shop Saturday and could not be controlled until about ten buildings had burned, including the large three-story sanitarium of Andrew B. Spinney and the drug store attached. The losses aggregate $20,000.

Victim of a Windmill.

Hesperia, Mich., Dec. 15.—The family of Charles Anderson, near this place, was shocked to discover the body of Rillin Thorpe, their hired boy, hanging in the farm windmill. He had been missed earlier in the day, but no one thought of opening up the windmill to look for him. He had gone onto the tower, and standing on the narrow platform thirty feet from the ground, was evidently oiling the mill. A fresh breeze had been blowing all day, and a sudden gust had turned the treacherous wheel and vane and an iron bar had caught him across the chest and throat, pinning him closely to the main frame. A protruding bolt cut his throat, though not fatally. He had died either from exhaustion or asphyxiation.

NEW CABLE BEGUN

American End of Great Pacific Span Formally Anchored.

40,000 WITNESSED CEREMONY

Lucille Gage, Daughter of California's Governor, Christened It In Name of John Mackay—Speeches Followed—President Notified by Telegram.

San Francisco, Dec. 15.—"In memory of John W. Mackay I christen the Pacific cable. May it always carry messages of happiness."

With these words, Lucille Gage, 11-year-old daughter of H. L. Gage, governor of California, Sunday christened the trans-Pacific cable and, breaking a bottle of champagne over the shore end, inaugurated a new era in the commercial development of the Pacific coast. The landing and splicing of the shore end, which is to connect the main land with Honolulu, was accomplished without hitch and was witnessed by nearly 40,000 people. Ideal weather prevailed, there being scarcely any surf.

The steamer Newsboy, carrying six miles of cable, steamed close in shore early in the morning and by a lifesaving boat's crew sent a rope, to which the cable was attached, ashore. Word was sent to President Clarence H. Mackay and the cable and Postal Telegraph officials that all was in readiness. The work of hauling in the cable was done so expeditiously that the officials arrived on the beach only two minutes before the cable, which touched the beach and was christened at 9:55 a. m. While the cable was being spliced to the land end, Mayor Schmitz delivered a short speech, congratulating Mr. Mackay on the successful beginning of the work.

Governor H. T. Gage, on behalf of the state of California, paid a fervent tribute to the late John W. Mackay. The formal exercises closed with cheers for the cable and all those taking part in its landing.

Mr. Mackay sent the following telegram to President Roosevelt: "I have the honor to inform you that the end of the Honolulu cable was successfully brought to shore this morning."

THE WEEK IN CONGRESS.

Senator Proctor Has Slated the Militia Organization Bill.

Washington, Dec. 15.—After the routine morning business of the senate is disposed of today, Senator Proctor will ask the senate to take up the bill for the reorganization of the militia forces of the United States and will continue to bring it forward each day in the morning hour, with the hope of securing action early in the week and of having it become a law before adjournment for the Christmas holidays.

At 2 o'clock the statehood bill will be again taken up and Senator Dillingham will address the senate in opposition to the admission of New Mexico and Arizona. The statehood bill will continue each day of the week except Wednesday to be the order of business after 2 o'clock. Wednesday by special order has been set apart for eulogies in memory of the late Senator Sewell of New Jersey.

In case opportunity offers, Senator Penrose will make an effort to get up the immigration bill at odd times during the week.

The prospects are for an uninteresting week in the house. Today is District of Columbia day and the bill to give the secretary of agriculture power to make regulations to prevent the spread of contagious diseases in live stock has been set for Tuesday.

Coal For the Big Cities.

Reading, Pa., Dec. 15.—The Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Co. had over fifty locomotives in service transporting coal to market Saturday and Sunday. The company claims that 75,000 tons were started and is now on the road. Most of it is destined for the large eastern cities. The motive power of the company has never been taxed as it is at the present.

German and British Cruisers Fire on Venezuelan Fort.

CARACAS GREATLY EXCITED

Thousands Gathered in Front of Castro's Palace—President Appeals to His People—Male Population Is Fast Enlisting in the Army.

Puerto Cabello, Dec. 15.—The British cruiser Charybdis and the German cruiser Vineta have bombarded the fortress here. They quickly silenced it.

The Charybdis and the Vineta arrived here Saturday morning. The captain of the English merchant steamer Topaze, which was seized by the mob last Wednesday, visited the English commodore on board the Charybdis and returned an hour later with a detachment of fifty marines, who took charge of the Topaze. The populace were greatly excited at this incident and raised a cry "to arms," but no incident occurred.

The English commodore then sent a demand to the authorities for immediate satisfaction for having pulled down the British flag from the Topaze and advised the government that if satisfaction was not forthcoming in two hours the fortress and the custom house would be bombarded. The authorities, on receipt of this demand, sent a message to President Castro, asking for instructions.

At 5 o'clock the Charybdis and the Vineta opened fire on the fortress and custom house. The fort replied, but was soon silenced. No damage was done to the town.

Caracas, Dec. 15.—The news of the bombardment of Puerto Cabello caused most intense excitement here. The population flocked into the streets and patriotic demonstrations continued all Saturday night. An immense crowd, whose numbers are estimater at more than 10,000, gathered in front of the presidential palace and called on President Castro to appear. Some of the orators among the concourse having advocated reprisals against the foreigners resident in Venezuela, President Castro, in a rage at the suggestion, refused the demands made in the following speech:

"Citizens: The size of nations, like the size of men, is numbered only by their acts. Those born brave prove their valor on the battlefield, not against defenseless citizens who perhaps are innocent, who are in their hearts with us and who are ashamed of the infamy of their compatriots.

"We will seek prisoners for Venezuelan jails on the battlefield. Our action will be directed only against those who come armed. However great may be our indignation, we must behave as a cultured and civilized people, especially now, and when the most powerful nations of Europe are behaving like real savages. I counsel the greatest prudence in order not to abandon our rights, the justice of our cause and our reputation.

"The good name of Venezuela must remain always secure whatever emergencies may arise in the struggle. If we fail, it will be gloriously and heroically, but I assure you that our country will be saved because the supreme being above, who sees and directs all, cannot abandon us in this fatal emergency, justice and right being on our side.

"I, who never tremble before danger, swear I will fulfill my duty and joyfully sacrifice my life for the honor and dignity of the nation."

The Associated Press saw the president twice yesterday. He is calm and is giving all time to the organization of resistance. Fourteen hundred men enlisted Sunday from Caracas alone, including boys and fifteen priests.

The conduct of the British and German commanders is severely censured by all the European colonies.

Gen. Nord Enters Port au Prince.

Port au Prince, Dec. 15.—General Alexis Nord, who was war minister under the provisional government, entered the capital of Haiti Saturday at the head of his army. He was accorded a sympathetic reception by the people. General Nord's intentions are not known. It is generally believed that in case he announces himself a candidate for the presidency his election to that office is assured by reason of the numerous force at his command.

A Costly Fire.

Canal Dover, O., Dec. 15.—The corrugating mills, the paint shop, the storeroom and the building containing the four mills of the west side of the American Sheet Steel company's mills burned to the ground here Saturday night, and the company is confronted with a loss of over $1,000,000, nearly $750,000 in finished product and the remainder in buildings and machinery. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Von Buelow Refused a Princeship.

Berlin, Dec. 15.—Count and Countess von Buelow took luncheon Sunday with the emperor and empress at Potsdam. During the visit his majesty handed the chain of the royal Hohenzollern to the chancellor. The emperor had intended to elevate Count von Buelow to the rank of prince in recognition of the successful passage of the tariff bill, but at Count von Buelow's request this idea was abandoned.

Engineer and Fireman Killed.

Washington, Dec. 15.—The eastbound express on the Chesapeake & Ohio railway was derailed at 9:45 Saturday night at Whitcomb, W. Va., by a landslide of rock, caused by the long and continued rains during the past two or three days. The engine, postal car and baggage cars were derailed and the engineer and fireman killed.

Wade Hampton's Slaves.

It is related of General Wade Hampton that on one occasion he was riding along a highway that led through one of his numerous southern plantations when he met a slave of fine build and appearance. He drew rein and said: "You are a likely fellow. Who do you belong to?" "Wade Hampton, sir." "Ah! And who is Wade Hampton?" "Please, sir, master, you mus' be from de norf, 'kase Mas' Wade Hampton is de berry fust gemmun in de souf."

The story used to be told to illustrate the greatness in numbers of Wade Hampton's slaves. His own slaves did not know him by sight—that is, hundreds and thousands of them did not. The slaves he owned numbered 4,000, and he was therefore the largest slave owner of the south or of modern times.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

PROFESSIONAL BRETHREN

BY GEORGE E. WALSH

Copyright, 1902, by F. M. Buckles & Co., New York

CHAPTER XIII.

I HAD now been in my position about six months. The interesting events which I have recorded had kept me from any longing to return to the exciting experiences of my profession. During this time I had grown somewhat stouter, and my countenance had begun to assume a kindly, benevolent, well fed appearance. Necessarily I had grown a trifle lazier. Several times I had almost decided to return to my old methods of life, but a certain inertia, undoubtedly bred and nourished by my new existence of ease, always prevented. I would keep deferring the time until a more convenient period.

A genuine fear that I would lose my skill through lack of practice occasionally tormented me, but each time I put it aside with the thought that my profession was no longer an absolute necessity. It did not mean bread and butter to me as it did at one time. I was a full fledged butler, and I could secure a good recommendation from my master any time I chose to leave.

Warned by my own experiences, I never let an opportunity pass to help a young man just starting on the downward road to get back to the main highway. I never entertained any serious thoughts of getting back there myself, but I hate to see others straying from it.

Nevertheless I now found myself slowly drifting back to an honest life. This had been accomplished through no choosing of my own. Circumstances again were responsible for this change. I did not make any resolves to remain thus for any length of time—in fact, I rather expected that the time would be brief.

As I just remarked, I never liked to see another, especially a young man, taking the downward road, and it was this strange feeling that gave me a little worry and anxiety in my idle life as butler for Mr. Goddard. I realized that my master was leading a double life; that he was pursuing his burglary tendencies systematically and that he was committing crime even while he was making love to Miss Stetson. This circumstance at first puzzled me; then it worried and irritated and finally disgusted me. I could not fathom its meaning. I saw my own crime, illustrated in him, in its true light, and it positively made me ashamed of my record. I longed to speak of the matter to him, but our peculiar relationship prevented it.

While I sympathized with him for the incurable disease which had always cast a blight over his young life, I soon learned to condemn him for his rash folly. No man of his position, intelligence and opportunities in the world had any business to stoop to crime. In some cases necessity may drive a man to the commission of a theft and habit may later deaden his conscience, but no such excuse could be held out for my master.

He was either bad at heart, a criminal by instinct, or he had a weak will that had been perverted by others when young and unformed. In everything else he seemed a model of strength, self command and intelligence. Why should he be so helpless in this respect?

Since that first memorable meeting at the dead of night in the Stetson mansion no word or sign had ever passed between us which indicated that we knew anything of the other's criminal tendencies. Out of a sense of honor I kept my part of the agreement, and for some reason he remained uncommunicative about the subject. Nevertheless I longed to break the ice between us. If I could once more meet him when robbing a house, I would have the liberty to speak, and I would not again bind myself to silence.

Admiration for his skill, love for him as a man when not engaged in his professional work and a certain disgust at his deceptive, double existence produced strangely conflicting emotions in me. At times I felt that his crime should be atoned for and that if he should ever attempt to marry Miss Stetson I would reveal all I knew to her. Gradually his moral disease seemed more terrible to me than his physical. As a leper he was suffering for the sins of another, but as a criminal he was pursuing dangers and pleasures of his own free will which in time would entail suffering upon others.

A wave of moral reform swept over me for a time and possessed me so completely that I decided to make amends for my past deeds by trying to convert my master from his evil ways. If I could accomplish this, I should feel that my life had not been spent in vain.

Meanwhile I lived in the fear that he would be discovered. I knew from the reports that somebody was conducting a systematic series of burglaries in the neighborhood, and I did not hesitate to attach the blame to my master. Detectives were constantly prowling around at night to capture the robbers, but all their skill seemed to be without avail. A better testimony to the ability of my master could not be given.

CHAPTER XIV.

WHEN I reached the conclusion that something ought to be done to save Mr. Goddard from himself, I began planning the best course to pursue. First I would have to meet him at night under circumstances similar to our first meeting, and then I would have the liberty to speak to him. To accomplish this I watched him every night, often sitting up until nearly daybreak to see if he left the house. For nearly a week I followed this course, and I could swear that he had not left his bed after midnight.

On the seventh night he had an agreement to meet Dr. Squires at his office, and, feeling worn out with my unsuccessful vigils, I retired early and enjoyed a sound night's sleep.

That night a big robbery was committed not five miles from the house, and the following morning everybody was talking about it. When I heard the news, a terrible suspicion followed me. My master was using his alleged appointments with the doctor as a means to throw me off the track. I tried to trace back the dates of the various robberies, and I imagined that I could establish a coincidence between them and Mr. Goddard's visits to Dr. Squires.

All that day my master was indolent and worn out, as usual, and I instantly attributed it now to his work of the preceding night and not to any poison which the doctor was administering to him.

When this light dawned clearly upon my mind, I knew exactly what to do. I slept soundly and peacefully during the next few nights, but about ten days later when my master announced that he had another appointment with Dr. Squires I prepared to spend the night following him.

He left the house about 8 o'clock. To my surprise, he did not take his horse, but walked leisurely down the road toward the old haunted mansion that the doctor had so long occupied. I followed him at a respectful distance, but he did not seem nervous or at all suspicious. He walked carelessly along, without once looking behind him.

He reached his destination about half past 8 and walked lightly up toward the house and entered. This did not astonish me, for I supposed that he really did go to the doctor's and probably submitted to some sort of treatment. His midnight marauding would begin after he left to go home.

I cautiously approached the house and tried to get a glimpse of the interior, but the blinds and shades were so closely drawn that I failed to get a glimpse of even the light. I contented myself with examining the burglar alarm, for at some future time I might find it useful to unfasten it from a window without giving an alarm.

The minutes passed slowly. Not a sound or movement from inside could be heard. Accustomed to waiting in patience for a long time, I did not find my vigil so difficult. I entertained myself in various ways to keep from falling asleep. A few moments of sleep might spoil everything for me.

It must have been shortly after midnight when I heard the front door creak on its hinges. I was concealed behind some shrubbery at the time, where I could command a good view of the entrance to the house. The door, I knew, was opening, but no ray of light streamed through the crack. The whole house was, in fact, wrapped in darkness.

I saw the shadows of two men on the front porch, and by their general outlines I knew that one was my master and the other Dr. Squires. Neither spoke for some time. Then I heard the doctor say in a low, muffled voice:

"Now, Charles, the house is three miles below, and you ought to reach it in half an hour."

"Yes; I'll reach it in half an hour."

"You must be extra cautious, for there are many detectives around," the doctor continued.

"I shall be very careful."

"Then go and return as soon as possible."

They separated. The doctor stole noiselessly back into the house and my master walked stealthily down the gravelly drive toward the main highway.

His manner had completely changed. Every movement he made indicated suspicion and alertness. He was not nervous, but every faculty was strained. He was now the professional burglar on the scent. The slight breaking of a twig or the clinking of a pebble, I knew, would arouse and alarm him.

My prey was not an easy one to follow. He would stop and turn upon his tracks in the most unexpected way. His ears and eyes appeared gifted with wonderful powers of sensation. I had to increase the distance between us to avoid detection.

I managed to keep him in sight for about a mile, and then he suddenly gave me the slip. In some inexplicable manner he had dodged away from me and disappeared as completely as if the earth had swallowed him. Chagrined at thus being thrown off the track, I put all my energies at work to regain the lost trail. For two hours I wandered around, vainly trying to catch a glimpse of the man. I became so reckless that I would have exposed my person to him if it would have discovered his whereabouts to me.

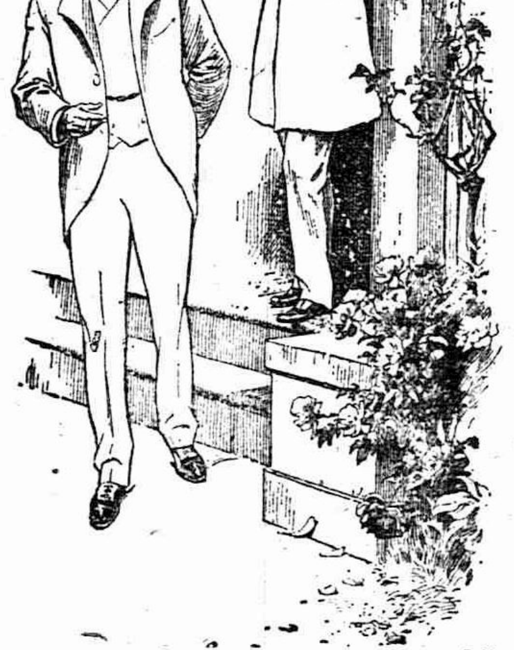
Finally I gave it up in disgust. I seated myself under a tree near the highway and reflected. Certainly I was baffled for the night. I was on the point of returning home when the words of Dr. Squires recurred to me. The two were evidently engaged in the same criminal practices, and they would probably meet again that night somewhere.

With this thought uppermost in my mind I cautiously retraced my steps to the doctor's house. Once I thought that I had discovered my master again by accident, but upon closer observation I found that I was on the very point of accosting a detective. An arrest at such a time of the night might lead to unpleasant complications, and so I remained half an hour hidden in the bushes until the man had disappeared.

When I reached the old mansion, everything was as dark and gloomy as when I left it to follow my master. There was not the sign of a living being around. I cautiously started to walk up the gravelly drive, and the crunching noise of my boots sounded clear and distinct on the night air. I just had time to drop down behind some shrubbery before the front door of the house opened, and the dark shadow of a man seemed to flit out of it. I remained perfectly quiet, not daring to move or scarcely breathe. Undoubtedly the noise made by my boots had attracted the attention of somebody in the mansion.

I remained in this reclining position for a full half hour. The shadow on the porch remained so perfectly still that I half imagined that it was an illusion or the reflection of some intervening object. But my policy has ever been to make sure of a thing before deciding what course to pursue, and so I accepted the benefit of the doubt and waited patiently. Once or twice I thought of the tales of spirits and ghosts related about the old mansion and of how they walked through the empty rooms after midnight and made free with all earthly occupants. This did not disturb me, however, for I knew that somebody besides spirits was awake around the house that night.

I was getting tired of watching that immovable figure on the porch, and my eyelids were winking and blinking spasmodically when my ears caught a sound directly back of me. I did not dare move my head an inch, but the thought of the bloodthirsty Danes suddenly made me cold and clammy. I imagined I detected the patter of their feet on the drive, and I gripped my revolver tightly, determined to make a desperate stand for my life.



"There are many detectives around."

A moment later my feelings were considerably relieved. The steps approached nearer and nearer—soft, stealthy, delicate steps that might have been made by a child. Then the figure of a man loomed up within three yards of me and moved swiftly toward the house.

But in that momentary glimpse I caught the features of my master. In his hands he carried a clumsy bundle or article, which I failed to make out. Then for the first time the shadow on the porch moved. The two met at the top of the steps and quickly disappeared in the house, the door closing noiselessly behind them.

I would have given much just then to have had the power to penetrate behind those wooden walls or to have raised the shades and looked into the doctor's office, where I knew that a light must be burning. But I felt that my quest was ended for the night and that further work would be useless. After waiting around another half hour I quietly stole out of the yard and hurried home to reflect over the strange occurrences of the night.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

BECK-SNYDER.

Miss Sue Beck, Formerly of Tecumseh,

MARRIES

Miss Sue Beck and Grover Snyder, well known and popular young people, were united in marriage last evening at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride, 106 South Plum street. The cermony was performed by the Rev. Charles L. Conger in the presence of a number of relatives and friends. The house was rendered unusually attractive with floral decorations, a color scheme of white and green prevailing.

After the ceremony a prettily appointed dinner was enjoyed. The decorations in the dining room were harmonious in coloring and design with those in the reception room. At the bride's table were seated Mr and Mrs. Snyder, H. S. Chapman, Miss Mae Beck, George Whitlam and Miss Bessie Bates of Tecumseh, Mich. Miss Bates was the only out of town guest. She officiated at the piano during the wedding ceremony, rendering Lohengrin's wedding march as the party entered the room.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A Beck, and is a most popular young lady. The groom is connected with the Central Union Telephone company, and holds the position of chief inspector at Portsmouth, where the couple will make their future home. Many beautiful gifts, consisting in the main of gold and silver presents evidenced the large number of friends both possess.—Springfield Daily Sun.

Ella Blanch Fowler.

The many friends of Miss Ella Fowler were greatly shocked to learn of her death which occurred at 2 o'clock Saturday morning at the University hospital at AnnArbor. Having underwent an operation Wednesday for appendicitis, she was progressing nicely when a relapse came Friday morning and she rapidly grew worse until the angel of death bearing God's summons closed the eyes of the sufferer in peaceful slumber.

Ella B. Fowler was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fowler. She was born in Tecumseh Nov. 17, 1881, and has always resided at this place until about two years ago she moved to AnnArbor with her parents where she attended the University school of Music from which she would have graduated this coming June.

At AnnArbor as well as at Tecumseh she was the center of a large circle of friends. She was a bright and promising young lady and was loved by all who knew her. She will be greatly missed by her many companions which she won by her kind and loving disposition.

She is survived by a father, mother, and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. John Fowler, Miss Nettie, of AnnArbor Mrs. John Orr, of this place, and a brother, Dr. Walter N. Fowler, of Bluffton, Ind.

The funeral was held yesterday morning at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Orr, Revs. M. T. Seelye and W. F. Jones, officiated. The pallbearers were Floyd Heesen, Ernest Carr, B. J. Pulver, Earl Updike, John Snow and Lou Sheldon.

Those from out of town who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Nicholson, of Toledo; Mr. and Mrs. O. Stimpson, Mrs. H Robison and son Austin, of Saline, Miss Mary Newcomb, of AnnArbor.

Smith W. Morse

Was born in Mina, Chautauqua county, N. Y., Jan. 9, 1832, and died in Tecumseh Dec. 13, 1902. He was the son of Nathan and Almira Morse, who moved to Michigan in 1834 and located in Sharon, Washtenaw county. In 1856 Mr. Morse Jr., then a young man of 24 years, went to Illinois where he lived until 1876. In November, 1859, he was married to Miss Sarah E. Brumfield. Of this union three children were born, two of whom, W. Jay and Emma, with the wife still survive.

In August, 1862, Mr. Morse enlisted in the 106th Illinois Vol. and served three years. He united with the Baptist church in November, 1881, remaining a faithful member until his death.

Mr. Morse had been in poor health for three years, his physical strength gradually failing. Two or three days before his death, he sang a number of Gospel Hymns such as

"Show pity, Lord, O Lord, forgive;
Let a repenting rebel live:
Are not Thy mercies large and free?
May not a sinner trust in Thee?"

"The Home of the Soul" and "Nearer, my God, to Thee."

The funeral services were held at the Baptist church Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the F. & A. M., of which the deceased had been a worthy member. Sermon by Pastor Bower from John 11:25.

Robert W. King Dead.

Robert W. King, of the King Manufacturing Co., died yesterday at his residence, 278 Maybury avenue, after being ill with pneumonia for only a few days. He was 32 years old. The funeral will be private Sunday at 2 o'clock. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Fred VanCamp.—Saturday's Detroit Journal.

The deceased will be remembered by many in Tecumseh, having spent his boyhood days here. He was a cousin of Mrs. John Freeman and Messrs Henry, Abner and Andrew Wilson, of this place.

The Christmas Dinner.

In spite of the fact that the word dyspepsia means literally bad cook, it will not be fair for many to lay the blame on the cook if they begin the Christmas Dinner with little appetite and end it with distress or nausea. It may not be fair for any to do that—let us hope so for the sake of the cook! The disease dyspepsia indicates a bad stomach, that is a weak stomach rather than a bad cook, and for a weak stomach there is nothing else equal to Hoods Sarsaparilla. It gives the stomach vigor and tone cures dyspepsia, creates appetite, and makes eating the pleasure it should be.

Get the Most Out of Your Food

You don't and can't if your stomach is weak. A weak stomach does not digest all that is ordinarily taken into it. It gets tired easily, and what it fails to digest is wasted.

Among the signs of a weak stomach are uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, and disagreeable belching.

"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla at different times for stomach troubles, and a run down condition of the system, and have been greatly benefited by its use. I would not be without it in my family. I am troubled especially in summer with weak stomach and nausea and find Hood's Sarsaparilla invaluable." E. B. HICKMAN, W.Chester, Pa.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Strengthen and tone the stomach and the whole digestive system.

ROUND ABOUT US.

A scribe has discovered that "there are about ten people who want a newspaper to do something for them, to one who wants to do something for a newspaper." This proportion holds good everywhere.

Judge Chester, sitting in a divorce session at Adrian, Saturday, Nov. 22, separated six couples, the applicant in each instance being the wife. Everyone made affidavit that she had been treated with extreme cruelty. Hog cholera is not the worst affliction known in Lenawee county.—Detroit Tribune.

Jimmie Blythman formerly of Adrian, who has been a thief from childhood, and has been arrested many times, is now in jail in AnnArbor, having been arrested on charge of having burglarized a hardware store in Dexter. Geo. Reece, who was also arrested, has confessed and implicated Blythman.—Hudson Post.

Once upon a time a Topeka (Kan.) minister was preaching a sermon on "How Shall We Get to Heaven?" Just outside the church there was a ball game in progress on a vacant lot. As a climax to his beautiful sermon, the minister folded his hands, dropped his eyes toward the floor and said in a mellow voice: "And how shall we get to Heaven?" There was a moment's pause, then came an exciting crying, "Slide, feller, slide, slide, slide like the devil, slide."

A person is going about the state trying to sell a powder to put in lamps, and claiming that gasoline can then be burned and no explosion occur. He exhibits a lamp filled with the gasoline lighted and claims that he has the endorsement of the state board of health. The powder has been tested and found to be salt and soda. Secretary Baker says that the salesman in this case is an impostor, that no such powder has the endorsement of the board, and that the public should beware of any impositor who is trying to sell a compound whereby gasoline may be burned in any ordinary lamp, a thing which cannot be done without incurring great danger.—Hudson Post.

A popular hotel clerk in Detroit, is always careful to assist guests when putting on an overcoat, taking pains to catch the skirt of the under coat, and pull it down to place with dextrous little jerks. A lady boarder of several years came from the dining room and with his usual courtesy he promptly came to her assistance, holding the cloak carefully, and assisted her in pulling it on. He grasped the collar with his left hand and by force of habit reached his right under the jacket and began to feel for the under coat, when he was brought to his senses by a stern "Sir." from the lady. The boys observed the confusion of the clerk as he apologized, and the lady had to join in the laugh. That clerk is not leading a happy life now, and whenever any of the boys happen around, he makes a porter help a guest don her overcoat.—Adrian Press

Will Harris a young man about 20 years old, a resident of Jonesville, was accidentally shot in a most peculiar manner at his home last Monday morning. He is accustomed to sleeping with a revolver under his pillow, and as he arose in the morning the weapon in some manner became entangled in the sheets and was discharged, striking the young man in the right side, passing around his body, just missing his heart, and lodged in his back. His chances for recovery are slight.—Hudson Post.

A MEASURE OF MERIT.

Tecumseh Citizens Should Weigh Well This Evidence.

Proof of merit lies in the evidence.
Convincing evidence in Tecumseh
Is not the testimony of strangers,
But the indorsement of Tecumseh people.

That's the kind of proof given here.

Mrs. J. H. Welch, who resides in the south eastern section of Tecumseh, says: "I wish to express my gratitude for the benefit derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. My back troubled me for a long time with a constant dull aching pain across my loins and when stooping or exerting myself it became very sharp. If I took cold it always settled in my kidneys and in the morning I was so lame and stiff that I could hardly attend to my work. I used several simple household remedies but they did not bring relief. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills recommended and spoken of so highly I concluded to test their merits and got a box at C. A. Wright's drug store. They took right hold of the cause and in a short time the pain in my back was a thing of the past. I can now straighten after bending or stooping without any inconvenience. Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly a wonderful remedy."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Swinging is said by the doctors to be a good exercise for the health, but many a poor wretch has come to his death by it.

"Itching hemorrhoids were the plague of my life. Was almost wild. Doan's Ointment cured me quickly and permanently, after doctors had failed." C F. Cornwell, Valley Street, Saugerties, N. Y.

"Doctor, please cut along the seam," said an affectionate wife to a physician, who was cutting open her apoplectic husband's shirt.

A lazy liver makes a lazy man. Burdock Blood Bitters is the natural, never failing remedy for a lazy liver.

"Mamma," said a little girl, pointing to the telegraph wires, "how do they send messages by those bits of wire without tearing them to pieces?" "They send them in a fluid state, my dear," was the reply.

It excites the wonder of the world, a magic remedy, liquid electricity, that drives away suffering and disease. Rocky Mountain Tea, 35c. J. J. Orr.

MRS. GRANT IS DEAD.

Wife of the President Taken Away by Heart Failure.

Washington, Dec. 15.—Mrs. U. S. Grant, wife of President Grant, died at her residence in this city at 11:17 o'clock Sunday night. Death was due to heart failure. Her daughter, Nellie Grant Sartoris, was the only one of her children with her at the time of her death. Death came peacefully, the sufferer retaining almost complete consciousness practically to the end. Word has come from Jesse and Ulysses S. Grant, two of the sons now in California, that they have started on their way to Washington. The other son, General Fred Grant, is in Texas, and he will hasten here.

The remains of Mrs. Grant will be deposited at the tomb at Riverside Park, N. Y., where those of her husband now repose.

Mrs. Grant, whose maiden name was Julia Dent, was born in St. Louis in 1826 and was the daughter of Fredrick and Ellen Wrenshall Dent. She was married to General, then Captain Grant in 1848. During the civil war Mrs. Grant was with the general much of the time and remained as near as possible to him when he was campaigning. She saw her husband twice inaugurated as president and accompanied him around the world. As mistress of the White House, she gave liberally to all the charitable institutions of the city. Four children were born to General and Mrs. Grant, three sons and one daughter, all of whom are living.

During recent years, since General Grant's death, Mrs. Grant has spent most of her winters in this city, living at 2111 Q street, while during the summer she usually lived at popular resorts and with her children. She was of domestic temperament and devoted most of her time to her home and children. She cared little for society and always avoided public notice as much as possible.

For several years Mrs. Grant had been so feeble that it was impossible for her to accept social engagements. She suffered from rheumatism and was compelled to walk with a cane or with the assistance of an attendant. She was 76 years of age at the time of her death.

SEEKING REFUGE.

German Residents of Caracas Call at American Legation.

Caracas, Dec. 15.—A note from the commanders of the allied Anglo-German fleet, which the Venezuelan government refused to receive Friday at La Guaira, was sent Saturday to United States Minister Bowen at Caracas and forwarded by him to the proper government official here. The note is in the name of Great Britain and Germany. It requests all Venezuelan ships, after the lapse of five days, to refrain from sailing from the port of La Guaira until the present difficulties are over.

The question what right Great Britain and Germany have to coerce Venezuela without declaring a blockade is being asked on all sides here.

President Castro learned Saturday morning of the illness of Madame von Pilgrim-Baltazzi, wife of the German ambassador, and in the afternoon, accompanied by his wife and a number of Venezuelan officers, he called at the German legation. Here the visitors were received by United States Minister Bowen. Before he left the German legation he offered her the hospitality of the "yellow house," the capitol at Caracas.

The statement that Italy, through her legation here, is to demand payment of her claims against Venezuela, has been confirmed.

The situation here continues to be critical and there is much excitement among the German residents of Caracas, many of whom have called at the American legation to seek refuge there.

The people of Caracas are astonished that the government at Washington remains silent in spite of the recent act of the allied fleet.

The enlistment of Venezuelan soldiers continues; 2,000 men from the interior reached Caracas Saturday.

The British legation here has been reopened under the American flag by W. W. Russell, secretary of the American legation.

Italy Sends Warships.

Rome, Dec. 15.—Italy's claims against Venezuela are for damages sustained by Italian subjects during the Venezuelan revolutions of 1898 and 1900. When Great Britain and Germany agreed upon a common source of action toward Venezuela, Italy thought to join them. Two Italian men-of-war which left Otranto with secret orders, supposedly for Tripoli or Morocco, were in reality destined for Venezuela. Other warships have been ordered to Venezuelan waters.

Fire Devastated the Town.

Centreville, Md., Dec. 15.—The business portion of this city was devastated by fire early Sunday morning, entailing a loss of about $150,000, with insurance of $80,000. A high wind rendered the work of the local volunteer fire department inadequate and a special train brought two engine companies from Wilmington, Del., whose work soon subdued the flames. The fire started in W. H. Smith's dry goods store from an unknown origin.

New Way to Polish a Stove.

No Waste—Odor—or Dirt.

By sprinkling Sifter Stove Polish on the stove and then rubbing with a damp rag and gently brushing with a dry cloth, a brilliant, jet black lustre is obtained. Sifter Stove Polish comes in a large box with a perforated top, through which the polish is sifted just like peppering a beefsteak. Sifter Stove Polish is made of pure powdered graphite, which is not affected by fire, produces the most brilliant polish, and when applied, won't rub off. It is odorless. It never dries up. It does not require soaking in water before using. A 10 cent box of Sifter Stove Polish will polish more stoves than three times its cost in any other polish. Get Sifter Stove Polish of any dealer at 5 cents a box, a 10 cent box contains more than twice as much. Insist on the yellow label with the hand.

DOUBLES RAILROAD TAXES.

New Law Which Goes Into Effect Brings In Neat Sum.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 15.—The matter that is probably now the most absorbing subject for the railroad people is the taxes they are to pay to the state under the law which was passed by the last legislature. This law, which was the result of the "equal tax" agitation of years, changed the system of taxation in this state. Heretofore the railroads have paid a certain percentage on their gross earnings, but under the new system they will pay on the value of their property, like ordinary taxpayers.

To the state tax commissioners was given the task of computing the value of the railroad property and to find the average rate of taxation.

The official figures were given out Saturday evening and they show that the total value placed on all the roads of any importance is $208,212,500, while the tax computed upon this valuation is $2,850,231 22.

The amount of tax assessed against the railroads this year under the specific system is $1,483,906 84, so that the increase in the amount that will come to the school fund of the state through the change in system of taxing the railroads, if the figures stand the test of the railroad attorneys' scrutiny, will be $1,366,324 38. This tax is more than twice as much as the total railroad tax three or four years ago, and almost double the tax for the present year, when prosperity earnings brought the specific taxes to a point never reached before.

A Good Cough Medicine.

From the Gazette, Toowoomba, Australia: I find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an excellent medicine. I have been suffering from a severe cough for the last two months, and it has effected a cure. I have great pleasure in recommending it.—W. C WOCKNER. This is the opinion of one of our oldest and most respected residents, and has been voluntarily given in good faith that others may try the remedy and be benefited as was Mr. Wockner. voices of the Ice.

The winter of the far north is not wholly silent, although so little life is manifest at that season. A paragraph from Captain Koldewey's account of his winter's stay on the east coast of Greenland makes this fact very clear:

All these movements of the ice—the gradual crowding and pressing, bending and pushing, the breaking of the masses of snow lying at the "ice foot"—do not go on noiselessly, but are generally accompanied by certain sounds, which are called the "voices" of the ice.

Now we hear a low singing, splashing or grumbling, alternating with various other noises, cracking and snapping; now it sounds irregularly from a great distance, like a confusion of human voices, the changing din of a train or a sledging party, or you fancy you hear the steps and voices of all sorts of animals.

There is a charm in listening to these sounds on a still night.

A Medicine for Old People.

Rev. Geo. Gay, Greenwich, Kas., is past 83 years of age, yet he says: "I am enjoying excellent health for a man of my age, due entirely to the rejuvenating influences of Dr. Miles' Nervine. It brings sleep and rest when nothing else will, and gives strength and vitality even to one of my old age."

"I am an old soldier," writes Mr. Geo. Watson, of Newton, Ia., "and I have been a great sufferer from nervousness, vertigo and spinal trouble. Have spent considerable money for medicine and doctors, but with little benefit. I was so bad my mind showed signs of weakness. I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I know it saved my life."

Dr. Miles' Nervine

Saved me from the insane asylum," Mrs. A. M. Heifner, of Jerico Springs, Mo., writes. "I was so nervous that I could scarcely control myself, could not sleep nor rest, would even forget the names of my own children at times. I commenced using Dr. Miles' Nervine and it helped me from the first, and now I am perfectly well."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15, 1902.

Word has been received by Secretary Hay that General Tasker H. Bliss has accomplished, in Havana, the task for which he was sent to Cuba and has either negotiated a reciprocity treaty or has procured a protocol which provides for such treaty. As heretofore stated in these letters, the new treaty provides for a reduction of the Dingley duties on imports from Cuba of 20 per cent. and secures in return therefore material concessions from Cuba Cuba is to adopt maximum and minimum tariff schedules, the former to be assessed on imports from all countries other than the United States. In exemplification of the workings of the new treaty it is stated that at present Cuba imports more cotton goods, of which she is a large consumer, from Europe than from the United States. The new tariff will give the United States an advantage in of from 33⅓ to 40 per cent. and will thus insure a monopoly of the Cuban market. The same is virtually true of linen goods, etc. The president is said to have secured pledges from many senators to support the new treaty and the administration does not believe it will meet with strong opposition. The senate committee on foreign relations has determined to insert a clause in the ratification of the treaty requiring the consent of the House but the republican leaders say that will not be hard to obtain.

The Venezuelan situation is the occasion of some anxiety on the part of the administration although it is believed the fact that Great Britain is party to the belligerent forces will have a tendency to restrain Germany from the high handed proceedings she might attempt were she alone engaged The sinking of Venezuelan ships by the German admiral has led to suspicion of the attitude of the latter country, however, and the president and his cabinet are watching the situation with closest interest The gunboat Marietta has been ordered to LaGuayra to protect American interests. The president has made it very clear that he will not interfere with the most drastic measures for collecting the debt which Venezuela owes her foreign creditors but will promptly protest at any attempt at territorial acquisition.

But the president and Secretary Hay are much pleased at the good offices performed by United States Minister Bowen at Caracas, the latter having secured the release of the English and German consuls and citizens whom President Castro at first imprisoned and having been made the medium for an arbitration proposition by the Venezuelan president, a proposition which it is feared comes too late for acceptance by Germany and Great Britain. It has, however, been submitted to both nations through the state department.

The disregard of the little niceities of diplomacy, to which this country has in the past been prone, caused some embarassment during the past week. Minister Buck having resigned his post at Tokyo, the president appointed John Barrett, now minister to Siam, to succeed him. Immediately it became known, not as a result of a formal protest, but by less direct methods common among diplomats, that Mr. Barrett would be, to some extent, persona non grata at Tokyo. Fortunately, the newspapers had ascertained the president's intentions before they were formally made known and thus precipitated the criticism from the Japanese legation. It became known that the chief objection to Mr. Barrett was the fact that he had, in a public speech, stated that Aguinaldo and his Filipino colleagues were statesmen on a par with the Japanese. Recognizing that the fact that Mr. Barrett did not command the respect of the Japanese would diminish his usefulness, Secretary Hay notified Mr. Barrett of the president's wish but also advised him that it might be wise for him to decline the appointment, which he has done. It is predicted that he will later receive promotion to some court where he may prove more acceptable and in the meantime it is believed that Mr. Lloyd C. Griscom, now minister to Persia, will be transferred to Tokyo.

SERMON AN ADVERTISEMENT.

Owosso Preacher's Criticisms Sent Big Crowd to a Show.

Owosso, Mich., Dec. 15.—The Keystone Dramatic company, which has been at the opera house all week and advertised to play "East Lynne" last evening for the benefit of charity.

In his sermon Sunday morning Rev J. P. Varner denounced the company and its pretension to play for charity as a humbug. He denounced Manager Salisbury for leasing the opera house for the evening's entertainment, and rated Mayor V. M. White for permitting the play to go on. He arraigned those who would stoop to attend a place of amusement on Sunday evening, while the churches are all doing business.

As a result of the free advertising given "East Lynne," the largest crowd of the week filled the opera house last night. Special care was taken to avoid noise or disorder of any kind, and everything passed off smoothly.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

How Can I Keep Up with the Times?

IT is pretty hard to keep well informed on the political news, the scientific news, the literary news, the educational movements, the great business developments, the hundreds of interesting and valuable articles in the hundreds of excellent magazines. About the only way it can be done by the average busy man and woman is to read a magazine like "The Review of Reviews," and, as it is the only magazine of the sort, it is a good thing to send $2.50 for a year's subscription.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT says:
"I know that through its columns views have been presented to me that I could not otherwise have had access to; because all earnest and thoughtful men, no matter how widely their ideas diverge, are given free utterance in its columns."

EX-PRESIDENT GROVER CLEVELAND says:
"I consider it a very valuable addition to my library."

Operators Now Have Attention of Strike Commission.

WARM SESSION WEDNESDAY

Old Question of Recognition of Union Comes Up—Independent Owners Want President to Appoint Commission to Settle All Questions.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 18.—The anthracite coal operators opened their side of the controversy with the mineworkers Wednesday before the strike commission and the attorneys who are on record before the commission as representing non-union men, who have been admitted to the arbitration scheme, began calling witnesses.

The sessions were probably the liveliest yet held by th commission. At the morning session the miners' lawyers challenged the fairness of certain wage statements handed to the commission by the Pennsylvania Coal company, and in the afternoon Lawyer Darrow had a spirited discussion with Chairman Gray as to whether or not the miners had a right to know who is paying the lawyers representing the non-union men before the commission. Mr. Darrow asserted they were employed by the coal operators.

Preceding this, Simon P. Wolverton, counsel for the Reading company, who delivered the opening address on behalf of all the large coal companies, made the point in his address that the recognition of the union is not an issue before the commission, which brought out a protest from Mr. Darrow. The latter claimed that if it were not, then the operators should be forbidden from presenting testimony that tended to show the union was responsible for all the alleged violence committed during the strike.

Following is an abstract of the statement of the independent operators: "We suggest a commission be appointed by the president of the United States, if he is willing to perform that service, to whom shall be referred all questions at issue between the respective companies and their own employes, whether they belong to a union or not, and the decision of that commission shall be accepted by us.

"We are not discriminating against the United Mineworkers, but insist that the miners' union shall not discriminate against or refuse to work with non-union men."

"We claim that, according to the terms of the submission, any question as to wages should be settled by an examination of the complaints and conditions at each separate colliery.

"Again, we think the commission, before taking any action looking to an increase of wages, should carefully consider upon whom such increase must fall.

"The varying conditions of work at the respective mines make it impossible to lay down a hard and fast rule as to the length of the working day that will do equal justice to all concerned.

"If any award is made by this commission in favor of United Mineworkers, we claim that as a condition precedent there should be some substantial assurance on the part of such mineworkers that they will in the future refrain from in any way interfering with or molesting persons who wish to work in or about the mines, but who do not belong to the union.

"The wanton persecution of non-union men, who only ask to be allowed to earn their daily bread in peace, is a shame."

PEACE IS IN SIGHT

Decided that Venezuelan Difficulty Shall Be Aribitrared.

MAKE BOWEN AN ARBITRATOR

Citizens of Caracas Ask Castro to Give Minister Bowen Power to Effect a Settlement—Blockade of Ports Begun Wednesday.

Caracas, Dec. 18.—It has been decided that the Venezuelan difficulty shall be arbitrated, and the discussion of terms of settlement is now going on. United States Minister Bowen undoubtedly will be one of the arbitrators. The government fears that coercive measures will follow the establishment of the blockade.

Caracas, Dec. 18.—Indications here are that Venezuela will yield to the demands of the allies. The leading citizens of Caracas have addressed a joint note to President Castro, asking him to give full powers to United States Minister Bowen to effect a termination of the present difficulty.

This note was transmitted to President Castro at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. It was signed by all the leading merchants, bankers and agriculturalists of Caracas. It reflects truly the concensus of current opinion among the business element of this city. The men who signed the note will meet again to discuss ways and means of obtaining money with which Venezuela can meet her obligations, as well as the guarantees which it will be possible to offer to her creditors. The note is in part as follows:

"Caracas, Dec. 17, 1902.

"Sir:—In view of the acts of violence already committed and of the absolute importance of Venezuela to meet force with force in response to the allied action of Germany and Great Britain, in view of the fact that Venezuela has exhausted all the means required by civilization and diplomacy to put an end to the present situation, and the government and the people of Venezuela having complied honorably and worthily to the demands of national honor, we consider, with all due respect, that the moment to yield to force has arrived.

"We, therefore, respectfully recommend that full powers be given to the minister of the United States of North America, authorizing him to carry out proper measures to terminate the present conflict in the manner least prejudicial to the interests of Venezuela.

"We subscribe ourselves your obedient servants. J. E. Linares, H. L. Boulton, Carlos Santana, Nicomedes Zuloaga, Carlos Zuloaga, F. De Sales, Perez E. Montauban, M. Chapellin, Juan Herrera, Juan A. A. Travleso, Y. De J. Paul."

In addition to the names given, the note is signed by about 200 other prominent citizens of Caracas.

The blockade of La Guaira, notification of which in the names of Great Britain and Germany, was communicated to the Venezuelan government Dec. 13, went into effect Wednesday. The order applies to Venezuelan vessels only.

Message From the Cable Ship.

San Francisco, Dec. 18.—The Associated Press has received the following message from the cable ship Silvertown, dated noon Wednesday: "Four hundred and fifty-five knots from shore and proceeding at a speed of eight knots. The terrific seas that had swept the decks for twenty-four hours subsided considerably at midnight. There is a heavy swell on today, but the weather is partly clear and pleasant. The indications are for better weather and calmer seas."

War Against the Negro.

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 18.—Four shootings and one murder, in which negroes took part, have been followed not only by closing clubs and saloons conducted by negroes, but many colored people are leaving the city. They are afraid to stay here owing to a feeling against them among the white people. A committee has raised more than $500 among business men as a reward for the capture of three negroes who murdered John M. Koonsman. No further clues to the negroes have been found.

More Trouble in China.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 18.—Mail advices from Chankking, in the Szechuan province of China, report that both the cities of Meichou and Kiatingfu have had their gates closed and a state of siege declared, owing to the numerous bodies of armed boxers in their vicinity, it being feared by the officials that the insurgents may take the cities by surprise. Troops were sent to raise the siege of the two cities but failed.

Seized the Diamonds.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 18.—Special Agent J. F. Evans, stationed at El Paso, Tex., has reported to the secretary of the treasury the seizure at El Paso of diamonds, said to be worth $24,000 and which, it is claimed, were smuggled from England via New York. It is understood that a wealthy lady of El Paso and a young man, a professional palmist, claiming to be from India, are connected with the case, or at least know the history of the gems.

Samoan Craters in Action.

Washington, Dec. 18.—The state department has received from United States Consul Helmrod, at Apia, Samoa, report that on Nov. 2 last two supposedly extinct craters in the volcano of Manga, Apia, on the island of Savaii, broke into violent eruptions. Heavy earthquake shocks preceded the volcano outbreak. No lives were lost.

Arraigned on Serious Charge.

Hare of West Bay City and James Best, a bartender at the Fraser house, were arraigned in police court Tuesday morning on a charge of performing a criminal operation, the victim being Mary Corrigan, who is in a critical condition at the hospital. The accused men demanded an examination, which was set for next week, pending which they have been released on bail.

MUST NOT TARRY

School Authorities Should Make Children Go Home.

DECISION OF SUPREME COURT

Detroit Parties Brought Suit Because School Principal Sent Children From Their Candy Store Home—The Duty Is Also a Moral One.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 17.—In affirming the judgment of the Wayne circuit court in the case of John P. and Catherine Jones vs. Frederick Cody last evening, the supreme court handed down an opinion of unusual interest to school boards and teachers and patrons of schools generally.

The plaintiffs owned a small confectionery store opposite the Webster school, Detroit, of which Cody was principal. The controversy arose over the enforcement of a rule that "pupils are required to go directly to their homes at the close of school at noon and at night, unless required or specially permitted by their teachers to remain."

This rule was not very strictly enforced, and plaintiffs found no fault until one day, when Principal Cody noticed some of the pupils in their store after schools, stepped in and sent them on their way home. Mrs. Jones complained to the superintendent and school board, the result being that the rule was ordered to be enforced. It was then enforced strictly, and plaintiffs brought action for damages for injury to their business.

In a unanimous opinion, written by Justice Grant, the supreme court says it is not only the legal right, but the moral duty of school authorities to require children to go directly from school to their homes, and that all parents who have a proper regard for the welfare of their children desire it. The state makes it compulsory upon parents to send their children to school and punishes them for failure to do so. The court says the least the state can in reason do is to throw every safeguard possible around the children who in obedience to law are attending school.

LUNATIC'S AWFUL DEED.

John Best Killed James Clegg and Attacked Mother and Sister.

Lapeer, Mich., Dec. 17.—John Best, a resident here, adjudged insane some time ago, and who was for a time in the Pontiac asylum, again became crazy early yesterday morning, and as a result of his frenzy himself and an old man named James Clegg are dead.

The deeds of the lunatic are shocking beyond measure. He lives with a mother and sister, and about 3 o'clock in the morning he arose, took a razor, went to Clegg's room and while the old man lay sleeping slashed his throat. He then proceeded to the bed occupied by his mother and sister and attacked them. The old lady escaped after a desperate fight, but severely wounded, and the son failed to kill his sister owing to the knife being broken.

He finally returned upstairs and, securing a revolver, shot himself through the heart.

Killed Day After His Wedding.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 17.—Hugh A. McKenzie, a Scotchman 32 years old, a painter, living on the third floor of the brick tenement, 135 Clinton street, is now a corpse. He was killed in the elevator shaft of the new Stevens building, Washington boulevard and Grand River avenue, shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday morning. McKenzie was engaged in painting the interior of the shaft. He unconsciously got in the way of the elevator weights, which came down and crushed in his head. He was just married Monday night.

Buchanan Up in Arms.

Niles, Mich., Dec. 17.—Millionaire Chapin has a gang of men at work erecting poles between South Bend and Buchanan, which will support the wires over which the power from his Buchanan dam will be transmitted to South Bend. The people of Buchanan, who sunk $30,000 in the dam ten years ago, in return for which the builders signed a contract that the power would never be transmitted elsewhere, are up in arms. The mayor declares the council will chop down the poles.

She Saved the Money.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 17.—Urged on by a wild desire to save her money from the flames which were devouring her home, Mrs. Thomas Klimp of 1120 Marsh street, rushed three times into the burning house yesterday afternoon, and though driven back twice by suffocating smoke, finally succeeded in her endeavor. The money amounted to $1,500 and was the savings of herself and husband during ten years. The house was consumed.

A MISERABLE MAN

Murderer Brantlinger Taunted By Hundreds of People.

THREATEN TO LYNCH HIM

He Entreats Judge to Send Him to Jackson as Soon as Possible—Trouble May Ensue at the Trial—May Be Sent to Prison Today.

Hastings, Mich., Dec. 18.—Yesterday was a peculiarly trying day for Murderer Utzler, alias Brantlinger. All day long the outer doors of the cell room were open, and the prisoner was visited by nearly 2,000 people, who taunted him in every imaginable manner, often threatening lynching, and as a result he is terribly frightened and in moral fear of being shot by some of the enraged visitors from the scene of his crime. In his terror he has even entreated Judge Smith to send him to Jackson as soon as possible.

In the afternoon Justice Riker held court in the jail, and the prisoner's preliminary examination being waived, he was bound over to the present term of the circuit court. His trial has been set for today, when it is possible some trouble may occur, as neighbors of the murdered woman will be here en masse.

It is barely probable the trial will be hurried along, and that the prisoner will be sentenced in the afternoon.

Late Tuesday night Utzler made a complete confession to Prosecutor Thomas, saying he had served two years in the Penitentiary at Allegheny City, Pa., for larceny of $55. He also stated without reservation that he visited the house for the express purpose of securing the money which he thought was concealed there.

He says the outrage of the dead body was an afterthought, which he cannot try to explain.

The decision to appoint a special committee on legislation to look after the manufacturing interests before the legislature at the coming session, and strong resolutions indorsing the efforts of the National Reciprocity league were the features of the session. The association will meet again in three months. George E. Bardeen of Otsego was elected president. Willard Barnhart of Grand Rapids was elected first vice-president, and J. Dorsey Dost of Flint second vice-president. The secretary has not yet been selected.

Christmas Gifts

GO TO

Poor unfort'nit little chap, born, like me, to grieve,
Hangs that patch-work stockin' up ev'ry Christmas Eve,
Then next mornin' takes it down, keepin' back a tear,
Say: "Well, mamma, never mind, he'll be around next year."

Says he knows that Santa Claus brings to little boys
Choc'lat mice an' choc-choo cars, an' other kinds o' toys;
He has seen the presents that the other children get,
So he keeps a hopin' that he'll be remembered yet.

Makes me mighty heartsick when he goes to write
Letters to "Dear Santa" almost ev'ry night,
Puts 'em in the chimney; course I never dare
Let him think that Santa doesn't find 'em there.

Says to-day: "I've asked him for a little drum—
Just a tiny little one. Don't you think he'll come?
Never answered nothin': didn't dare, for fears
He'd hear me sob, or see my eyes brimmin' full o' tears.

I jest wish that Christmas never would come 'round;
All the bells that rings that day has a mockin' sound,
Wo'd you like it, lady, 'f you had a little son
Longin' for a present an' couldn't buy him one?

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup seems especially adapted to the needs of the children. Pleasant to take; soothing in its influence; it is the remedy of all remedies for every form of throat and lung disease.

THE CRITIC.

The December Critic is the first Anglo-Saxon magazine to do justice to a form of æsthetic expression which has now attained extraordinary vogue on the Continent, and is already attracting notice on this side as well. German poster-lithographs of today represent much that is novel and artistic, and the eight full-page reproductions of leading subjects in the current issue of The Critic give an excellent idea of the originals. These scenes, rural or domestic, are by such well-known artists as Ludwig Dettmann, Hans von Volkmann, Max Roman, Walther Georgi, and others of equal note, and are printed in appropriate tints.

PROFESSIONAL BRETHREN

CHAPTER XV.

MY opinion of Dr. Squires did not improve any after the disclosures just related, and I was naturally inclined to lay all the blame upon him, arguing that he had misled my master in some way or that he held a price over his head and forced him to do his will. I took this view of the question for several days, upholding my master and reviling the doctor, attributing all sorts of evil things to him. Certainly he was as great a criminal as Mr. Goddard, and if one was ever caught in the act of robbery the other would have to be implicated. I felt that the doctor was accepting the easy part of the job, staying home to receive the stolen goods while my master ran the risk of capture and even of being killed.

In the event of the latter's arrest I knew that Dr. Squires would suddenly leave the neighborhood, and my master would be left to suffer the penalties of their mutual crime. Incidentally I decided to prevent any such unjust punishment by being on hand when the doctor found the place too hot for him. I knew enough about their partnership to have him sentenced to the state prison for a good long term.

My old hatred of the doctor returned with double force. I had more tangible reason for disliking him now than when I first suspected him of attempts to kill my master with poisons. My suspicions that he was not all above board in his lonely life in the haunted mansion were now confirmed. I would make it a point to investigate the premises in spite of all opposition.

Thereafter I coolly but deliberately went to work to effect an entrance into the old house, and it may be remarked, incidentally, that when a professional burglar of my standing makes up his mind to enter a building no locks, bolts, bars or electric alarms can keep him out. Moreover, I felt that I had justice on my side this time, and, re-enforced with a quiet conscience, I made specially good plans.

It was three nights later that I found myself on the premises again. This time I was prepared for a work that had become a second nature to me. Leaving my shoes in a clump of bushes in the woods, I proceeded to approach the house with catlike treads. I reached the front porch without mishap. There was no moon out, and the place was extremely dark.

When satisfied that everything was quiet, I climbed up the largest piazza post and drew myself noiselessly upon the upper porch. Here I rested a moment and then crawled along the side so as not to make any crackling noise with the tinned roof. I gained the dark side of the house, and by placing one foot upon the staples which supported the blinds I deftly swung myself up on the slanting roof of the third story.

On the top of the house was a round cupola tower inclosed in glass, and I judged rightly that no burglar alarm would be attached to these windows and that noises made there would hardly be heard by the doctor and his old servant in their rooms below. I reached the cupola in safety and after resting a few minutes I proceeded to work.

In a few minutes I had cut out a small piece of glass from the window pane, and then, inserting my hand through the aperture, I easily unfastened the catch. I took the precaution, however, to be sure about a burglar alarm. There was none attached to the window, and so far I was safe.

Once inside the cupola, I flashed a bright ray of light from my dark lantern and inspected my surroundings. It was a small circular room with the accumulated dust of many years gathered on the window sills and floor. It was perfectly bare of articles of furniture and, as I judged, had not been visited by any one for years.

A trap in the floor opened into a hall below. I tried this door and found that it was locked on the inside. An ordinary lock is easier to pick than a padlock attached to a staple on the opposite side of a two inch board. However, I was prepared to encounter all sorts of difficulties.

I could work in comparative safety in the cupola. So I took a cold chisel and softly pried up the ends of the staple driven into the door from the opposite sides. When I had straightened these out, I forced them gradually out of their holes. They fell back with a little clatter that startled me. Would anybody hear the noise?

I waited breathlessly for a full half hour, squinting my eye through the small holes to detect any ray of light. But apparently nobody slept in that part of the house, and the noise had done no harm. I tried the trapdoor. It stuck a little at the corners, but by prying it up with my chisel I managed to raise it without creating any noise.

An old ladder led from the trapdoor to the hall below. I tested it with my feet before venturing my whole weight on it, for I was not certain whether it was strong enough to hold me. Then I quietly dropped down into the hall.

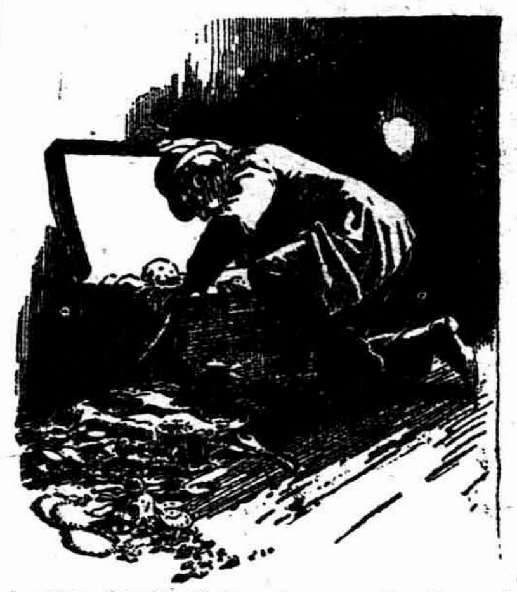
At last I was actually in the doctor's house, but whether I would find what I wanted was another question. Before attempting any investigation I made sure of where the doctor and his old servant slept. Their sleeping rooms, I discovered, were on the ground floor. They opened into each other, and both doors were standing on the jar.

This gave me the two upper stories all to myself, and I began my investigation with an easier mind. The first room I entered was empty, with the exception of a few old clothes, blankets and discarded furniture. The second was furnished as for a bedroom, but very little furniture was in it. The third and fourth were disposed of in a few minutes because of their barren appearance.

The large back bedroom which overlooked the woods was securely locked and the key missing. With fingers all of a tremble in anticipation of a great discovery I proceeded to pick the lock. Fortunately it was a common lock which required but little real skill to open. The spring was a little stiff and rusty, but otherwise it worked easily, and I threw the lock back in its socket without causing anything more than a slight grating noise.

Then I entered the room and closed the door behind me. I flashed the light from my lantern on every side, taking in the whole room in one circular sweep, and for a moment I was disappointed. There was nothing visible in the room except piles of old furniture covering. It looked as if furniture had been stored in the room and then covered over with the cloth to keep the dust from accumulating on the articles.

But why should the doctor have such fine furniture stored away in this upstairs room? I raised one end of the covering and started back in astonishment. I could almost have shouted in my surprise. Throwing back the cloth in eager haste, I soon disclosed to view a collection of treasures that made my hand tremble. No robber's cave ever revealed a richer store of wealth than that which lay spread out before me.



I soon disclosed to view a collection of treasures.

There was the silver and gold plate of a dozen different families. The jewels and diamonds that had come down as heirlooms from several generations, small statuettes, gold framed pictures and photographs, solid silver knives, forks, spoons and plates, watches, rings and bric-a-brac of more or less value were piled in heaps and clusters on the floor and tables. In short, there was everything that a robber could collect from a house and carry away in a bundle.

Gazing at this strange accumulation of miscellaneous goods, I felt that I was standing in a dangerous place, for the collector of them would not hesitate an instant to kill me if he once discovered my presence. Here were the ill gotten gains of both my master and the doctor, and either one would be provoked and frightened enough to take my life if he once saw me in the storeroom. Nevertheless I was so fascinated by the glittering heaps of gold and silver and precious jewels that I could not refrain from examining and handling each one individually. I must have run considerable risk in so doing, for some of the pieces rolled out of the heap and fell upon the floor. But the fever of excitement which possessed me could not be controlled. In all my experiences I had never beheld such a sight. It seemed like a glimpse of a burglar's paradise.

I believe for a short time I was bewildered and half crazy. I know that I seated myself on the floor and took up one article after another, holding it up to my lantern to be sure of its genuineness and then pressing it closely against my face.

Then I filled my pockets with them and tried to estimate the wealth that I could carry away, although I had no intention of removing a single article from the house. My plan was to retrace my steps so that the doctor would not know that his storehouse had been visited by a stranger. I had another way to corner him or at least to bring him into my power by holding his secret over his head.

When I was finally satisfied in gloating over the stolen goods, I began to think of returning. I put the articles back in their places just as I had found them and drew the cover over them so as not to excite any suspicion. Then I left the room after one longing look behind, locked the door and retreated up the ladder to the cupola. I could not fasten the staple in as securely as before, but by means of a long piece of wire I succeeded in attaching it loosely into the door so that nobody would notice it unless he happened to visit the cupola. This I judged rarely occurred, and I thought I was safe in leaving matters as they were. I climbed down the piazza post and once more found myself on the green lawn without having aroused any of the inmates of the house.

My night's adventure had been successful, and I retired to my bed feeling that I possessed a secret which made me the equal of either my master or the doctor in power. At any time I might use this knowledge to ruin them or to force them to do my bidding. Altogether I thought I was a pretty lucky dog.

LITERARY NOTES

THE OUTLOOK.

A real service is done for readers, in these days of publishing in floods, when a journal selects and describes the really important works in the several branches of literature. This very thing is what is attempted in The Outlook's fourteenth annual Book Number in its group articles treating fiction, biography, art, and so on. There are also many portraits attractive illustrated articles, and (as always and fifty-two times a year) comment on and interpretation of the current history of the world.

CONKEY'S MAGAZINE.

The most successful hostess is the one who invites a guest to share what is the regular routine of the family. She does away with all departure from the daily rule, thus avoiding unusual effort on the part of the family and servants. If a servant is instructed in the proper laying of the table and required to serve properly the different courses every day, here will be no hitches when company arrives unexpectedly, no awkwardness when an extra plate is added to the usual number.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

THE AMERICAN BOY.

The Christmas number of The American Boy gives the place of honor to Jumbo, King of Elephants, who during his lifetime had more boy friends than any other animal that ever lived, and to Alfonse XIII., the boy King of Spain. Of equal interest with these stories are the following: "A Moose Hunt on the Yukon"; "Old Beauty", a humorous story of how a boy won a race astride a pig; "The Hero of the Coal Breakers"; "'Rocks,' He's Our Dog"; "The Nerve of a Horse"; "Uncle Sam's Island Children": "A Foundered Colt"; "The Charter Oak," and a continuation of the Napoleon Bonapart story.

THE ATLANTIC.

In the December Atlantic the present question of attitude of the Chinese toward the Occident is pleasantly and instructively discussed by Francis H. Nichols, the author of "Through Hidden Shensi," who recently had the advantage of making an extended tour through China in the disbursement of the famine fund. Mr. Nichols has been exceedingly successful in realizing and communicating the Chinese point of view. He contrives to make his readers feel the force of the truism, too often disregarded, that though the Chinaman is yellow and a "heathen," he is, nevertheless, a man, and worthy of fair play.

SCRIBNER'S.

The color-printing (in which Scribner's led the way years before it appeared in any other magazines) is especially beautiful in this number. The cover by Frank V. DuMond is in gold and nine colors, a charming, bright design typical of the holiday season. The most delicate piece of color-printing yet attempted by this magazine is found in the illustrations by Jessie Willcox Smith, which tell their own story without text of a "A Mother's Days."

REV. IRL R. HICKS 1903 ALMANAC.

To say that this splendid work of science and art is finer and better than ever, is stating it mildly. The demand for it is far beyond all previous years. To say that such results, reaching through thirty years, are not based upon sound sense and usefulness, is an insult to the intelligence of the millions. Prof. Hicks, though this great Almanac, and his famous family and scientific journal, Word And Works, is doing a work for the whole people not approached by any other man or publication. A fair test will prove this to any reasonable person. Added to the most luminous course in astronomy for 1903, forecasts of storms and weather are given, as never before, for every day in the year, all charmingly illustrated with nearly two hundred engravings. The price of single Almanac, including postage and mailing, is Thirty Cents. Word And Works with the Almanac is $1.00 a year. Write to Word And Works Publishing Co., 2201 Locust street, St. Louis, Mo., and prove to yourself their great value.

A leading maxim with almost every politician is always to keep his countenance, and never to keep his word.

MRS. LULU LILLEY TRIBOU

Married to

MAJOR ALBERT CUMMINS,

Of Fortress Monroe, at 12 o'clock noon Wednesday.

Members of the immediate families congregated at the residence of Lucius Lilley to witness the marriage of his daughter, Mrs. Lulu Lilley Tribou, to Major Albert Cummins, of Fortress Monroe.

Major Cummins was born in Tecumseh, went from Tecumseh to West Point to attend military school and has from that time been a member of the regular army. Advancing from time to time until at present he is major.

Although he has been little at home for a number of years he is well known by many Tecumseh people and regarded as a Tecumseh man.

Mrs. Tribou was born and has always lived in Tecumseh, is known, loved and respected by every one here. No lady in Tecumseh could leave here who would cause more heartful regret than is caused by her going away Wednesday, yet all her friends rejoice at her happiness and wish her unalloyed pleasure in her new home.

She occupied a position in Tecumseh that cannot be filled. Her every duty was fulfilled promptly, her every act cheerful. Nothing by her was left undone and no lady here could be more deeply missed by so large a number.

The bridal party left for New York City on the 3:05 Lake Shore train and after a visit in that city and Washington will go to their home in Fortress Monroe.

Those from out of town who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Raynor Lilley, of New York; Mr. Tribou LeBaron, of Toledo; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Cummins, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. James Cummins, of Toledo; and Miss Ruth Cummins, of Fortress Monroe.

Y., but has resided in Warren for 30 years or more. He leaves a widow, one son W. J. Brower, and one brother, F. A. Brower, of this city. The funeral will be held Monday afternoon.—Warren, Pa., Evening Times.

The widow was formerly Miss Minnie Montgomery of this place.

A Day Late.

The Tuesday edition of the HERALD this week was two days late. The electric batteries in the engine had to be replenished and it took longer than we anticipated to get the new ones in. Editor Hawkins, of the News, kindly offered the HERALD the use of his press but, although very thankful, we thought readers of the HERALD would forgive us if the Tuesday edition was another day late for once so did not accept his kind offer.

Card of Thanks

We desire to thank our friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us in our recent bereavement in the death of our husband and father, especially the Masonic order and the donors of the beautiful floral offerings.

All Stuffed Up

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat.

No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic.

"I was afflicted with catarrh. I took medicines of different kinds, giving each a fair trial; but gradually grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I then concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking five bottles I was cured and have not had any return of the disease since." EUGENE FORBES, Lebanon, Kan.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures catarrh—it soothes and strengthens the mucous membrane and builds up the whole system.

A PORTRAIT

Of Mrs. F. K. Bower, Former President of the Woman's Culture Club of Chicago, and Painted by

LAVERNE WHEELER,

Well Known in Tecumseh, is the Cause of much Disturbance in the Organization.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean of Dec. 12, contains a long article on the Chicago Culture Club. This club is much wrought up over "A Portrait of a Woman." The portrait, a life-size one done in oil, is that of Mrs. F. K. Bowes, former president of the club, and it hangs in the club rooms at the Illinois hall where it was placed by the order of the board of directors last year

The portrait was painted by LaVerne Wheeler, well known here in Tecumseh, and is such a work of art that the club motto, which is elaborately framed and occupies a place of prominence in the hall, is entirely forgotten. Although the enemies of Mrs. Bowes are doing their best to remove this portrait, no reasonable excuse can be found for its displacement and the picture still hangs upon the wall, the most talked of as well as most admired feature in the whole club.

"The Night Before Christmas."

On Monday, Dec. 22, 1902, the highly successful pastoral comedy drama, "The Night Before Christmas" will come to the New Bradley Opera House fresh from repeated artistic and financial triumphs during its present tour. Judging from authentic reports from cities visited no more thoroughly pleasing production is offered than this pretty domestic picture of rural life in the old Buckeye state. Plain homespun characters are introduced and the unaffected simplicity of scene and incident seems to exert a potent charm over all classes of theater goers Great pains have been taken to give the play an adequate scenic equipment and a fine company numbering nearly thirty people will be seen.

REVIEW OF REVIEWS.

There are two articles in the December Review of Reviews on the movement for the consolidation of country schools. Superintendent Nelson, of Kansas, describes the plan and its merits, while the experience of school officers in many States in attempting the centralization of rural schools and the transportation of pupils at public expense is summarized by William B. Shaw. It is shown that much progress has been made—especially in the Middle West and the South. Mr. Oswald Garrison Villard writes in the same magazine on an Alabama negro school of more than local interest—a noteworthy effort at self-help.

LIPPINCOTT'S.

Miss Maude Roosevelt, a cousin of the President and an actress as well of considerable vogue, contributes the monthly complete novel to the Christmas number of Lippincott's Magazine. "The Price of Fame" proves that fiction is by no means the least of Miss Roosevelt's accomplishments. She turns a brilliant searchlight on New York society life which reveals the good and the bad with infinite skill. The evolution of Helen Mortimer—country-bred girl with an imaginative temperament—into an actress of the first rank, through the most treacherous act a man may commit, is the pivotal point in this novel of exciting episodes that ends delightfully.

A lady living in Louisville has a husband who snores. She keeps a clothespin under her pillow, and when his snoring awakes her, she puts it on his nose, then sleeps in peace.

A MEASURE OF MERIT.

Tecumseh Citizens Should Weigh Well This Evidence.

Proof of merit lies in the evidence.
Convincing evidence in Tecumseh
Is not the testimony of strangers,
But the indorsement of Tecumseh people.

That's the kind of proof given here.

Mrs. J. H. Welch, who resides in the south eastern section of Tecumseh, says: "I wish to express my gratitude for the benefit derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. My back troubled me for a long time with a constant dull aching pain across my loins and when stooping or exerting myself it became very sharp. If I took cold it always settled in my kidneys and in the morning I was so lame and stiff that I could hardly attend to my work. I used several simple household remedies but they did not bring relief. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills recommended and spoken of so highly I concluded to test their merits and got a box at C. A. Wright's drug store. They took right hold of the cause and in a short time the pain in my back was a thing of the past. I can now straighten after bending or stooping without any inconvenience. Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly a wonderful remedy."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Swinging is said by the doctors to be a good exercise for the health, but many a poor wretch has come to his death by it.

"Itching hemorrhoids were the plague of my life. Was almost wild. Doan's Ointment cured me quickly and permanently, after doctors had failed." C F. Cornwell, Valley Street, Saugerties, N. Y.

"Doctor, please cut along the seam," said an affectionate wife to a physician, who was cutting open her apoplectic husband's shirt.

A lazy liver makes a lazy man. Burdock Blood Bitters is the natural, never failing remedy for a lazy liver,

"Mamma," said a little girl, pointing to the telegraph wires, "how do they send messages by those bits of wire without tearing them to pieces?" "They send them in a fluid state, my dear," was the reply.

Stockmen Facing Low Prices.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 18.—The Michigan Live Stock Breeders' association completed its work yesterday afternoon after two full sessions at the Griswold house, where over 200 had gathered in attendance at one of the most successful meetings in the history of the society. There was no note of optimism in the discussions. The stockmen are facing a period of low prices and have suddenly become startled with a fear of recoprocity, coupled with one of western competition and the wearing out of the soil of Michigan. This was the keynote which brought forth most of the discussions, and many handed out words on the subject.

Seventeen Students Dismissed.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 18.—The committee of the faculty of the Michigan Agricultural college, headed by Prof. Hedrich, to whom was referred the recent trouble at the college which resulted in the suspension of seventeen students, have made their report. The committee gave the matter an entire rehearing, and finding no injustice in the sentences imposed by the faculty, has concluded that the decision as rendered by the first committee shall stand, and the seventeen students shall remain under suspension. The boys have been attending classes pending the decision of the committee, but now they will have to pack up and go home.

John L. in Detroit's Jail.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 18.—Poor, unfortunate John L. Sullivan, once the idol of the American sporting world, champion heavyweight pugilist for twelve years, who made a million dollars and spent every cent, was arrested late yesterday afternoon in the cafe of the Russell house and lugged to the police station like an ordinary drunken tramp. Sullivan has been doing a monologue stunt at the Avenue Vaudeville theater, but yesterday the management found it necessary to fire him owing to his debauched condition.

Michigan's Salt Output.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 18.—In his annual report to Governor Bliss, State Salt Inspector Dunwell calls attention to the fact that during the past two years he inspected 1,103,502 more barrels of salt, will return $3,724 11 to the manufacturers, and his expenses were $506 less than during the preceding two years. The report shows that there are 1,000 solar salt covers and sixty-five blocks in the state, with a total capacity of 9,500,000 barrels.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15, 1902.

Little has been accomplished in the senate during the past week. The bill appropriating $50,000 for the expenses, etc., of the anthracite coal strike commission was passed on Thursday after an interesting debate, several senators opposing the measure because they considered the president had exceeded the constitution in designating government officers for a work not authorized by congress.

Thursday also witnessed in the senate a brief but exciting skirmish between Senator Quay and those senators opposed to the admission of the territories aspiring to statehood. The Pennsylvania senator frankly stated that it had been common talk in committee room and lobby that the bill was to be killed by dilatory tactics, but that he was prepared to "stand pat" on the proposition that statehood had been promised by the platform of the last national convention and, he added, "If the republican party can lie to the people about one plank it can lie about all." The opposition, while avoiding the direct implications of Senator Quay, sparred for time and the matter was postponed, to be taken up at 2 o'clock today. That the majority of all the senators are in favor of granting statehood to all three territories and that a majority of the republicans are opposed to it, is evident but there is considerable liklihood that the opposition will gain its point and prevent the bill coming to a direct vote.

Although the senate has formally accepted the educational test clause in the immigration bill, there is reason to fear that it will be eliminated in conference. This clause, which requires that every applicant for admission to the country must be able to read intelligently, in his own language, a passage from the constitution, and is intended to exclude the low class of labor now coming from southern Europe, is vigorously opposed by the railroads and other great corporations which desire an abundance of the cheapest labor from which to draw their lowest class of laborers. They have strong influence in Washington and will leave no stone unturned to defeat the educational clause for which some of the ablest statesmen have been working for years.

A kidney or bladder trouble can always be cured by using Foley's Kidney Cure in time. J. J. Orr.

BRANTLINGER CONFESSES.

Makes Clear Breast of Murder of Mrs. Garrison.

Battle Creek, Mich., Dec. 17.—John Brantlinger, the farm hand accused of the murder of Mrs. Robert Garrison, spent a restless night in his cell and yesterday resumed his place in the sweat box. The police were confident that he was the murderer and just as confident that he would soon break down under the strain. Their predictions were verified at 12 o'clock, when the miserable man made a clean breast of the affair to Chief of Police Farrington.

Brantlinger, who says that his right name is M. H. Utzler, declares that he went over to Garrison's house with no thought of murder in his heart. His only object was to secure money which he believed was on the premises. He does not state, however, why he killed the woman, but vigorously denies that he assaulted her.

He made as thorough a search of the house as time would permit, and says that all he took was a lady's gold watch, valued at $35. This he sold.

Hastings, Mich., Dec. 17.—Tuesday was a day of intense excitement here. In the afternoon, despite one of the worst storms of the season, over 500 people met the train from Kalamazoo, on which the murderer, John Brantlinger, was expected. As the train pulled into the station a crowd of neighbors of Mrs. Garrison boarded it, intending to secure the prisoner, only to find they had been foiled.

Both afternoon Michigan Central trains were met by large crowds awaiting the arrival of Brantlinger, but long waiting cooled their ardor, and when the belated Michigan Central train arrived here at 10 o'clock last night it was but a small crowd which met the prisoner and watched Sheriff Cortright and his deputies place him behind the bars at the county jail.

Marconi Telegraphs Without Wires to England.

HAS SOLVED THE PROBLEM

Great Inventor Personally Announces His Success—Canada's Governor Sends Message to Kings of England and Italy—Distance Is 2,300 Miles.

New York, Dec. 22.—The following dispatch from Marconi, dated Glace Bay, N. S., Dec. 21, has been received by the Associated Press:

"I beg to inform you, for circulation, that I have established wireless telegraph communication between Cape Breton, Canada, and Cornwall, Eng., with complete success. Congratulatory messeges, including one from the governor-general of Canada to King Edward VII. have already been transmitted and forwarded to the kings of England and Italy. A message to the London Times has also been transmitted in the presence of its special correspondent, D. Parkin, M. P.

(Signed) "G. MARCONI."

London, Dec. 22.—The text of the wireless message from the Times correspondent, which was transmitted from Glace Bay, N. S., to Poldhu, Cornwall, is as follows: "Being present at its transmission, in Signor Marconi's Canadian station, I have the honor to send through the Times the inventor's first wireless transatlantic message of greeting to England and Italy."

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 22.—After eight experiments, conducted with the greatest secrecy, Marconi announces that he has solved the problem of wireless transoceanic communication and has successfully ttransmitted wireless messages from the shore of Canada to the coast of England. The formal announcement of this achievement was made by the inventor himself Sunday, when he stated that the wireless messages had been successfully transmitted and forwarded from the governor-general of Canada to King Edward VII. of Great Britain, and to the king of Italy.

Dr. George R. Parkin, principal of the upper Canada college, trustee of Rhodes scholarships, was present when one of the successful tests was made. Prior to December, 1901, the greatest distance covered by wireless telegraphy scarcely exceeded 100 miles. Early in that year Marconi visited Newfoundland and from Signal Hill commenced experimenting with Cornwall, and on Dec. 12 and 13 of that year faint signals of the letter "S," repeated several times, were caught by ear only with the aid of telephones. Later on Marconi, on board of the steamship Philadelphia, bound for America, succeeded in establishing communication with Cornwall, a distance of 2,100 miles. He met with innumerable difficulties there, but at last has succeeded in sending a transoceanic wireless message from Canada to Cornwall, a distance of 2,300 miles.

Christmas Mail Burned Up.

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 22.—Official report of the burning of a carload of Christmas mail, enroute for the west, was made here at 3:45 o'clock Sunday afternoon by the crew of mail clerks arriving here from New York on the fast mail No. 3 on the New York Central, which left New York at 8:45 a. m. Only 20 or 30 out of 700 pouches were saved, the burned mail being for Chicago and points further west. Some of the mail was destined for the Philippines and Fiji islands. The mail sacks were in a storage car, which carried no clerks. The crew was on the car behind and discovered the fire between Peekskill and Highland. The car was left burning at the latter station.

Battle Creek Dens Raided.

Battle Creek, Mich., Dec. 22.—Two gambling dens were raided Saturday night and over fifty gamblers arrested, among them being the usual assortment of prominent citizens, including business and professional men. Chief Farrington and Mayor Webb superintended the raids in person. The patrol wagon was crowded to the limit and made nine trips before all were placed in the small station. Recorder Hamm was routed out of bed and gave each participant a fine of $5.

One Man Fatally Burned.

Pittsburg, Dec. 22.—An explosion of natural gas in the boarding house of Mrs. Laura Rickards, on McKean street, early Sunday morning resulted in the probable fatal burning of one man and the serious injury of two others. E. G. Walters, a telegraph operator, whose home is in Marietta, O., was burned about the face, chest and arms. He is not expected to recover.

Wanted in Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 22.—M. E. McNamara, president of the Emerald Isle Athletic club, has wired Young Corbett and Terry McGovern, asking them to make arrangements to fight here on Jan. 16. McNamara says he can provide seating capacity for 10,000 peopel and is confident he can pull off the fight without interference.

Accident to the Deutschland.

Plymouth, Eng., Dec. 22.—The Hamburg-American steamer Deutschland arrived here at a quarter past 2 Sunday afternoon. When she was nearing the Scilly islands a cylinder burst and the starboard engine was badly damaged. It will require four months to effect repairs.

TERRIBLE FAMINE

All Crops in Finland a Complete Failure.

WORST DISASTER IN 50 YEARS

Due to Late Spring—Wholesale Deaths May Ensue If Relief Is Not Offered—Bread Eaten That Horses Won't Touch—Governor Appeals For Aid.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 22.—The average crop gathered in Finland is valued at $30,000,000. The stimated value of 1902 crop is $20,000,000. While this loss is generally distributed throughout Finland, it is almost total in the northern third of the country, where are the provinces of Uleaborg, Kuopio, Vasa, St. Michael and portions of Viborg.

Peas and beans generally have failed and the potato crop has not been gathered; the hay has rotted or been swept away by floods. The disaster is due to the late spring, the nearly continuous chilly rains and the early frost, which was recorded Aug. 10.

Birds Dead in the Forests.

In the north there have been only half a dozen days when it did not rain. The rains also spoiled the fishing. So complete was the failure of vegetation that dead birds by the hundred have been found in the forests. The present crop failure is the worst that has been experienced for the last fifty years. It is hoped, however, that better methods of communication will facilitate the work of relief and avoid wholesale deaths by hunger and typhus.

Nearly 200 Parishes Destitute.

There are all told about 500 parishes in Finland; 194 of these parishes are now nearly destitute. The agricultural board has received received reports from 140 of the 194 parishes showing that 106 have food supplies which will suffice them until Christmas only. The unripe rye and barley which the people are forced to use make a bitter bread which even the hungry horses refuse to eat. In some parts of the country bread is baked from barley husks and straw, mixed with a little flour, and is purchased by the needy people with their hoarded savings. Such bread contains very little nutrition and is extremely unwholesome. The peasants have expended all their money for flour and consequently are unable to buy clothing.

Help From the Public.

The danger of famine was realized early by the public.

Count Bobriokoff, governor-general of Finland, has made an appeal for help in Russia and a voluntary relief committee will be organized by Finlanders, with branches throughout the country. The Anglo-American church here is affiliated with this committee. The senate has decided to construct public works at an expenditure of $375,000, and it has allotted $500,000 for the purchase of grain, which will be sold to the people at cost. Seventy-five thousand dollars will be paid to encourage cottage industries. The provinces and certain cities of Finland have voted various sums for relief work amounting in all to half a million dollars.

The voluntary relief committee has received $125,000, but it is understood that all this sum has been already expended. Pastor Kilburn of St. Petersburg has just returned from a sledge journey through Kupulo province. He found 1,900 school children who were in ened of food. Of this number, 1,115 were totally destitute. It is estimated that 400,000 will be without food after Christmas.

Every stockholder will be expected to purchase her goods at the women's store and work for its success. All profits will revert to the stockholders, and it is expected that the co-operative association will be earning money in a short time.

Train and Trolley Car Collide at a Crossing.

IN THE SUBURBS OF DETROIT

Street Car Conductor Killed and Motorman Injured—Latter Had Miraculous Escape—Eye Witness Blames Crew Operating the Motor Car.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 22.—Speeding along on its way to the northward at the rate of about thirty miles an hour, about 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning, Pere Marquette passenger train No. 101, leaving the Union depot at 2:10 a. m., collided with terrific force with one of the Detroit United Railway company's construction cars at the crossing on the Dearborn road, killing the conductor, Otto C. Deginder, of 132 St. Antoine street, Detroit, demolishing the car and slightly injuring the motorman, David Gordon, of 343 Adelaide street.

The construction car had passed safely over the tracks of the Michigan Central and Wabash railways. When part way over the last crossing it was struck just forward of the rear trucks by the pilot of the outgoing passenger train. The wreckage of the construction car was strewn along the railway tracks for a distance of 150 feet or more.

The conductor, Otto C. Deginder, was hurled from his car and is supposed to have fallen beside the railway tracks in such a manner that one of his hands was crushed at the wrist under the wheels of the train. Several ribs were broken and he is thought also to have sustained internal injuries of a serious character. He was still alive when the train crew came to his assistance, but died in the ambulance before arriving at the Solvay hospital in Delray.

Had a Miraculous Escape.

David Gordon, the motorman of the wrecked car, had what might be regarded as an almost miraculous escape from death. When the construction car was struck by the engine Gordon was hurled from his car and fell some distance away, lighting on the yielding cushion formed by the cinders strewn alongside the track. Aside from the shock and painful bruises about his back and body and a slight scalp wound over his left eye, he escaped injury.

Marshall B. Adams of 196 Mackie avenue, night watchman for the Pere Marquette railway at the Dearborn road crossing, says he was an eye-witness of the tragedy. He seemed inclined to hold the crew of the construction car responsible, stating that they must have seen the train approaching, as there is at that point an almost uninterrupted view of the tracks.

Blames Street Car Crew.

Mr. Adams also claims that the conductor on the construction car neglected to run ahead of his car when it approached the crossing. He also states that the conductor on the night car which passed a few minutes ahead of the construction car likewise failed to comply with this one of the company's regulations.

Motorman Gordon, however, maintains that his conductor left the car and ran ahead of it over the crossing and then turned back, giving him the signal to go ahead, and met the car before the railway tracks were passed.

DAIRY AND FOOD

State Commissioner Issues His Annual Report.

FAITH IN ANTI-OLEO LAW

Legislature Is Asked to Regulate Sale of Canned Goods—Much Adulterated Stuff Found Among Samples—Sixty-eight Prosecutions Made.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 20.—State Dairy and Food Commissioner Snow has filed his annual report for the last fiscal year. All of the transactions of the department, including the reports of the various district inspectors and state analyst, are fully set forth in a document of great length. The commissioner is confident the continued vigorous enforcement of the anti-colored oleomargarine statute will at an early day cause that commodity to be sold strictly an its merits and not under the guise of butter.

Five inspectors were constantly employed during the year. They covered the entire state and examined more than 3,000 stocks of goods. Nearly every dairy has been visited by the state dairy inspector, this official having devoted his entire time to the work.

It is recommended by the commissioner that one or two inspectors be commissioned to educate the proprietors of creameries and cheese factories, to the end that only the very best grades of butter and cheese may be manufactured in Michigan.

Alarming proportions have been reached in the use of preservatives in milk and canned goods, and the legislature is asked to regulate the sale of these preservatives. The use of some of these should, in the judgment of the commissioner, be absolutely prohibited, and of others restricted. Every package should be branded with the name and amount of preservative used.

There were 628 official samples of food products analyzed during the year, and 463 were found to be adulterated. There were 68 prosecutions for violations of the pure food laws commended, the result being 40 convictions out of 42 cases tried. Four cases were appealed to the supreme court, where one was affirmed, two reversed and one is still pending.

Commissioner Snow says the inspection of apiaries in a proper manner calls for a larger appropriation than $500 per year now provided for. With a proper appropriation much can be done in the line of eradicating disease among bees through co-operation with other states.

A marked change is noticeable, says the report, in the attitude of the trade toward the department, manufacturers, jobbers and retailers generally showing a disposition to consult with the commissioner regarding the preparation of food products. Merchants who are prone to take the chances involved in the substitution of adulterated articles for the pure goods are becoming fewer.

During the year the dairy inspector examined 1,180 dairies, which included 19,160 cows.

Another Trolley Car Victim.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 20.—John I. He had got on the track to avoid a puddle of water. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital in an ambulance where death soon put an end to his sufferings.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 20.—At the recent Paris exposition the Michigan state board of health was awarded a gold medal. Poor unfort'nit little chap, born, like me, to grieve,
Hangs that patch-work stockin' up ev'ry Christmas Eve,
Then next mornin' takes it down, keepin' back a tear,
Say: "Well, mamma, never mind, he'll be around next year."

Says he knows that Santa Claus brings to little boys
Choc'lat mice an' choo-choo cars, an' other kinds o' toys;
He has seen the presents that the other children get,
So he keeps a hopin' that he'll be remembered yet.

Makes me mighty heartsick when he goes to write
Letters to "Dear Santa" almost ev'ry night,
Puts 'em in the chimney; course I never dare
Let him think that Santa doesn't find 'em there.

Says to-day: "I've asked him for a little drum—
Just a tiny little one. Don't you think he'll come?
Never answered nothin': didn't dare, for fears
He'd hear me sob, or see my eyes brimmin' full o' tears.

I jest wish that Christmas never would come 'round;
All the bells that rings that day has a mockin' sound,
Wo'd you like it, lady, 'f you had a little son

PROFESSIONAL BRETHREN

CHAPTER XVI.

KNOWING beyond doubt now the double dealing of both my master and Dr. Squires, I found myself sympathizing with Miss Stetson and almost unconsciously planning to save her from either one. It may seem a little strange that one of my character should find fault with anybody following the same line of business that had occupied my attention for half a lifetime and that I should begin to criticise my master for crimes that I had many times committed. I doubt very much if I should have troubled myself in this way had not Miss Stetson commanded my respect and confidence. She was too pure and good to fall a victim to such villains. There was a sacredness about her love for Mr. Goddard, even though it could never be consummated in marriage, which made her ten times more beautiful and lovely in my eyes. If such a love had been mine in early life, I should never have drifted away from an upright and honorable life.

She was not to marry him. That she had settled in her own mind, but she was consecrating her young life to him. The dread of the leper in him was an effectual barrier to their union, but she loved him none the less. Her pale face and sad, lustrous eyes revealed this even to me, and I blessed her for it. Her love was of a nobler type than the ordinary, but the pity of it was that my master was not worthy of it.

My feelings did not exactly undergo a transformation. Apart from his relationship with Miss Stetson, I still liked and admired my master. He was a skilled master in his profession, a man with many virtues and genial qualities, one whose kindness in the world had done much to make others happy. He was in reality my beau ideal of a criminal, a man who pursued his unlawful work without imbruiting his own nature, a master of his profession and not a slave to it.

But when it came to a question of choosing between my master and Miss Stetson I unhesitatingly sided with the latter, one whose virtue was no less a powerful factor in attracting me than her utter helplessness in the hands of two such men.

Dr. Squires had enlisted my dislike from the first, and through varying degrees of feelings I had reached a climax in positive hatred for him. I would thwart him in his aim even though it compromised my master in the doing. I had convincing proof that he was all I ever imagined him to be.

I soon became a spy in the interest of Miss Stetson and in a sense a traitor to my master. This underhanded procedure displeased me, and several times I was on the point of applying for a position in the Stetson mansion. But this would remove me from the base of my supplies. I could not obtain the material so essential to conduct a successful warfare against the two men. I would have to play the traitor for a time at least—a role, be it said to my credit, that I never acted before.

I strove to make myself liked and trusted by her, for I knew that the day might come when it would be very important that she should believe in me and have confidence in my wisdom. Although nominally a mere butler, I knew that my master had praised me to her and had made her look upon me as something more than a common servant.

Meanwhile an accident that nearly proved fatal to her enabled me to increase her friendliness for me. While riding one of the horses which John said needed exercise, a feature of my old life as groom that I had not totally abandoned, this adventure occurred.

It was a quiet, peaceful morning, and I was cantering down the highway thinking deeply of the strange circumstances which had so occupied my mind of late. I heard the clatter of feet in the distance, and as they seemed to approach rapidly and increase in volume I turned my head to see the cause. Down the old country road a horse was flying, throwing up clouds of dust and swaying the rider irregularly from left to right. I turned my horse and waited a moment to let the daring rider pass.

But as the running steed rapidly loomed up out of the showers of dust his feet were creating I saw that the rider had lost all control of the animal and was uncertainly retaining his seat in the saddle. A moment later my heart gave a little bound of fear when I realized that the rider was a woman and that woman Miss Stetson. She was unattended, as she often was in her morning rides, and along the old country road there was little chance of her attracting any one who could help her.

The horse was panting and snorting with the violence of his exertions, and by the way he swung his head and neck I knew that he was liable to cut up any dangerous trick to unseat his rider. As they approached within a few rods of me I caught a glimpse of the white face of Miss Stetson. She was nearly overcome with fright and exertion, and her appealing eyes stirred up every latent power within me.

I let the raging horse pass, for any attempt to stop him short in his mad career would result in his flinging the rider to the ground. Then, whipping up my own horse, I started in pursuit. I shouted a few words of encouragement to Miss Stetson and bent myself to the task before me.

Fortunately I was mounted on the finest animal in Mr. Goddard's stables, a powerful, nervy stallion. He seemed to enter into the spirit of the race in an instant, and with long, sweeping strides he slowly overtook the runaway.

Inch by inch and then foot by foot we overhauled the nearly spent horse ahead. The noise of a pursuing animal seemed to stimulate the runaway to renewed exertions at first, but it did not last long. I was soon within five feet of his tail; then my stallion's nose was even with it, and finally we galloped along just abreast of the crazy animal.

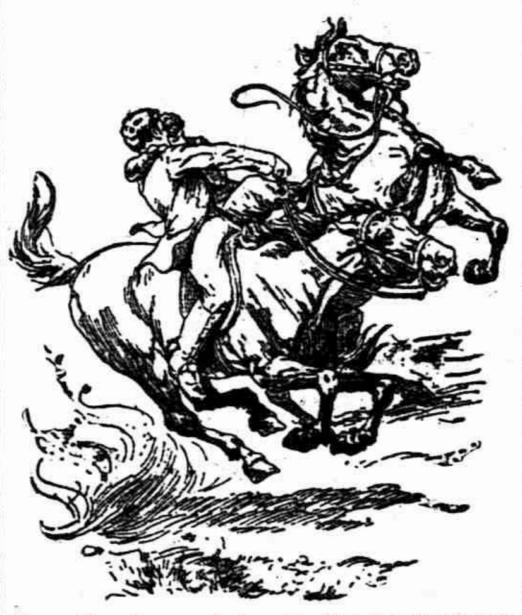
Again I spoke a few words to Miss Stetson, warning her to be prepared for any sudden swerve to the right. She could not look at me, but she grasped the pommel of her saddle with both hands. I saw that the reins had been broken and that they were dangling dangerously under her horse's feet.

Realizing that I could not check the runaway by grasping him by the bridle, I decided to make a desperate effort to dismount the rider. I told her as calmly as I could to disengage her feet from the stirrups, and when I gave her the word to throw her weight toward me.

Then, swinging my horse close up to the side of the runaway, so that for a moment my leg was jammed between their two bodies, I reached out my left arm and caught Miss Stetson by the waist. I knew what her animal would be likely to do, and I braced myself for a powerful effort.

As soon as the runaway felt the collision against his side he turned sharply to the left and ran into the gutter, where he stumbled and broke his leg. But as he swerved away from us I clung with all my might to the woman. She partly jumped, and I partly dragged her to the back of my own horse.

My own animal was so startled by this unexpected procedure that it was with difficulty that I checked his headway, but after running about half a mile he cooled down so that I could control him. Then I dislodged my burden on the grass. She had fainted and lay perfectly motionless.



I partly dragged her to the back of my own horse.

I spent some time in reviving her, and when she finally opened her eyes I was more relieved than I had been when I jerked her from the back of the mad runaway. She closed them again immediately, but there was a look of gratitude in them that repaid me for all my trouble and danger.

When she finally sat up on the grassy bank and said that she was all right, I excused myself from further expressions of gratitude by pretending to go back to look after her horse. I never was a kind to receive thanks from any one. It always embarrassed me and left me speechless.

"Your horse has broken a leg," I reported when I returned.

"Poor fellow, he must be killed, I suppose," she said. "But aren't you hurt?"

"No," I answered shortly.

"I almost wish you were so I could show my gratitude by nursing you back to health," she said, looking me steadily in the eyes.

I turned my head away and answered indifferently:

"Can you ride my horse back home or shall I go for a carriage?"

"I can walk it," she said, "if you will lend me your arm."

I had to lead my horse by the bridle while she leaned heavily upon my arm all the way to her house. Of course such an experience was delicious in a way, but it was embarrassing to one of my position as well. Certain it is that she made me her slave from that day onward.

She persisted in talking about my brave deed all the way home. First I tried to change the subject by making irrelevant replies and suggestions and then by total silence. But she could not be stopped or turned to another subject. For the tenth time she said seriously and earnestly:

"I wish you would tell me how I can repay you. Isn't there something you want or that I can do for you?"

I remained silent a moment and then said slowly:

"Yes, ma'am; there is something."

She looked at me inquiringly.

"I just want you to trust me and to believe in me," I continued. "Some day I might make a strange request of you. All I ask is that you will have confidence in me and believe that it is all for your good. It may seem very strange to you at the time, but I assure you it will be all for the best and you will thank me for it afterward."

"What a peculiar request!" she said, smiling.

"Yes, it is peculiar, but it is all I ask of you."

"Well, you shall have your wish. I will do whatever you ask of me at any time."

"All right. I shall remind you of it some day."

We parted at her gate. I would not go in, but excused myself on the ground that it was necessary to go back with somebody and attend to her wounded horse.

No Annihilation.

Though man can gather and scatter, move, mix and unmix, yet he can destroy nothing. The putrefaction of one thing is a preparation for the being and bloom of another. Thus a tree gathers nourishment from its own fallen leaves when they are decayed, and something gathers up the fragments that nothing is lost.

A Color Clash.

"Madam," said the maid, "the dyer has brought your silk dress back and says it is impossible to dye it to match your hair, as you requested."

"Well," said the lady, "ask him what he would charge to dye my hair to match the silk. The colors clash as they are now."

Possession No Proof.

Her strenuous effort to live up to the expectations of her neighbors is what chases the roses from a woman's cheeks.—Chicago News.

Consumption

People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.

The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.

Neglected consumption does not exist where Scott's Emulsion is.

Two Dinners, One Meal.

"I have a lawyer friend whose name is not Henry Peck, but it might be," said a city official.

"Last week my wife and I were invited to his house for dinner, and you never saw finer silver and china on a table, but food was at extreme low tide. My wife gave me a significant glance, and I saw the color rise to the cheeks of our host, but he played the agreeable without a word or look of disapproval.

"Both my wife and I were awfully hungry when we started for home, and she at once accepted my invitation to enter the first restaurant we saw for a good square meal. We were no sooner seated than we saw our dinner host come sneaking in and take a seat in an obscure corner.

"'Make believe that we don't see him,' said my wife, with a woman's tact. We did make believe, and, the funny part is, so did our late host. By the friendly aid of a mirror I saw when he first observed us the color come to his cheeks, as it had at his own table. He turned as far from us as possible and ate as though he were not enjoying his meal very much."—New York Herald.

The Word "Cafe."

It is really difficult to understand how the word "cafe," a French term, has come into such general use in this country and how it happens that it is so grossly misapplied. The term means coffee, or a place where coffee is sold, and what relation there is between a coffee shop and a place where liquors are sold we are at a loss to know. It is not improbable that the idea comes from combinations of barrooms and restaurants, in the latter of which of course coffee is sold, but to our mind nothing seems more absurd or more emphatically marks the modern disposition to follow blind custom than sticking up on the window where only beer, liquor and wines are sold the word "coffee," and that in a foreign language. Were it not that an age of misnomer gives recognition to this anomaly we would just as soon the word "meat" or "bread" signalized places where liquors are sold. Either would have as much sense and logical application as "cafe."—Exchange.

A Delicate Position.

Wedding presents are frequently distinguished for their uselessness, and giftmaking at any time is attended with some danger. A faithful Irish employee announced his desire to take a month's holiday to visit his brother. He had worked so well and steadily that his employer not only granted the request, but made him a present of a new traveling bag.

The night before Tim was to leave he received the gift, accompanied by a few appreciative words.

Tim stared at the bag for a moment and then asked, "What am I to do with that?"

"Why, put your clothes in it when you go away, of course," answered the employer.

"Put me clothes in it, is it?" said Tim. "An' phwat will Oi wear if Oi put me clothes in that?"

Talk about the popularity of play houses—we think the New Bradley takes the bun. It is reported that a man and his wife recently decided that they would "take in one of the shows," but were short of funds and the only way they could think of to raise money was to go to Avery & Co.'s grocery and buy a crock of butter and have it charged. Then they went down to Anderson Bros.' and sold it and realized enough to take them both by the ticket office.—Telegram.

"A Standard Article."

Which will be the attraction at the New Bradley Saturday, Dec. 27, is one of the most interesting comedy dramas which has been seen in years and already it has taken its place among the solid successes of the year. It is a play in which is told the story of a Pennsylvania Dutch girl who has always lived on her father's farm where the struggle for existence has been a hard one. The farm is situated in the oil regions of the Keystone State and suddenly the old father finds himself among the millionaires by reason of the spouting of several big oil wells on his farm. His ruin by the villain, his almost insane discouragement during which he turns against everyone and sends his daughter away from his handsome New York home in anger, and her recovery of the old farm with its wealth of oil make thrilling stage pictures.

TO CALIFORNIA.

Interesting Letter Written by MISS LUCILE BURGER

To Mrs. S. P. Smith, of Ridgeway, Describing Her Trip to California.

Riverside, California, Nov. 30, 1902.
MY DEAR ONES:

All in Michigan! I will now try and give you a faint description of my most delightful trip to California.

We left Manchester October 29—my birthday—on the 10 p. m. train, arriving in Chicago the following morning at 8 o'clock. We expected to start out that night at 11, but did not leave until 9 the next day as they could not get coaches enough to hold all the passengers. We were in two sections, 18 coaches or more, 260 passengers in all, bound for California by the Southern Pacific.

Our first stop was in Kansas City, where we remained two hours. Unfortunately it was in the night so I did not see Ead as I had anticipated. All day Saturday we travelled through Kansas. Fields of corn are found in every direction and where the busy farmer has not reclaimed the soil, stretches of sunflowers brighten the landscape. We run by emigrant wagon which the sturdy pioneer drives westward over the dusty trail while his wife and innumerable children look with curious eyes on the passing train. Occasionally a picturesque cowboy dashes alongside and tries a race with the locomotive for a few minutes until the tireless muscles of our iron horse leaves him behind. Soon the traveller on the trail halts as daylight fades and camps for the night, but our horse shows no sign of weariness.

While we retire to bed almost as comfortable as in our resting place at home, we are still carried on, by moonlight or starlight or in darkness, and when we awake on Sunday morning we are climbing up the Rocky Mountains in Colorado. The huge locomotive puffs and coughs and its great wheels grind the rail, as it seems to strain its utmost to climb the mountain road. The steep cliffs re-echo the noise of the train and the dashing of the mountain stream over its rocky course, drowning our voices in the deafening roar.

Higher we mount and now we can see away down the ravine a long white ribbon, ragged and twisted—the foam tossed stream.

Now we enter the Royal Gorge, one of the most wonderful works of nature. Imagine a narrow chasm only 60 feet wide, the Arkansas river rushing madly alongside the railway embankment and the crags towering 2,500 feet above you. We are 10,000 feet above the sea level, but one scarcely realizes to how high an altitude he has risen. One train winds in and around the mountain side, so that one can see the locomotive ahead and the rear cars at the same time. The snow capped peaks look as if you could touch them, although they are 5 or 10 miles away. The scene is grand beyond description.

With Monday morning comes a change in scenery. We have left the mountains and for some time have been travelling through Utah. We have a magnificent view of the great Salt Lake. We stop at Salt Lake City, but not to remain long, and our only regret was that we were unable to see more.

Tuesday finds us in Nevada and the Sierra Nevada Mts. open to receive us, majestic and grand. At 12:30 we cross the boundary line and are in California, still in the mountains. We go through 40 miles of snow sheds, and at 3:15 are midst the mountains where years ago they washed out gold. We round Cape Horn at 4 o'clock and are 770 feet above the level of the sea. The scenery is magnificent and grows in beauty and grandeur till words are inadequate for expression.

Still on we speed, down grade now, through valleys with cultivated fields. Orange groves, vineyards, pretty houses surrounded by vines and brightened by flower gardens pass before us in panoramic view. At 7:30 we arrive at Sacramento where we remain until 2 in the morning. The capitol is fine.

We reach Sacramento Valley Wednesday, stop-off at Resno City and go through the park where lovely roses, magnolias, oleanders and many other flowers are in bloom. Palms, orange and pepper trees with numerous other tropical plants are seen. In fact, a perfect wilderness of beauty.

That afternoon comes perhaps the most wonderful of all mountain scenery, the Tehachapi. We do not go through the mountain, but our track winds round and round it until we reach the summit which is miles and miles high. Our train clings close to the precipice on our right. On the left is a narrow chasm down whose black depth the water foams and swirls hundreds of feet beneath, and now we emerge and look down below on the track we have come over. Higher we mount and, as we round a curve we see our engine and whole train of cars speeding onward and upward. We stand out on the rear platform and long for a nyctaloptic eye to catch the shifting scene. We are over an hour going up and at the summit Twilight lets her curtain down and the mountain tops fade into dim outlines against the summer sky.

Thursday we arrive at LosAngeles which is a beautiful city of 150,000. We remain there for some hours, then go on to Riverside, a distance of 50 miles. California is a wonderful state and Riverside is a charming city, surrounded by mountains.

As I look from my window where I write, off to where the blue mountains glow in the sun's golden light and down on the orange groves laden with fruit, on the rose vines climbing close up to my window, full of bloom, red and white, the loveliest roses you can imagine—on the palm, magnolia and pepper trees, on the flower gardens where all is bloom and brightness and fragrance, I can but think that Eden itself was scarcely fairer than this!

Ever yours lovingly,
LUCILE.

Aching Joints
In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, are joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

Sufferers dread to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and their condition is commonly worse in wet weather.

"It has been a long time since we have been without Hood's Sarsaparilla. My father thinks he could not do without it. He has been troubled with rheumatism since he was a boy, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine he can take that will enable him to take his place in the field." MISS ADA DOTY, Sidney, Iowa.

If the reader wants stronger proof than the following statement and experience of a citizen here at home, what can it be?

Mr. F. A. Ferguson, tinsmith, residing in the north western section of Tecumseh, says: "I had symptoms of kidney trouble. The kidney secretions were very irregular and at times too frequent and highly colored. Having seen so many cases of severe kidney trouble I thought it wise to do something at once. so I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright's drug store and took them. I began to improve from the very start and continued to do so. I emphatically declare Doan's Kidney Pills to be up to the representations made for them."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Prisoner's Sad Home Coming.

Flint, Mich., Dec. 22.—C. W. Warner, ex-city marshal, and George Rowland, ex-superintendent of public works, in this city, who were paroled from the Detroit house of correction, to which place they were sentenced in November of last year for two years each for complicity in the blackmailing of Jacob Raquet, arrived home Saturday night. Warner was met at the prison by his wife and a friend with suitable clothing. Rowland's home-coming is a sad one. He was paroled just in time to attend the funeral of his brother Eugene, who died at Charlevoix on Thursday night, and whose remains arrived here Saturday night for burial.

Someone, either for a joke or for spite, placed an ad in a Detroit paper asking for a wife, stating qualifications etc., and gave the name "Lew Nunn, Toledo, O." Letters began to pour in upon a well known cigar maker of that city, a bachelor, by the way—and he finally constituted himself a detective agency, to ascertain the cause of such a flood of correspondence. He learned that the ad was in the Detroit paper and at once wrote the publisher to "cut it out," as he was the only Lew Nunn in Toledo, and he was not sure in the matter of life partners; that Toledo ladies wanted Nunn, but he knew that Nunn wanted none. A lady would not have to take the veil or be a catholic sister, in order to be a Nunn, should he wed her.—Adrian Press.

TERRIBLE DAY'S RECORD.

Four Fatalities Reported From As Many Places in Michigan.

Marshall, Mich., Dec. 22.—John Ridley was found dead in bed Sunday morning, death resulting from asphyxiation. It was thought at first that Ridley turned on the gas with suicidal intent, but there was nothing to substantiate this theory and the coroner decided that death was accidental. He was 62 years of age.

Camden, Mich., Dec. 22.—Robert Smith, who resided with Frank Fouse in Woodbridge township, is dead from the effects of arsenical poisoning. A bottle of the drug was in the barn together with a bottle of resin, and Smith claimed to have made a mistake. When he complained of being ill a physician was summoned, but too late to save his life.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 22.—Henry Larink committed suicide Sunday by jumping into the family cistern. He was 46 years old and leaves a widow and six young children. He had been sick two weeks and became morbid on religion.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 22.—S. R. Winchell of the American Chautauqua association of Chicago has been here negotiating with General Manager Johnson of the street railway company with the view of establishing a central Chautauqua here and making it headquarters for a system of Chautauquas in the west. The site, on the north shore of Reed's lake, has been selected.

Big Mine Changes Hands.

Champion, Mich., Dec. 22.—The Champion mine, one of the largest iron ore producers on the Marquette range, has, it is stated, been sold to the steel trust for a consideration of $2,000,000. The deal includes, it is reported, undeveloped tracts adjoining the mine on the north, the transfer involving in the aggregate 20,000 acres.

Horse Races on Ice.—Grand Rapids horsemen have organized a club for ice racing on Reed's lake with horses this winter.

Prisoner Dodged His Keeper.—Bert Jury, in jail awaiting trial for larceny, dodged out of the door of the village coop at Luther as the marshal opened it to take in his dinner, and escaped. A revolver shot failed to stop him.

Held For Murder.—Lorenzo San Feliz, who formerly worked as a cigarmaker at Muskegon, is held for trial at Salinas, Cal., charged with two murders and two attempted murders. The murders were committed for purposes of robbery.

Regular Army Uniform.—The state military board has adopted for the use of the Michigan National Guard the service and dress uniforms of the regular army. The troops will be equipped with the new clothing previous to the next annual encampment.

Drowned While Coasting.—Thurlow, the young son of George W. Miles of Saginaw, was drowned in the Flint river, in Spaulding township, while coasting. His little sister, who was with him, was rescued clinging to the sled.

LITERARY NOTES

SCRIBNER'S.

The color-printing (in which Scribner's led the way years before it appeared in any other magazines) is especially beautiful in this number. The cover by Frank V. DuMond is in gold and nine colors, a charming, bright design typical of the holiday season. The most delicate piece of color-printing yet attempted by this magazine is found in the illustrations by Jessie Willcox Smith, which tell their own story without text of a "A Mother's Days."

THE OUTLOOK.

A real service is done for readers, in these days of publishing in floods, when a journal selects and describes the really important works in the several branches of literature. This very thing is what is attempted in The Outlook's fourteenth annual Book Number in its group articles treating fiction, biography, art. and so on. There are also many portraits attractive illustrated articles, and (as always and fifty-two times a year) comment on and interpretation of the current history of the world.

CONKEY'S MAGAZINE.

The most successful hostess is the one who invites a guest to share what is the regular routine of the family. She does away with all departure from the daily rule, thus avoiding unusual effort on the part of the family and servants. If a servant is instructed in the proper laying of the table and required to serve properly the different course every day, here will be no hitches when company arrives unexpectedly, no awkwardness when an extra plate is added to the usual number.

THE AMERICAN BOY.

The Christmas number of The American Boy gives the place of honor to Jumbo, King of Elephants, who during his lifetime had more boy friends than any other animal that ever lived, and to Alfonse XIII., the boy King of Spain. In the December [illegible] the question of attitude of the Chinese toward the Occident is pleasantly and instructively discussed by Francis H Nichols, the author of "Through Hidden Shensi," who recently had the advantage of making an extended tour through China in the disbursement of the famine fund. Mr. Nichols has been exceedingly successful in realizing and communicating the Chinese point of view. He contrives to make his readers feel the force of the truism, too often disregarded, that though the Chinaman is yellow and a "heathen," he is, nevertheless, a man, and worthy of fair play.

LIPPINCOTT'S.

Miss Maude Roosevelt, a cousin of the President and an actress as well of considerable vogue, contributes the monthly complete novel to the Christmas number of Lippincott's Magazine. "The Price of Fame" proves that fiction is by no means the least of Miss Roosevelt's accomplishments. She turns a brilliant searchlight on New York society life which reveals the good and the bad with infinite skill. The evolution of Helen Mortimer—country-bred girl with an imaginative temperament—into an actress of the first rank, through the most treacherous act a man may commit, is the pivotal point in this novel of exciting episodes that ends delightfully.

REV. IRL R. HICKS 1903 ALMANAC.

To say that this splendid work of science and art is finer and better than ever, is stating it mildly. The demand for it is far beyond all previous years. To say that such results, reaching through thirty years, are not based upon sound sense and usefulness, is an insult to the intelligence of the millions. Prof. Hicks, though this great Almanac, and his famous family and scientific journal, Word And Works, is doing a work for the whole people not approached by any other man or publication. A fair test will prove this to any reasonable person. Added to the most luminous course in astronomy for 1903, forecasts of storms and weather are given, as never before, for every day in the year, all charmingly illustrated with nearly two hundred engravings. The price of single Almanac, including postage and mailing, is Thirty Cents. Word And Works with the Almanac is $1.00 a year. Write to Word And Works Publishing Co., 2201 Locust street, St. Louis, Mo., and prove to yourself their great value.

McCLURE.

The story tellers follow hard on the heels of the inventors. An extremely clever bit of fiction a la Marconi is "Mr. Potter's Vacation," by Herbert D. Ward, in December McClure's. It is the history of a great battle in stocks fought from the deck of an ocean liner. One thousand miles of ether were kept hot for two days with long range orders to buy and sell. Mr. Potter won, of course but the author was probably guilty of irony in speaking of the trip as a vacation.

A CHRISTMAS STORY

Written by Master Earl Wiley.

Once upon a time in the year 1901 there lived a little boy whose name was Perry. He believed in Santa Claus and loved candy and all other goodies, and whenever he got a spare penny he always spent it for candy not thinking about Christmas.

His father and mother were very poor and could not give Perry very much money because it had to be used for food and clothing. His mother had warned him the first of the summer about saving all his pennies he got for Christmas and then when it came he would have all the money he had earned for his spending money at Christmas.

He did not pay very much heed to this but said, "Oh I'll have some money anyway, I don't care."

Bye and bye Christmas came and no money did Perry have. He had been down town and had seen the nice toys. He went running home in the awful cold wind and the snow blowing down his neck, he had nothing but a thin summer jacket on.

He said to his papa and mamma, "Oh won't you give me some money so I can buy some toys?" "No Perry," said his father, "we have not any money to give to you this Christmas because you need clothes more than you do toys." "Well, Santa Claus will not bring me anything anyway," said Perry.

Now his mother said to him "Why didn't you save your pennies that you got this summer and then you would have had some to spend now."

Perry began to cry and went sobbing to bed without hanging up his stockings. His mamma called him and said "Perry aren't you going to write a letter to Santa Claus and hang up your stockings?" "No I will not get anything anyway," said Perry.

"Well you try it and see" said his mother, so he put on his nightgown and sat up and wrote a letter to him. This is the letter:

Dec. 4, 1901

Dear Santa Claus: Will you please bring me a sled with a box on so I can draw coal to burn, I want a game of "Shoot them down," a toy fire engine and a wooden cart. Good bye

From Perry Rolland.

Bring me these please.

In the morning he got up bright and early went in his mother's bedroom in order to get to the room where he had hung his stockings the night before.

His mother said to him to be still because Santa Claus had not gone yet. He went back to bed and stayed there thinking what he would find in the morning.

After while he got up. went out there and what do you think he found, he found a sled with a box on, a game of "Shoot them down" and everything he had asked for, so he had a happy Christmas from that day on.

Governor Grants Pardons to Several State Convicts.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 20.—Governor Bliss Friday granted a pardon to Albert A. Lapp, sent from Mecosta county Nov. 17, 1900, to Jackson for seven years for perjury. Lapp made a false affidavit in order to procure a marriage license. There was really no reason for his lying, for he was entitled to a license in his own county

A commutation of sentence was granted in the case of Joseph Belzer, sent from Houghton county to Marquette for four years for burglary. By the terms of the commutation Belzer will be released April 21, 1903.

Paroles were granted Silas H. Powers, sent from Eaton county June 17, 1900, to Jackson for ten years for criminal assault; George Rowland and Charles K. Warner, sent from Flint in November, 1901, to the Detroit house of correction for two years each for criminal conspiracy in connection with the blackmailing of Brewer Racquet of Saginaw.

The pardon board in the afternoon took adverse action of the applications of Joseph J. Casemors, sent from Schoolcraft county for criminal assault; George F. McGraw, from Genesee county, for horse stealing; Fred Nichols, from Monroe for criminal assault.

Almost Fight at Nichols Trial.

Grand Haven, Mich., Dec. 20.—Such a scene as was enacted in the Nichols trial yesterday was never before witnessed in the Ottawa county court. For a time a general fight was imminent between the attorneys of the opposing sides. Colonel Mitchell, the principal witness of the day, was under cross-examination by Hyde just before dinner, when Hyde claimed to have been interrupted by Senator Nichols whispering loudly that he lied about a certain statement. Hyde was terribly angry and repeatedly asked Nichols if he had made the statement Nichols arose, denied the accusation of Hyde, and then broke down completely, sobbing. Nichols attorneys attacked Hyde vigorously, one of them calling him a "dirty pup." Order was finally restored and the court adjourned.

Blames Conductor Before Dying.

Flint, Mich., Dec. 20.—John S. Hibbler died yesterday in the baggage-room of the Grand Trunk Western depot. He was a brakeman on the road and was run over at Belsay about 5 a. m. He was under the cars coupling the air brakes when the engine started. Before passing away Hibbler made a statement blaming Conductor Cody for the accident, saying that the latter had signalled the engineer to start while he (Hibbler) was under it, and that he had done the same thing once before.

May Go to Kansas.

Port Huron, Mich., Dec. 20.—Topeka is after the headquarters of the supreme tent of the Maccabees of the World, and a movement has been started to land the plum. For some time past, in fact, since the entanglement of Major N. S. Boynton from the supreme tent, rumors have been current that headquarters would be removed from this city. The supreme tent several years ago erected a magnificent home which cost $100,000, and this will not be easy to dispose of. D P. Markey denies that such a change is contemplated.

Bliss to Stop the Fight.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 20.—Governor Bliss does not propose that the Corbett-McGovern fight shall take place in Michigan if he can prevent it, and he thinks he can do so. He took the matter up for consideration yesterday and had an extended conference with Attorney-General Oren. The result was a letter to Sheriff Dickson of Wayne county, in which the governor called the sheriff's attention to the law and told him to see that the contest did not take place.

VIOLATES THE LAW

Wonderful Dr. Peebles Convicted in the U. S. Courts.

ALSO HIS TWO SECRETARIES

Jury Led Into the Depths of Psychic Phenomena by Testimony Presented—Attorneys For Both Sides Presented Strong Arguments.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 23.—Dr. James M. Peebles, the Battle Creek messiah, was yesterday convicted in Judge Swan's court of violating the United States postal laws. His two secretaries, Drs. William Bobo and Charles Green, are found guilty with him.

The case, which has continued for nearly two weeks, has been a peculiar one, and, to say the least, the jury have listened to testimony of an exceptional nature, taking them into the depths of psychic phenomena and the laws of soul vibrations, with which Dr. Peebles claims his wonderful cures are accomplished.

Though compelled to take in the testimony, Judge Swan wound up by charging the jury that it had nothing to do with the case.

The charge of Judge Swan was carefully delivered and contained a somewhat minute review of the testimony. He warned the jurors that they were not to consider the question of whether Peebles possessed psychic power or not, as this did not enter into the case. After the charge was made Attorney Haynes, for the three defendants, secured a stay of proceedings for thirty days to move for a new trial, and the court then adjourned before the jury had brought in its verdict.

After two days of argument by the attorneys and an exhaustive review by Judge Swan, the jury returned a verdict of guilty last evening after being out twenty-five minutes.

This most remarkable case developed in intensity of interest as it went on. Attorney Haynes, who has handled the case for the Battle Creek medican financiers, made one of the most peculiar arguments ever heard in a Detroit court.

Attorney Haynes compared his client to a crucified Christ, the depth of whose philosophy and the breadth of whose philanthropy made him an object of persecution. As the Jews hounded their messiah, so the United States postoffice detectives had pursued the Battle Creek seer, he declared. The argument of Attorney Gordon was logical and effective, even merciless.

Chapin Seeking Peace.

Niles, Mich., Dec. 23.—Millionaire Charles Chapin recently submitted to the village of Buchanan an offer that after Jan. 1, 1903, he would furnish power free for one and a half years to any industry employing not less than 100 men. Now, it is claimed, if the people will allow him to transmit power from his dam at Buchanan to South Bend without interference, he will furnish a bond guaranteeing to live up to the offer and, in addition, to furnish all the power the village can use at any future time at reasonable rates. This proposition has met with favor.

Youngster Was Corrupt.

Owosso, Mich., Dec. 23.—When the 12-year-old daughter of Charles Myers went to the home of Alvin Worden about dusk Sunday evening with a pail of milk a 16-year-old son of the latter was alone at the house and, according to her story, inveigled her in and locked the door. The youngster then made an effort to assault the girl, but she put up a strong fight and finaliy unlocked the door and escaped. Young Worden was arrested and given thirty days in jail.

Saved His Father's Life.

Owosso, Mich., Dec. 23.—Dale, the 5-year-old son of Frank Chamberlain, a teamster residing on Woodlawn avenue, saved his father's life. While Chamberlain and his son were leading horses to water one of the animals kicked, cutting an artery just above Chamberlain's ankle. He bandaged the wound and started for the doctor's office, but fainted on the way. The little lad held the compress to the bleeding member until help arrived.

A CRUCIAL POINT

Is the Calvo Doctrine in Venezuelan Arbitration.

AN ARBITRATION BOARD

Would Likely Handle the Affair Were President to Act—Cabinet Are Opposed to the Hague Tribunal—Outsiders Are Opposed to President.

Washington, Dec. 24.—Tuesday's cabinet meeting was prolonged to more than two hours. All the members were present except Secretary Moody, who is out of the city. No response has been received to the president's original suggestion to the powers that they consent to the reference of the Venezuelan controversy to the arbitration of the Hague tribunal, and no formal request had been received that the president act as arbitrator of the difficulty. That such a request will be received formally and officially is now practically assured.

It is understood that the president's plan, if he determines to arbitrate, contemplates the appointment of a board of arbitrators.

It is stated that the crucial point to come before the arbitration is the famous "Calvo doctrine." This doctrine, which was laid down by the greatest of Latin-American international lawyers, denies the right of any nation to intervene diplomatically in behalf of one of its subjects where the courts of the country are open to his application for justice.

This doctrine will be on trial before the arbitration, and because of its vast importance if President Roosevelt appoints a board he will see that the members are men of the highest caliber.

It is known that some of the members of the cabinet are opposed to referring the matter to the Hague tribunal for these reasons.

In the first place they have no desire to submit the Monroe doctrine to the arbitrament of any non-American tribunal, not even excepting the august and eminently fair tribunal of the Hague. They very much prefer that if this doctrine is to be the subject of arbitration, if it is to be even brought in incidentally, that American influences shall pass on it.

Another reason that animates these cabinet officers in this inclination toward acceptance is their conviction that an ordinary length of time is consumed if the issue is taken before the Hague tribunal. The machinery is sufficient but ponderous and difficult to put in motion.

On the other hand, there is strong pressure being brought to bear on the president by those outside the cabinet to decline the invitation to act as arbitrator. This pressure comes from the newspapers, from public men throughout the country and from senators and representatives in Washington.

Archbishop of Canterbury Dead.

London, Dec. 24.—Most Rev. Frederick Temple, archbishop of Canterbury and primate of all England, who had been ill for some time past, is dead. The archbishop passed away quite peacefully at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday morning in the presence of his wife and two sons. Right Rev. Frederick Temple, D. D., was the son of the late Major Temple, for some time governor of Sierra Leone, and was born Nov. 30, 1812. He was educated at Blundell's school, Tiverton, and at Balliol college, Oxford, graduating with double first class honors in 1842. He was appointed archbishop of Canterbury and primate of all England on Oct. 26, 1896, succeeding Rev. Edward White Benson.

Thousands Greeted Dewey.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Dec. 24.—Admiral Dewey arrived here on board the Mayflower at 9:30 Tuesday morning. Thousands of people thronged the wharf, the city and public and private buildings were decorated with flags and the forts fired a salute. The admiral was escorted to the palace by artillery, infantry and mounted police where a reception was held. The palace was thronged with officers who attended the big private reception last night given by Governor Hunt in honor of the debut of his eldest daughter Elizabeth.

Jeffries Challenges Munroe.

Butte, Dec. 24.—Clark Ball, manager of J. J. Jeffries, has posted a forfeit of $1,000, which he will pay Jack Munroe, amateur champion heavyweight of the Pacific coast, if he can stay four rounds with Jeffries in a battle for a knockout. Munroe secured the decision and $250 here last Saturday night by staying four rounds with the champion. The bout may take place here this week.

Col. Whipple's Son a Suicide.

San Francisco, Dec. 24.—Nathaniel Whipple, son of Colonel Whipple, U. S. A., the chief paymaster in the Philippines, committed suicide here yesterday. The young man's death is thought to have been due to despondency, induced by long illness.

Mrs. W. A. Clark, Jr., Is Dying.

FINANCE OF STATE

Auditor General Makes Radical Changes in His Report.

MUCH OMITTED: SOME ADDED

Receipts Total $7,079,429 21—Unusual Satisfaction in Transactions of Tax Division—New Tax Law Stands the Test—Favors W. U. Telegraph.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 24.—The annual report of Auditor-General Powers submitted to Governor Bliss Tuesday, is a document of unusual importance.

In preparing it the auditor-general deemed it advisable to eliminate a large number of tables heretofore published in the annual reports of his department. The information was not of general public interest and was largely a matter of bookkeeping, the details of which are open to inspection of the public at any time.

There has been added to the report a number of tables not contained in former reports, showing salaries and expenses of various boards and institutions.

The receipts of the state treasury from all sources during the year were $7,079,429 21; disbursements for all purposes, $6,253,141 91; balance at close of fiscal year, $3,453,811 14.

Delinquent Taxes.

The transactions of the tax division were unusually satisfactory from the standpoint of collection of delinquent revenues. The amount paid into the division during the year was $692,5555 54, against $407,958 61 the previous year. The local taxes collected amount to $440,534 80, against $372,900 62 the year previous.

The tax law has passed the experiment stage and has proven its value. If any amendments are to be made they should, in the opinion of the auditor-general, be made solely for the purpose of perfecting the system and not with intent to change the system itself.

The inheritance tax law has been the source of considerable revenue to the primary school fund, but as it now stands it is contradictory and cumbersome and many of its provisions have been variously interpreted. This has caused annoying delays in the settlements of estates. Examinations made of probate files throughout the state by representatives of the auditor-general's office have resulted in gratifying increases in the amount reported collected.

Specific Taxes.

A total of $1,892,347 71 in specific taxes were collected during the year from railroads, express, telegraph, telephone, insurance and other companies, the railroads paying $1,430,434 62. The opinion is expressed that the taxes collected from telegraph and telephone companies are not at all commensurate with their properties and business in the state. The amount paid by the Western Union under the law providing for appraisal by a state board was $15,711 40 in 1898, and in 1902 only $4,311 70. These companies are, under the present law, taxed 3 per cent on their gross receipts within the state. It is observed that either the Western Union was paying an exorbitant tax under the old law or that it is not now paying anything like the amount that should be required of it. It is suggested that the law be so amended as to provide for the payment by telephone and telegraph companies of a tax equal in amount to an average rate upon their entire property within this state.

Cost of Education.

Since the organization of the state there has been appropriated from the state treasury $36,767,007 69 for the support of educational institutions, $19,719,010 95 for the support of the insane, and $7,213,244 01 for the support of reformatory institutions and prisons.

The outstanding bonded indebtedness on account of Spanish-American war bonds is $416,300, and the amount of money in the state treasury available for the payment of these bonds is $473,311 99. In all probability the funding commissioners will take advantage of the option contained in the law and retire these bonds next May.

Squaring Himself With Buchanan.

Niles, Mich., Dec. 24.—Buchanan is threatened with an industrial boom. Millionaire Chapin has secured a concern for the town which employs 200 men. Yesterday a delegation of prominent citizens went to Chicago to confer with the manufacturers in question, who are desirous of purchasing two large factory buildings, located in the village, which have been vacant for years. The bait which is luring the big concern to Buchanan is the offer of free power made them by Chapin, who expects to placate the villagers who are opposed to the transmission of power to South Bend.

Two Tax Kickers.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 24.—The representative of the Armour company, who was before the state board of tax commissioners yesterday, admitted that his company operated a refrigerator car line in this state and was a proper subject for taxation herein. He did not, however, indorse the assessors' valuation of $300,000, and gave reasons for his skepticism. L. G. Fargo, a representative of the American Express company, has also registered a kick because taxation of certain treasury securities of the company which he also claims are taxed in New York.

Farmer's Christmas Luck.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 24.—After selling a farmer, whose name he does not know, what he supposed was an empty packing case, one of the firm of Benson & George discovered an invoice of shirt waists worth $150 was missing. The amount received for the case was 25 cents.

Decapitated Forty Soldiers.

Tangier, Morocco, Dec. 24.—The imperial troops have been totally defeated after a sanguinary battle with the rebels, headed by the pretender to the throne. The latter decapitated forty of the sultan's soldiers and their heads are now ornamenting his tent.

The Pride of Heroes.

Many soldiers in the last war wrote to say that for scratches, bruises, cuts, wounds, corns, sore feet and stiff joints, Bucklen's Arnica Salve is the best in the world. Same for burns, scalds, boils, ulcers, skin eruptions and piles. It cures or no pay. Only 25c. at C. A. Wright's drug store.

AN AWFUL DEATH.

Detroit Man Killed by Falling From Window of Chicago Hotel.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—Leaning from the window of his room on the twelfth floor of the Great Northern hotel to get a breath of fresh air, while he was suffering from a headache yesterday, Harrison S. Potter, traveling salesman for a Detroit stove company, lost his balance, fell to the sidewalk and was killed.

Although his body was horribly mangled, Potter liver for a few seconds and made an ineffectual effort to speak. The street was filled with Christmas shoppers and Potter's body narrowly missed striking several people as it fell.

An unfinished letter to his mother in St. Joseph, Mich., was found in Potter's room. After stating that he had arrived in Chicago and was well, with the exception of a headache, said: "I guess I will have to lay off writing for a minute or so and get a breath of fresh air."

Lee, Pontiac, $12; Esther A. Williams, Ionia, $12.

Robbed in Broad Daylight.

Jackson, Mich., Dec. 23.—A robber met William Mason of Mason yesterday, who was boarding a train, on the platform of the car and, objecting strenuously to the manner in which Mason carried his grip, seized and pushed it into Mason's face with one hand, at the same time going through Mason's pockets with the other, succeeding in getting $80. Mason is an old man and could make but feeble resistance at best. Many saw the hold-up, but they were too dumfounded to act, and the thief got away. Half an hour later a man answering the description of the robber held up an old man in a similar manner on a crowded street car and succeeded in getting $4. The police are on the watch for the bold robber.

Missing Boy In New York.

Howell, Mich., Dec. 23.—Morris Briggs, the missing boy, has been heard from in New York city, and it is possible he has started for Europe. His books were found in Prospect park, Niagara Falls, and for a time it was feared he had been drowned. Traces of him were found later, and it was learned yesterday that he had got as far east as New York. From manuscripts found in his room the lad seems to have been inclined to writing for papers.

Man and Team Missing.

Bay City, Mich., Dec. 23.—James Green, a Unionville farmer here, reported to the police that Thursday he sent Herman Schultz to the Bay City Sugar company's factory with a team and wagon load of beets. Schultz did not appear at any of the factories here and nothing has been heard of him, the team or the beets.

Physicians Are Puzzled.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 23.—The physicians of the university hospital are undecided whether John Burns, the saloonkeeper who met with a serious accident on the Michigan Central track some time ago, is suffering from a broken back or a blood clot on the brain. The lower portion of his body is paralyzed entirely.

Autos For Rural Routes.

Adrian, Mich., Dec. 23.—The month's test of the auto as a vehicle for the delivery of mail over rural routes has shown that it is perfectly feasible. All kinds of weather prevailed during the test, and only once in that time was the machine blocked—heavy snow drifts being the cause. A detailed report of the test will be sent to the authorities at Washington.

Menominee, Mich., Dec. 23.—J. A. Rappe, the well-known veteran of four war sand commander of Marinette post, G. A. R., who has gained fame by his trips through the country on foot and bicycle, is planning a trip to New York next summer on his wheel. He is 79 years old.

Poor unfort'nit little chap, born, like me, to grieve,
Hangs that patch-work stockin' up ev'ry Christmas Eve,
Then next mornin' takes it down, keepin' back a tear,
Say: "Well, mamma, never mind, he'll be around next year."

Says he knows that Santa Claus brings to little boys
Choc'lat mice an' choo-choo cars, an' other kinds o' toys;
He has seen the presents that the other children get,
So he keeps a hopin' that he'll be remembered yet.

Makes me mighty heartsick when he goes to write
Letters to "Dear Santa" almost ev'ry night,
Puts 'em in the chimney; course I never dare
Let him think that Santa doesn't find 'em there.

Says to-day: "I've asked him for a little drum—
Just a tiny little one. Don't you think he'll come?
Never answered nothin': didn't dare, for fears
He'd hear me sob, or see my eyes brimmin' full o' tears.

I jest wish that Christmas never would come 'round;
All the bells that rings that day has a mockin' sound,
Wo'd you like it, lady, 'f you had a little son
Longin' for a present an' couldn't buy him one?

PROFESSIONAL BRETHREN

BY GEORGE E. WALSH

Copyright, 1902, by F. M. Buckles & Co., New York

CHAPTER XVII.

I WAS a hero in the eyes of Miss Stetson and my master after the runaway. Mr. Goddard was not less profuse in his congratulations and praise of me than the one I had saved from almost certain death. It pained me to see that his affection for her was genuine and yet not strong enough to induce him to give up his double life. I believe that if anything serious had happened to her he would have mourned for her as much as ever man did for woman. Nevertheless he continued to practice secretly a profession that would cause pain worse than death if she discovered it.

Realizing that matters were reaching a climax, I determined to make a bold stroke and try to induce my master to turn away from his evil ways. I had firm faith in him outside of his one weakness. If he was once confronted with his crimes and warned that an exposure would ruin him for life, he might relent. There was a possibility of saving him from himself and from the doctor's influence. I had the power within me to do it. I could face him and Dr. Squires with their crimes and threaten them with exposure if the latter did not immediately leave the place and the former promise to reform.

It might prove a risky experiment to permit such a man to marry a sweet, pure woman like Miss Stetson, but there was the possibility of a mutually happy union, while there would be nothing but misery and unhappiness for both if my master was arrested and punished for his crimes. Choosing what I considered the lesser of two evils, I decided to make the experiment.

A sense of honor still kept me from approaching my master and telling him all that I knew. I had given him my word that I would never mention meeting him in any other guise than that of a gentleman, or, in other words, our accidental meeting as common burglars was to be blotted from my mind unless we were thrown together again under similar circumstances.

I now determined to create those circumstances to suit my own purpose.

Several days after this when I learned that he had an engagement at Dr. Squires' in the evening I made preparations to follow him again. This time I was posted so that I would not give him the opportunity to escape from me in the darkness.

It was a fitful, moonlight night. The moon came up about 11 o'clock, but the clouds in the heavens partly shut it from view. It cast wavering, vanishing shadows upon the calm earth which were exceedingly aggravating. They were so deceptive in appearance that I felt my task would be doubly difficult.

My master left the house at the usual time and proceeded to walk leisurely toward the doctor's. I followed him at some distance, not making any special effort to keep him in view. I knew that he was not anticipating any shadowing, and we both made our way to the old mansion according to our own notions.

I hurried a little toward the end of the walk to make sure that he entered the house. I reached a vantage point just in time to see the door open and close behind him. Then I amused myself the best way I could for several hours.

Shortly after midnight I roused myself to action. The time was approaching when I must prove my skill. The house was all dark, and no signs came from it to indicate the presence of a living soul anywhere around it.

It was a full hour before the door opened. Then by the aid of the moon's white light I caught a glimpse of my master and the doctor. They were consulting together in the shadow of the porch. I saw the latter point down the road, but I could not understand anything he said.

A few moments later my master left him and glided rather than walked down the drive toward the highway. I waited for him, concealed in some bushes near the gate. His manner was quick, nervous, energetic—so unlike his natural habits. The professional burglar was aroused in him—a second self which had been carefully cultivated and developed.

We both moved down the highway cautiously, watching, listening and anticipating some unknown danger. I kept within ten yards of him, but always ready to increase the distance between us on the slightest sign from him that he intended to double upon his tracks. I was familiar with his tactics this time sufficiently to enable me to be prepared for the most unexpected movement.

Never did a detective shadow a criminal with more intentness than I did my master that night. He led me a chase two miles down the road; then without apparent reason he struck across the fields to one of the side roads which ran parallel with the main highway. A mile down this brought him to a fork in the road formed by the meeting of an old, deserted lane. Into this he turned his silent footsteps. Five hundred yards down it a small, purling brook crossed the lane. It was too broad to jump over, but only a few feet deep.

My master removed his shoes quickly and then plunged into the cool water, but instead of crossing he waded a long distance down stream and then regained the same shore again. I understood his maneuver. It was to throw bloodhounds off the track and to confuse any detective who might try to trace him back to the doctor's house.

I smiled at the trick and waited quietly for him to replace his shoes. Then once more he started on his journey. This time he ceased to pursue a zigzag course, but made a bee line for a large house not a hundred yards from the brook. This I knew was the scene of his night's work.

The house was a modern one and stood on a slight eminence overlooking the surrounding country. It was owned by an intimate friend of the Stetson and Goddard families—Mr. Jaimson by name—and it occurred to me as being very peculiar that my master should attempt to rob it. But what could not be expected of him after he had looted the Stetson house, the very home of the one whom he loved? Could such baseness be ever overlooked? Could such a man be reformed? For a few moments my resolutions wavered, and I thought of returning and telling all that I knew to Miss Stetson and let her decide the fate of the two men.

But a moment later I found myself pursuing my game with renewed animation. He had actually entered the house through one of the basement windows. I waited a reasonable length of time before following him. Then when everything was quiet I climbed through the window at the risk of my own life, for I realized that my form was silhouetted against the outside light, while my master might be hidden in the darkness inside.

But I gained the interior of the basement without accident. I searched around for an open door, and, finding it, I walked catlike into a larger room. I knew that my master's first point would be the dining room, and I boldly climbed the stairs leading to it from the basement. Once there I heard the slight rattle of silver and caught the quick, flashing ray of his dark lantern. Then I concealed myself behind some curtains and waited.

I decided that it would be better to let him finish his job and then confront him with his booty in his hands. There would then be no question of his intentions.

He passed from the dining room into the library and then moved silently upstairs. In spite of his soft steps and quiet motions I could occasionally catch a sound which indicated to me where he was. If anybody had been awake, his presence would have been detected.

I kept myself pretty well concealed behind some curtain or portiere, for I dreaded lest at any moment he might flash the rays of his lantern in my direction and detect me. I was thus concealed from view in a small alcove opening upon the upper hall when I was startled by a peculiar noise.

As a professional burglar myself I knew the alarming nature of that sound. It was the distinct click of a revolver. I peered through the curtains to determine what it meant. As I did so there was another click, this time lower and less distinct. This was caused by the pressing of an electric button. The next moment the whole house was brilliantly lighted.

I stepped back into the alcove with trembling heart. The inmates of the house had been aroused, and my master as well as myself was caught. Through the filmy curtains I caught a glimpse of a dark shadow flash through the hall toward the front stairs. I knew that it was my master and that he was making a bold dash for freedom.

At almost the same moment I heard a door open and a loud voice exclaim:

"Stop or I'll shoot!"

I imagined that my master did not obey, for the next moment two pistol shots rang through the house, followed by the loud shuffling of feet and the banging of doors.

Had a tragedy been enacted within sound of me or had my master escaped?

I waited and listened, expectantly and anxiously. The people of the house were evidently assembled in the hall below. They were too frightened to do much talking. Then matters calmed down a little, and I caught snatches of their conversation.

"The basement window was opened," somebody said. "He jumped out of that."

"Didn't you hit him, father?" asked a youthful voice which I recognized as that of the seventeen-year-old son of Mr. Jaimson.

"I don't know. Do you see any signs of blood in the basement?"

They went down another flight of stairs, and I would have made a bold dash for liberty then had not the presence of some of the frightened servants in the upper hall prevented me.

Half an hour later they returned upstairs. Fortunately for me no thought of a search for another burglar entered their minds. Mr. Jaimson tried to calm the servants and the ladies by saying:

"Now all go to bed again. There is no more danger. He has left the house, and we are safer than ever. A burglar never enters a house the second time."

Gradually they separated and returned to their bedrooms. Only the old man and his wife remained in the hall within my hearing. When everything was quiet again, he said:

"Ellen, I recognized the burglar tonight beyond doubt."

"Why, Edward, who was he?" his wife asked quickly.

"You will hardly believe me, Ellen, when I tell you, but it is true. I could not have been mistaken."

Then he lowered his voice and said:

"It was Charles Goddard!"

"Impossible, Edward; impossible! You were excited and could not see well!"

"No, Ellen; there was no mistake. I faced him in the hall and could have shot him dead. But the surprise at meeting him unnerved me. Then I merely tried to wound him and not to kill him when he rushed downstairs."

Their bedroom door closed then, and I heard no more. But what more did I need? I saw the game was up. My master was recognized, and nothing but family friendship could ever induce Mr. Jaimson to hold his secret.

I waited in my concealed place for several hours before daring to venture out. Then as I saw daylight beginning to break I boldly left the alcove, walked downstairs with my shoes in my hand, unfastened one of the parlor windows and dropped out upon the soft grass. I did not stop to close the window, but hurried home in time to get in my room before the servants would be rising.

CHAPTER XVIII.

I TRIED to catch a few hours of sleep that morning, but I had difficulty in losing consciousness. When I did forget myself in slumber for a brief time, unpleasant dreams disturbed me, and I awoke with a start.

It was still early in the morning when I dressed and knocked at my master's door. He was sleeping soundly, and I disliked to rouse him. But I was fearful lest he had been wounded the night before, and I could not leave the house on the mission I had in view until I had ascertained. I shoved his bedroom door open and entered (he never locked it at night) and asked him if he wished anything.

"No, William; not yet," he replied in a sleepy voice. "I am very tired this morning and shall not get up until lunch time. Have a good lunch for me, and I will be ready."

His face was pale, but not more so than usual after his night visits to Dr. Squires.

"There is nothing wrong with you this morning, I hope?" I ventured to remark.

"No, William, except that I'm very weary and sleepy. Why do you ask?"

He looked inquiringly at me, and I stammered:

"Nothing, only you look pale. I thought maybe you were ill."

"No, I'm not sick—merely tired. Leave me for a few hours."

I closed the door softly, satisfied that he was unhurt.

After giving directions to the servants about an early lunch for my master I left the house and started on a brisk walk toward Mr. Jaimson's house. It was essential that I should have an interview with him before he saw my master or talked to anybody about the previous night's robbery.

He was at breakfast when I was ushered into the library. I insisted upon seeing him alone and immediately, urging the servant to report that my business was very important.

Ten minutes later he appeared in the library. He was a man past middle age, stout of figure and stern of feature. I realized that he was a man not easily turned from any course which he considered just. He bowed stiffly upon entering and said:

"I haven't the pleasure of knowing you, I believe."

I was dressed in a new suit of clothes, and I flattered myself that I would pass for a gentleman among strangers.

"No, sir, but that is not necessary," I said briskly and with the air of one of authority. "I have come to talk with you about last night's robbery."

He started visibly and then said smilingly:

"Ah, I see! You're a detective!"

I made no direct reply to this, but added:

"I think the robbers who have recently been terrorizing the neighborhood will soon be cornered."

He smiled again and said:

"Possibly. I know something about it that may lead to important results."

"I know that," I answered, "and that is why I have come thus early to see you."

"How do you know it?" he responded.

"That isn't the point. I not only know that you know a good deal about it, but I know exactly the information that leads you to think you can expose the robbers."

He looked inquisitively at me and then said frowningly:

"What is it that I know or that you think I know?"

I looked around the room as if I expected somebody might be listening.

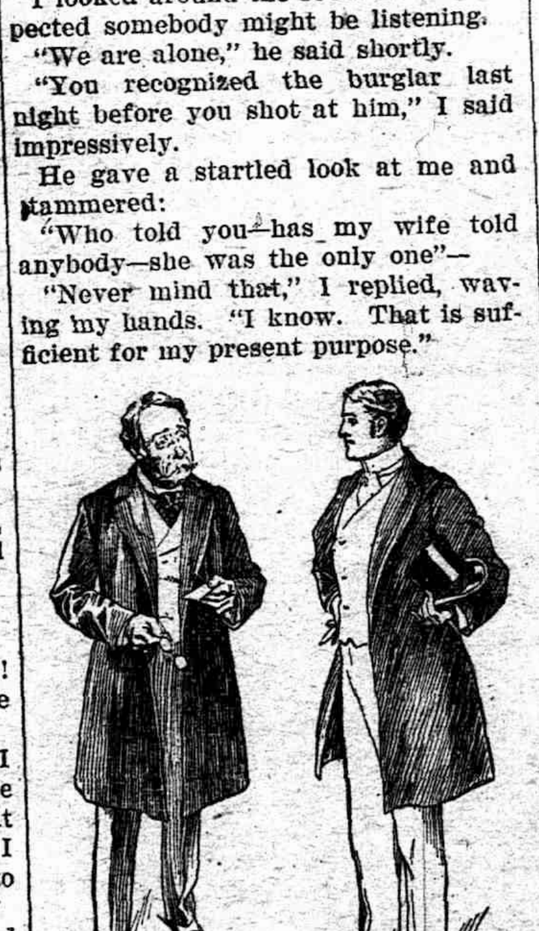
"We are alone," he said shortly.

"You recognized the burglar last night before you shot at him," I said impressively.

He gave a startled look at me and stammered:

"Who told you—has my wife told anybody—she was the only one"—

"Never mind that," I replied, waving my hands. "I know. That is sufficient for my present purpose."



"Ah, I see! You're a detective!"

A look of suspicion entered his face, and, probably thinking that I was merely leading him on, he asked:

"If you know so much about it, please tell me who it was I recognized."

"Certainly. I'll whisper it in your ear."

I drew near to him and said impressively:

"It was Charles Goddard whom you recognized in your house last night and at whom you shot."

The last expression of doubt left his face, and he could only add slowly:

"Well, well, I don't understand how you found it out."

The man was completely mystified, as I hoped he would be, and I continued with a smile on my own face:

"Now, if you believe that I know what I'm doing we will enter into the details of my mission here this morning."

"Go on. I'm ready for anything."

"First, then, what did you intend to do with this information?"

"I hadn't made up my mind," he said doubtfully, taking a seat in an easy chair near me.

"Well, you either intended to inform the police or accuse Mr. Goddard of the crime to his own face."

"Yes, one or the other, but most likely the latter. Mr. Goddard's father and I were great friends. I should hate to see his name stained with dishonor."

"I thought as much," I replied, "and it is to prevent you from making a mistake that I have called this morning. I know more about this matter than you do."

"Probably. You seem to know all that I do. It's wonderful how you knew it, for I swear I never mentioned the matter to any one except my wife, and she's seen nobody but the servants."

"But other eyes may have recognized the man," I said suggestively.

"That's true. I never thought of that. Did some of my servants see him?"

"Don't worry yourself," I interrupted. "The person who saw him will not mention it further. I've fixed all that."

"Well, well; so early in the morning, and you seem to have arranged everything before I could decide upon the first step."

"It's my business," I added. Then continuing I said in a low voice:

"But Mr. Goddard is not the only one concerned in these robberies. There is another and I think a more dangerous neighbor who is implicated in the crimes. But he is too wary to be caught easily. He directs the whole matter, but keeps in the background. He must be caught at least and punished if Mr. Goddard is to suffer. It would be a sin to let him escape and the lesser criminal punished."

"Yes, yes, of course—by all means."

"Then we must work together. I've laid a plan by which I can prove the guilt of this other party. If you will work with me and do as I tell you, we can face him with his guilt in spite of all his skillfulness."

"Anything that you think best. Propose your plan."

"Well, first, I want you to keep the matter strictly quiet and not mention to a living soul that you recognized the burglar last night. Let the detectives work on the case as usual, but warn your wife not to commit herself. Is she brave enough to do this?"

"Yes; Ellen is only too ready to shield Mr. Goddard. I cannot convince her that I was correct in recognizing him."

"So much the better. Let her continue to think so and pretend that you think you might have been mistaken. Then next Tuesday night I shall ask you and another person who is more interested in Mr. Goddard than yourself—Miss Stetson, in short—to accompany me to one of your neighbor's houses. He will be away that night, and I will show you some of the secrets of his little game that he conceals in his house. When he returns late at night, we can confront him with the crime. I shall then leave it with you and Miss Stetson as to what course to pursue. If we arrest the man, Mr. Goddard will have to be implicated; if we banish him from the place with the threat of exposure, we can shield Mr. Goddard and give him another chance. That, in short, is my plan. Will you co-operate with me?"

"With pleasure. It's an admirable arrangement. I believe we ought to give Charles another opportunity. I can hardly find the heart to have him arrested."

"Well, I leave that entirely to you and Miss Stetson."

"And Miss Stetson will agree with me."

I said nothing in reply, but after giving a few more directions I withdrew, promising to call for him on the evening specified to conduct him to the house of his unknown neighbor.

Consumption

People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.

The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.

EXERCISES

Were very Pretty in the Several Churches this Week.

HOMES OF THE POOR

Made Brighter by the Giving Spirit Shown at the Presbyterian Church.

Christmas exercises were held in the several churches this week. A novel program was the one given at the Presbyterian church Wednesday evening The spirit was in giving rather than receiving and instead of each class receiving a Christmas gift, a gift of some article was donated by them for the general distribution to the needy and a very large assortment of useful things in the shape of food and clothing was contributed. Each class was represented on the program by some selection, as follows:

Song, "Joy to the World."
Vocal solo—Miss Bessie Spayde.
Whistling solo—Fred Frost.
Santa Claus Land—Miss Anderson's class.
Chorus, "Shine Out, Blessed Star"—Mrs. Camburn's class.
A chorus—Miss Hosmer's class.
A Recipe for Bread Making—Mrs. Kemp's and Miss Ingersoll's classes.
The Millers with music by choir.
Bible readings—Mr. Jones' class.
Solo and class exercise—Mrs. Jones' class.
Selection—Dr. Frost's class.
The Farmers—Miss Gray's class.
An exercise, "Giving"—Miss Wimple's class.
Exercise—Mrs. J. L. Anderson's class.
A chorus by the Willing Workers.
Address by Santa Claus.
Music and Benediction.

The Friends' church held their exercises Tuesday evening and a very pretty program was given. At the M. E. church the Sunday-school enjoyed a wind mill Christmas eve and the same evening the Baptist Sunday-school took supper at the church and gave an excellent program.

Family Reunion.

A very pleasant family reunion was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Geo. Howell yesterday. About 2 o'clock, the guests, thirty in number, were ushered into the dining room, which was tastefully decorated with smilax and potted plants, where an elaborate Christmas dinner was served.

After dinner, the guests retired to the sitting room and the presents were distributed, everyone enjoying himself hugely.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Knight and Peter Knight, of Bridgewater; Thos. Temple and family, of Detroit; Mrs. Abe Hunt, of Franklin; Wesley Pennington and family, Misses Nellie and Laura Gooding and Chester Gooding, of Macon; Mr. and Mrs. Will Pennington, of Pinckney; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Allen, of Clinton; Mrs. Erwin Conklin and two children, of Norwalk, Ohio.

CHRISTMAS DANCE.

About Fifty Couple Attended.

A BIG SUCCESS.

Never before has the Hall Presented such an Elaborate Appearance.

A prettier or more successful dance than the one given at the armory last night, has never before been held Well might the committee on decorations be proud of their work, for, to their taste and art in arranging the decorations, much of the success of the affair is due.

At the south side of the hall, huge pillars supported arches of white and pink, making an alcove, from which the strains from the orchestra carried the dancers through the evening's program. From the ceiling to the side walls, long ropes of ground pine were artistically draped. The many electric lights which studded the ceiling were decorated with neat shades of pink and white tissue paper. The side walls further carried out the elaborate effect, long streamers of pink and white bunting being draped in graceful folds, upon which were wreaths of evergreen and branches of holly.

The music was furnished by Whitmore's orchestra, of Ypsilanti, and was of a high order. The appreciation of all present was made manifest in the encores after each dance. To say that the dance was a success would not do it justice, for indeed it was more than a success. Although not so largely attended as previous parties, it far surpassed all preceeding dances and will, in the future, be very hard to equal.

At a late hour a dainty luncheon was served in the dining room. This room also showed forth its Christmas greeting, and one entering the room could not but be tempted by the dainty repast that spread the tables. Again we return to the dancing hall where, all forgetful of the passing hours, the dancers are winding their way in and out across the spacious hall, to the strains of a two-step or waltz.

The following guests from out of town attended the party: Misses Cynthia Bailey, Manchester; Mildred and Grace Heesen, Toledo; Jennie Gilkey, Adrian; Miss York, Ypsilanti; Leon Kelly, Ann Arbor; Roy Burlingame, Detroit; Verne Smith, Adrian.

A New Departure in Hypnotic Entertainments.

Memphis, Tenn., Evening Scimitar: The Knowles are expositors of the weird art who have developed many refreshing variations of the old style hypnotism as many still practice it. They present a performance that is laughable and wholesomely amusing throughout. Elmer E. Knowles' blindfold drive was indeed a marvelous exhibition in mind-reading. New Bradley, Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 29 and 30

Distress by day and night—

That's the complaint of those who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with Eczema or Salt Rheum—and outward applications do not cure. They can't.

The source of the trouble is in the blood—make that pure and this scaling, burning, itching skin disease will disappear.

"I was taken with an itching on my arms which proved very disagreeable. I concluded it was salt rheum and bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. In two days after I began taking it I felt better and it was not long before I was cured. Have never had any skin disease since." MRS. IDA E. WARD, Cove Point, Md.

IN TECUMSEH

Every Claim is Backed by Local Testimony.

If the reader wants stronger proof than the following statement and experience of a citizen here at home, what can it be?

Mr. F. A. Ferguson, tinsmith, residing in the north western section of Tecumseh, says: "I had symptoms of kidney trouble. The kidney secretions were very irregular and at times too frequent and highly colored. Having seen so many cases of severe kidney trouble I thought it wise to do something at once, so I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright's drug store and took them. I began to improve from the very start and continued to do so. I emphatically declare Doan's Kidney Pills to be up to the representations made for them."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Mrs. Shoddy, who has just returned from Switzerland, says the ice glaciers are so called because they look like pieces of glass.

It's the little colds that grow into big colds; the big colds that end in consumption and death. Watch the little colds. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Northville Will Fight.

Northville, Mich., Dec. 24.—The Northville Improvement association, backed by the common council, has expressed a determination to find out whether a manufacturing concern which has accepted a bonus from a village may ignore its obligations at will. Notices have been posted of a chattel mortgage sale of the effects of the Fisk & Thomas Shoe Co., of this place, to take place Dec. 30. This action is the outcome of an attempt on the part of Mr. Thomas of the Rogers Shoe company of Toledo, who is the principal stockholder in the Fisk & Thomas firm, to ship a lot of the finished goods to Toledo last week in defiance of a $5,000 bond given two years ago to stay in Northville for five years.

Aged Couple Died Together.

Plymouth, Mich., Dec. 24.—Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton, who lived near Salem, and who had spent the past half century in each other's company, were not to be parted by death. On Sunday night at 11 o'clock Mrs. Hamilton passed away, and an hour later her husband had gone to join her. Old age was the cause.

Death List Now Numbers 25.

San Francisco, Dec. 23.—The death list of the railroad collision at Byron, Cal., Saturday night was swelled to twenty-five last night by the ending of the life of Miss Stella Howard of San Francisco at the Southern Pacific hospital here. HAS NOT ACCEPTED.

President Wants The Hague Tribunal to Argue Venezuelan Affair.

Washington, Dec. 23.—President Roosevelt has not accepted the position of arbitrator of the Venezuelan controversy. In fact, when the official day closed Monday, he had not received, formally or officially, a request from the European powers that he act as arbitrator of the dispute. These statements are made on the highest authority.

In an informal manner the president has been notified that the European powers intimately concerned in the present South American difficulty desire that he should undertake the responsibility of acting as arbitrator of the points at issue between them and Venezuela.

The president and Secretary Hay had a long conference yesterday. They carefully went over the situation as it had developed since Saturday, but it is understood that nothing has arisen during the past forty-eight hours to warrant the president in changing his opinion as to the undesirability of his acceptance of the position of arbitrator.

Caracas, Dec. 23.—The blockade is proving prejudicial to American trade. Fifteen importing houses in Caracas have stopped placing orders in the United States. Boulton & Co. are the only importers of American flour who have declined to increase the price of this article. The people benefit by this firm's action. It is estimated that the food supply in Caracas will not last much more than a fortnight.

Marconi Transmits King's Reply by Wireless Code.

Glace Bay, N. S., Dec. 23.—To his wireless message, transmitted from Cranada to King Edward VII., Marconi has received the following reply, signed by Lord Knollys, the king's private secretary:

"I have had the honor of submitting your telegram to the king and I am commanded to congratulate you sincerely on the successful issue of your endeavors to develop your most important invention. The king has been much interested in your evperiments, as he remembered that the initial ones were commenced by you on the royal yacht Osborne in 1898."

Pere Marquette's New Manager.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—Myron Jay Carpenter, who has been president of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois road for the last ten years, has resigned to accept the position of vice-president and general manager of the Pere Marquette system. Mr. Carpenter was notified of his selection Monday, but the date of his change has not been settled. He will, however, assume the duties of his new position, probably with headquarters in Detroit, as soon as arrangements can be made to dispense with his services on the Eastern Illinois.

Cuban Treaty Won't Go to House.

Washington, Dec. 23.—President Roosevelt has let it be known that before he reached his decision to send the Cuban reciprocity treaty to the senate and not to the house, he consulted freely the leaders of the house and the members of his cabinet. After mature consideration, it was determined that it was unnecessary to send the Cuban treaty to the house, notwithstanding the fact that it affected revenues of the government.

Headache

kills, not necessarily suddenly, but SURELY. It preys upon the intellectual powers more than we realize. It consumes the vitality faster than nature can replenish it, and we cannot tell just what moment a temporary or complete aberration of the mind will result. Headache and pain should be promptly removed—but properly. Many pain cures are more harmful than the pain. Beware. If you would be safe, take

Dr. Miles' Pain Pills.

"As a result of neuralgia I lost the sight of my right eye, and the pain I have suffered is incomprehensible, being obliged to take opiates almost continually. A friend gave me one of Dr. Miles' Pain Pills and it promptly relieved me. I then purchased a box and now my trouble is gone. They have also cured my daughter of nervous headache, and I heartily recommend them to others."—W. J. CORLEY, Bremond, Texas.

RICH AND POOR ALIKE

Uric Acid Makes Rheumatic Pains Without Regard to Station.

It is very democratic—Rheumatism is no respector of persons. It attacks old and young, rich and poor.

Uric acid in the blood causes all of the trouble, and until it is removed Rheumatic pains will continue. As it continues and increases more or less disability will follow. We can remove the Uric acid with Athlophoros, and can tell you how to keep your system free from it after you are cured.

Immediate improvement will be seen with Athlophoros. It goes directly to the seat of the trouble and dissipates the cause. You will note better circulation, greater appetite, freer bowels and a generally better feeling.

Uric acid is responsible for more physical disorders and creates more complications than most people think.

You will find that your general health will be better if you can once get it out of your system. Athlophoros will do it, and one bottle will show marked improvement. It won't cost much to prove it, and we know you will be benefited. If your druggist doesn't sell it send $1 to The Athlophoros Co., New Haven, Conn.

From the Gazette, Toowoomba, Australia: I find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an excellent medicine. I have been suffering from a severe cough for the last two months, and it has effected a cure. I have great pleasure in recommending it.—W. C. WOCKNER. This is the opinion of one of our oldest and most respected residents, and has been voluntarily given in good faith that others may try the remedy and be benefited as was Mr. Wockner. This remedy is sold by J. J. Orr.

A very serviceable calendar has been issued by the Chicago & North-Western R'y for the year 1903. Poultry and Pet Stock Show.—The tenth annual exhibition of the Southwestern Michigan Poultry and Pet Stock association was formally opened at Kalamazoo yesterday. The exhibition will be open all this week.

Sold Him Paste Diamonds.—Leslie Walker, bartender for Gwinner & Paul of Ann Arbor, was caught by a couple of sharpers, who secured from him $100 in return for a couple of ordinary brilliants worth less than one-fifth the sum.

Tapped the Cash Register.—Leo O'Brien, a clerk in the employ of H. C. Knill, Jr., of Port Huron, and Burt Molloy are under arrest, charged with systematically tapping Knill's cash register, the aggregate stealings amounting to something like $2,000.

Notable Golden Wedding.—Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Corless, Branch county pioneers, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Monday. Each has lived in Coldwater over sixty years, and five other couples, each of whom have been married over fifty years, were present.

The Skin.

Bathing to many persons is a term embodying an expenditure of time and considerable trouble. It is probably because they do not cleanse the skin until it gives visible signs of its needs. Now, the skin is everlastingly throwing off impurities which you cannot always see with the naked eye, but which will be readily found in the appearance of the bath water even when one bathes each day. When you can wear a white collar a few hours without marring its spotlessness where it comes in contact with the skin, you may have some excuse for thinking that you are perfectly clean and not before. The neatest person I ever saw could not boast of such an achievement, for the thing is well nigh impossible. Nature has provided the pores for drainage purposes, and in health they work without ceasing.—Boston Traveler.

The Singing Mouse.

The power of song among the brute creation has so long been associated in our minds with the feathered tribe alone that we do not think of it as belonging to any four footed animals. Yet there is a mouse that sings—why, nobody knows. It is a small animal, with very large ears, which are moved about much while singing, as if that were necessary to the success of the vocal performance. The song is not, as you think a prolonged squeak with variations, but a succession of clear, warbling notes, with trills, not unlike the song of a canary, and quite as beautiful, though some of the notes are much lower. One great peculiarity is a sort of double song, an air with accompaniment quite subdued. Upon first hearing this one believes that he is listening to more than one mouse, so perfect is the illusion.
